CONCERT FOR GOOD CAUSE H.M.C.S. Chatham Band Stages Acceptable Entertainment for Red Cross. The fine band of H.M.C.S. Chatham last night at the Capitol Theatre repeated, with slight variation, the concert which it had presented last Thursday night at the naval drill hall. The concert last night, like the previous one, was for the benefit of the current drive for funds of the Canadian Red Cross Society. There was a fair attendance, making up in enthusiastic appreciation for a splendid entertainment anything it might have lacked in numbers.

THE BAND, under the baton of Petty Officer Noakes, who has just taken over the conductorship, acquitted itself splendidly. Assistant Bandmaster Jeffrey, who plays a trombone, directed one of the important numbers on the program, the crashing military march arrangement of the ordinary waltz titled "My Hero" from "Chocolate Soldier."

THE BAND received a good start under the pioneer tutelage of Chief Petty Officer S. F. Sunderland who has now left Prince Rupert, and evidence is already not lacking that it will continue to progress to an even greater degree of excellence under Petty Officers Noakes and Jeffrey.

Each number on the program was well received and the whole presented opportunities which (Continued on page 4)

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. (By DOROTHY GARBUTT)

For their final performance in Prince Rupert the Service shows people went out to the Eleventh Avenue Camp and gave a rollicking performance, helped a good deal by the good-natured audience. The prime mover in the fun was one of the officers whose peals of laughter dissolved the actors themselves into merriment. However, when Tiny the mascot, a diminutive dog whose ancestry might have been Irish with leanings to the wire-haired type, or again it might also have been fox terrier, but don't let's his embarrassment well, the fact is tiny fell asleep right in the front row in the very midst of Freddy Gordon's best number. However, being the mascot of a regiment, goes to make a fellow pretty blasé about most things and what's a show more or less in a dog's life. Now if it had been say, Smith's troop of Educated Canines, or a trio of trick puppies going through hoops and walking on hind feet and the like, that would have been something to keep a dog awake.

I thought when we closed up at the Hut that I would spend my afternoons at the Empress but so far I've found plenty to do around the Hut with furniture to be painted, curtains to be made, kittens to be fed and even plenty of phone calls to answer from persons who don't know we're closed. The new floors are being laid, they have to have three coats of varnish on them which will take some time. So it begins to look as though it will be around April before we can open up. In the meantime the Empress is being fixed up into a daytime recreation hall, which we hope you'll get into the habit of using as you do this one. We have our ups and downs don't we?

I hated to say good-bye to Bandmaster Stan Sunderland, didn't you? But then we wish him luck, wherever he's headed.

A MESSAGE FROM THE POSTMASTER GENERAL

Ottawa,

To all Canadians:

Last year, over 29,000,000 lbs. of mail were despatched from the Base Post Office to our overseas correspondents. No words can describe how vital your letters are to the morale of our men and women away from home.

Yet due to carelessness or oversight in addressing, well over 250,000 letters for overseas had to be set aside last year for attention by the Redirection Section of the Canadian Postal Corps. This results in delay in delivery to those who are waiting for news from home. It imposes a heavy additional burden on the Postal Staff in its great task of handling the greatly increased volume of mail under the handicap of manpower shortage from which it suffers in common with other Canadian businesses.

You can help your Post Office to speed the delivery of your mail to loved ones overseas. As your Postmaster General, I make a special appeal to you to take extra care in addressing your letters; to make sure that the address is complete in every detail.

If you will take an extra moment to make sure the address is right you will be helping us to give our overseas forces a better mail service.

Yours sincerely,
W. A. M. Postmaster General.

DO THESE 3 SIMPLE THINGS

1. Make sure the address is clearly and correctly written.
2. Write a return address in the upper left hand corner of the envelope.
3. Affix the correct postage, and mail as early in the day as you can.

CANADA POST OFFICE

ISSUED BY AUTHORITY OF THE HON. WILLIAM P. MURPHY, M.P., POSTMASTER GENERAL

Look to the North...

Into the timbered valleys of the Northwest, World War II has swept a tidal wave of machine power and men. Clatter of cats and throb of diesel echoes through the bush. Men by the thousands have been weaving a chain of roads, airfields and bridges, cutting their new lines of power and communication through empty forests. War has spurred this new boom in the Northwest. As the new roads and airways thread through the North, fresh interest lights up the subarctic spaces near the top of the globe—Alaska and Northern Canada.

In this vast hinterland, stretching to the Polar Sea, the world beyond the war will see a new frontier with a rich promise to be won from its empty, unknown spaces.

Here in the North are the tiny settlements of Canada's Arctic coast. Here is the tundra, carpeted with green moss in the steady heat of summer. Here are the rock wastes of the Canadian shield, gouged smooth by ice and snow with huge, shimmering lakes; lakes whose names have stirred and challenged the imagination of men—Great Bear, Great Slave, Athabaska. Here are the mighty rivers of the North, the Yukon and Mackenzie, flowing to the Polar Sea. And here are the mountain chains, the Rockies and the coast ranges, curving North to Alaska in soaring, glacial splendour.

And beyond, the ragged craters of the Aleutian Islands, a thousand miles west, the last half-drowned peaks of America are lost in the mists of Bering Sea.

Joint efforts of builders and engineers, massive machine power, have broken down old barriers of isolation.

Today there has grown in the Northwest a mighty network of transport and supply for counter-attack against Japan.

Joint plans of Canada and United States for defence construction, swiftly carried out by Canada and the United States, have beaten back the enemy. And now in the same spirit of co-operation, both countries prepare their plans for the future of the huge North Pacific region.

Today, Canada's Northwest is richer by many a great engineering work, rushed into being through pressure of war. A pattern of new roadways, bridges, airfields, has thrown open the gates to a whole territory. Here are the great clean spaces of new land, a new frontier to absorb the energies of men and women released from the urgency of war. Here are huge reserves of natural wealth, for men with the courage and skill to use them well.

To bring out all the wealth, the North needs men—surveyors, prospectors, settlers, farmers, to work the land and make it their own. And many who are building the defences of Alaska and the Canadian North today, who are seeing the land and learning its ways for the first time, will come to live and work as pioneers of the new North tomorrow. For distance has dwindled, and even the shores of the Arctic Ocean no longer mark the end of the line for man's advance into the North. Across the inland Polar Sea, over the top of the world run the shortest air ways to Europe and Asia. And now, at the threshold of a new age in the air, the Arctic is no longer back of beyond; it lies in the main-stream of traffic between continents. Northward lies the new world; waiting for men to master its sweep of space and make it yield its rich promise for tomorrow.

INDIAN AIR MEN HERE

Turbaned Airmen Colorful Figures at Weyburn, Sask. Training School.

WEYBURN, Sask., March 6.—More than fourteen young airmen who call India home have just completed four months of training at No. 41 Service Flying Training School of the R.A.F. at Weyburn, Sask., and six months' training in Canada.

All in their late 'teens or early 20's they came to Canada under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. At least five of them have bachelor of science degrees and one has his bachelor of arts. All speak English fluently and think their Indian education gave them a better idea of what to expect in Canada than a corresponding Canadian education would give of India. But the people of Canada, "a great young country," were "open, frank and friendly."

Probably the most interesting of the group—with his Royal Air Force uniform topped by an air force blue turban and wearing a short black beard—is 19-year-old Rajinder Singh Sandhu of Pakho Pur, India.

A devout Sikh, he neither shaves nor cuts his hair. Every two days or so he washes his long hair, then swirls it up with a comb and wraps it under his turban. On one wrist he wears a silver band "to ward off evil spirits," and on the other an air force bracelet. He left Foreman College at Lahore to join the air force when the Japanese invaded Burma.

Venkatesh Reghunath Rajwade, 21, a descendant of the warlike Mahrattas likes to tell how western Canadian farmers assisted him recently when he was forced down near Forget, Sask. The farmers drove out in their cars and provided him with food while he stood guard over the plane for eight hours.

Surat Singh, of Lyallpur, has advanced to the figure skating stage. He said roller skating and field hockey are popular sports in his native India.

Remains of Mrs. Dawson Coming Back to Rupert

The remains of the late Mrs. Silas Dawson, who passed away last Friday morning in Vancouver at the age of ninety-six years, will arrive in the city from the south on Wednesday morning and the funeral will take place that afternoon. Coming north with the remains are two daughters of the deceased—Mrs. M. J. Dougherty and Miss Agnes Son—and a son, John Dawson of Calgary. There is another daughter, Mrs. Marie Alexander, also in Vancouver, but she is not coming north.

Old friends will regret to hear of the death of Mrs. Dawson who lived in Prince Rupert for several years, having left here, however, some considerable time ago.

were well grasped for the band to display its adaptability and versatility in a wide range of technique and subject type. The novelty pieces, some humorous and some descriptive, gave variety to the program and each one was well received.

Possibly the most popular item on the program was the novel adaptation of "Swanee River" suggesting how it might be played in various localities such as an army camp, the Ozark mountains by the hill-billies, sleepy Victoria, colorful San Antonio, lively Hollywood, sophisticated New York and, of course, in the original Stephen Foster manner. The program was as follows:

"O Canada."
Allied Nations selection—"United for Victory" (D. Bennett).
Overture—"Zampa" (L. J. F. Herold).
Polka—"Commodore," Assistant Bandmaster Jeffrey, trombone soloist.
Waltz—"Gold and Silver"

BRIEF SPEECHES OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENT
Commander C. M. Cree, naval officer in charge at Prince Rupert, spoke briefly thanking the Prince Rupert Battalion for arrangements, radio station and Chief Petty Officer and members of the band as workers generally. Arnold Flaten, past local Red Cross Society Commander Cree, the Young Men's Christian Association and D. G. Boulton, local theatre staff. Lloyd Moxley, of ceremonies. Ushers were the Rev. Sim, Dorothy O'Sullivan, Eva Cavaler and Moxley of the Women's Corps.

Look Jimmy-

from the RED CROSS

Who said we were 'Out of it?'

IMPRISONED by the enemy—out of the battle, yet still with a fighting soldier's heart—compelled to wait on the side-lines of the war for the duration—surely such thoughts must be the greatest hardships our prisoners of war have to endure. Broken hearts can hurt worse than broken limbs.

To such men, in 1943, went five-and-a-half million dollars worth of Red Cross parcels. In them were more than food, comforts. To each harassed soldier these parcels were reminders that their loyalty and the courage they displayed were not forgotten.

The need for Red Cross parcels has grown to staggering proportions. This need must be met by contributions from the men and women in Canada.

Let response be immediate and generous. Give money for this work of the Red Cross, work which must be done—and which can be performed by no other organization.
