TRADES COUNCIL Most Decisive Battle of War May Be Joined on West Front business session last Thursday

Situation Is Very Liquid — Americans Being Driven Back Into Luxembourg and Belgium-Luftwaffe in Action Again

PARIS, Dec. 18 (CP) — The American First Army struck back advancing Germans in Belgium and Luxembourg today in a fierce battle which may prove to be one of the most decisive of the war. The situation at the front was reported to be extremely fluid and for this reason Supreme headquarters decided upon a strict blackout on detailed information concerning the extent of enemy advances and counter-moves of the Americans.

Berlin claimed that the Germans had crossed the northern port of Luxembourg on a broad front and were nearing the Luxembourg-Belgian border.

The Allied-controlled radio station at Eindhoven, Holland, went abruptly off the air without explanation.

The Germans have temporarily thrown the fighting along the western front into revers. Counter-attacking along an eighty-mile front, the Nazis have dented the American First Army lines and have re-invaded Belgium and Luxembourg. In one sector, the Nazis have pushed the Americans back four miles.

In his order of the day to his troops, German Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt declares: "Strong attacking armies are advancing against the Anglo-Americans. I don't need to say more to you. Bear in yourselves a holy duty to give everything and achieve the superhuman for our Fatherland and our Fuehrer. Everything is at stake. Your hour has struck." It was suggested the Germans would be back in Paris by Christmas.

The exact location of this enemy counter thrust has not been disclosed. But it is known that the German drive extends along the eighty-mile front southward from the key base of Dueren on the Roer River. What appears to be the main German thrust has carried to within ten miles of the Belgian city of Malmedy.

For supporting their ground troops, the German Air Force is paying a heavy price. In the first thirty-six hours of their counter-attack, the enemy is known to have lost one hundred and ninety-four planes. Allied aircraft losses up to nightfall last night totalled thirty-three fighter planes.

Elsewhere on the western front, the Third Army continues to advance into the Saar Basin, and the Seventh Army has reached the Siegfried Line beyond the captured town of Wissembourg.

Reports from the British Second Army front said that German fliers in the greatest strength since D-Day had appeared along the Aachen sector with many reconnaissance aircraft.

While the enemy counter-offensive appears to be spreading to other sectors, an Allied statement today said that necessary steps were being taken to deal with it and there was no cause for alarm.

"Canada's troops on the Continent will get their needed 16,000 reinforcements. Mr. King has won a 143-70 mandate in the House. But the issue was not precisely joined. A separate motion showed French-speaking Canada's disapproval of the Government conscription of home-army draftees to make up the losses in volunteer overseas divisions. Mr. King obtained his vote of confidence by an appeal to the safer issue of general support of the national war effort.

"The fundamental issue between French and English-speaking Canada has been little reconciled. The problem is not, as at times assumed, that Canada's French - Canadians think of themselves as Frenchmen. It is, rather, that they have not yet come to think of themselves internationally as Canadians.

What Decides Wars .

In military language the objective of all operations is destruction of the in the Bassett Home." enemy's will to resist. We need to be reminded of this as much when our forces are making spectacular advances as during a period of heavy fighting.

War is not just an immense football game, with progress toward the goal measured in yardage. In war, territory is important only insofar as it bears on the weakening and ultimate destruction of the enemy's armed power. This is not said to gloss over the fact that just now the Allies on several fronts are fighting grim and costly battles. It is said to help draw attention away from the miles to Tokyo and to Berlin, and to focus it on the real factors in military success.

Cranberries Tart

Make cranberry sauce this year instead of cranberry jelly. Reason one: The distinctive tartness of the cranberry tastes good with the bird.

Reason two: Can be made with half as much sugar.

Reason three: Vitamin C diminishes in quantity when exposed to air. This is true of any fruit. Sieving it reduces the amount of this vitamin that reaches the finishing line intact.
