how a Carnival should be arranged and what it should comprise. We appreciate his suggestions but it is a pity that he was not sufficiently public-spirited to let us have the benefit of his advice at our preliminary meetings instead of keeping it secret all this time. It is a little late now to change all our plans for this year's Carnival and we are content once again to leave its fate in the capable hands of our good friends and loyal supporters, Mr. and Mrs. John Pub-
