Greatest Battle In History Now Under Way In France

General Eisenhower Sends Canadians, Britons, Yanks Toward Normandy Coast

'GREAT CRUSADE'--Eisenhower

EISENHOWER GIVES FEW DETAILS BUT GERMAN RADIO SAYS SEINE RIVER MOUTH SCENE OF FIRST LANDING

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED INVASION FORCE, June 6 (CP)—General Dwight Eisenhower's headquarters announced this morning that Allied troops began landing on the northern coast of France this morning, strongly supported by naval and air forces.

No details were given with the first official announcement of the invasion start, but Associated Press picked up a German Transocean broadcast giving purported location and time of the start of action.

The broadcast said that operations began at 6:30 a.m. (9:30 p.m. Monday, P.D.T.) with a landing of airborne troops in the area of the mouth of the Seine River.

There was no Allied confirmation of the German invasion report at that time. It could have been one which Allied leaders have expected would be made with the purpose of upsetting patriot plans inside the conquered countries.

The broadcast said that the invasion had begun from the west, and that the French port of LeHavre was being shelled. German naval forces were off the coast of England in battle with Allied landing craft, it said.

SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, June 6 (CP)—British, American and Canadian troops landed in France this morning, launching the greatest overseas military operation in history with word from Supreme Commander General Eisenhower that "we will accept nothing except full victory." Eisenhower called the invasion "a great crusade."

The landing which was announced at 3:32 a.m. (Greenwich time, 12:22 a.m. P.D.T.) said that General Sir Bernard Montgomery was in charge of the assault. Locations of the landings were not announced.

Eisenhower wished Godspeed to the parachutists who were the first to land on the enemy-held soil of France.

For three hours previous to the Allied announcement the German radio poured forth a series of flashes reporting that the Allies had landed between LeHavre and Cherbourg along the south side the Bay of the Seine, and along the north coast of Normandy, and were being engaged by Nazi shock troops.

The exact number of Canadians involved has not yet been revealed, but London announced that the greatest Canadian bomber forces ever put in the air roared across the Channel to attack their targets in France.

EMMANUEL ABDICATES

NAPLES, June 6, (CP)—King Victor Emmanuel stepped aside as monarch of Italy as he previously said he would on the liberation of Rome, and handed to his son, Crown Prince Umberto all royal prerogatives. The king named his son Lieutenant General of the Realm, but retained his title as head of the house of Savoy, and king without power.

St. Laurent Sinks U-Boat

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP)—The Canadian destroyer St. Laurent assisted by a frigate, H.M.C.S. Swansea and the Royal Navy destroyer Forester, sank a u-boat in the North Atlantic, Navy Minister MacDonald announced Monday.

The St. Laurent took the Canadian corvette Regina in tow, and quenched fires in the holds of a Swedish merchant ship following the action.

OIL PAIN-KILLER

Oil seeping from the ground was used by the Indians as salve and medicine.

SEA WATER MADE POTABLE

Sea water can be made drinkable by adding silver oxide, and tartaric or citric acid.

GENERAL BERNARD MONTGOMERY, HERO OF AFRICA, LEADS ARMY GROUP IN FATEFUL ASSAULT—STUPENDOUS NAVAL, AIR AND LAND FORCES PARTICIPATE.

The Allied invasion of Europe is on. The greatest battle of history is under way. Canadian-Anglo-American forces, commencing at dawn, made their landings on the Normandy coast to commence the climatic campaign of exterminating the Nazi enemy. Canadians were in the forefront of the landings.

Communique No. 1: 12:30 midnight, Pacific Standard Time. Under the command of General Dwight Eisenhower, Allied naval forces, supported by strong air forces, began landing Allied armies this morning on the northern coast of France.

Grand scale landings were made between LeHavre and Cherbourg between the mouths of the Seine and Vier Rivers.

At 1:10 a.m. Pacific Standard Time Germany reported fighting taking place between German and Allied troops near Caen, ten miles in Normandy. It was admitted that air fields had been wiped out.

Weather was perfect. Skies were clear. Tides were right. The moon ran high. The crossing was over a slightly choppy sea.

Allied battleships, monitors and cruisers bombarded the shore at Le Havre. Destroyers and smaller vessels covered the landings. Enormous convoys and hundreds of parachute troop planes participated.

There was little early opposition by the enemy either by air or land.

Reuters reported that Adolf Hitler in person was in command of all anti-invasion operations, having moved his headquarters to northern France.

Up to 10:30 a.m. German time the people of Germany had not been informed by their news agencies of the invasion.

Invasion Proceeding on Plan--and What a Plan!--Churchill

SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS June 6 (CP)—British, American and Canadian airborne and seaborne troops have established beachheads in Normandy, and have moved inland in an auspicious start to history's greatest overseas invasion.

Unofficial military sources said beachheads had been secured, but could not say how far from the coast the drives had been carried.

Prime Minister Churchill in the cheering House of Commons said the liberating assault upon Hitler's European stronghold was "proceeding according to plan—and what a plan." The Prime Minister said that the Allied forces were carried across the channel to France by an "immense armada" of 4,900 ships, with several thousand smaller craft —probably the greatest fleet ever assembled.

He said that mass airborne landings also had been successfully effected behind the enemy's lines. "There are already hopes that actual tactical surprise has been attained, and we hope to furnish the enemy with a succession of surprises. The battle which is now beginning will grow constantly in scale and intensity for many weeks to come, and I shall not attempt to speculate upon its course."

Through a ceiling of clouds 5,000 feet thick Allied air forces threw 11,000 aircraft of nearly every type into the grand invasion of Europe, bombing and strafing miles of Normandy's beaches and pounding the enemy's inland communication.

POPE GIVES THANKS THAT SOME SPARED

ROME, June 6, (CP)—Pope Pius XII thanked God before a crowd including Allied leaders in Saint Peter's Square in Rome was spared from the ravages of war. The Pontiff expressed thanks to both belligerents for saving the city. A crowd estimated at between 250,000 and 300,000 gave a prolonged ovation.

ROADS BY YANKS

There is little likelihood that the United States military authorities will continue to do maintenance work on Prince Rupert roads.

Seeking the continuation of American aid in street maintenance, the city council wrote Canadian Major General W. W. Foster, chairman of a special commission on Northwestern B.C. roads, asking him to obtain the opinions of the United States military authorities on the matter.

Major General Foster's reply was read before the council last night.

It was stated that he found the commanding general of the American northwest services unwilling to establish a precedent of continuing responsibility for construction work of that kind in the city.

The continuation of such work would require the Americans to be put into new construction contracts, which they were unwilling to do, the letter stated. The matter was referred to a committee for further discussion.

MAY OPEN METLAKATLA

The city council last night moved to ask the Department of National Defence to re-open Metlakatla Passage for use by small boats. On the strength of a statement by T. A. Crerar's recent statement that an emergency no longer existed in this area, it would be reasonable to permit the re-opening of this convenient channel.

Alderman Elliott stated that a good deal of fuel could be saved by allowing boats to use that direct, sheltered passage instead of the longer, exposed route they are now forced to use. Copies of the request will be sent to Olof Hanson, M. P. for B.C.

Discrimination Is Seen In Plan B.C. Government

A resolution from the Prince George Chamber of Commerce expressing the opinion that the policy of the provincial government in setting aside one million acres of land for settlement by returned soldiers of British Columbia only constituted discrimination by excluding ex-service men from other parts of the Dominion and should be repealed, and urging that the land be transferred to the federal rehabilitation commission was received at last night's meeting of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce. The matter was referred to a committee for report.

MAY DROP EXHUMING

Extensive legal formalities coupled with the possibility of considerable expense may be factors which will cause the Prince Rupert branch of the Canadian Legion to drop its suggestion that the bodies of Japanese resting in Fairview Cemetery be exhumed and reburied elsewhere, it was intimated at the meeting of the city council last night.

At an earlier meeting the council turned over to the Board of Works the job of investigating the Legion's suggestion. The Board solicited the advice of the law firm of Brown and Harvey on the legal aspects of re-burying the Japanese and was informed that it can be done only with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council and that it was liable to be expensive.

In its report to the Council the Board advised that the Legion be notified that the Council has no power to deal with exhuming and re-burying the bodies in the Japanese part of the cemetery, and suggested that the Legion take the matter up with the parties concerned.

SATURN ICE-BOUND

The temperature of the planet Saturn is estimated at 238 degrees below zero.

NETWORK OF RIVERS

The Amazon basin has a network of rivers which are navigable for 15,814 miles.

Street Sides Too Private

Moonlight strollers might just as well stay on the sidewalks if the city council is successful in finding someone to cut down the heavy vegetation bordering certain city thoroughfares.

Alderman Mills suggested last night that it would be a good thing generally if certain well-hidden spots were laid open to the casual eye by the woodsman's axe.

The councillors agreed that it might be a good thing.

ENEMY SHORE IS THEIR OBJECTIVE — Ready for their assault on the enemy's Fortress Europa these Canadian soldiers went through grimly realistic landing exercises to master every detail of taking and holding a beachhead on hostile territory. Leaping from boats under protection of a thin smoke screen the men half-wade, half-seramble ashore through waist deep water, carrying their equipment, while bullets whine overhead and shells toss geysers of water around them.

CANADIANS ON TOKYO ROUTE

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In "First Steps to Tokyo" the late FO. David Griffin tells the story of the R.C.A.F. airmen and ground crew who were rushed to the Aleutians in the early days of the Pacific war to help United States forces guard those lonely northern outposts against the Japanese.

They found a country barren beyond description, with the most meagre living and repair facilities, where there existed some of the worst weather in the world. Some of these Canadians never came back but found a resting place "up on Boot Hill" on dreary Unimak . . . in one of the world's loneliest graveyards. FO. Griffin himself died in an air crash last February while returning from Iceland where he had been sharing the experiences of other young Canadian fliers. His book was published by J. M. Dent and Sons (Canada) Limited, Toronto and Vancouver.

Griffin, well-known as a newspaperman in Eastern Canada before he became an R.C.A.F. public relations officer, related in his book how R.C.A.F. fighter and bomber squadrons were established at Kodiak, Unimak and Amchitka where their job was to fly patrols to make sure there were no interruptions in the steady program of building the bridge toward Japan. Later some of them helped to "soften up the Japs who held the outer foothings of that bridge—soften them up to the point where they were unable to withstand land forces who went to dig them out, the part they played in the Japanese retreat from Kiska was not insignificant."

MEN FELT ISOLATION
Unimak, main R.C.A.F. base, called for some 5,000 miles travelling from Vancouver and supplies and mail took weeks to reach their destination. They felt the isolation and strangeness of their surroundings as soon as they set foot on shore and this feeling never left them, Griffin wrote.

For most, the Aleutians assignment was sheer monotony under unpleasant circumstances, but those who saw action found it "a wierd sort of warfare." Most of them never saw the enemy, flying out from Amchitka in Kittyhawk fighters carrying a single bomb. When it was dropped they swooped down again with guns blazing to riddle anything in sight.

On one occasion seven R.C.A.F. officers were decorated with United States air medals. Griffin observed:

"The deeds covered in the citations sometimes take hours, often only minutes to accomplish. But it is the work of the whole unit that makes their deeds possible. In this ground crews, general duties and administrative staff had to endure life in this remote part of the world so that a handful of pilots could be put in position to slug the enemy. The medals summed up the great recognition by an ally of the fact that Canadians went where they were needed, did their job and did it well."

Social Security . . .

Social security measures form a considerable part of present Dominion postwar planning. Some social security measures are in effect already. A Dominion system of unemployment insurance has been in operation since 1941. Dominion financial aid to old age pension systems in all the provinces have been in operation since 1927. Other social security provisions, such as workmen's compensation schemes and mothers' allowances, are already in effect in various provinces.

Additional measures are now being planned. A national system of health insurance and public health services is now under consideration. Further social security measures to be taken by Dominion legislation were announced in the Speech from the Throne at the opening of parliament on January 27, 1944. Legislation is to be introduced to set up a system of family allowances. When suitable agreements are reached with the provinces provision is to be made for a national scheme of contributory old age pensions on a more generous basis than that at present in operation. A Department of Social Welfare is to be established to administer federal government activities in the fields of health and social insurance.

The immediate prospect, then, is that family allowances will be introduced during the present session of parliament and that legislation setting up a contributory old age pension scheme and a National Health Insurance scheme will be introduced as soon as the necessary arrangements are made between the provinces and the Dominion.

These three specific proposed measures, in addition to those already in effect, do not, of course, cover the whole field of social security. But investigation and planning of social security have not been limited to these three measures. The whole problem of social security for Canada has been investigated under the direction of a federal advisory committee on reconstruction headed by Dr. F. C. James with Dr. L. C. Marsh as research adviser.

The Marsh report is concerned with the various kinds of social insurance which would be needed in Canada to keep individual and family incomes up to a minimum level in the face of such contingencies as unemployment, sickness, disability, old age and retirement, widowhood and orphanhood, the extra family expenses due to deaths, births and the upkeep of children. The report is not a complete plan for "social security." It is simply an analysis and a recommendation of how incomes can be maintained by the use of social insurance. It does not deal with other fields of social welfare, such as housing, education and nutrition. It does not deal extensively with the employment measures needed to cope with the change from war to peacetime production, although it does urge the organization in advance of the essential employment offices and training plans and of a national investment program. In other words, the report does not in itself give a plan to provide full employment and to maintain the national income at a high level. Rather, the report emphasizes that without special measures calculated to maintain employment, the proposed social insurance structure will have no solid foundation. What the report does is estimate the money cost of certain minimum standards of living for Canadian individuals and families, and show what extensions of and additions to existing social insurance measures would be desirable to maintain individual and family incomes at these levels.

The report recommends the following measures:

- Children's allowances.
- Contributory insurance schemes to meet other family needs, namely (a) survivors' insurance and (b) funeral benefits.
- Provisions for unemployment, including (a) extension of the present contributory unemployment insurance and (b) a system of non-contributory unemployment assistance.
- A national health insurance system.
- Provision for income maintenance in the case of disability and invalidity, including (a) an extension of existing workmen's compensation schemes, (b) a system of cash sickness benefits and disability pensions and (c) maternity benefits.
- Provisions for old age including (a) extension of non-contributory old age pensions and (b) a new system of contributory retirement insurance.

Old Men's Home Deemed Matter For Province

The Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce feels that it is not within its province to participate actively in the financing of a new Old Men's Home here as proposed by the city but endorses the necessity for such an institution here, expressing the opinion that it should be a provincial rather than a civic undertaking.

The chamber decided last night that it should not be represented at a special meeting of organizations being called for June 15 by the city council to consider ways and means of financing the new Old Men's Home.

Says Mr. Gold Seal

"I'm in there punching for Morale and Victory!"

"My physique may not be particularly impressive but in my own sphere of action I'm rated tops with both dealer and public who know me as the Congoleum Trade Mark. I've always stood for floor covering quality and value, factors that are more important today than ever, now that replacements are so hard to come by. The care that has always gone into the making of the goods I identify, is intensified as we do our modest bit for morale and victory by providing that touch of colourful brightness—fine, easy-to-clean, budget-saving Congoleum floors—that make any home a happier place to live in. And on top of that, we at Congoleum are happy that our complete machine-shop facilities have been devoted to specialized war production ever since the outbreak of hostilities."

HOW TO HELP MR. GOLD SEAL MAKE GOOD

You can get added wear out of your Congoleum floors with very little effort. Brush and mop them regularly and renew the brightness of their surface with an occasional waxing. Make sure too, that the floor underneath is smooth and free from crevices or knobs. If it's a rug, move it every few months to "spread" the traffic. Yes, a little care will pay big dividends.

Wrens Attend Naval Service

For the first time in the history of the Prince Rupert naval base a party of Wrens was present at Divisions in the Naval Drill Hall on Sunday morning. The Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service detachment was in charge of Lieut. Jess.

At divine service, following divisions, the congregation was urged by Rev. G. L. Douglas, padre of H.M.C.S. Catham, to exceed the righteousness of the scribes and pharisees. Theme of the religious discourse was the biblical injunction that, "Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the Kingdom of Heaven."

"The pharisees confessed their sins, but did not think they had been guilty of wrong-doing," pointed out the chaplain. "Their hypocrisy was not altogether intentional but they had not sought the truths of religion." Singing of the hymns was accompanied by the Royal Canadian Navy Band of H.M.C.S. Catham, under the direction of Petty Officer G. Noakes.

MAIN STREET

THIS is Main Street somewhere in Europe. These shattered buildings were once busy shops and offices. The rubble-strewn sidewalks were once thronged with people. It will be a busy street again . . . someday. The ravaged cities of Europe and Asia must be rebuilt. When V-Day comes the world will look to Canadian factories and farms for materials of reconstruction and repair, for food and clothing and household goods . . . In the face of such a need, is it conceivable that we should have idle hands or minds in Canada after the war? Canada will be a busy place when Victory is won.

What is PRIVATE ENTERPRISE? It is the natural desire to make your own way, as far as your ability will take you; an instinct that has brought to this continent the highest standard of life enjoyed by any people on earth. It is the spirit of democracy on the march . . .
