Agreement Reached on Points of Peace For Axis Satellites

REPARATIONS SETTLED UPON BY FOREIGN MINISTERS — ITALY TO PAY MORE AND BULGARIA LESS

NEW YORK (CP)—The council of foreign ministers last night reached virtual agreement on main points of the treaties for European satellites which will be signed by the Axis during the war.

Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov of Russia, with the agreement of United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, won a long campaign to slash Bulgarian reparations and increase Italian reparations payments.

Final agreement on reparations means that Italy will have to pay a total of $360,000,000 more than recommended by the Paris peace conference last fall.

Bulgaria will pay a total of $70,000,000 or $35,000,000 less than the Paris conference recommended.

MILITARY HOSPITAL DESTROYED

PETERBORO, Ont. — Prompt action of orderlies of the Department of Veterans Affairs tuberculosis hospital here permitted 228 patients to escape injury as fire destroyed the hospital early today, causing damage of $1,500,000.

The blaze is stated by Fire Chief George Gimblett to have originated in a basement storage room from a discarded cigarette butt.

The patients were cleared to safety in less than five minutes.

There was no panic although many patients climbed out of lower windows and down ladders in an orderly race to escape the flames which swept rapidly through the building.

ALASKA WOULD SAVE GREATLY BY USING PRINCE RUPERT IN SHIPPING IN FROM STATES

If Alaskans could use the Canadian seaport of Prince Rupert, 650 miles north of Seattle, they could slice their freight bill almost in half, according to Richard L. Neuberger in Readers' Digest. One hundred pounds of flour shipped from Seattle to Skagway exacts a freight toll of 97 cents; from Prince Rupert to Skagway the charge is 48 cents. The freight bill on an Oldsmobile sedan shipped from Seattle to Ketchikan is $82.50; from Prince Rupert it is $39.60. And rail rates from American manufacturing centres to Seattle and to Prince Rupert are equal.

Seattle's trade with Alaska exceeds its commerce with all foreign nations combined. Washington's senators uphold discrimination on the ground that Seattle, an American city, should receive Alaska's business. Alaskans contend that the Territory, if freed from high freight rates and the locking-up of resources, will develop from a wilderness into a genuine civilization, and Seattle will ultimately benefit far more.

The highest freight rates in the world force Alaskans to support a cost of living nearly twice that of New York City, highest in the United States. Even in normal times in Alaska, you pay

BRETTON WOODS CONTENTION BONE

Australia is Unable to Agree Upon it

CANBERRA. — Overriding a federal cabinet recommendation, the Parliamentary Labor Party brought about postponement of Australia's ratification of the Bretton Woods agreement designed to promote balanced international trade.

The agreement has been the source of division in the Labor party for several months, opponents claiming it would deprive the country of control over foreign trade and currency.

Canada is singulary to the agreement.

Modifications of Old Age Pensions Regulations Forecast By B.C. Minister Following Ottawa Trip

VICTORIA. — Hon. George Pearson, minister of labor and welfare, just returned from a four-day conference of the Dominion-provincial advisory board on pensions regulations at Ottawa, said Thursday that he anticipated the Dominion would soon issue a new set of regulations on old age pensions removing many irritations. He indicated that modification might be expected in existing regulations covering contributions from children to pensions applicants, relaxation of regulations relating to deductions from pensions in respect of real and personal property, easing of requirements regarding proof of age in absence of birth certificates, more generous provisions regarding periods of absence from Canada and modification of regulations covering overpayment of pensions in cases where casual or part time work is taken.

ADOLPH HITLER STILL ALIVE

TORONTO—Adolf Hitler is still alive and at work on the development of atomic energy in Argentina, it is suggested by Capt. Harry Thurber who attended the Nuernberg trials. Eva Braun died beside a Hitler double in the Reich chancellery. Thurber also suggested.

IN INDIAN "HORNETS" NEST—Padit Jawaharlal Nehru, first prime minister of the Free India government, is shown on his arrival at Peshawar when he made a tour of Moslem districts on the northwest frontier of India. His car was attacked by a mob and stones were thrown at him, but Nehru escaped injury. Several English journalists who accompanied him were injured.

JEWISH ARMS DUMPS FOUND

Enough War Material for Eight Thousand Men—Another Bomb Explosion

JERUSALEM. — Enough small arms and ammunition to equip eight thousand men on "wartime scale of 50 rounds per man" have been seized by the British Army in raids on Jewish arms dumps during the last 12 months, according to a "conservative estimate" given officially last night.

Yesterday a bomb explosion killed one to four British soldiers at Sarafand camp after an unidentified truck penetrated a heavily guarded military post.

BRITISH RATION MAY BE LOWERED

LONDON. — Food Minister John Strachey told Britons today that their bread and bacon rations might be cut—the former because of the United States coal strike and the latter because Canadian supplies for export were running below expectations.

Britons now get nine ounces of bread daily and three ounces of bacon per week. The latter may be cut to two ounces.

PEACE FEELER PUT OUT IN COAL STRIKE; FIRST BREAK BY MINERS

WASHINGTON, D.C. — John L. Lewis' camp on Thursday put out an apparent peace feeler in the soft coal strike through William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as the Congress of Industrial Organizations rushed to join the mine workers' leader in his appeal against a contempt of court conviction and heavy fine. Green urged the government to arrange for negotiations between the United Mine Workers and private owners for settlement which would end the walk-out.

Meanwhile, there was at least one break in the strike when miners of six small coal mines in the Durango area of Colorado went back to work saying that "if it is a case of John L. Lewis or the government, we are for the government."

MINERS PUT UP SECURITY

Bonds Posted by Lewis and His Union Pending Appeal Of Contempt Case

WASHINGTON. — John L. Lewis, president, and the United Mine Workers of America today posted bonds to meet the fines levied against them for contempt of court stemming from the coal strike. Lewis posted a cash bond of $10,000 to cover his personal fine and the union posted its $3,500,000 in United States government bonds.

With the posting of the bonds, Judge Goldsborough signed an order staying the actual collection of fines pending final disposition of the case which has been appealed.

REVISED WAGE LAWS HINTED

Minister of Labor Hints at Changes—Uniformity Desired —Compulsory Collective Bargaining

VICTORIA. — Hon. G. S. Pearson, minister of labor, yesterday indicated that he may introduce new fair wage laws at the next session of the legislature and expressed no surprise at a report that Ottawa would call another Dominion-provincial conference for final drafting of a proposed Canadian Labor code. The minister, just returned from Ottawa, said there was a general desire for uniformity of labor legislation between the provinces and within the Dominion.

Mr. Pearson said that British Columbia's Conciliation and Arbitration Act was now in progress of being rewritten largely along the lines of inclusion of collective bargaining clauses of Dominion wartime legislation including PC 1003 which makes compulsory bargaining almost compulsory in some cases.

Catholic Institution Partially Destroyed

Sixty Students and Instructional Staff Escape in Night Attire—Young Boy Hero

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sixty students and an instructional staff escaped in night attire early today as a three-alarm fire swept through Vancouver College, South Shaughnessy district boys' residential school, leaving the three-storey structure a gutted ruin with damage estimated at $200,000.

There was no panic and no one was injured as students ranging in age from 13 to 19 years fled through the main door after being cut off from the fire escape by the flames. Instructional brothers of the Roman Catholic institution led the students to safety.

The roof collapsed half an hour after the fire began and the frame-type top storey was destroyed and the fire-proof brick first and second storeys gutted.

It is believed the fire started in a smoking room on the top storey which also housed a gymnasium and cafeteria.

Most of the students were given temporary shelter in the nearby brothers' residence and in homes of neighbors.

Quick action of an eleven-year-old boy, Ray McClary, who spotted the flames from a passing car and ran to the building to awaken the brothers and turn in the alarm, thus possibly saving the lives of those in the building.

GOLD MINERS SEEK PROBE

JOHANNESBURG. (Reuters)—The South African gold miners' union joint committee has decided to ask the government to appoint a commissioner with "the widest possible terms of capacity of the mining industry to meet the high cost of production and legitimate demands of the workers."

The committee suggested that the commission should probe:

1. The possibility of expansion of the industry with or without state aid.
2. Possible government subsidies for low grade mines to enable them to provide employment on reasonable conditions.
3. Advisability of nationalization of the mines.

It was decided to defer other demands, such as an increase in the price of gold, subject to a commission being appointed to report by June 30, 1947.

The miners will press immediately, however, for an adequate pension scheme on the same lines as that for mine officials.

FISH DELEGATES URGE INCREASED HALIBUT QUOTAS

Canadian and American fishermen have recommended to the International Fisheries Commission that the halibut quota from Areas Two and Three be increased 5,000,000 pounds above the 1946 level, according to George Anderson, who returned from the annual meeting of the commission this week.

Mr. Anderson, who attended the Seattle conference as delegate of the Prince Rupert Deep Sea Fishermen's Union, said that it was suggested that the increase be divided equally between Areas Two and Three, allowing 2,500,000 more for each area than was authorized this year.

The fishermen suggested, according to Mr. Anderson, that the quota increase should be set aside for incidental fishing such as black cod and scrap fish, in which a percentage of the catch is allowed to be halibut.

They recommended that the percentage of halibut caught under permit by black codders and beam trawlers be increased from 14 to 25 per cent.

Possibility that the "mother ship" method of fishing might be introduced in Areas Three and Four by a Seattle company which has converted a large freighter for that purpose caused a stir of protest among the delegates, who expressed fear that once such a method is introduced it would expand to the detriment of the small boat fishermen.

Discussion also took place on a forced curtailment scheme and creation of a new international treaty. Possibility that the latter might go into effect in the near future is remote, Mr. Anderson said.

Two-Pound Baby Dies

Grip On Life Finally Slipped This Afternoon

Baby Scott, two-pound son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Scott, born in Prince Rupert General Hospital last Saturday night, slipped its slender claim on life this afternoon, passing away shortly before 2 o'clock, almost six days after its birth.

The tiny child, believed to have been the smallest ever born in Prince Rupert and to have lived for any period after its birth, succumbed despite every effort of medical skill and nursing care to overcome the handicap of its premature birth. The child's birth was said to have been three months premature.

The infant died before its father, Norman C. Scott, former American soldier, could get to Prince Rupert from Dallas, Texas, where he has been living since his discharge from the army. He left Dallas some days ago on his way to Prince Rupert.

Hopes to save the baby were fairly high early in the week but, as the days went by, its grip on life lessened.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus McIver were the grandparents of the babe.

On To Alaska - -

TWENTY-FIVE REPRESENTATIVE BUSINESS MEN of Prince Rupert are taking tomorrow off to make a spontaneous international goodwill trip to Alaska's "first city" of Ketchikan. They are doing this amid a busy season when most of them have other activities on which might well keep them at home. But they feel it is a psychological moment to make this gesture of personal and community interest in the people across the international line to the north, to see their situation at first hand and ascertain if there is anything further that can be done to aid them and develop mutually beneficial relations not only at this particular time of their need and difficulty but to establish relations that will become both close and lasting.

Southeastern Alaskans have long been conscious of the good use they could make of the port and railway of Prince Rupert in the more direct transportation connection it offers them with the main United States. The recent maritime difficulty which cut them off from Seattle and the neglect they have suffered of recent years from the American steamship lines have served to make Alaskans more deeply sensitive of this port's importance in relation to the territory. It is well that Prince Rupert business men, on their part, should take this opportunity to get personally in touch with them and get a first hand view of their problems and the possibilities of helping them to meet them not only now but in the future.

TRAGEDY OF FRANCE

CURRENT POLITICAL situation in France is tragically reminiscent of that of previous areas, particularly prior to the two world wars, when domestic disagreements prevented the unity of the people of the nation and made possible intrigue which led to such disaster as brought about the collapse of France in 1940. It provokes the elementary question of France's basic ability to govern herself. Today the seeds are being again sown of domestic dissension which might well, under quite possibly arising circumstances, lead to another collapse. And what goes on in France is unfortunately to be seen in other nations of Europe.

C.N.R. APPOINTMENTS

BECAUSE "conditions have returned to normal and an expansion of railway business in this area is anticipated," the Canadian National Railways has changed the set-up of its traffic administration from Prince Rupert, separating the passenger department from the freight. William Cruickshank, experienced passenger man, who has grown up from the position of clerk right here in Prince Rupert, takes charge of the passenger end. Peter Laskie devotes himself henceforth exclusively to freight. Both men know the Prince Rupert situation very well and are in an excellent position to administer existing business, develop new business and serve the district under their jurisdiction efficiently and well. They are in a position to do much not only in their company's interest but in the interest of the district. Naturally, the people of Prince Rupert look to them to be boosters and faithful servants of the area of which Prince Rupert is the administrative and service headquarters.

ROTARIANS SEE COLORED FILMS

A display of colored films by Sgt. L. A. N. Potterton of the city police provided the entertainment feature at the weekly Rotary Club luncheon in the Commodore Cafe Thursday afternoon. A film of the Burns Lake and Smithers country showed the great, year-round possibilities of the central interior as a tourist district. A second film, showing the Kootenay district, was taken while Sgt. Potterton was stationed at Vernon. Sgt. Potterton was thanked warmly by club president W. L. Kergin on behalf of the members.

JUNIOR CHAMBER HEARS REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Holding its monthly meeting a week in advance in deference to the civic elections on December 12, Prince Rupert Junior Chamber of Commerce last night concentrated on discussion of reports of committees, most active of which are the get-out-the-vote, and radio auction.

Radio Auction chairman Don Esselmont outlined plans for that function on December 12, 13 and 14, expressing hope that this year's financial results will exceed those of last year. Proceeds are to be divided equally between the Civic Centre, Pioneers' Home and Salvation Army.

Ned McLeod, get-out-the-vote chairman, reported that such labels had already been distributed throughout the city, and that a telephone campaign, urging voters to go to the polls, would start this week.

Announcement was made of the election rally sponsored jointly by the Junior Chamber and Civic Centre, which will be held in the Civic Centre auditorium on Monday night and at which all candidates for civic office are being invited to speak.

Secretary Allan Armstrong Wilfred McLean and George Dobb were reported to be planning to go to Ketchikan tonight with the senior Chamber of Commerce delegation and were officially named as representatives of the Junior Chamber by President Lloyd Morris.

Mr. Morris urged them to take part in a radio broadcast which is being arranged for the visitors over the Ketchikan radio station Saturday morning.

Treasurer A. J. Dominato reported that a party held by the Junior Chamber last week netted $150 and that another such affair is planned for January.

Don McEwen urged that City Council be approached and asked to co-operate with Arrow Bus Lines in the erection of bus stop shelters. He was named to interview council members in that regard.

New members welcomed by President Lloyd Morris were Spencer Wright, David Bailey, Neil Ross, Eddie Dawes, Bud Schuman, Harry Horn, Charles Viers and Sam Julian.

HUMPTY-DUMPTY

Place of torn-down buildings and half-finished shacks, It's a sixty-buck question to find just what it lacks— The streets are disgraceful, the holes and the boulders, The sidewalks the parade ground for out-of-work soldiers; You've appealed to Ottawa for consideration, To the people back East, you're the end of creation; If you try to use reason they tell you to scam, Our Parliament Hill—they just don't give a damn, Our work, once you've rolled over and quietly died, Come the peace—you've rolled over and quietly died, You are still a young town, so don't act like a granny, Get rid of your crutches—get up off your fancy; You have got to get busy, there is business to do, The North and Alaska are both beckoning you, You're entitled to bargain, so make a beginning, 'Twill surprise you how quickly you find you are winning, So discard the motley, the armour put on, Your cause it is just—make then right what is wrong, Success comes at last to the fighter who tryeth, Make Prince Rupert the David and Ottawa the Golieth.

DAMAGED BOAT TOWED TO PORT

Radio Dial (240 Kilocycles to change)

Holed by a rock on November 29 as she sought shelter from a storm at White Rocks at the north end of Banks Island, the halibut boat Lorna H. was towed to port last night after her owner, Capt. Hans Knutsen, had spent the greater part of the week repairing his vessel.

Lorna H. was towed in by Capt. Carl Giske's Morris H. which went out Monday to try and save the damaged vessel. The Lorna H. rode low, and was kept above water by hand pumps manned by tired crew members of the Morris H. and Capt. Knutsen.

Placing of temporary patches and pumping the vessel required more than two days at the lonely cove. Towing operations Thursday were hampered by a heavy wind, which made the job precarious.

The Lorna H. was taken to Prince Rupert dry dock, where a survey of the damage is being made today.

Gambling at Ball Games

Retiring Boss Branham Says There Are Indications of Players Throwing Games

LOS ANGELES, (CP)—President W. G. Branham, retiring boss of the minor baseball leagues, submitted a report stating that, "for the first time since the so-called 'Black Sox' scandal, there had been strong circumstantial evidence this past season of players throwing games and being in collusion with gamblers and book-makers." He said that, instead of getting better, the situation had grown worse in regard to gamblers at ball games.

CANADIANS VISIT TROPICAL ISLAND

Jamaica, aglow with luxuriant year-round foliage and vivid tropical birds, provided a novel November scene for 1,200 Canadians from the aircraft carrier "Warrior" and the Tribal class destroyer "Nootka" as the two ships of Canada's peacetime navy spent three days in Kingston harbor recently. The Canadians received a warm-hearted welcome from the people of Jamaica and found much enjoyment in exploring the tropical island.

Too large to come alongside the docks at Kingston, the 18,000-ton "Warrior" had to anchor in the harbor during her stay. Here one of the ship's motorboats is seen bringing "liberty men" ashore for leave. "Warrior" lies in the distance behind them.

Native handicrafts—beads, baskets and straw hats—were popular souvenirs among the Canadian sailors visiting Kingston. Able Seaman J. W. Stimson, of Vancouver, an aircraft handler from "Warrior" is shown making a purchase while another Canadian sailor tries a gaudy straw hat for size.

ANIMALS PLAYED BIG PART IN WAR

LONDON, (AP)—The Second Great War was a mechanized conflict but 120,000 mules, 40,000 horses, 16,000 camels and 15,700 pigeons were called in to help the British Army. War Office figures show that transport services also required 6,000 bullocks, and 5,000 dogs were used for a variety of purposes in far-flung battlefields. John Freeman, financial secretary to the War Office, said in Commons that figures did not take into account millions of cattle, sheep and other animals handled by the army before use as food.

Casualties among the transport animals were a very small proportion of the total. He asked for notice of a question whether a suitable memorial for animals killed in the war would be erected.

SHORT SPORT

Some people may sneer at the idea hockey is "the poetry of sport, an art, evocative and mesmeric;" or that the puck, "that merry wanderer of the ice," could have "a restless evening." Mark down their buffoonery for lack of artistic appreciation for Canada's great game. For proof to show such Doubting Thomases submit this account of the Britain-Germany game in the first round of the European and world champions at London's Webley Stadium February 17, 1937. It was written by the special representative of the old London Morning Post. "Under the arcs we saw a puck flashing from zone to zone, fitting across the icy surface like a shadow skimming the high moons in summer . . . Your ice-hockey player, remember, does not move like a normal man; he jounces, hurtles, dives; he flickers and he spins. Sticks clatter, skates rasp, ice-chips whirl like flying spume. There is a glitter-and-flash-and-scurry, a tempo ever-quicken, excitement ever-mounting." And so he went on: "Have you seen a film many times accelerated? Have you watched a swooping gull or the 'russet-pated choughs' that 'madly sweep the sky'? Have you been stirred by Kipling's 'East Wind':—"The reeling

Grueuing called at the White House to confer with the man who had appointed him, Ickes dealt out a scathing rebuke. And after Grueuing had told a New York Times correspondent that he opposed further "fencing off" of Alaska's public lands, Ickes asked him what right he had to issue such a statement.

Many Alaskans think that statehood offers the only chance to bring Alaska from backwoods to maturity. Under statehood, if the pattern of our Far West is followed, Alaska would control its own salmon fisheries. Land now locked up by the Federal government would go to the new state for school, road and agricultural funds. Perhaps most important, Alaska would have effective representation at the national capital.

Statehood has been resisted principally by the two groups that benefit most from Alaska's present status. One consists of the salmon canneries, gold mining corporations and steamship companies which take millions from the Territory each year and leave comparatively little behind in taxes and wages. The other is the Federal bureaucracy whose sway over land, fisheries and forests would diminish if Alaska had statehood.

These bureaucrats contend that a state control could not match Federal vigor in resisting monopolistic seizure of Alaska's resources. Yet they fall to explain why, during Mr. Ickes' administration of the salmon fisheries, eight large canning companies, all owned outside Alaska, became the owners of considerably more than half of the fish traps. Two absentee-owned companies have been licensed by the Department of the Interior to operate approximately 25 percent of all the fish traps.

Alaskans, dismayed by the vassalage in which the Territory has been kept, got some encouragement recently when Julius A. Krug, the new Secretary of Interior, promised "a greater measure of self-government."

Krug also pledged himself to eventual statehood. Still later, in mid-August, the Secretary announced that 18,640,000 acres of land in Alaska are to be restored to the public domain, for private development under Federal mining and leasing laws.

Krug's program sounds hopeful but Alaskans have seen innumerable government plans for the expansion of Alaska and up in nothing except a longer Federal payroll. The widely ballyhooed Matanuska Valley colony, after many false starts, finally resulted in fewer than 200 families being settled on farms. Other programs have amounted to less, including one in the Harding administration intended to give veterans of World War I a genuine opportunity to prosper in the North. When statehood is at last a reality, and shipping rates are at least no higher than anywhere else on earth, Alaskans will believe that the Territory has a legitimate chance to realize on its vast and rich possibilities.

Mrs. J. S. Black reported a donation of $10 to the Women's Co-ordinating committee for the Pioneers' Christmas banquet, adding that a very substantial amount had been raised by the fall bazaar held recently.

A drawing for $2 at last night's meeting was won by Miss Edith Gandy, who turned it over to the Pioneers Home fund.

The meeting initiated Mrs. K. Twaites as a new member and considered two more applications for membership.

UNITED CHURCH XMAS BAZAAR

Highly Successful Affair Held Yesterday—Attractive and Interesting

With many ladies calling throughout the afternoon to patronize the attractive and interesting affair, the annual pre-Christmas bazaar of the Ladies' Aid of First United Church was a successful event which resulted in a sum of about $200 being realized.

The social rooms of the church were attractively decorated in the seasonal colors of red and green and the pouring table was centred with a handsome bouquet of chrysanthemums.

The tea room was in charge of Mrs. G. A. Johnson assisted by Mrs. W. Faught, Mrs. R. G. Webber and Mrs. Earl Peterson. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. R. A. Wilson, Mrs. Hanford Perkins, Mrs. R. G. Large and Mrs. Crawford. Serviteurs were Mrs. David Allen, Mrs. C. H. Hankinson, Mrs. B. R. Dodds and Mrs. George Peters while cashiers were Mrs. J. S. Irvine and Mrs. Charles Graham.

Full List for School Board—Brooksbank and Brown Are Latest Entrants

Fifth candidate for five seats on the board of school trustees, Arthur Bruce Brown, barrister, filed his nomination papers this morning. He is proposed by W. R. McAfee and seconded by W. M. Watts. Other school board candidates are Dr. R. G. Large, W. F. Stone, A. J. Dominato and Mrs. Earl Becker. Should there be no more nominees, and acclamations to the school board result, some means will have to be devised who will have two- and one-year terms which would otherwise be settled by standing of candidates in number of votes cast.

There are now seven candidates entered for four two-year aldermanic terms—G. B. Casey, A. E. Field, Hugo Kraugner, Robert McKay, A. S. Nickerson and Arthur Brooksbank. Thomas B. Black is the sole aspirant to date to the one-year aldermanic seat.

Author Believes Faulty Security Delayed War End

COL. R. S. MALONE IN "MISSING FROM THE RECORD" SAYS CANADIANS COULD HAVE MISSED MONTHS OF WAR

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Had it not been for security going wrong somewhere, or perhaps the Italians broke faith, the Canadians would never have had those heart-breaking months of fighting in Italy, writes Col. R. S. (Dick) Malone of Winnipeg.

A former Canadian liaison officer on the staff of Field Marshal Montgomery, Col. Malone brings this out in his book "Missing From The Record" and says the plan was to use the 1st Canadian Division for "limited operations only" and then send all Canadians back to join the First Canadian Army in England for the frontal attack on Europe.

The Italians sued for peace several days before the assault on Italy and the plan was that the Canadians and some British troops attacking the toe of Italy would draw the Germans down there while the main assault by Americans went in later at Salerno for a thrust across Italy to seal the Germans off.

"Whether the German Intelligence was too good or whether the Italians broke faith and tipped the Germans off it is hard to say but the Germans knew that Reggio was not the main assault," writes Col. Malone.

With the element of surprise lost the Americans met much heavier opposition at Salerno than was expected, were largely rescued by the small handful of men "Monty" had under his command in Italy and then the Allies were committed to the painful months-long march up the Italian boot while the enemy fought a delaying action.

MOST FATEFUL ANNOUNCEMENT

As to the Second Front Col. Malone goes back to the first week of September, 1944, when the Allied Communique carried an announcement so small it escaped any great attention, but to the author it was one of the most fateful of the war. It was word that the great "Monty" had been let out of his job as Commander of all Allied land forces on the Western Front.

In "Missing From The Record," Col. Malone holds that relieving Field Marshal Montgomery of his over-all land command at that time was, in effect, a prolongation of the war which otherwise might well have been won before 1944 ended.

In the view of the author, the reason for relieving Montgomery was that victory seemed not only assured but reasonably close and in Washington those who did not want a British general in command of all Allied armies when surrender came.

At the time the Allies were moving on Germany proper and the Arnhem airborne operations was still to come.

Col. Malone holds that at Arnhem the war could have been won but wasn't because, having been relieved of his over-all command, Montgomery did not have the use of American divisions which could have made Arnhem a success.

PLEADED WITH EISENHOWER

Col. Malone, a newspaper executive now with the Winnipeg Free Press which he left to go to the war, says "Monty" pleaded with General Eisenhower for the loan of a few American divisions to complete the Arnhem job "but was turned down." "Missing From The Record," which takes you behind the scenes for intimate glimpses of Montgomery, relates that General A. G. L. McNaughton had to step down from command of the Canadian Army solely because the British did not think he would be a good army commander under battle conditions. But they left to Defence Minister Ralston the task of telling the Canadian Army commander.

The stories of Gen. McNaughton's step-down and Montgomery being relieved of his command have previously been published in magazine excerpts from Col. Malone's book.

As to Col. Ralston's own resignation from the cabinet late in 1944, the author says "the facts of the matter are that Col. Ralston was asked to leave . . . the break took place verbally in the middle of one of the cabinet meetings.

Later Col. Ralston himself persuaded him to continue as navy minister.

Col. Malone helped plan the Sicily invasion and reveals that a small group of Canadian engineers entered the Mediterranean in a British submarine to try and learn the depth of water through which landing vessels would have to run over a bar to make land. They got ashore and got their information but were captured. Even then the Italians never tumbled to what they were there for because the attack came as a complete surprise.

About the depth of water? Well, Malone says, the planners finally found that out from pictures. Army experts looked at photos showing the size of the waves at this place and estimated to the very inch that the water was four feet six inches deep over the bar.
