No Aggressors

People in Britain already are asking: "Could we fight Russia if it came to it?"

The stark truth is that 200 atom bombs would finish Russia.

Stalin must be told that the peoples of the British Empire and of the United States are so sick of war and uncertainty that blasting away at Russia's cities would not be years of war and distrust, there must be a change in the attitude of men towards men.

Of course, there must be improvements — great improvements — in economic and political relationships of the peoples of the world but even these will be futile if spiritual factors are lacking and neglected. The church, as the organization for the dissemination and development of these factors, does well to be stirring itself to a realization of its function and a determination to effect a great. er implementation. It will be fitting for each of us to do what we can to assist the churches in their campaign along these lines.

Persistent Anyway

The householder is, during the next few weeks, apt to find a large floral fly in the ointment of his happiness. For the dandelions, those herbal "swallows of Capistrano," are coming back. Unlike the migatory birds, they have no set date for their arrival; but, going home of a noon, the man of the house is likely to find that his hitherto immaculate lawn is liberally dotted with the familiar vellow flowers. Whatever things may be said of the dandelion (and in this era of civic consciousness they are numerous), one cannot help paying tribute to its persistency. Just as one congratulates himself that the yard is free of them, they spring up seemingly more numerous than ever. Property owners are so concerned with doing away with the dandeion that they are inclined to overlook its uses. Many a housewife sets great store by its "greens." Children have always loved the bright blossoms, and children have earned welcome pocket money by digging the long roots out of grass plots. Count these as the dandelion's assets - and what have you? Chances are you still have dandelions.

too big a price to pay for peace.

The world wants to reconstruct and live without fear; it will not tolerate an aggressor.

Surely this is plain enough for Stalin to understand. Or will he insist on repeating Hitler's mistake?

There is room for Russia as well as the British Empire and all the other nations in one happy world. -The Recorder (published in London).

A Worthy Move

It is appropriate enough that certain of the churches of Canada, feeling that they are not accomplishing all those things that the church might be doing in these days of spiritual crisis, are instituting campaigns with a view to putting themselves in a position to more effectively carry the Gospel to the sorely perplexed people of the world. Certainly the really thinking people must appreciate that, if there is to be a real return of the world to true peace and goodwill after these bitter
