No Violence Expected Unless Home Defence Troops Themselves Start It—Pay and Allowances Stopped to Those Refusing to Do Duty

Major-General Pearkes, V.C., general commanding, Pacific Command, said at Vancouver that all Home Defence camps in British Columbia except Terrace were quiet today.

At 11:40 this morning another ragged parade of 100 or more men, carrying rifles and Bren guns, had a truck which they apparently commandeered.

The third day ended without violence and a spokesman for brigade headquarters said that the mutiny apparently is feeling less of themselves than former days indicated.

The spokesman for Brigadier A. J. ... said today that, through strange quirk the Home Defence do not molest demerit men among them.

At the week-end the men took Bangalore torpedoes and mortar bombs from an ammunition store but later returned them, saying they were too dangerous to fool with.

Messages have been sent to the General Officer Commanding for transmission to the Prime Minister listing grievances of the demonstrators.

Pay and allowances of the men have been stopped while they refuse to take orders from their officers.

A citizen, describing the incidents, said: "I heard shouting at 2 o'clock and was told there was a demonstration by soldiers with rifles some place south of the village."

Earlier a section of King's Rifles and Regulations was read to every home defence man in the camp with emphasis on the penalty phrases threatening imprisonment for life for any soldier convicted of inciting to mutiny, rioting or taking part in any similar disturbance.

R.A.F. STAGING POST IN AFRICA

One Canadian Among Personnel at Marble Arch, Tripolitania

By HAROLD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MARBLE ARCH, Tripolitania, Nov. 23.—The doubtful honor of being probably the most sand-cursed station of the R.A.F. in Africa goes to the staging post of R.A.F. Transport Command here in the shadow of one of the most grotesque of Mussolini's architectural adventures.

The arch itself towers 80 feet above the lone road-way through this part of the African desert. It rises magnificently out of the desert sand, but nobody ever sees it except the men of the staging post and the crews of incoming planes who use it as a landmark.

It stands in lone splendor, 24 hours by road from the nearest sizeable town. Mussolini erected it to mark the boundary between Tripolitania and Cyrenaica, but apparently something was wrong with his calculations because the true boundary is several miles eastward.

The staging post consists of a dozen concrete-covered buildings, a personnel of about 150—including one Canadian—an excellent field and an almost steady afternoon sandstorm.

It's the most penetrating sand imaginable, whipped regularly each afternoon by a west wind. It gets into eyes and hair, penetrates clothing and chafes the skin. It sifts through tightly-closed windows and doors to spread over the floors and into the beds of the living quarters.

WO. 2 Earle West of Shelburne N.S., is briefing officer at the desolate outpost. A Halifax stevedore in peace-time, whose wife now lives at Truro, N.S., he has been at Marble Arch for three months after serving as a radio operator aboard Transport Command planes being delivered to India.

He thinks Marble Arch isn't so bad, although like everybody else at the post he can talk for a long time about the disadvantages of living in a perpetual sand storm. He'd like to get back to flying though, "and most of all I'd like to get back home."

J. H. Scott, managing director of the Riverside Mine, was here today on his way back to San Francisco after a visit to the property in the Portland Canal district.

SEE BRITAIN AS FASHION CENTRE

War Training Will Aid Women in Designing Says Trades Congress

LEICESTER, Nov. 23.—The Women's Advisory Committee of the Trades Union Congress suggests there is a great scope for women in the dressmaking sphere after the war.

It's annual report said: "Hitherto Paris has been regarded as the centre for exclusive dress and fashion, although in the immediate pre-war years America was increasingly becoming the centre of popular fashion."

"Efforts should be made to establish this country as the chief centre for design and fashion."

The report said large numbers of women will have been trained in drawing, designing, planning and tracing. The textile industries would do well to plan now to engage women with this basic experience for training in dress designing and fashion generally.

In addition, women's wartime training and experience in branches of engineering could be used with great advantage in many branches of housing and furnishing, the report said.

Is Back From Native Meeting At Alert Bay

First of many delegates from various villages along the north coast to return here after attending the recent convention at Alert Bay of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia, Johnson Russ, chief councillor of Greenville, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and will proceed by gasboat to his home on the Naas river. Mr. Russ describes the convention, which was attended by some 300 delegates, as a most successful gathering at which much was accomplished in the interests of the natives as a whole. Next year's convention will be held at Massett, Queen Charlotte Islands. Other delegates from the north will be returning home during the present week.

INTERESTED IN CIVIC AFFAIRS

Fish and Cannery Workers to Take Hand in Contest

Instructing their executive members to scrutinize very closely the candidates for civic office and the platforms upon which they seek election and to make recommendations in line with their findings to the next general meeting of the union, shore workers enrolled in the Prince Rupert branch of the Fish, Cannery Reduction Plant and Allied Workers Union, have given evidence of their interest in the rapidly approaching elections for mayor, aldermen and school trustees of this city.

At a meeting Sunday evening, the opinion was voiced that, since the civic governments are the ones with which the general public has the closest contact, they should quite properly receive close attention from the trade unions in which men and women of all political parties find a common meeting ground. It was also the feeling of the meeting that the trade unions should not give their approval to a candidate merely because he claimed to represent labor.

Paul Taranger, president of the branch, gave clear expression to this idea when he stated that labor must judge candidates "not on the basis of what they think of themselves, not on the basis of what they call themselves, but must judge the candidates on the basis of what they have done in the past to further the welfare of the community. We must choose men who have given leadership in the past to progressive enterprises and who give evidence that in the future they will do all in their power to better our city."

The members felt that in having their executive survey the field of candidates for civic office they were giving a practical demonstration of their approval of the decision reached at the diamond jubilee convention of the Trades and Labor Congress that political action committees be set up throughout the nation. Alderman T. Elliott, secretary of the plant committee of the union at Seal Cove, reported on the work of the city council during the past year and told of projects which they hoped to put into effect in the near future.

P. T. A. APPRECIATIVE

Editor, Daily News:

The members of the executive of the Prince Rupert Parent-Teachers Association would like permission to use your newspaper to express their thanks to the many people who donated so liberally in the recent Parent-Teachers' Association tag day and also to the special appeal which our organization sponsored on behalf of the local schools. It was very gratifying to us and I am sure to the teachers to see such widespread and concerned interest in the educational welfare of the children of our community—an interest that expressed itself so concretely in such liberal donations. The returns for this generosity will be found in the better facilities which our children will enjoy at the schools.

We are attaching a list of the subscribers and to them we want to extend special thanks.

INCIDENTS OF WAR LEAD TO REFLECTIONS

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Nov. 23.—Things you remember from watching this war:

The fellow who wanted a German helmet for a souvenir, having only recently come to the front, and suddenly found himself at a street intersection of Le Portel which is a suburb of Boulogne and it seemed as though most of the German army had gathered here and divested themselves of their steel toppers. You'd need a truck to take them away.

The cool courage of men of the Highland Light Infantry who had an observation post which seemed to look straight down into the mouth of the great Cap Gris Nez cross-channel guns. Even while the attack was on, or at least getting teed up, these guns fired occasionally and the lookout men said you could almost feel their hot breath up there in their post. The Germans had their position well taped for mortar fire so the boys asked that we drive away slowly so as not to raise too much dust and draw the fire. O.K. Joe, that's o.k. with us.

The tremendous size of the cross-channel guns at Sangatte, east of Calais, taken out by troops from the Maritimes. And their extensive and carefully laid mine fields. And the soldier who said he was careful and caught a mine himself a few minutes later—and how badly you felt.

The tricky little issue flashlights carried by German prisoners with three slides enabling them to shine yellow, green, red and blue light as occasion demands.

Also the man who said he had found the reason for the German army's alleged low morale. He said it was the issue teaspoon which had a hole in the bottom. Only on investigation it proved to have a degree of merit, being not a tea spoon but a tea cooler. You pick up a teaspoon full of hot tea and let it dribble back into the cup and eventually get the whole thing to drinkable temperature. Very nifty but hardly geared for war.

Or the man in Antwerp, who, when asked "which way to the war?" said, "first to the right, then two blocks to the left, go straight ahead—and you are there, at the war—goodbye."

BIG BOMBS UNDER PORT

Dormant Missiles Don't Bother Men at RAF Mediterranean Staging Post

By HAROLD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAGLIARI, Sardinia — There's an R.A.F. Transport Command staging post operation in the Corsica-Sardinia area that has two 2,000-pound bombs buried somewhere down beneath the station headquarters.

There's another staging post whose personnel have watched their tents — the only shelter they have — blown out to sea or washed away by torrential rains time after time.

Still another staging post was so recently the scene of battle that residents of the flattened town nearby who fled during the conflict haven't yet ventured down out of the hills to find out who is occupying the air strip.

Despite conditions like these, Transport Command ground crews are doing Trojan work in establishing new air ways so that urgent supplies can reach the battlefields of southern Europe quicker. The landing fields on Sardinia are largely make-shift as yet — the living conditions of the ground crews are definitely so — but already transport command planes are moving 1,000,000 pounds of supplies a week through these fields.

Establishment of the staging posts in Sardinia-Corsica, coupled with the Allied occupation of France, round out a vast network of airfields throughout the Mediterranean area so that rush supplies can be moved quickly to any point in the Middle East, from Britain or from North Africa.

Getting back to those two 2,000-pounders, nobody at the airfield in question pays much attention to them, the ground crews working on the theory that if they haven't gone off yet they probably won't. Innocent incoming passengers — like me — sleep soundly at the station throughout the night and are told about the bombs as they leave next day.

The bombs were dropped by British planes when the air-transport was in German hands. Landing in front of the headquarters as they slanted down, they plunged at an angle into the earth and ended up under the main building on the airfield. There the British found them some weeks later when the field was occupied. And there they will remain until more urgent matters are dealt with.

LOCAL NURSE IS BRIDE OF U.S. SOLDIER

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at 8:30 Saturday evening at the United States Chapel on Acropolis Hill, when Miss Ruth Corbould R. N., was united in marriage to Corporal Calvin Lewis of the United States Army. The bride was attired in a gold colored silk dress and black hat with finger-tip veil and had a corsage. She was attended by Miss Elvina Brewster as bridesmaid. The latter wore a two-piece pale blue silk ensemble.

The ceremony was performed by the Padre, Capt. W. D. Rowlands, and Owen Murray gave the bride in marriage.

Technical Sergt. Vergil Odden was groomsmen.

The bride entered the church as the Wedding March was played by Sgt. Walter Robertson. Sergeant Robertson also played during the signing of the register. A guard of honor from the bridegroom's Company was formed at the chapel door. A reception was afterwards held in the Commodore Cafe where some 60 guests were received by Mrs. Corbould, mother of the bride, attired in a navy blue two-piece suit. Toasts to the bride and groom were honored and telegrams. The company sat down to lunch and dancing followed until midnight.

The bride and groom left for a short honeymoon trip to Ketchikan and on their return will reside at 844 Summit Ave. The bride has lived here and in the district since girlhood and has been recently on the public health nursing staff here.

SILVER WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

A jolly time was spent Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Knutsen when relatives and friends gathered to honor their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Nels Gunderson proposed a toast to the bride and groom and Knud Olsen, on behalf of those present, presented them with a gift of silver. The table was centred with a lovely three-tier wedding cake made and decorated by Mrs. Scherk and Mrs. Valderhaug. Bounteous refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in singing and dancing.

British Health Is On Upgrade

LONDON, Nov. 23 — The health of the nation is better now than it was before the war, the Health Ministry's report for the year until last March revealed.

An influenza epidemic in the fall of 1943 killed 30,000 persons, most of them elderly, but many other diseases claimed fewer victims, including typhoid, diphtheria, epilepsy and appendicitis.

For women deaths from tuberculosis was the lowest ever recorded but for men the number was four percent above 1938. The birth rate was the highest in 15 years with 683,213 births recorded.
