The Soldier of Today . . .

There are tens of thousands of young men in this country who on the surface look the picture of health, and yet when they appeared before the medical examining authorities have been dismissed as unfit for soldier life. Each young man is put through rigid tests, not as to his physical stamina alone, but also his emotional and mental qualities for the arduous life of the armed forces. Many men who would be accepted on physical grounds, we understand, are rejected for emotional and mental attitudes toward life. Not that there is serious mental disorder in so many of our young men, but the very nature of this war is such that psychiatrists tell us emotional and mental efficiency is just as important as physical fitness.

The soldier today is different from a civilian, and is made so by virtue of his training. It is a private soldier's war, and he must know when and where to act. He must know his own value as a fighter and appreciate that value, while at the same time fully recognizing the value of his comrade, being ever ready to defend his pals as he defends himself. In other words, he must be able to co-ordinate and co-operate with others to the full. If a young man cannot lose his identity in the group, and co-operate with his pals even to the sacrifice of his life, he has not the mental attitude that will enable him to be a worthwhile soldier.

When a young man leaves home and joins the forces he has already fought some battles in his thinking, and has won them. For example: He has put a new evaluation upon himself, and upon his life, and is prepared to discount any sense of self-importance he possessed, any craving for comfort or personal convenience, and is willing to lay down his life if need be in the cause to which he has committed himself. It it not every young man who can make such adjustments even though he may have good physical health. It does us civilians good to squarely face the readjustments our brave lads must make to life as they leave home and go forth to fight on foreign soil for our security and peace.

Double Gift to Red Cross . . .

Nobody needs to be told why he should support the Red Cross. Its yeoman service to hunanity is known on every hand for hardly a family but knows of instances where it has done good in peacetime and hardly a family but hears from some war zone abroad of its wonderful ministerings.

The important thing this year, then, is not to sell you on the work the Red Cross is doing at home and in the battle zones as well as in the field of contacting and helping care for prisoners of war, but to remind you to double your membership contribution, for the job to be done is much bigger.

Too, the committee here, while well-organized and widely representative, may miss some individuals and some business houses. If you are overlooked, contact one of the collectors.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.

(By DOROTHY GARBUTT)

A letter from Leading Telegraphist Cliff Humford came my way this week. It nas quite a bit of news of interest to Prince Rupert people so I'll quote from it:

"...I received your letter before Christmas and the same day we left Canada. I got drafted off the ship in Ireland and was sent to England for a while and am now in barracks in Scotland so all in all I've been around these parts quite a lot. It may be a while before I get my new ship as I'm going to have my knee operated on and right now I've got blood poison in my hand . . . We've had a lot of fun over here in London, Belfast, Ireland, and Glasgow and several other places. There are a lot of my old chums in barracks here including Rene Jeanette . . . the man in charge of the "Y" here is our old friend Ivan Mallett. I had a long talk with him the other day about Prince Rupert and all the gang back in those parts. I really miss the West Coast but I like it over here. I sure had a nasty Christmas and New Year at sea and I still haven't received hardly any Christmas mail. I saw my old friend Jerry Pascoe in Ireland. Gee it's sure surprising who you meet in different places."

No one at the "Y" has heard from Ivan Mallett so it's nice to have news of his whereabouts.

The Pioneers at the Eleventh Avenue camp made me a nice mending kit box, but it is so large that I think I'll turn it into another toy box and ask one of the boys who is smart at lettering to put on it:

"Careful girls and boys
When they finish play,
Always put their toys tidily away
In this box!"

The Eleventh Avenue dance tonight with the King's Men Orchestra. Cars will be in front of the "Y" hut to pick up the hostesses.

Friday night the Navy is making still another contribution to the Red Cross campaign by holding a Red Cross benefit dance in the Chatham Drill Hall. This dance is held by courtesy of Commander C. M. Cree, R.C.N., and is open to the public.

SPORTS

Howie Morenz, numbered among the all-time hockey greats, died of a heart attack in a Montreal hospital seven years ago last night. In his 14th National Hockey League year, the 35-year old Montreal Canadien player was staging a great comeback, cut short January 28, 1937, when he suffered a broken leg in a game at Montreal.

The most publicized holdout in baseball history ended 13 years ago today when Babe Ruth signed a $160,000-two year contract with the New York Yanks Holder of most of baseball's slugging records, the portly outfielder retired from active competition in 1936.

The largest percentage of suicides occurs between the ages of 65 and 75.

Coastal Ships Rescue Vessels

LONDON, March 9. (CP)—British coastal vessels, known to thousands of holiday makers in peacetime and now serving as rescue ships, have saved the lives of 3,500 merchant seamen whose ships have been torpedoed. They were introduced in 1941 to accompany convoys when the U-boat menace was at its height.

All are armed and they have destroyed several aircraft. They have faced the tremendous gales of the North Atlantic for at least sixteen days on a single outward run with ships four or five times their size.

Hospitals and operating theatres are standard in all ships, and holds have been emptied to provide comfortable wards. There is a minimum of 100 available bunks. The latest rescue ship has accommodation for 240 men.

That No Sufferer Shall Call in Vain

TODAY, hundreds of our boys in the thick of the battle are being carried quickly behind the lines to receive the life-giving blood transfusions made possible by the Canadian Red Cross. They will live to fight again, because we helped them when they needed our support. The wounded must have immediate care. The surgical supplies, the blood serum, the hospital equipment that spell life to them, must be ready on the spot.

And we must keep the spark of hope burning in the hearts of the boys who once fought for us gallantly, but now are helpless, behind enemy prison gates. Red Cross food parcels must reach our men regularly, to give them nourishment and hope.

Civilian needs are urgent, too. Food for the children of oppressed areas in Europe, help for the homeless, crippled children of Britain and emergency nursing care . . . all these must be provided by one means, the Red Cross. Make your donation big enough to cover the work required of it.

"Winnie" and "Pooh" Guard Dover Strait

LONDON, Mar. 9 (CP) — The people in Dover's "Hellfire Corner" sometimes say, when the big guns are roaring across the Channel, "that's "Winnie," or "that's Pooh."

Winnie and Pooh are two giant naval guns which, it has been disclosed, were installed after Prime Minister Churchill's personal insistence that convoys must continue to sail the English Channel despite the German occupation of the French coast and their heavy-gun bombardment of channel convoys.

The first gun, a battleship type, was installed in six weeks and named Winnie after the Prime Minister. The second, says the Admiralty's story of "The Royal Marines," who man the guns, was named Pooh "by an obvious association of ideas."

These giant guns have a "super-super" charge of cordite and never fire less than 20 miles. They have been shelled and bombed but without damage or serious casualties.

The people of Dover have come to know them so well they can tell the difference in their "barks."

British Commons Debates Question of Releasing Competent Sweep from Army for Town of Grantham

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Mar. 9 (CP)—This is a tale of the chimney sweeps of Grantham, a town of some 20,000 in Lincolnshire, and how the House of Commons put aside the burdens of war and national affairs to discuss the matter with only the slightest touch of levity.

It's only a small tale but perhaps it's important these days in demonstrating the fullness of democracy at work.

Charged as Independent M. P. for Grantham with looking after the interest of its constituents, William Denis Kendall raised the question, telling the sympathetic members how he had been trying for some time to obtain the release of a skilled Grantham chimney sweep from the army. The army was using the man as an officer's batman and that was the crux of Kendall's case.

The town was sadly lacking in sweeps, he said. Saving the town from fire was more important than being a batman. The man ought to be released.

But when he went to the authorities they told him Grantham had four full-time sweeps and five part-time operators. Kendall didn't deny these figures but he pointed out the full-time sweeps were aged 78, 75, 60 and 60 which seemed a little old to him for the work. Besides only one of the four was skilled and he was 60 and suffering from acute arthritis.

Support for Kendall

A fellow Independent, William Brown, supported Kendall's view of the gravity of the situation. In fact Brown gave to the House first-hand experiences to demonstrate the fire danger. He had, it turned out, been dining at Kendall's house the night before and the chimney caught fire.

This was where the levity entered the discussion. Malcolm McCorquodale, who was to reply for the government, said it had been a particularly mild night and he regretted to hear Kendall needed a fire at all. The labor ministry's parliamentary secretary, of course, was referring to fuel rationing.

(Kendall disclosed to inquiring reporters later he had put out the fire himself, and climbed the roof of his house to do so. The damage was slight).

In his answer McCorquodale said it was a big request to release a fully-trained man of only 23 who had been in the army for four years. But to this Brown replied the man's age was not to the point, it was what the man was doing.

The house rose then, its members still sympathetic to Kendall's problems but not very hopeful he'd get Grantham the sweep. The next day they went back to the war and national affairs.

NEW UNDERGROUND PAPER

LONDON, (CP)— A new secret paper, "London News," has appeared in Holland, says "Vrij Nederland," Dutch newspaper published here. It specializes in reporting broadcasts from England.

25 YEARS AGO

In a petition to the Postmaster General the Prince Rupert Board of Trade asked that the government subsidize small boat mail service to outlying coastal points because ordinarily the service would not be profitable to the operator.

The wettest place in British Columbia in 1918 was Swanson Bay where 259.7 inches of rain fell during the 12 months. Prince Rupert had slightly over 86 inches.

Major General J. W. Stewart, well known former resident of Prince Rupert, where he helped build the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, returned to Canada from service in France.

"Lilly Marlene" Basis For Film

LONDON, Mar. 9 (CP)—The sentimental German ballad, "Lilly Marlene" has gone awandering. It first gained popularity in Nazi Germany and later was sung by Rommel's Africa Corps in the Libyan Desert and next was adopted by Britain's Eighth Army and then taken to Italy by British troops where the Canadians picked it up.

Now it is to be heard in Britain for the Ministry of Information is producing a film based on its story.

But "Lilly Marlene" is not the only song to make the jump over no-man's land. Britain's "Lambeth Walk" did just that.

HOME SERVICE HANDYMAN

"Certainly, send him right in!"

● A friend is going to call on you—this week or next.

He's going to ask if you'll pay the trifling cost of collecting and processing a few pints of blood plasma to save the lives of a boy from Manitoba and one from Quebec and another from Saskatchewan.

He's going to ask, too, if you'd like to put up a few dollars to see that the kids in a certain military hospital far away feel the touch of a friendly hand, a word of cheer . . . in their isolation and their pain.

And he's going to ask if you'll help speed nourishing food, medicines and a few of the little decencies of life to some Canadian boys "sweating it out" behind barbed wire in enemy lands as prisoners of war.

Who, indeed, can refuse?

So when this man calls, welcome him . . . with a cheque . . . and make it a good one . . . because he's calling for the folks that are always there—the Red Cross!

Next best thing to having your soldier son home for dinner every night . . . is knowing that the Red Cross is at his side—wherever he may be, whatever he may be doing, whatever the day or hour.

In the past you were asked to give only a little . . to help the Red Cross in its endless peacetime vigil against catastrophe and disease.

But that was yesterday, friend. Dig deeper this time—ten, twenty, thirty times deeper! For the task of the Red Cross is that much more important to humanity, that much more important to you!

Give generously . . . give greatly . . . when the Red Cross worker asks your help. Say: "Sure! Here it is . . . more than I've ever given before . . . and you're welcome to more when you need more!"

TIMELY RECIPES

BAKED BEANS WITH TOMATO JUICE

3 slices bacon or 2 tablespoons bacon dripping
1-3 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
½ to 1 teaspoon dry mustard
1½ cups Tomato Juice
1¾ cups boiling water
1 12-oz. pkg. quick serve beans

Method: Cut bacon into small pieces and fry. Remove bacon and cook onion in remaining fat, or if not using bacon, in the 2 tablespoons bacon dripping. Mix sugar, salt, pepper, mustard and blend with a little of the tomato juice. Add to onion and fat in which it was cooked, along with the remaining juice and water. Bring to a full boil. Turn beans into a casserole, add boiling-hot mixture, stir, and sprinkle with cooked bacon. Cook, cover, in a slow oven, 300 degrees F., 25 minutes. Remove cover and cook an additional five minutes. The lid may be removed earlier if the beans are preferred with less sauce.)

Urges Publicity For Church Work

LONDON, March 9. (C)—Press advertising is essential to build a "friendly and sympathetic attitude to the church" on the part of the people, says Rev. F. Howell Everson, advocating an advertising campaign as "the product of a united Christian enterprise."

People recognize the need of the Christian faith but are suspicious of the society which is its guardian and exponent, he said. If they would not take heed of the church pulpit "then the church should use the pulpit which every man must use every day—the pulpit of the press."

Hold on, Little Fella— we're coming!

Yes, babies have felt the impact of war just like the rest of us. Their big trouble has been the diaper shortage. It's been difficult for them and their Mothers, because our looms were busy making hundreds of vital military items.

But we're beginning to switch gradually back to some civilian production, and diaper cloth is high on our list of urgently needed goods.

No the stores will not be bulging with diapers next week—that won't happen till the war's all over. And you have to remember that as we produce more there will likely be a let-up in importations. The general supply picture will only change slightly. But more of those long-time favourite Canadian-made goods will be available.

LONDON—More than 23,000,000 attendances by Canadian service men at Y.M.C.A. social, educational and other events in Britain and the Mediterranean area were recorded during 1943, the "Y's" overseas committee was told recently. The Canadian "Y" has been functioning overseas four years.

LONDON, (CP) — The annual conference of Britain's Labor Party will be held in London from May 29 to June 2. The party constitution is to be revised.

SYDNEY, Australia, Mar 9 (CP) —Just before the spring racing in Sydney, two bookmakers were discussing prospects. One fancied a horse called Main Topic. The other pooh-poohed its chances.

"What will you lay me?" asked the first.

"A pound a week for life, all to nothing," said the other.

Main Topic won, and the winner is collecting. His only regret is that he is 70, and "won't enjoy it long."

Incidentally, he claims to be the biggest bookmaker in the world—285 pounds.

Wrens Are Peaceful

Forty Girls on Trans-Canada Tour are Proud of Their Record On and Off Stage

By ENID NEMY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The 40 attractive Wrens now touring Canada in the Navy Show which is coming to Prince Rupert are determined to prove "just for our own satisfaction" that women can get along together.

Their complete success thus far pleasantly surprised them for they admit ruefully, "we didn't think it was possible," but to the male members of the show it's the eighth wonder of the world.

"Forty women and no squabbling—now I've seen everything," murmured one hardy sailor, shaking his head in amazement.

"We've really become experts in the art of give and take," smiled petite, blonde Sue Macdonald of Toronto, while Barbara Chauvin, of Montreal, added: "We're quite proud of our perfect record and we intend to keep it that way."

The show travels in a special 15-car train and is a veritable "home on wheels," complete to the last detail. Sub-Lieut. Rosemary Youle of Ottawa is in charge of the Wrens. Trim and efficient in her navy uniform and tricorne hat she acts as house mother, friend and confidant.

"I see that the girls dress [...] enough, don't stay out too late and a variety of other things," she said. "It really hasn't been difficult because they are so co-operative. So far there has been very little disciplining. It's amazing but true. We're usually so busy there isn't much time left to break rules."

GIRLS HAVE MASCOTS TOO

The girls, from all parts of the Dominion, carry a bit of home with them. Sue Macdonald's mascot, a teddy bear named "Junior," is one of the troupe favorites. Betty Shaw of Edmonton is devoted to a [...] rabbit [...] in her stage act and two goldfish "that just appeared" are guarded zealously by all the girls.

"[...] they flopped out into [...] bunk," recalled Laura Cookman, who calls both Saskatoon and Vancouver home. "They were floundering around helplessly when someone appeared and rescued them. That cured [...] of carelessness."

[...] Haight Tasse, of Toronto [...] a special attraction in [...] husband Jack, a survivor of H.M.C.S. Weyburn, [...] travelling [...] company. Theirs was the first show romance.

The group has its cosmopolites, too. Anna Leigh, who sings in five languages, is from Finland, Joyce Lamberg, New York, has lived through South American's revolutions. Louise Burns of Toronto, the Wrens dancing instructor, was a member of the famed "Rockettes."

The girls agree that touring the country with "Meet the Navy" is an experience they will never forget. "It's marvellous," said Frankie Conly of Saint John, N. B., "although I don't see how I'll ever be able to settle down in one place."

BILL CORUM
—Ace Reporter on Gillette's "Cavalcade of Sports"—says:

"YES, shaving's a cinch with the Blue Gillette Blade, because it has the sharpest edges ever produced! That's been proved by thousands of tests with Gillette's famous sharpness comparator which measures keenness with a beam of light!

"No other blade is as sharp, easy-shaving or long-lasting. It whisks off tough beard clean as a whistle—leaves your face feeling swell."

It was announced that the Provincial budget campaign had been a marked success with very few members still to be heard from. Comrade E. A. Evans was delegated to attend the provincial conference to be held in Vancouver on April 14, 15, 16.

At the next educational meeting to be held March 21, the speaker will be Mr. Worsley, who will speak on the Indian problem. Mr. Worsley spent several years in that country before the war.

Build Fence or Take Down House

The city council, at its meeting this week, declined to support the board of school trustees in agreeing to change an agreement with Wartime Housing whereby the latter was to build a high fence to separate the dry dock staff houses on Hays Cove Circle from the grounds of Booth Memorial School, Wartime Housing, in lieu of building the fence, to remove a house which has been built on the grounds of the new school on Conrad Street. The school board had felt that there was no particular need of the fence now whereas it was quite necessary to have the house removed to provide playing space on the school grounds.

Ald. Hills and Ald. Elliott felt quite strongly that Wartime Housing should not be relieved of the responsibility to build the fence. The former recalled how the company had been requested at the start not to build the house on the location. Ald. Elliott felt it was a menace to the safety of the school children not to have the school grounds separated in some way from the staff house.

On the other hand, Ald. Sorensen and Ald. Rudderham felt it was more important that the house should be removed.

There was a division as to whether the school board should be supported in agreeing to foregoing the erection of the fence in favor of removing the house, Ald. Hills, Ald. Elliott, Ald. Sinclair and Ald. Brett favoring the fence building with Ald. Rudderham and Ald. Sorensen in the minority, being in favor of the house removal.

GARDEN NOTEBOOK

FERTILIZER IMPORTANT

The most economical way to increase the yield of small Victory gardens is to improve the fertility of the soil. Since the cost of seed, tools and labor is the same for poor soil as for good, any additional production which can be obtained solely by enriching the soil will be relatively inexpensive.

An ample supply of Victory Garden fertilizer has been provided for 1944. Regulations govern the contents of this plant food as to nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, with the make-up varying in different parts of the country. Chemical nitrogen has been increased, but potash reduced from last year.

The usual application of plant food recommended for small gardens is four pounds to 100 square feet. This should bring the average soil up to good fertility for any crop. Many gardeners use more than this with good effect, however, by applying side dressings as the crops develop.
