Parliamentary Speeches at Ottawa; Throne is Read

To Work For World Reconstruction and Enduring Peace—Approval of Loan to Britain Is Asked—"Veterans' Charter" Coming Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Many of the measures Parliament will be asked to consider at the present session will be concerned with world reconstruction and establishment of enduring peace, the Speech from the Throne at the opening of Parliament today disclosed. The Speech was read to members of the Senate and Commons by the Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone, as his final official act before leaving this Saturday for England to resume residence.

The Speech did not indicate what form these measures would take but it said, however, that Parliament will be asked:

1. To approve the recent $1,250,000 loan to the United Kingdom.
2. To make provision for a re-distribution of representation in the House of Commons.
3. To make provision for permanent armed forces.
4. To complete consideration

Mr. Lawrence said a special team of investigators had left for Europe where they will endeavor to track down war criminals. The Union government had a full list of names of all Nazi party members in the Union and Southwest Africa and an inquiry would only serve as a post-mortem, he said.

DENY RUMORS BURNING U.S. LUMBER HERE

Enquiries to the Daily News from Vancouver about a report that 7,000,000 board feet of American lumber had been burned at Port Edward and Prince Rupert, apparently to get rid of it, were emphatically denied Wednesday afternoon by both War Assets manager I. M. Mackinnon and Major Joseph Carewe, officer in charge of American forces here.

Both labelled the rumor "preposterous" and Mr. Mackinnon said that he was at a loss to understand what might be the source of the rumor.

Major Carewe said that he believed that a possible source might be the fact that the American Army had burned a quantity of explosives-impregnated lumber at Port Edward last October.

He asserted that absolutely no usable lumber had been destroyed by fire either at Port Edward or Prince Rupert to his knowledge.

"The lumber that was burned at Port Edward last fall was very dangerous," he said. "It had been used for crating and bracing bombs and explosives and much of it was, and other parts were suspected of being, impregnated with explosives or inflammable chemicals."

The quantity of this lumber, Major Carewe estimated, was not in excess of 10,000 board feet.

"We were prohibited from using it again and, because we considered it dangerous, we destroyed it. Every useable bit of lumber at both places has been stored, even a quantity of boards not more than six feet in length," Major Carewe said.

NEW PLASTIC HAMMERS APPEAR

These novel plastic pounders are made of a new material created by a plastics company of Los Angeles and are now being manufactured to the extent of 20,000 per month. With a handle similar to standard metal hammers, the plastic hammers are of the mallet type with the new plastic attached to both ends of the head. They will not mar, cut or damage delicate or polished surfaces of all types of metal. They are resistant to oil, gas or alcohol and are more durable than a rawhide or rubber hammer. Shown is Miss Corrine Campbell in the midst of the plastic hammers.

PROPERTY DISPOSAL OFFICER, SIX MEN FINAL U.S. MILITARY HERE

Departure of Major Joseph Carewe, American C. O., Makes U.S. Installations Here A Complete Canadian Problem

As of today, the term "U.S. Army Sub Port of Embarkation" no longer applies to Prince Rupert. With the departure for Seattle tonight of Major Joseph Carewe, final port commander, and five of his six remaining officers, the once flourishing American war installation becomes completely a Canadian postwar problem.

Only American military personnel left here will be one officer and six men. The officer will be Lieut. Herman G. Lamphere who will be property disposal officer, and as such is expected to remain with his small staff until late in April.

Lieut. Lamphere, who has served here 30 months, will have the distinction of being the last U. S. Army officer to remain on duty at Prince Rupert.

Major Carewe, who has been commanding officer of the fast-dwindling American establishment here since shortly after the departure of Col. J. H. Mellon, the wartime port commander, has been here three and a half years, during which he worked up from the rank of lieutenant. He also married a well-known local girl—the former Miss Philomena Murray, who is leaving with him for the south tonight.

Accompanying him south are five of his officers, most of whom have behind them long terms of service in this area. They are: Capt. Ray Lewis, who has been port adjutant for the last three years; Lieut. John O'Brien, for the last few months post engineer, formerly with the port ordnance office; Lieut. Stanley Straska, civilian personnel officer, and formerly with the Water Division; Lieut. Henry A. Ernst, commander Headquarters Company, here two and a half years; Lieut. James Carr, director of intelligence and security for the last six months. Enlisted personnel leaving tonight are Staff Sergeants Carl V. Heglund and Peter A. DiMauro and Corporal Claud L. Rodgers.

Major Carewe is going to Seattle for ultimate discharge from the army. He is undecided whether or not he will return to his former job with a public utility corporation in Iowa.

All American Facilities Transferred

While transfer of American facilities to War Assets Corporation has been completed, there still remains the job of checking over much of the material within the facilities. This is the duty of Lieut. Lamphere and his staff. It will primarily consist of turning over supplies already stored in the Overseas Stock Terminal warehouse.

About 30 civilian personnel will also remain attached to the American military detachment here.

In an interview Wednesday afternoon, Major Carewe drew attention to the fine spirit with which the citizens of Prince Rupert received the American forces on their arrival in 1942 and the atmosphere of harmony which prevailed while the port was in action.

He recalled how local merchants had gone all out to assist his country's forces in their feverish efforts to construct the wartime facilities, and how the citizens had shown highly appreciated hospitality to the troops.

Civilian employees of the port, he said, were largely responsible for the success of its effort. They were between 70 and 80 percent Canadians.

Principal Subject at Canadian Legion Meeting—Philip M. Ray New Managing Secretary

Further discussion of the new building project adjoining the present premises was engaged in by the Canadian Legion at a largely attended general meeting last night, the outcome being decision to have a special committee appointed in connection with the drawing up of plans.

The meeting decided to communicate with the Postmaster General's department seeking the institution of a postal delivery service in Prince Rupert.

Philip M. Ray was appointed secretary manager of the Legion. He will assume general full-time duties with the Legion, taking over the secretarial work from A. M. Davis who has been carrying on for the past three years.

Eighty members attended the meeting. There were 25 new applications for membership and several were initiated.

A check for $15.94 was received for the Poppy Fund from the Women's Auxiliary of the Coast Regiment which is winding up.

FIRE BARGE TO GO TO JUNEAU

The U.S. Army fire barge which guarded the Prince Rupert waterfront during the war years, is to be taken to Juneau, Alaska, where it will continue to be used as a fire fighting unit. It will be towed to the Alaska capital by a tug due to arrive here from Seattle in the near future.

CPL. HARVEY IS ACQUITTED

British Soldier Freed of Manslaughter Charges but Faces Other Allegation

WINNIPEG—An all-British court martial, sitting in Winnipeg, has acquitted Corporal John Hugh Harvey of the British Army Medical Corps on a charge of manslaughter. The court deliberated less than ten minutes. The charge against Harvey followed the death of Pte. John Friessen of the Winnipeg Grenadiers, who died in a Japanese prison camp about February 2, 1944. Harvey faces other charges, including one of collaboration with the Japanese.

Russia and World Peace

Stalin's protestation of Churchill being a war monger reminding of Hitler and his friends notwithstanding, Soviet Russia's persistent unilateral actions, the latest one of which in Iran has precipitated threat to the very survival of the developing machinery of world peace, can hardly be excused or ignored except by the most blind and stubborn sympathizers of the Soviet.

With Soviet Russian armies on the march, uninvited and unwanted, across supposedly neutral Iran towards oil-rich Iraq and strategically-located Turkey, the situation today is freighted with elements of aggression alarmingly bringing back to mind the course of events in central Europe which, delayed only by the period of appeasement, precipitated World War II.

The world waits from day to day anxiously wondering again what the morrow will bring. We would still like to think that Russia is our friend as she appeared to be those few short years ago when she needed and received our aid as we did hers to ward off our common destruction. However, Russia is making it very difficult for us to maintain our faith and trust.

Dispassionately, it is difficult for us to believe other than that the course Stalin now follows is nothing more or less than an attempt to take advantage of a difficult and tense situation to acquire more power if not actual territorial and material gains by force or threat of force.

What goes on in Iran, it may also be realistically noted, is being paralleled to considerable extent in Manchuria. Nor can we forget the Soviet pressure which has resulted in the establishment of totalitarian regimes so recently in Rumania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Albania, Poland and the rest.

Conflicting political philosophies—totalitarianism and democracy—are clashing again. Will the traditional crossroads of southwest Europe and the Near East once again become the battleground of great powers? Of course, if they do, such a war could not be long kept from our own shores and here in Prince Rupert we would indeed be on the front line.

These are anxious days indeed and we shudder to reflect what terrible denouements might ensue should the smouldering embers of World War II burst into the flames of World War III.

A survey by the Advertising Research Foundation found that 12% more men are reading newspaper editorials than was the case previous to the war, revealing the increasing attention of the public to important issues.

Opening Peace River

Discussing the proposed extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway from Quesnel through Prince George to the Peace River district, the Financial Post suggests that, with such a rail service, a whole new economic area will be automatically created, siphoning off thousands of people from the congested southern section of the province and paving the way for new agricultural and, eventually, industrial development.

"The Peace River crop, for instance, now shipped via Edmonton, could be carried direct to tidewater, a haul of less than 600 miles, either to Prince Rupert or Vancouver via Prince George. With wheat and coal as sustained cargoes the influx of settlers into Peace River and consequent agricultural development would create new wealth for the province as well as balancing the population picture."

Very Magnanimous

Commenting editorially on a speech in the Legislature by W. H. Brett, M.L.A. for Prince Rupert, who lamented the concentration of people and industry in the southwest corner of the province, the Vancouver Province appears to deplore the fact that the rest of British Columbia could not be by some magic means drawn closer to Vancouver so that business and administration could be carried on more cheaply and efficiently and, of course, that much more tributary to Vancouver.

However, the Province goes on to magnanimously admit that Nature did not lay out British Columbia in such a way as that and, anyway, there might be a few people who would like to branch out for themselves away from the concentration of cities, so Vancouver will tolerantly have to put up with the situation as best it can. All of which is very kind of the Vancouver Province which does not seem to realize the fact that, even if we do like to "make our own trails" and "live in our own smoke," this part of the province and those who live in it have long paid tribute to Vancouver which really owes us nothing, even if it does feel a little righteously charitable in even allowing us to live in these remote parts.

Maybe if Vancouver really does feel us to be such a "trial" and our pioneering solitude a little too expensive a luxury for her to maintain by generously permitting us so "many miles of highway and of railroad," such as they are, she might help us to centralize a little in our own communities and, instead of milking us for everything we have assist us in becoming more independent of her and the hard-pressed southwest corner. If Vancouver really feels that way about her "poor relations," she might extend her generosity and, instead of being so patronizing about it all, commence to help us a bit rather than continuously exploiting us.

True the Province does inject a note of magnanimity into its comment by its admission that Nature is to blame for all of British Columbia not being right in Vancouver's back yard and that folks have a right to dwell and try to hew out a living in the wide open spaces if they want to. But one paragraph of the editorial in Monday's Province possibly is a key to the real Vancouver philosophy in regard to the rest of the province removed from the "One Corner." That paragraph is as follows:

"If we could have planned British Columbia as cities are planned in these modern days, we could have developed our province at much less cost, both in money and labor. We should not have needed as many miles of highway or of railroad. We could have concentrated our people and brought the industries to them and the resources for the industries. It would be much simpler to provide them with all the facilities for modern life if we have them all in a few large settlements instead of scattered from the 49th parallel to the 60th and from the Pacific to the Grand Divide."

Letters to the Editor

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLIES

Editor,
Daily News.—
Each of the Assemblies of the nine provinces are now in session. The lieutenant governor of each province arrived on the government grounds amid a volley from umpteen guns. He entered a complete though very amateur Parliament, the personnel being the speaker, the premier, his ministers and backers; the opposition leader and his backers; the sergeant-at-arms and the page boys, and the fixtures being the throne, the opposing desks of the members, the table, the mace, and all the paraphernalia that would be found in any European Parliament.

The lieutenant governor reads the speech from the throne which has been handed to him which sets off the debate, the speeches of which are somewhat similar—though very little superior—to the speeches we deliver in the debating clubs of our youth.

The Assemblies of Alberta and Saskatchewan carried on this somewhat classical debate for ten days while it is a safe wager for any sporting gentleman to make that the City of Montreal, which has a greater population than any one of the western provinces, would do more business with their mayor and council in the same ten days than is done by any one of our amateur Parliaments in an entire session.

Therefore, is it not time we called a halt to this somewhat provincial debating society by remodelling our Assemblies—strip them of everything that carries the appearance of Parliament, and re-arrange them in the shape of a council. Put the same members back in the same chamber, around the council table, with the lieutenant governor at the head of that table. Then we should expect them to forget their petty arguments and carry on the business of the province.

CO-OPERATIVE REPLY

Editor,
Daily News.—
I notice in your editorial of March 11 under the heading "The Patronage Dividend" that you refer to Co-operatives. The first thing we must have straight in our minds is that a true Co-operative is a group of people joined together by a common bond to better the way of life for all. A Co-operative is democratically operated—one share, one vote; ten shares, one vote.

In the first paragraph of the editorial it is stated that Co-operatives are struggling to retain their exemption from taxation. At no time have Co-operatives struggled to be exempt from taxation but they are only too willing to have the government solve this supposed problem.

In the second paragraph it is stated that the Co-operatives could not get the members to re-subscribe their patronage dividends for expansion and improvement. If a co-operator has paid his or her income tax, at least in a free country such as ours, they should be free to use their own money as they see fit. The first part of this letter, I believe, explains this, namely, that the Co-operatives are democratically operated.

The third paragraph states that the Co-operatives could save a great deal of bookkeeping by merely reducing the prices to a point where there would be sufficient only to take care of the cost of goods plus overhead expenses. The Co-operatives have a few principles and one of them is to sell goods at the going market prices as co-operatives are not here to create price wars and disrupt the economic structure but only to distribute goods and service at cost to their customers.

The fourth paragraph mentions trade discounts being paid by some tax-paying companies. Discounts paid by tax-paying companies can be set at any time by such companies at the first of the year's business or six months later as no private enterprise returns the full amount of patronage dividend after they take their operating expenses out of same.

A Co-operative can only repay the customer's savings at the end of a designated business period as no one knows until the cost of goods and services are accounted for what the savings in the Co-operative will be.

In a Co-operative all savings must be returned to the members and non-members. All non-members of a true Co-operative are refunded his or her savings if the party concerned can show just claim. Otherwise this portion is subject to income tax which Co-operatives have to and do pay each year.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for publishing this letter.
N. BELLIS.

BRITISH WOMEN STICK TO JOBS

Only 70,000 of 6,000,000 Workers Expect to Return To Home Life

LONDON (P)—English women aren't flocking back to cradle and kitchen quite as fast as was expected. But the reason the British girl is clinging to her job is not purely a desire for a career. More often than not it's a case of "I would if I could but I can't" become a housewife wife again.

Last available Ministry of Labor reports admitted that the November estimate of 170,000 expected to go back to home life now has shrunk by 100,000. The exodus of married women from their jobs definitely is slackening. More than 6,000,000 women hold jobs in Britain today—over 1,600,000 above the pre-war figure.

"I've had a job for six years now. Can't afford to stop work, duckie." Legs apart, hands on hips, the stocky little railway porter at Charing Cross terminus grinned ruefully. "The old man don't make enough, not with those two youngsters of mine wearing out their boots the way they do. Besides—I've got used to it now. Like the life, you know. Like all the people and all." And off she trundled a mountainous truck full of baggage.

"I'll stop work just as soon as my husband comes home," declared the slim, pretty, dark-haired London bus clipper, juggling her ticket puncher and a handful of pennies as she spoke, and breaking off repeatedly to call, "Pass down the car, please" or "Plenty of room upstairs, dear."

"We've been married five years. Since I was 18. But we've never had a home yet. I'll stay on until he's been demobbed. It's good to have the money, and living in one room what else is there to do? But once he's back—it's home and a baby for me."

Woman Holds Political Job

But the immaculately dressed, highly efficient member of England's titled landed gentry, mother of an eight-year-old daughter and holder of a responsible political job since 1939, was as emphatic on the other side.

"I've tasted blood now," she declared firmly. "I've known what it's like to hold down a paid job during war. I'll never go back to doing nothing at home again."

The worn looking, gentle faced countrywoman from the Women's Voluntary Services smoothed her neat bottle green uniform lovingly as she talked.

"I'm terribly tired. There's the family, and the rationing, and the evacuees only just gone home, and all the W.V.S. work. And then, of course, the garden. I feel now I want three months' rest. But I know I'll want to do something after that. Perhaps not full time, with my husband home again. But something useful; part time perhaps."

Typical of many of their countrywomen, if not of all, these women in their answers probably give a fair indication of how their sex is feeling. There must be thousands like the titled worker, who feel they can never give up the satisfaction of being needed in a real, honest-to-goodness job.

"Most married women in their hearts want to go back to their homes and care for their children and husband with all their time and energy," said the chief officer for release and resettlement of women in one of the Ministry of Labor's widespread information offices. "But many of them can't yet do so in the way they wish. And until they can, they'd rather work."

PRESENTATION AT LEGION LADIES' ANNUAL BANQUET

The presentation of a gold pin and a bouquet of flowers from the current president to the past president of the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary was a feature of the annual banquet of the organization held in the Boston Cafe last night. The tokens, recognizing appreciated service, were presented by Mrs. Dan Parent, 1946 president, to Mrs. G. V. Hanley who recently retired from office.

The 42 members who attended the function enjoyed an excellent entertainment program following the dinner, and there were a number of toasts, one to Mrs. Hanley, proposed by Mrs. Parent.

Toasts were also proposed to Mrs. Parent and to Mrs. C. V. Morrow in recognition of a birthday cake she prepared for the banquet.

Grace was said by Mrs. William Rothwell and the meal was followed by a toast to The King. Entertainment included community singing, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Taylor, who sang "If I Were A Wishing Cat," accompanied by Mrs. J. S. Black; a piano solo, "Stardust," by Mrs. Brown, a recitation, "Little Alfie," by Mrs. Murdoch, and a recitation, "Three Little Monkeys," by Mrs. Parent.

The evening was concluded with bingo and bridge. Mrs. Frank Elison was bridge winner, and Mrs. T. J. Boulter received second prize.

BADMINTON CHAMPION

Stan Cutts of Toronto Won World's Title Last Night

TORONTO—Stan Cutts of Toronto has won the world's professional badminton championship. Last night in Toronto he proved his vast superiority over Doug Grant by soundly defeating him in the second match of a best-of-three series, 15-0, 15-2.

The Toronto pro committed only two faults which accounted for Grant's only points in the match.

A month ago at Montreal, in the first match of the series, Cutts whipped the former three-time winner of the Dominion amateur title, 15-5, 15-6.

SHORT SPORT

It may be a little early to talk tennis, but some sports writers are bemoaning Britain's lack of a champion of "supreme skill and that elusive quality known as personality" to see lawn tennis on its feet again this year.

Bruce Harris, writing in the London Evening Standard, recalled that after the last war Suzanne Lenglen burst upon Wimbledon as a girl of 20 and writes: "Her all-conquering play, very 'French' temperament, pleated skirt and bandeau gave her a following like a star of opera. . . . She set feminine fashions. The best advertisement tennis ever had." Harris says she hasn't a successor—not even the Americans who are coming to Britain this summer.

Things aren't shaping up any too well for Nottinghamshire County Cricket Club. Last year the club lost £1,187 ($5,342) and membership dwindled from 3,400 in 1939 to 839. A minimum of 4,500 members is required to keep the club on its feet.

Some Scottish football clubs had the idea of a "super" league but it lasted, in imagination, just three weeks. After a meeting of 12 leading Scottish clubs, it was decided the Scots would resume next season with two leagues with the pre-war promotion and relegation operating. The first division will consist of the 16 clubs originally suggested for the "super" league and the second division will have 14 clubs.

Royal Ascot on pre-war lines will be restored in June. All buildings at the racetrack have been freed and the stands emptied of army stores. The King and Queen, who will entertain a house party at Windsor Castle for a week, will drive up the course in semi-state with the Princesses on each of the three days of the meeting—June 18, 19 and 20. Officials are preparing for an Ascot "on the Coronation Year scale" and admission to the royal enclosure will be on pre-war lines.

Capt. Sir Malcolm Campbell has been granted the honorary rank of major, it is announced in the London Gazette. Sir Malcolm, Britain's speed king, commanded an army motorcycle unit when the war started. He served in an armored division and was also chief of a military police squad. In 1943 he was transferred to the infantry general list.

A record total of 52 entries reached the acceptance stage for the Lincolnshire Handicap April 3, but one well-known owner, Miss Dorothy Paget, will not have an entry. She has withdrawn Sun Storm, Prince Florimonde, Distel and Speckled Band. Previous "high" entry was when Squadron Castle won the 1939 Lincoln from 37 others.

Jim Ferrier of Chicago took the lead over 41 leading golf professionals in the opening day's play of the Seminole Golf Club tournament in West Palm Beach, Florida. He carried a two-under-par 70 for a one stroke lead over Jimmy Demarest, former baseball star of Houston, Texas: One stroke behind Demarest with 72's are Sammy Byrd of Detroit, Elsworth Vines of Chicago, the reformed tennis player, and Denny Shute of Akron. "Mr. Golf"—Byron Nelson, is far back with a 77.

MARITIMES TOUR PLAN

Nothing Definite, However, About Trip of Maple Leafs and Rangers

MONTREAL—Two officials of the Toronto Maple Leafs—Frank Selke and coach Happy Day—say they know nothing about a New York Rangers might tour report that the Leafs and the Maritimes after the end of the regular National Hockey League season on Sunday. Both clubs have been eliminated from the playoffs.

Earlier in Montreal, Tommy Gorman, manager of the Montreal Canadiens, said that he had been approached by Marty MacDonald, manager of the Glace Bay Forum, about having the Canadiens make a tour of the Maritimes. Gorman said he had suggested to MacDonald that since Canadiens would be tied up in the playoffs the Maritime sportsman should get in touch with the Leafs and Rangers.

CASEYS WIN IN BRIDGE

But Fail to Wipe Out Margin Of Community Club on First Session of Tourney

Knights of Columbus won over Community Club 17,460 to 15,040 Tuesday night in the second session of a home-and-home bridge tournament but the Community Club had a margin of 6,040 from the first session so is still ahead by 3,520. ## ARE VYING FOR SECOND PLACE

Boston and Chicago Are Only One Point Apart Now

TORONTO—Boston now is only one point ahead of the Chicago Black Hawks for second place in the National Hockey League. The Hawks reduced the Bruins' lead to one point last night when they defeated the Red Wings in Detroit 9 to 4 while New York Rangers were whipping the Bruins in Boston 5 to 3.

The Rangers came from behind with a four-goal rally in the third period to defeat the Bruins. The Ranger scorers were Cal Gardner, with two, Alf Pike, Grant Warwick and Ab DeMarco. The Boston goals were bagged by Terry Reardon, Don Gallinger and Porky Dumart.

In the Chicago-Detroit game, the Hawks scored two goals in the first period, six in the second and one in the third. Peter Horek led the Chicago scorers with three goals. Clint Smith got two and the others were divided between George Allen, Doug and Max Bentley and Red Hamill, all with one each. Fernand Gauthier, Ted Lindsay and Rob McLeannahan were the Detroit scorers.

PRACTICAL NURSING TRAINING

Manitoba Plans New Schools To Teach Professional Work

WINNIPEG — Practical nursing has come into its own in Manitoba. It is no longer a wide-open field but a qualified and licensed profession.

The Licensed Practical Nurses Act—the first of its kind in the Dominion—was passed by the Manitoba legislature in March, 1945. As a result, more than 200 women in the province who previously acted as practical nurses were required to pass tests and fill out application forms leading to licensing.

The provincial department of public health has, at present, two schools for training in the Winnipeg district. It is planned to open other training schools in rural Manitoba this fall.

The course requires a minimum of one year. It calls for 12 weeks of concentrated study, field trips, demonstration and practice in the classroom and approximately 34 weeks of clinical experience in hospital wards. A one-month holiday is granted.

At the end of the three-month theoretical course, a provincial qualifying examination is held. Students must pass this examination before going on to their clinical training.

No tuition fee is charged. However, during the three months' theoretical work, students are required to maintain themselves and buy uniforms and books. This amounts to approximately $130 and includes four uniforms and 12 bibs and aprons. When they reach clinical training, they are paid $20 monthly for eight months.

Supervisor is Frances H. Waugh, a graduate of United College in Winnipeg and the Winnipeg General Hospital. Petite and blue-eyed, Miss Waugh, an employee of the public health department, teaches a ten-hour course.

Six ex-servicewomen are numbered among the students. Thirty-one-year-old Irene Sampson was a sick berth attendant in the Navy. Eileen McGrath, 23, was a driver in the Army. She says she always wanted to take nursing and finds it "strange but not hard." The other girls are Louise Toews, Marguerite Stewart, Connie MacGill and Gertrude Embury.

The Experts Say - -

LIVER ONCE A WEEK — A serving of liver once a week is not only recommended by Canada's Food Rules, but it also is a good meat coupon extender. It requires no tokens and is rich in flavor as well as nutritional value.

Beef, calf and pork livers are all good though they vary in flavor and price, say the agriculture department consumer section experts.

Beef and calf liver may be recognized by their size, being larger than pork and having a smooth, glossy surface. The pork liver has a pebbled-looking surface and is reddish brown in color while calf liver tends to be yellowish brown. Hog liver has four lobes, beef and calf have two.

In preparing liver of any kind wipe with a damp cloth if it is sliced or, if it is whole, wash in cold water and dry. Slice and remove the skin and any tough fibres. The liver may be scalded in boiling water for a minute or two before removing the skin and it will peel off more easily.

Liver should not be overcooked or the flavor and texture are apt to be impaired. Calf liver, because of its delicate flavor and tenderness may be broiled, but beef and pork should be braised or sauteed. Lamb liver may also be used, but because of its stronger flavor is not generally as well liked as the other livers.

Many people like it braised in a savory sauce.

If liver is to be ground before cooking, as when it is used in meat loaves or patties, it should be scalded in boiling water for several minutes first to make it easier to handle.

If the members of your family profess not to like liver, you can serve them Savory Spaghetti and have them ask for a second helping. Don't tell them it is a liver dish and the chances are they won't know it. The dish resembles Italian spaghetti with meat sauce.

For six servings you will need ¾ pound liver, ¼ cup chopped onion, two tablespoons of fat, one teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, one tablespoon of chopped parsley (optional), two cups tomato juice, eight ounces of spaghetti.

Scald liver in boiling water for five minutes; drain and grind. Brown onion in fat, add liver and seasonings and cook slowly 10 minutes. Add tomato juice, simmer 20 minutes. If sauce becomes too thick during cooking, thin with a little water. Meanwhile cook and drain spaghetti. Pile spaghetti on a deep platter and pour sauce over it.

In the good old days you might have been told you had spring fever due to the shortage of some necessary foods during the winter months. In this age of rapid transportation and food-processing methods you can get the right foods the year round but even so a lot of people show a springtime decrease in haemoglobin with accompanying lassitude.

The answer is to step up your intake of iron foods. Choose the darker green vegetables and dark cereal. If you have a choice eat potatoes rather than macaroni or spaghetti; green celery rather than white celery; cooked prunes rather than apple or other fruit sauce; oatmeal or cracked wheat rather than cream of wheat; whole wheat bread rather than white.

HOW CAN I ??? ?
By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I avoid large pin holes in the material when fastening a paper pattern to silk goods?

A. When fastening a paper pattern on fine satin or silk use thin needles instead of pins.

Q. How can I remove the lettering from flour sacks that I wish to use for dish towels?

A. Rub the letters with lard, then roll the sack tightly and allow it to stand until washday.

Q. How can I make serviceable mats for flower pots?

A. Excellent mats can be made by cutting discs from pieces of old linoleum.

Speech Therapist
Teaches Veterans

TORONTO ©—It takes much patience and understanding to do Margaret McCurdy's work at Christie Street Hospital here. But the young Montreal-born speech therapist has won praise from both doctors and veterans alike for the help she has given aphasic patients at the hospital. Miss McCurdy is the only speech therapist in Canada working for the Department of Veterans Affairs. In her "classroom" at Christie Street are some speechless veterans, some unable to read or write and a few who cannot understand speech. A mirror plays an important part

LIME AGAINST ACID
The use of lime to counteract an acid condition of the soil which is unfavorable to plant growth has been known since the earliest days of agriculture. In her classroom. Standing before the mirror the patient sees how he forms his lips for words, guided by Miss McCurdy. Twenty-four-year-old Tommy, a private in the 48th Highlanders, was knocked back into infancy when he was shot in the left side of the head during the fighting in Holland. Today thanks to Miss McCurdy he can speak again and is learning once more how to read and write.

CIVIC CENTRE,
REC COUNCIL
FUTURE POLICY

A joint meeting of the Civic Centre Association executive and the executive of the Prince Rupert Recreational Council was held last night in the Civic Centre building to inform members of both executives of the work done by the Civic Recreational Board in connection with acquiring the building and to approve tentative budget and operational policies drawn up by the board.

The members of the two executives ratified decisions made by the Recreational Board which is a functional body composed of members from both. Plans for the opening program on Sunday were left to the board. During the ceremonies on Sunday afternoon, it is expected that members of the executives of the Civic Centre Association, Rec Council and City Council will be on the platform.

The meeting approved the purchase of canteen stocks from the Y.M.C.A. The canteen will be open from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. on week days. The building itself will be open from 2 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. except for special events, when it will remain open for any required further length of time. Saturday mornings it will be opened for young people for organized classes.

The meeting agreed that the building will be open for use of community organizations for meetings without charge, providing it is not done for profit. Emphasis was placed on the fact that the building is to be a community centre.

Appointments of staff members and employees, effected by the board, were also ratified.

WHAT
Prince Rupert Needs

(The Sixth of a series of suggestions by readers of the Daily News for the betterment of this city)

First—Co-operation with Boards of Trade in districts adjacent to this city to promote canning and dehydrating of such field crops as peas, beans, corn and other vegetables which could be transported cheaply west to this port by our local railway, in refrigerator cars which usually return here empty for fresh fish. Canning could possibly be handled by our local canneries which also have facilities for cold storage.

Second—Our provincial government to give more encouragement to prospecting in the north. Also the need of a mining engineer in the field and a custom concentrator to handle high grade ore.

Third—Our local members to federal and provincial parliaments to encourage the Saskatchewan government in handling grain to our local elevator and port. Direct route Saskatoon, Edmonton, Prince Rupert and the Orient. Shipping subsidies to again be taken up with the federal government.

Fourth—A box factory and plywood industry, possibly shared by employer and employee. Box ends, slabs, sawdust in many of such plants pay operating expenses. I understand a vast amount of cottonwood is available near here.

GEORGE JACKSON,
City Hall.

GARDEN NOTEBOOK

Back to Normal—After six years of war the world workshops are beating their swords back again into plowshares. For the gardener that will mean re-seeding the front lawn, which has been plowed up and put into a Victory garden, and again planting freely flowers and nursery stock. Freely may not be quite the right word because Canadian seedsmen state that supplies are not altogether normal yet. There are a few shortages in some garden seeds though the situation is much better than a few years ago. In nursery stock, however, certain lines are still scarce because foundation stock for them came from Europe and this, of course, was cut off completely from 1940 to 1944.

ures like fences, driveways, sidewalks, house lines, garage, etc. In planning shrubbery and flower gardens the beginner is advised to bear in mind that each plant should have half as much room either way as it will be high at maturity. This means that shrubs like lilacs, which grow about eight feet high, should have at least four feet between, ordinary shade trees like maple should be from 20 to 30 feet apart, though one can plant temporary shrubbery between. With foundation planting about the house, too, it is important to give space, and not get this right under the eaves. Most shrubs will make a much better show if planted at least three feet in front of any wall or fence.

A Cure for Jaded Nerves—For ex-service men, for all those who have worked too hard or at too fast a tempo during the war, and for that vast throng of normal, average human beings who get a natural craving to dig in the soil every spring, gardening offers a cure, rest and recreation all rolled into one. There is fresh air, healthful exercise and the solid satisfaction of seeing things grow. One can take as little or as much as one likes and the cost is hardly worth mentioning—a few dollars for tools, a few cents for seeds—and nature with a little help will do the rest.

Planning Will Help—While the soil is getting warm, garden experts advise doing a little planning. Especially where the plot is small and one wants to make the very best use of this limited area, a rough sketch on paper of the general layout will help. On this mark the main boundaries and the permanent fea-

Modern Chairs and Sofas Last Word in Comfort and Compactness

NEW YORK ©—Men who have rarely been fans of modern furniture will welcome the new modern pieces which are designed for comfort as well as beauty. Now those gentlemen who have found modern furniture too stiff and formal will find that they can curl up on a modern sofa or snooze in a modern chair without getting a kink in the neck or back.

New interesting modern pieces designed by Lester Tichy of New York, who won first prize in House and Garden's architectural awards, are the last word in comfort and compactness. Arm chairs are more rounded in design so that instead of the arms of the chair being completely out of line as rests for weary elbows, they are curved and comfortable. The furniture of natural birch is upholstered in cotton and mahair and the back and seat are slanted so that the maximum comfort of a chair is achieved. You can sit in these new modern chairs without aching to get out of them.

Mr. Tichy's tea table which could adequately serve as a game table has a swivel section underneath which swings out to hold cigarette accessories, glasses, extra china or playing cards. And these are curved as are all the tables in this modern house. Sofa and coffee tables are low.
