CUTTING CBC PROGRAMS

MITHDRAWAL of Canadian W Broadcasting Corporation programs from station CFPR of Prince Rupert, which is reported to be imminent because of imposition of a toll for wire service, would appear to be not only completely unjustiiable but a distinct slight to Prince Rupert and district which, as far as long wave daylight reception is concerned, is entirely dependent upon the local transmitter. Even if thousands of dollars are involved, and it might not be so many thousands at that if proper negotiations were carried out, the people of Prince Rupert and district can properly enough consider it their right to have the service maintained.

The Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce did rightfully enough last night in having its radio committee acquaint itself at once as to the exact facts of the situation in regard to the reported cutting off of all CBC network programs to Prince Rupert with a view to promoting a vigorous protest if, inconceivable as it might seem, such a move is really contemplated. It is a protest in which every citizen of Prince Rupert should certainly join and the time to make the protest would be before the act occurs-not after.

THE FINAL CHAPTER

F THE REMAINS of the ill-fated flying boat Skeena Queen and the four more victims of her obvious crash at sea are not recovered, it will not be because efforts were spared by the Queen Charlotte Airlines, with the ready assistance of many Prince Rupert people. Obviously, no lives can be saved now by further searching operations. The only purpose that might be served would be to provide the bereaved with the satisfaction that goes with the finding of remains of loved ones. The recovery of the ship itself might provide some indi-

GOV'T CONTRACTS

MITH THE PRESENT unstable ec-W onomic situation of rising prices and wages it is only the most venturous of contractors who submit tenders on government public works projects. It is becoming common for no bids to be received on government jobs. Work that should be done to catch up for the neglect of war years continues to be relegated to the "unfinished business" file for a further indefinite time.

At present it is a distinct gamble to a contractor to tender for jobs so necessary to the nation. If the government should decide to permit a wage increase or an increase in building material cost, the contract might bind him to a loss on the undertaking.

If these jobs have to be done it is not fair to ask these men who are willing to complete the task to be put i na precarious position of loss as the only reward for their efforts. For there is a method of overcoming the chance element whenever a government contract is entered into. This is by the inclusion of what is known as the "escalator clause." If the government would permit the use of this system in their contracts it would assure those that enter into the bargain with them that they will not suffer by any price or wage rise during the carrying out of the contract, as long as the rise is due to government action.

Operating under the present uncertain conditions, the sanctioning of |a this clause would provide incentive enough for tendering of bids on pub-
