OUR GREATEST ASSET

OUR CHILDREN are Canada's greatest wealth — its greatest asset.
 Let us remember that our conduct and our every action have an effect on youth. With this in mind it behooves us all to set a high example of citizenship.
 Let us show a leadership, too, that will stimulate the best in the children. And in prepared programs for youth let us remember that importance of encouraging initiative.
 It is with a view to fostering initiative among the coming generation and the development of healthy bodies that leaders of the Civic Centre are slanting their programs. In this they are deserving of highest praise — and your active assistance and co-operation.

AUTUMN PLANTING

I have a hidden Spring in a tight warm place
 Underground securely.
 In a core of a hyacinth—
 It will come back surely.
 In a tight warm place where a well and a wall
 Stand stubborn to the wind
 When apples fall.
 Now quickened as 'one who waits
 The lover's return,
 I knit and churn.
 I have hidden Spring securely
 In the core of a hyacinth—
 Now Spring will come back surely.

THOUGHTS FOR TODAY

Middle Age is the time when you treasure the old family photographs you were ashamed to have anybody see when you were 20.
 A smile and a cheery word cost nothing yet bring pleasure not even money can buy.
 Preface a rebuke with a word of praise. "Better still, never speak the harsh word."

A.B.C. PAPERS MORE FAVORABLE TO ADVERTISERS

Announcement made today of the annual meeting in Chicago on October 17-18 of the Audit Bureau of Circulations calls attention to an operation of self-regulation in industry that is an outstanding example of the North American way of life in business. The membership of this 32-year-old association, with which Prince Rupert Daily News is affiliated, comprises 2900 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies in the United States and Canada. Working together and without outside interference, these sellers and buyers of advertising space have voluntarily set up rules and standards for use in measuring and evaluating the circulation of published media.

The Audit Bureau, better known as A.B.C., maintains a large staff of experienced circulation auditors who examine and audit the circulation records of all publisher members at regular intervals. The results of these audits are issued in A.B.C. reports which are available to advertisers and publishers for use in the buying and selling of advertising space. These reports tell how much net paid circulation a publication has, how it was obtained, the price or prices at which it was sold, how and where distributed and many other facts essential to the sound investment of advertising money. Thus, with the aid of A.B.C. reports, advertisers can select the media best adapted to their needs, invest their money on the basis of facts and know just what they get for their advertising dollars. This is a far cry from conditions that existed prior to 1914 the year A.B.C. was established, when advertisers had no uniform standards for the comparison and evaluation of media and when publishers were unable to get full credit for their circulation claims.

TIN PRODUCTION BOOMS IN WALES

CARDIFF, Wales (P)—Tinplate mills in South Wales are handicapped by labor and material shortages but new mills are coming on stream and production is increasing. Demand still far outstrips supply.

"We have reached a position where, although tinplate may be ordered only for packing food-stuffs, there is a grievous insufficiency even for that," said Sir Robert Barlow, chairman of one company manufacturing containers.

"As a result the canning industry at home, in the Empire and elsewhere is very far from working at normal capacity."

Latest development is a projected hot-strip mill at Port Talbot, to be built by several co-operating firms. Two more cold reduction mills also are planned.

Five mills have restarted at Cardiff and others will open soon.

Three or four rabbit skins are used to make one felt hat.

Teachers To Re-Enter Wage Negotiations

After casting a brooding eye on their first monthly pay checks of the 1946-47 term, members of the Prince Rupert Teachers' Association have decided to consult with the School Board about the possibility of further adjustments in their salary schedule.

The Association informed the School Board in a letter last night that it would like to discuss the agreement, which was adopted last May when salary boosts for the present term were granted.

WILL NEGOTIATE

The Board decided to set up a committee to meet a teachers' salary committee sometime this month to discuss the difficulties pointed out in the letter. The trustees committee consists of Chairman, Dr. R. G. Large, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Roper, and Trustee, Mrs. E. W. Becker.

According to Mrs. Roper, the salary increase last May was granted by the Board with the idea that the cost-of-living bonus, formerly paid to the teachers, should be discontinued. The schedule was made retro-active to January 1, 1946, and would be applicable throughout the 1946-47 year.

Points on which the Teachers' Association based its claim for re-opening discussions on salaries are:

SCHEDULE TOO LOW

1. The present salary schedule is not functioning in regard to the appointment of new teachers.
 2. The schedule is below that called for by the B.C. Teachers' Federation.
 3. The schedule was accepted by the Teachers' Association without prejudice to the cost-of-living bonus which prevailed at the time it was accepted.
- Probability is that the Association will request either a new schedule asking higher basic salaries, or that the present salary schedule be maintained with the re-institution of a cost-of-living bonus.

RCAF SURVEYS UNCHARTED AREA OF NORTHLAND

Research of Photographic Crews Opens New Fields of Northland for Exploration

OTTAWA (C)—The R.C.A.F. the instrument Canada uses to map out her uncharted empire, has photographed more than 370,000 square miles of Northern Canada this summer in continuation of a job that has gone on for 20 years and will continue for many more.

To the end of August air survey crews working out of suburban Rockcliffe air station but operating from sub-Arctic points photographed 202,000 square miles by what is known as the large-scale vertical method and another 170,000 square miles by the tri-camera method. The latter system takes in a greater area than the one-camera method of vertical photography but the air pictures do not possess the same fineness of detail.

Concentrating chiefly on communications and transport duties until its training program swings back into full operation next year, the air force is carrying on in its air survey a job that for two decades has seen it work in areas as widely separated as the Niagara Peninsula and the Arctic Circle, Vancouver Island and the Maritimes. Negatives for all pictures are kept in a huge vault at Rockcliffe.

The reasons for photographic survey are several. The need for accurate maps of new areas for settlement by veterans, the location of regions rich in minerals which can be determined from geological "faults" in the terrain, and the need for information about areas requiring control of flood conditions or the prevention of soil erosion are examples. Another is the need for better maps for purposes of National Defence.

It occasionally illustrates the limited extent to which the Northland is known.

CORRECTS OLD MAPS

For instance it was discovered by the R.C.A.F. 12 years ago that Akimiski Island in James Bay was practically upside down on all maps. Only this year another R.C.A.F. plane re-discovered the Spicer Islands in Foxe Basin at a point other than that shown on the map.

The force's work is handed to it by a government interdepartmental committee on air surveys.

Of the two types of photographic survey, the vertical air survey is a 20-year-old project and is the original method of aerial photography of this kind. It is used for mapping and for detailed exploration of such things as: water power development; soil reclamation and irrigation projects and land development for soldier settlement; mineral exploration; hydrographic survey for inland waterways; forestry service and coverage of flooded areas for dyke projects.

Tri-camera photography is intended for basic exploration. Its purposes are: coverage of large areas where photographs are required immediately; coverage in cases where large-scale maps are not required; and general survey from which likely areas will be chosen for detailed survey.

In vertical photography only one camera is used. It takes a series of overlapping pictures of the ground. In theory the centre of each picture represents the ground directly below the aircraft at the time it was taken.

In tri-camera photography, besides a centrally positioned camera taking a vertical photograph, two oblique cameras at the same time take photos overlapping the central vertical photo and extending, one right and one left, to each horizon. They are taken usually from 20,000 feet above sea level, and have not nearly the detail that ordinary verticals have. But they can take a much greater area.

COVER HUGE AREA

On a good photographic day 25,000 square miles of tri-camera photos can be taken, as compared with only 600 to 1,000 square miles by the vertical method. Canada could not be photographed completely for 50 or 60 years at the present rate if only verticals were used. But from tri-camera photos experts can select areas for further investigation, which will lead to the most economical use of the facilities available for vertical photography.

The detachments may be stationed in hotels, airport buildings or under canvas, depending upon their location. In camps in isolated localities as for example in the Northwest Territories living conditions are rigorous. Arms are carried and the men shoot most of their own requirements of fresh meat, or catch their own fish.

From an operational standpoint, the greatest handicap in the North is the short season. Photographs must be taken when there is no snow or ice on the ground.

Very often gaps appear in a photographic mosaic due to flying by faulty maps or to navigational errors, and until recently these would not be discovered until the photographs were plotted the following winter. But improvements in equipment and technique have resulted in great progress in this respect. At the present time, films are developed at Rockcliffe in most cases before the detachment has left the base, and any gaps which appear can be flown and photographed in a few days.

CABBIES TAUGHT TRICKS OF TRADE

LONDON (C)—London's shortage of 1,600 taxi-cab drivers is being eased by ex-servicemen studying at the British Legion's taxi-drivers' school in southwest London.

Only one of its kind in the London area, the school's capacity is 125 students. Before they are licensed all taxi-drivers must pass police examinations in taxi-driving technique and geographical knowledge.

"Cabbies" must know all squares, clubs, hospitals, main buildings, hotels, theatres, embassies, railway and police stations. They must know the shortest route between any two places within six miles of Charing Cross railway station, which is approximately the centre of London.

"Another side of the training is the psychological factor," said Capt. W. F. G. Reeland, school secretary. "That is within police jurisdiction. Students' behavior is watched to see what attitude they would take to various types of customers.

"Their service and civilian records are also checked in case of criminal conviction. You have to be almost an angel to drive a taxi nowadays."

INDIAN MEDICAL SCHOOLS

MADRAS (C)—The government of Madras has decided to start two new medical colleges, affording education for more than 100 students. One is to be established at Guntur and the other at Madura.

sugar to one cup of juice). Boil to 220 degrees Fahrenheit or until syrup sheets from the spoon—about 10 minutes. Remove the scum, pour into sterilized jars and seal.
The vetric test referred to above for determining time to add sugar may be made with either alcohol or epsom salts. The alcohol method—rubbing alcohol may be used—requires a tablespoon of alcohol to be a tablespoon of alcohol to be blended quickly and let stand. DO NOT TASTE. If a jelly-like mass is formed the juice contains enough beetin and the sugar may be added. With epsom salts mix together a tablespoon of juice, a teaspoon of sugar and a teaspoon of salts and let stand 20 minutes. If jelly-like mass forms sugar may be added.

BRITISH RIISHING NEW TELEPHONES

LONDON (Reuters)—Great Britain's General Post Office is beating all previous records in telephone engineering by installing an average of 75,000 telephones in British homes every month—100 per cent above the prewar figure.
Yet despite this increased activity, there is a waiting list of more than 300,000 people who want phones. Applications arrive at double the prewar rate.
The post office, which controls telephones throughout the country, is aiming at installation of a phone in every home in Britain, and already has cut the total waiting list for the first time in six years.

In 1944, 12.2 per cent of London's population had telephones, against 27.6 in New York City. But even now the country's telephone exchanges handle 200,000,000 calls every month and short-staffed information offices answer 16,000 queries daily.
The post office owns 21,000,000 miles of underground wires. The latest type of cable is composed of two copper tubes and is capable of transmitting about 600 conversations at a time.

Britain's dial system has a 30-year history, but in many suburban villages the manual system of operation is still in effect.
A £46,000,000 (about $184,000,000) expenditure on improvement of Britain's telephone services—speed-up of both installation and transmission—has been authorized by Parliament.
