MOSCOW, March 10 (CP)-The Russians took to horses in the deep Ukrainian mud today as their offensives rolled the Germans back over a 340-mile front to the outer defences guarding the Black Sea ports of Nikolaev and Kherson. The Nazis have abandoned Uman, strong Nazi base in the western Ukraine. Despatches from the Russian newspaper Red Star say that the German retreat has become "disorganized." Hundreds of thousands of Germans in the Dnieper Bend are menaced by the Soviet advances.

Ripping into the German lines and breaching positions of the enemy along a 160-mile front, the Russians appear to have opened up a new offensive on the Dneiper Bend as they continue their sweep into southern Poland.

WEST COAST "WIDS" READY FOR TROUBLE-Wherever you are, whatever you're doing, you wear your tin hat and respirator for a certain part of a certain day each week at one of the RCAF's Pacific Coast stations. Telephone operators suddenly sound as if they'd developed cleft palates. Stenographers catch up on typing practice as dictation is suspended until voices get out in the open once more. The airman who whips up a smart salute can accompany it with a rude face-no one is the wiser-and cooks can peel onions without a qualm.

How the precaution program works is illustrated here. Leading Airwoman Bertie Johnson of Winnipeg, left, finds that keeping her eyes on the notebook has complications, but types bravely on. Even off duty, the girls don't let the drill interfere with their routine. "Full" or "High" ...

As a political slogan, the phrase, "Full Employment," has undoubted merit. It can be used as a plank in any political platform, and few hecklers it would be a good idea to get would be unkind enough to insist that a speaker furnish an exact definition.

At present, statisticians seem to agree that we have nearly full employment. In other words, a job of some kind is available for everyone who is able and willing to work, and fortunately for our war production, those who are neither willing nor able are in the minority. Yet this degree of full employ- received from him: ment has been attained by putting countless thousands of workers into positions that they would not have chosen for themselves. Few of our temporary soldiers, even though volunteers, have any intention of making soldiering their lifetime profession. Many temporary civil servants are looking forward to the quite different-dealing mostly day when they can return to their pre-war businesses. Women munition-workers and bus-drivers will desert the lathe and the steering-wheel, giving up their right to an individual pay envelope in order to claim ninety per cent of a husband's weekly earnings.

Full employment, as we know it, comes about because the Government is the great employer. In addition to direct employees in the armed forces and civil service, the Government is really the employer of workers in war industries, of many workers in factories partly engaged in war work of extra workers in transportation services, even of clerks and stenographers in those sections of accounting departments that are fully engaged in keeping track of taxes.

It may be admitted at once that no immediate threat of unemployment looms for the last-named class; but any politician who promises full employment for the others is actually promising that his party, if returned to power, will underwrite the employment of the masses of direct and indirect government employees who will be looking for new jobs on the proclamation of peace.

The Socialists, whose program includes taking over all large industries at once and the smaller enterprises as quickly as they find it expedient to do so, can promise full employment with some consistency. If the state becomes the sole employer, the state must see that everyone is employed. But as yet neither Mr. Coldwell nor Mr. Winch has gone so far as to guarantee that everyone will have the kind i of jobs he wants nor are they very specific.

Even in normally good times, it is not unusual for many of our brightest university graduates to emigrate to the United States because there is insufficient demand for their services in their native land. In the early nineteen-thirties, men of excellent education were frequently forcd to accept lowly jobs, unsuited to their training and ability.

A promise of full employment on the wartime scale is misleading. It cannot be fulfilled even if citizens are willing to surrender direction of their own lives to National Selective Service or some similar! department in perpetuity. Politicians who are not Socialists should be cautious with their promises. Governments, by their economic policies, can influence conditions so as to ecourage or discourage business activity and expansion and with them the general increase or decrease of employment. The politician who promises more is throwing a boomerang, which he may not be able to dodge.

"Full employment" is a snare and a delusion. It means merely that everyone must be on a payroll, and that isn't true even today. But high employment is feasible. High employment means that virtually everyone able and willing to work can find a job.

The Right to Get Ahead

IN THIS NEW WORLD a man has had the right to speak and write and worship in his own way.

He has enjoyed the right, too, to work at what suited him and to get ahead according to his talents. A real man strives to make his own way in the world.

He takes the rough with the smooth. He safeguards his own future by his own frugality and thrift.

Life insurance has grown into a great co-operative partnership of the whole people. Only through this partnership can a man create an immediate estate for himself out of what he earns.

Mass enterprise and mass unselfishness of over four million policyholders have provided every man and woman with the means of securing at low cost the certainty of a cushioned future.
