Men Rescued After Trapped Six Days On Beach

Two men were rescued Saturday after being trapped six days on a lonely beach after they managed to pilot their leaking boat ashore in tide-ripped waters at the entrance of Observatory Inlet, Mike Nagraiff of Prince Rupert and Hasse of Alice Arm were rescued Saturday after their family who had helplessly watched their signal fires for three days.

Both men had been aboard the mail boat Monk, which Hasse piloted from Alice Arm to pick up mail left by the steamer Coquitlam at Kincolith on November 17. The small boat got into distress before reaching the Naas River village.

Nagraiff, who is the son-in-law of Mrs. Handenschild arrived in Prince Rupert this morning on the Coquitlam, a week later than he expected when he left Anyox a week ago Sunday with Hasse.

Behind him was a week of semi-starvation on an uninhabited coast which followed the sinking of the small boat just as it reached shore in desolate country.

The Monk got into distress when a plank fell from the bottom of her hull as she strained in rough water near the north of Observatory Inlet. Efforts of Hasse and Nagraiff to plug the leak with anything at hand succeeded only until the boat got to shore. Then the engine stopped as the rising water flooded it.

"We plugged everything into the hole, and even tried sitting on it to stop the leak," Nagraiff said this morning as he recounted his adventure to friends.

The two men lived on a few cans of sardines and a dried-out loaf of bread for the next six days while they busied themselves with lighting huge fires on the mountainside to attract attention.

"We kept the whole mountainside burning for days but nobody came until the sixth day," Nagraiff said.

A native family who lived some distance away saw the fires on the third day, but were unable to make a rescue attempt because of rough water which endangered their boat. Finally, on Saturday the wind died down enough to make rescue possible.

Hasse and Nagraiff were taken to Kincolith.

Nagraiff, who had been working at Anyox, was picked up by Hasse in the mail boat which was enroute from Alice Arm to Kincolith. While Nagraiff was marooned, his wife was in hospital here after having a baby a few days before.

Hasse, a young man who has lived at Alice Arm for the last year, is not the regular mail man for the small, northern community. He made the trip as a substitute for the regular mail man, Jens Larsen, who was laid up by illness.

REVISION OF BUILDING CODE RECOMMENDED

Outdated and difficult to interpret, Prince Rupert's building bylaw faces the prospect of drastic revision or renewal on the basis of recommendations presented to the Council by City Engineer Phillips last night.

The bylaw to be replaced is the National Building Code and Building Code which is recommended by the Board of Fire Underwriters.

"It is questionable whether the protection it offers from a fire standpoint is of much value because of the instability of such a wall."

"It works a hardship and acts as a deterrent to persons interested in improving existing frame buildings."

He recommended that the fire wall requirement be repealed and urged building restrictions which would, in effect, prohibit future construction of frame buildings within the fire limits designated as One and Two.

To replace the fire wall, Mr. Phillips recommended a type of slow-burning construction in cases of major repairs to present frame buildings.

SALMON CAN BE HANDLED

Availability of the ocean dock for handling of canned salmon from Alaskan and general traffic came up at a meeting of the executive of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce last evening and it was decided to communicate with the Canadian National Railways and the War Assets Corporation with a view to getting at least the railway company's part of the Ocean Dock released now that its war function is over and it is in the hands of War Assets.

Meanwhile, it is stated by Canadian National Railways officials here that there are facilities available here already without the use of the Ocean Dock for the immediate transshipment of 100,000 cases of salmon and the storage of 40,000 cases.

The statement of the railway officials was in regard to a report emanating from Ketchikan stating that there was concern over hundreds of thousands of cases of canned salmon deteriorating there owing to cold weather and that, if there were more facilities available here for the transshipment of canned salmon, its movement from Alaska might be facilitated.

HALLOWE'EN DAMAGE IS CHARGED

Thirty-four youths are haled in City Police Court. Answering to charges of disorderly conduct arising out of a number of window-smashing episodes on Halloween night, 24 juveniles appeared before Juvenile Court Judge W. D. Vance today. The charges were laid as a result of a three-weeks investigation on the part of Detective Corporal A. T. Lashmar and other members of the city police force. The prosecutions are being conducted by Sgt. O. L. Hall. Estimated damage in the city on Halloween night was more than $1,000, most of it being broken windows and smashed street lights.

Ordinarily, Alderman Arnold's term of office would not expire until 1947. Her resignation asked that it be effective December 31, 1946. Motion to accept it was made by Alderman T. N. Youngs and seconded by Alderman George Hills.

In preparation for the election, which is a little more than two weeks away, city council named City Clerk J. D. Thain to be returning officer, with S. B. McCafferty as deputy returning officer.

Nomination place will be in the City Clerk's office in the city hall, while polling will take place in the Civic Centre, either in the auditorium or the cafeteria.

"Every man his own constable" was a suggestion that received warm accord from City Council members last night when they pondered a police committee report which dealt with the property damage wrought in the city last Halloween.

The report, delivered by City Clerk Thain at request of Alderman Arnold, suggested that in future on Halloween the chief of police consider the advisability of swearing in special constables to keep things under control.

"At least they could guard the schools and the business district. We cannot have a repetition of such damage," Alderman Arnold commented.

"We should also recommend that the curfew bylaw be strictly enforced on Halloween night," Alderman Hills said.

"The whole community should be sworn in as special constables next year," Alderman Youngs added.

"Where an existing frame building is to be altered for use as a multiple dwelling, the walls of the corridors, on both sides of the building, and between suites should be of the same type of slow-burning construction."

"This type of construction," the City Engineer stated, "would enable property owners to convert these buildings into multiple dwellings at a reasonable cost and at the same time give the fire department an opportunity to confine a fire to a smaller area than is possible under the existing regulations."

He recommended that the fire wall requirement be repealed and urged building restrictions which would, in effect, prohibit future construction of frame buildings within the fire limits designated as One and Two.

SCIENTISTS ON ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION — Three of the twelve British scientists who will take part in scientific surveys in the Falkland Islands are photographed on leaving London for the polar regions. They are, left to right, B. Stonehouse, R. N. F. K. Elliott (meteorological observers) and Dr. A. R. C. Butson. Valuable knowledge of animal, plant and mineral conditions in the Antarctic is expected to be gained from the expedition. Capt. Eugene Burden of Newfoundland is skipper of the Trepassey and expects the voyage to last two years.

MRS. ARNOLD RESIGNS HER COUNCIL SEAT

Following her announcement Monday that she intends to contest the seat for mayor of Prince Rupert at the civic elections on December 12, Alderman Nora E. Arnold submitted her resignation as a member of the aldermanic board at last night's council meeting.

Immediate Action in Linking Alaska And Washington By Way of British Columbia Urged By N.W. Trade Ass'n

"Would Be Better For Canadian Government to Aid This Project Than Continue Maintaining Present Alaska Highway," Says Magnuson

VANCOUVER (CP)—A resolution urging "immediate action" by Ottawa and Washington, D.C., in linking up Alaska and Washington State was approved by delegates to the Pacific Northwest Trade Association meeting here yesterday. The action came after United States Senator Warren G. Magnuson voiced criticism of the Dominion government for its "lethargy" in connection with development of the Canadian west.

The Senator, in replying to criticism of his earlier statement, said he did not think he was "unduly critical" and suggested $5,000,000 which the Dominion would have to spend annually for maintenance of the existing military highway would be better invested with the United States and British Columbia in building another route. A western highway, Magnuson said, would carry traffic warranting the expenditure and would pay for maintenance.

Echoes of the Pacific Coast marine tie-up were heard here as the Association considered a program for establishment of free ports of foreign trade zones at Pacific Coast ports.

J. P. Herber of Seattle, vice-president of the Association, said he did not feel "we should make any attempt in Seattle, Portland and San Francisco to get ports for foreign trade zones until we get rid of Harry Brydges."

"In San Francisco a spokesman for Brydges, head of the Pacific Coast Longshoremen's Union (C.I.O.), said he did not think Herber's statement "worthy of reply."

Swift Trial For Lewis is Aim of Gov't

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—The United States government, racing against factory shutdowns and emptying coal bins, aimed today for a swift trial of John L. Lewis and clamped down sharp new curbs to save fast-fabbing supplies of fuel. Federal attorneys said they would press for speed at every possible point when the Lewis trial on charges of contempt begins tomorrow. Hope is that legal tactics will "soften up" Lewis and push him toward making an agreement with private owners of the mines on a working contract for his 400,000 United Mine Workers.

As the strike went into its sixth day today, more than 28,000 workers in other industries already had been thrown off their jobs in direct repercussions.

Schools, steel mills, railroads and hundreds of communities have begun to feel the pinch.

The government today clamped down new curbs on deliveries of coal to schools and all government buildings and ordered emergency stocks held strictly for public utilities, essential services and for heating homes, apartments and hotels.

"At least they could guard the schools and the business district. We cannot have a repetition of such damage," Alderman Arnold commented.

"We should also recommend that the curfew bylaw be strictly enforced on Halloween night," Alderman Hills said.

"Where existing frame building is to be altered or repaired to an extent of 25 per cent or more, of the assessed value, a four-inch laminated fire wall be required to be constructed on the whole of one side of the building, such a fire wall to be covered with metal lath and plaster, or plaster board or other fire resistant material that has the approval of the National Board of Fire Underwriters

STRIKE OF GOLD MINERS In This Province is Off

Agree to Accept 10 1/2 c Per Hour Increase With Other Improved Conditions — Early Resumption of Work Is Due

VANCOUVER (CP)—Officials of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), announced last night the termination of the twenty-one week old strike of miners in British Columbia gold properties following reports that the miners had voted for acceptance of a union-company agreement reached last week under guidance of Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, arbitrator of the dispute.

Actual resumption of operations, it was indicated, would be immediate although, in two cases, there seemed to be uncertainty as to when the men would go back to work.

The agreement provides for 10 1/2 cent increase an hour across the board, payment of shift differentials and time-and-a-half overtime for work in excess of four hours per week with the question of a check-off clause and other outstanding issues to be negotiated between individual firms and local bargaining agencies of the Union.

Our Air Service Gone

AFTER A SEASON of unofficial scheduled air service between Prince Rupert and Vancouver it is disappointing for Prince Rupert to have that service cut off by an order of the Air Transport Board which rules that, under the letter of the law, such a service cannot be continued until licence has been granted for a scheduled air service. Queen Charlotte Airlines did a good job in pioneering the commercial air service along this north coast and to the Islands in spite of the fact that rates were high and the aircraft were not of the luxurious type such as are found on the main air routes. The pity is that Q.C.A. will not be carrying on now at least until the scheduled air licence has been granted either to themselves or the Canadian Pacific Airlines who are also in the field for a licence and, at last reports, were preparing to go rather extensively into the development of the service including the installation of an air strip contiguous to Prince Rupert.

It is to be hoped, in view of the situation where Prince Rupert now finds itself again without a regular air service, that the Air Transport Board and the Canadian Pacific Airlines or the Queen Charlotte Airlines, will lose no time in getting the run going again with a minimum of delay.

THE SMALL BOY'S SOAP

NOW THAT atomic research has been promoted to world politics, attention may be directed to those important minor fields of scientific study which necessarily are neglected in wartime. Consider, for instance, the significance of the correct solution to the problem of how little soap and water will wash the neck and ears of one small boy.

Probably more dissension and bitterness has grown out of disputes about the minimum amount of soap and water necessary to wash boys properly, than out of any other human controversy. Despite the fact that this problem has marred the lives of mothers and boys ever since it became fashionable to have boys clean for brief periods, no concerted effort ever has been made to determine scientifically the quantity of soap and water required for a given quantity of boy.

Grandmothers and favorite aunts have come closer than mothers to the right answer from the boys' standpoint, but they have erred so often in the use of too little, to the embarrassment of mothers, it is feared that the study cannot be left to them. School-teachers lean toward the use of too much. Psychologists, particularly those who deplore Santa Claus, are too apt to give boys a greater freedom of self-expression than is warranted by the appearance of the boys. Doctors are too inclined to regard anything less than a scrubbed, reddened skin as unhygienic. Fathers have proven their complete incapacity for the task.

Persons, perhaps only the judiciary, who can take an objective and impartial view of the problem should be found and appointed as a royal commission to determine quantities and to recommend procedures.

Tables indicating the minimum of soap and water necessary for the various conditions and sizes of boys could be made available through the schools.

Boys then would have the satisfaction of knowing that the fizzing of the soap in the ears, the smarting of it in the eyes, and the snaky shivers caused by escaping water trickling down the abdomen and back, are the least suffering necessary to civilized appearance at meal-times and on social occasions. Scales for the settlement of disputes between washes and washers should always be available. The saving in soap might solve the shortage.

No washing of boys at all is out of the question, although we knew an old man of over ninety who could not remember ever having had a bath. He enjoyed both the absence of soap and water and a degree of privacy that would make city dwellers envious. The possibilities of dry cleaning have been exhausted by the boys themselves.

THE RATION OFFICE

WE DO NOT KNOW what the future of rationing is going to be and, there are no indications that it is going to be cut off soon, but, with the announced closing of the local ration office, which employs half a dozen people, it can be seen where considerable inconvenience might be caused by having this far removed district directly tributary to a headquarters at Vancouver.

It is to be questioned if there is any centre in the province, certainly none outside of the metropolitan areas in the south, the closing of which would cause more inconvenience than will be entailed in the closing here.

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE ON

With the addressing through the mails of the sheets, the Kinsmen Club annual sale of tuberculosis seals is now under way and already the responses are coming in. The committee in charge is relying upon the public to be as prompt and generous as possible in making the returns. As is well known, the proceeds of the Christmas seals goes to the British Columbia Tuberculosis Association in its work on behalf of tuberculosis prevention and control. Indeed, this is one of the main sources of revenue.

To discuss pilotage matters as affecting this port, particularly in the light of a proposal that is now being considered to increase pilotage charges in order to provide higher remuneration for the pilots, Capt. E. S. Slcombe, assistant supervisor of Nautical Services, Department of Transport, Ottawa, and Capt. C. Claxton, superintendent of pilots, Vancouver, were in the city last night and met with the executive of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

There was a general discussion and the opinion was expressed that there was no particular objection to the remuneration of the pilots being made more satisfactory to them but it was important that there should be no unnecessary burden placed on shipping or port costs and that any increase that should be made in pilotage charges should be equitable and proportionate to all parts. The matter will be discussed by the Chamber's port committee and brought up at the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber next Friday.

In answer to one of many questions that were asked in regard to pilotage service, Capt. Claxton told the meeting that, if there was a qualified pilot available at this port, he would be added to the list of coast pilots as station pilot. Meanwhile, with little shipping requiring the services of a pilot using the port, it was not considered economic to maintain a Vancouver-resident pilot here.

Capt. Slcombe and Capt. Claxton were here aboard the steamer Princess Adelaide making the round trip north from Vancouver.

FIREMEN HIT AT FIRST AID REQUIREMENT

Dissatisfied with a resolution passed at the last city council meeting two weeks ago which would make it mandatory for a first class city fireman to hold an industrial first aid certificate, a delegation of firemen last night succeeded in having the matter referred back to the utilities committee.

Firemen Milton Hauser, Jack Ewart and Jack Furness, acting as delegates for the local firemen's union, charged that the mandatory first aid requirement "would penalize a good fireman who might not be able to pass the test."

They told the meeting that six firemen who had recently started taking first aid classes voluntarily, had stopped taking such instruction pending satisfactory settlement with city council.

"In other industries qualified first aid men get from $15 to $20 a month extra. You are requiring us to have it as part of our ordinary qualifications," Jack Furness told the aldermen.

Council had previously authorized an expenditure of up to $15 for tuition for those firemen who would take the classes. However, the delegation objected to a clause under which the city could be re-imbursed if the fireman left his job within two years of taking the course.

Foreseeing a lengthy debate before the matter is finally settled, the council members referred it to the utilities committee for discussion.

Under the provincial fire law, a qualified first aid man is required to be aboard the fire truck every time it leaves the hall on a fire call.

NEHRU JOINS IN PLEA FOR PEACE THROUGHOUT INDIA—Violence flared in Bombay as two Hindoo and two Moslem leaders of India's interim government appealed jointly for restoration of peace throughout India. The four issuing the call for an end to the Moslem-Hindoo disorders were Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the predominantly Hindoo All-India Congress; Cardar Vallabhai Patel, Congress leader; Liaquat Ali Khan, Moslem league secretary, and Sardar Abdur Rab Nishtar, league official. Fork-Tailed Drongo Likes Hard Liquor

PORT SHEPSTONE, South Africa — A fork-tailed drongo (or king crow) here shows a marked preference for hard liquor and can easily drink his purchase price in brandy—for he cost his present owner only threepence. Mrs. A. C. Worthington says her bird "Blackie" prefers adult company at all times and likes a glass of "something hard" between times. His eyes glitter greedily as he hops along the table to perch on the rim of a glass of brandy and water, which he sips with relish. "Blackie" refuses to be fooled and never touches plain water in a glass. He cannot speak but loves to irritate other birds and people by mimicking them, and manages to "shout" at a dog friend in an almost human tone.

The retarding influence of a dictatorial press has been demonstrated in Japan by the ignorance of general knowledge on the part of newspaper reporters.

Makes Tough Trip But Gets No Votes

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — Electioneering in New Zealand involves the conscientious candidate in some unconventional travelling. To enlist the support of 30 voters, mostly elderly retired people living on Pine Island, in the upper reaches of Auckland Harbor, A. M. Laing, National party candidate for Waitakere, borrowed a flat-bottomed rowboat to row across from the mainland. Taking off his coat, shoes and socks, he pulled the boat out across the mud, poled it clear of the mangroves and rowed against a strong wind and ebb tide to the island. Outside the island's one store he held a meeting of electors seated on the communal bench which is the main gathering place for the residents. He was subjected to a constant fire of questions and interjections throughout his speech. As he hurried off to make the return trip while the tide made it still possible, the meeting carried a vote of confidence in the Labor party, his political opponents.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, whose word was law in baseball for 25 years, died in Chicago after a two-month illness two years ago yesterday. BANNED FROM INTERMEDIATES

Forman, Hartwig, Ciccone, Thompson and Lavigne Line Dubbed Too Good

After a heated debate during a special executive meeting of the Prince Rupert Basketball Association last evening it was finally decided that the first string of Forman, Hartwig, Ciccone, Thompson and Lavigne of the strong Bo-Me-Hi team be banned from playing in the Intermediate section of the city league and that they be given the option of playing on separate teams of their own choice in the senior loop or forming their own squad to play for the senior championship. Their place in the Intermediate League will be filled by a native entry from Port Edward which will play tonight for the first time against Macey's.

Coach Alex Bill, who put forth a great defence for his team, claimed he had hoped to win the intermediate cup this year and felt he should have had a chance to play off with the winners of the intermediate league at the end of the season. It was the opinion of the meeting, however, that the student squad no longer served to the advantage of the league in their present capacity, and since they have already handed one senior team a one-sided lacing, they were asking for too much advantage by continuing to play in their present category.

So now, it looks as though the whole senior and intermediate standings go by the board and that a new schedule will have to be drawn up immediately to take care of the situation.

A report of the Ketchikan series showed the gate receipts to be as expected and a financial success was assured when the report is made final.

AGERS MAKE DEBUT

and Dancers of "Gypsy Lady" Bring New to Broadway

ABLENE WOLF
Beautiful girls in musicals are nothing new to Broadway. Another story—especially one making their New York debut on stage.

Backstage at "Gypsy Lady" looks and sounds more like a high school club meeting than the sophisticated Great White Way. There's talk of home-work—some of the girls are still enrolled in their Professional Children's School in Hollywood, and getting their lessons by mail.

The words "stage door Johnny" provoke a gale of shrieks—"We have to tell them our mothers won't let us go out," the girls glee.

Five mothers came right along with the troupe from California, where the show first was produced, and where many of the girls live. Most of them are members of the Los Angeles and San Francisco Light Opera Association. The five mothers sort of keep an eye on the whole bunch, but Mitzi's mother explains:

"So far it's been very simple. They're kept so busy with music and dancing lessons and understudy rehearsals that the most they can do is go to a movie."

Mitzi's mother delivers her to the theatre at performance time and calls for her at curtain time. How do these youngsters like New York? They love it—with a few reservations. Twenty-year old Peggy Weikend, who hails from Portland, Ore., shivered as she stepped into her sheer tulle costume and announced "I'd like to be where there's a little more sunshine." Dorothy Coulter—she's 18—wants to go to college and study music. Mitzi wants to go to Vassar or Smith—she can't quite make up her mind.

The greatest of these requirements is quality. This is an all-inclusive term which covers—among other things—appearance, texture and durability. 70-YEAR SCHEME TO REBUILD HULL
Hull, England (Reuters)—A 70-year plan for the rebuilding of Hull, one of England's worst blitzed cities, has been announced.

The work of Sir Patrick Abercrombie, leading British town-planner, provides for an increase from the present 320,000 population to an ultimate 500,000, with a "green belt" around the city limiting further expansion and safeguarding agriculture.

Highlight of Sir Patrick's plan is a 1,500-yard suspension bridge over the Humber. It will cost $24,000,000.

The plan provides 300 per cent more acreage for open spaces within the city than previously, and a shopping centre to serve 500,000 people. Slums behind the docks are to be eliminated and Sir Patrick says his plan envisions a two-storey house for everybody.

While observing that the "medieval port of Hull is still living and has been retained in the plan," Sir Patrick's report, already approved in principle by city council, recommends a "bold proposal" for damming the River Hull, increasing its connection with the Humber docks and extending its industrial frontage.

Nurse Advances From Pioneer Post to Executive Position

Red Cross Society Appoints First National Director of Nursing

By JEAN THOMPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO. (C)—From public health nursing in the pioneer areas of Alberta to an administrative post with a national society is just part of the career of Helen A. McArthur of Edmonton.

She has driven dog teams as a public health nurse in the Peace River Block and entertained visiting celebrities in an outpost hospital. Now she is turning to a city desk job and will help to direct the work of nurses who staff Red Cross hospitals on the fringes of Canadian civilization.

Recently appointed as first national director of nursing for the Canadian Red Cross Society, she will undertake the closer coordination of nursing with other aspects of the society's program such as outpost hospitals, Junior Red Cross and first aid, swimming and water safety. She will also act as a liaison between the nursing profession and the work of the society.

Tall, blond and enthusiastic about nursing, Miss McArthur is planning a trans-Dominion trip to get an overall picture of Canadian nursing needs as related to Red Cross services.

To Integrate Services
"Since Red Cross programs are organized provincially, my work is to integrate its nursing services so that the Canadian Red Cross can make the best possible nursing contribution to Canadian life," said Miss McArthur. "Outpost hospital work is the most important aspect of the society's nursing program and I hope to be able to direct the nurse who wants to do some pioneering into this line of work."

Miss McArthur's experience in hospitals, district nursing areas and for two years as director of the public health nursing division in Alberta's department of public health, has fitted her well for the administrative position she has just assumed. She holds degrees in nursing and science from the Universities of British Columbia and Alberta and received a master of arts degree on a Rockefeller Foundation Fellowship at Columbia University.

She has close connections with the nursing profession and is at present vice-president of the Council of the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses.

ALBERTA SPENDS MILLIONS ON IRRIGATION

Brings Total Irrigated Land in Southern Alberta To 700,000 Acres

By LORNE BRUCE
LETHBRIDGE, Alta., (P) — A wave of new wealth is expected to flow into southern Alberta in the wake of the St. Mary-Milk rivers irrigation project, calculated to bring stable water supply conditions to 345,000 acres of semi-arid prairie and rolling hills and make land produce up to 18 times as much as it does now.

Key to the vast project which will cost $15,000,000 is the St. Mary River dam near Spring Coulee, about 30 miles southwest of Lethbridge. It is estimated irrigation waters from this reservoir will be flowing into crop lands by August, 1949, and that the entire program can be completed in seven years if no delays are encountered.

The St. Mary-Milk rivers project, now under way, will bring total irrigated land in southern Alberta to about 700,000 acres. Settled water supplies will prevail on a rolling plain extending about 160 miles eastward to the Saskatchewan boundary, an area which seldom receives enough rainfall to assure heavy yields and which often has suffered complete crop failures.

Employment provided by the project, estimated as high as 460 men in seasonal work for from seven to 14 years, is a minor consideration. Main benefit will come from increased crop values. The dry land to be irrigated now supports three or four persons a square mile. Irrigation will support about 80 persons a square mile.

Value of production from an acre of irrigated land sown to specialized crops is several times that from dry land. Instead of grossing $20-odd an acre from a dry land wheat crop, farmers on irrigated land will raise beet crops worth $125 to $225 an acre and vegetable canning crops worth $120 to $360 an acre. To date the area has been used principally for livestock production, wheat and a bit of rye.

Obstacle Overcome
Heavy irrigation charges, greatest handling handicap until recent years, will be eliminated to a large extent under the St. Mary-Milk rivers plan. Previously all construction and operation costs were passed to the land owner.

The federal government has recognized the work as a post-war project and will pay cost of construction of dams, reservoirs, main canals and other structures estimated at slightly more than $7,000,000, as an outright contribution.

The Alberta government will finance construction of water distribution systems and colonization, expected to cost nearly $8,000,000. Most of this will be recovered by the province by annual charges against lands.

In addition to increasing value of the land tremendously, the irrigation will result in smaller individual holdings and provide for settlement of hundreds of new farmers, many of whom probably will be veterans. Many of the present farms in the area are several thousand acres in size and a few range up to 20,000 acres. It would not be feasible or financially possible for any one farmer to have such a large expanse under irrigation. Generally most irrigated farms are 160 acres, a quarter section, although they range from 80 to 320 acres.

WILL COMBAT CANCER HERE

Local Society Revived at Luncheon Meeting Yesterday—Ald. Arnold Chairman

With Ald. Nora Arnold as chairman, a Prince Rupert branch of the Canadian Cancer Society was organized at a luncheon meeting yesterday which was addressed by Mrs. S. A. Conrad of Vancouver, honorary secretary for British Columbia. The meeting was attended by representatives of various local organizations and was featured by an address by Mrs. Conrad who described the objects and organization of the Society to control the spread of cancer by public education along various lines. The keynote was to arrest the malady in early stages of development when its eradication was a comparatively easy matter either through surgery, x-ray or radio treatment. An impressive moving picture was shown before the close of the meeting. It depicted modern methods in treatment of cancer with a narrative of a suspected cancer case which resulted in the happy culmination of cure through early treatment.

Mayor H. M. Daggett was in the chair and the election of officers resulted as follows:

Chairman, Ald. Nora Arnold. Vice-Chairman, Mrs. J. D. Fraser.

Past Chairman, Dr. R. G. Large. Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Gilker. Executive — Mayor Daggett, Frank Dibb, Dr. L. W. Kergin, Dr. W. S. Kergin, Dr. C. H. Han-kinson, M. J. Harper, Miss Joyce Leslie P.H.N., Miss Olive Johnston P.H.N., Mrs. Joseph Delorme, Mrs. Frank Ellison, Mrs. Percy Bond, Mrs. Dan Parent and G. A. Hunter.

Primary activities of the local branch will be to disseminate educational literature and conduct a drive for funds.
