ANCHORAGE, Alaska-At the conference on shipping here last week, widespread interest was manifested in the possibilities of using Prince Rupert to better advantage as the railway entry point for not only immediately contiguous southeastern Alaska but also western and central Alaska. Discontent at the failure of the port of Seattle and its shipping interests to take care of the needs of the people of the territory was manifest at the conference which decided to set up a committee to investigate the possibilties of making better shipping arrangements along permanent lines. This committee will, no doubt, give considerable attention to Prince Rupert.

WARSAW (P)-A spokesman of the Polish government and foreign ministry says that reply is "under preparation" to an expression of anxiety over the January 19 general election in this country. The message from the United States is similar to the one from Great Britain which drew the reminder from the Polish government that it was not within the province of Great Britain to remind Poland of her obligations or to attempt to impose British "opinions or directives" as to how elections should be held in this country.

christmas Eve

IN EXTENDING to our growing list of friends the old wish for a Merry Christmas, simply and sincerely expressed, we do so in the expectation that, now war's rush and alarm has been over for a year and more, it will be one of the old home-like family Yuletides like we used to know before and that were disturbed for a time by the hustle and bustle of artificial and temporary activity—in other words a boom.

Many of the strangers have gone their way since we last celebrated this glad season. We shall go down the street this evening and tomorrow and we shall wish all and sundry, whom we all know and whom we number as our friends, a Merry Christmas as we used to do before but which, for a few years, we did not do as we did not know them in the old friendly, intimate, community way.

It may be a quieter Christmas in Prince Rupert this year than it has been for half a decade but we shall have a friendly and a happy one we know. We shall get back to the good old pleasures among ourselves.

Most of all we shall rejoice that homeward movement of our fighting men and women has been completed and that, while they may not all be at home with us, they are at least safely esconced once again in the pursuits of peacetime. That is the big thing that most of us have to be happy and merry about this gladsome Yuletide season.

Christmas is the anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace and Goodwill. Therefore Christmas 1946 is particularly significant for in this year we have not only ended war to large extent but we have gone a long way toward the establishment of world Peace and furthering the gospel of the One whose birth inspired Christmas.

Christmas is a season of joy but it should be a season of reflection. It is well that, as we manifest our goodwill in other ways, some pause might be taken for that reflection.

As Peace reigned in the manger where Jesus was born 1946 years ago our thoughtful wish this Christmas Eve is that Peace may enfold all the world in true brotherhood and strong unity, that war may never again sever the cords that should bind all mankind in goodwill and harmony. Let Christmas be in our hearts and in our deeds-not only in the wreaths in our windows, in the gifts we give and in the words we speak.

May the good and true spirit of Christmas inspire us all this happy # day.

A Merry Christmas TO PRINCE RUPERT

All joy be yours when Christmas bells are ringing, Dear absent friends; Across full many a mile Our hearts reach out to you, our thoughts go winging Where firesides glow and happy faces smile. True friendship's ties of six and twenty years Still cling to memory while life shall last; Through fierce vicissitudes we shared our fears, Our joys and sorrows in the tragic past. The very stars a tender gladness voicing, The great deep murmers forth a melody; Over the hills, O, hear the bells rejoicing-"Peace and Goodwill this Day to thine and thee."
