Miners Going Back To Work for Twelve Days

Sudden Move Described by Union Head As "Contribution to National Economy"

WASHINGTON, D. C. (CP)—John L. Lewis today called for a 12-day truce in the soft coal strike beginning Monday. Lewis wired every local union president, urging him to arrange for 400,000 striking United Mine Workers to get back on the job if local mine managements agreed to make retroactive any pay increases that might later be negotiated. This action was taken as the ATHENIA 40-day-old strike hit the United States harder, curtailing railway "MISTAKE" passenge rtravel, ending all priorities on freight shipments and bringing an order for the rationing of illuminating gas.

Lewis described the action of the union as a "contribution to national economy" in a situation which was menacing the nation. "Stupidity and selfishness of the operators" he blamed for the impasse.

Pro-Cons Stand Still

The Gallup Poll, which often is disappointing in the answers it gets, indicates that the Progressive-Conservative party is like the average man's bank account in the minds of the voters—the withdrawals of support are as great as the accretions of strength.

What to do about this is of public importance. It is important because any Government (yes, even one headed by Mr. King) is a better government for having an alert, active, aggressive and courageous official Opposition forever watching for sins of omission and commission and ready to fight at the drop of the hat. There are elements in the official Opposition possessing these qualities. But there seems to be a lack of cohesion, a superfluity of counsel, an aggregation of fears, a desire to placate all elements, a dreaming of the day when a Progressive-Conservative party will sweep Quebec.

There are many people in Canada who dislike Mr. King and all his works. "Dislike" is a moderate word in some instances. But many of these same voters so far have seen no reason for putting their faith in the Brackenites. There is nothing colorful there. Several of the new members, and three or four of the old, have been doing a good job, but they cannot make a party when the front bench is composed of moribund specialists (again with exceptions) whose principal claim to recognition is seniority.

Everyone who knows says Mr. Bracken gave good government to Manitoba for twenty years. But an admistrator is not necessarily a Leader of the Opposition. Mr. Bracken would seem to be too conciliatory to win fights, too retiring to be a figure around whom voters will rally. too cautious to essay a duel of words, too restrained in his criticisms to make a newspaper headline.

It isn't a new situation in parliamentary history. Lord Radolph Churchill, who will go down in history as the father of Winston, was quite a man and parliamentarian in his own right. Over sixty years ago he and a valiant few like spirits set to work to stir up their own party and to needle the Prime Minister, Mr. Gladstone, whose position in British Liberalism may not have been unlike that of Mr. King in Canadian affairs today.

Lord Randolph and crew reached their objectives though at least one authority says they were brutal in their thrusts at the Old Guard of their own party. They were in fact, a successful fourth party. Perhaps Canada needs a successful fifth party. A ginger group could even help Mr. Ilsley towards the balanced budget of which he speaks (occasionally).

Summer Comes

The drumming chug of diesel fishing vessels moving up the clear waters of the harbor these bright, calm mornings, the honking of migratory birds in flight, the full leafing of the deciduous trees, yes, the flying dust of our streets these hot, sunny afternoons-these are the announcement by Mother Nature of the arrival of the long days drenched with sunshine and the short cool nights which feature riotous displays of color and the noiseless sky rockets of the Northern Lights.

Business men scurry around in their shirt sleeves, the youngsters and some of the big girls too cavort in their sun suits, the women come forth in their airy print dresses on downtown streets, some of the men with chores to do strip down to their cotton pants. Yes, summer has come back to Prince Rupert.

It is an old-time summer too for we are lacking the noise and excitement that marred Prince Rupert's natural attractions during the war years. It is all very pleasant on these generously sunshiny days.

These are great days and we should all be happy. This is Prince Rupert's early start of summer.

Away With Them

It is all very inconsistent anyway that Victor Emmanuel, the puppet of Mussolini, and Emperor Hirohito, the "divine" stooge of the Japanese war lords, should remain on their thrones. It is but a hypocritical mockery to retain them. They have to pass on. Possibly, there is too much of that kind of expensive sham but there is certainly no rhyme or reason for the maintenance particularly of Victor or Hirohito. They can mean but nonsensical duplicity and ridiculous servitude in high places. The world is well rid of them and they are personally fortunte if the worst Fate has for them is quiet

After 35 years advertising agency experience Henry T. Ewald states: "Newspaper advertising during the war proved itself so strong that I hope governments will continue to value the importance of national advertising."

Wage Drive Is Pursued

Prince Rupert Teachers' Hear Convention Report

The British Columbia Teachers' Federation, representing almost 3500 of this province's school teachers, will pursue as a "primary policy" this year a vigorous campaign for implementation of its "minimum defensible" salary schedule as formulated at the recent convention in Vancouver. This was emphasized by delegates to that body who reported at a meeting of the local Teachers' Association this week in the Civic Centre.

President J. S. Wilson reported that B.C.T.F. President-elect C. J. Oates had keynoted the policy in these words: "It will be a fundamental policy of the parent body, its locals and each individual member to press relentlessly for a fair, reasonable wage for the teacher, too long the forgotten man among Canadian wage earners.

"A fair living for the teacher is a vital prerequisite to any organized effort toward betterment of our children and, consequently, the development of good Canadian citizens."

Q. Is it possible to determine whether a woman is ill-bred by observing her when shopping in a department store?

Duties of a veteran's placement officer are wide and varied, embracing advice of a very personal nature to veterans and their families, as well as business council, Col. Hamilton Grant, local veterans' placement officer, told the Rotary Club in a speech Thursday.

Col. Hamilton Grant said that the attitude of the government toward the veterans of World! War II was far in advance of the treatment received by the veterans of the first world war.

As commanding officer in the Canadian Army training camps at Vernon and Chilliwack during the war he was known to many of the veterans from Prince Rupert who also saw their initial military service in those camps,
