WAR NEWS

Nazi Defences Collapse

PARIS-Plunging ahead through the Maginot Line, the American Seventh Army is now only four and one half miles from the German border in the French province of Alsace. Their present positions are only fifteen miles from the great German city of Karlsruhe. Some advance units are reported to be within two and one half miles of the German border. In the north, the German defences west of the Roer River have all but collapsed. From all indications, the Germans are engaged in withdrawing their main forces across the Roer River behind Dueren and about twenty miles west of Cologne.

Invasion Year Marked by Flying Bomb Attacks But Britons Tighten Belts and Look Ahead to 1945

> By CHARLES BRUCE (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Dec. 13 (CP)—For Britons as for all the world 1944 was the year of invasion—the beginning of visible victory. For the battered old capital of these islands it will long be remembered also as the year of the flying bombs.

HEAVY VANCOUVER FOG VANCOUVER - Heavy fog blanketed most of Vancouver today, slowing up traffic and driving pedestrians off the streets. Nearly 100 minor accidents were reported to the police during the two-day siege of fog. An interurban tram collided with a stopped street car, demolishing the front of the street car, but none were injured. Cambie Street Bridge was the scene of most accidents, brakes being useless to cope with frozen fog on the surface of the streets.

At least seventy-eight lives have been lost in south-of the heavy snow storm that swept eastern sections of the continent yesterday in Canada. The Toronto and Hamilton districts suffered most heavily although the storm extended eastward as far as Montreal and transportation services were paralyzed in the Toronto area where the blizzard reached its greatest fury. Fifteen of the storm fatalities occurred in Toronto, two in Hamilton, one at Campbellford, one at Woodstock, and one at Brantford. The other fifty-eight deaths occurred in the United States.

One of the Toronto deaths resulted from a street car accident. A Toronto Transportation Commission car carrying about 175 passengers turned over on its side in the downtown section of the city, pinning a man underneath. About forty others were injured in the same accident ten of them seriously.

The other thirteen Toronto deaths resulted from heart attacks brought on .by over-exertion in shovelling snow or in plowing through drifts which were six feet Geep in places.

Police fear other victims of the early winter blast may be found under the drifts and that the eventual toll will be much higher. All Toronto schools were closed for the day and they are remaining closed today. Dewere closed. Thousands walked to work in the morning when street cars in operation were unable to accommodate them. The Globe and Mail newspapermen, for first time in history, suspended publication.

But the snowbound citizens of southern Ontario and Quebec had one consolation. The Dominion Meteorological office in Toronto admitted that the weatherman was late for work yesterday morning like everyone

During the campaign some heat has been developed and, possibly, some statements have been made that would have been better unsaid. It is to be hoped that nothing has been done which will prevent all getting together again after the election to work unitedly for the advancement and welfare of the city. Certainly, there will be no point in continuing recriminations resulting from the campaign and, if any feeling continues after polling day, it would be well to forget it.

Meantime, we think it fair to suggest to the voters that, in making their selections, they endeavour to single out the most capable and responsible perness to be entrusted to them. The issues have been quite fully explained in one way or another. If biased views have been expressed due discount should be made for same just as one would do in making ordinary decisions in personal affairs.

As for the bus bylaw, what to do about this may be more readily determined by considering it as a straight business proposition. After all, as good a service as possible is what is desired and how it can be most effectively and efficiently provided, taking all factors into consideration, is the thing to be decided.

The Non-Partisan Association 12 Point Plan for 1945

- 1. To keep politics out of civic affairs by exercising every effort to ensure that men of impartial and unbiased judgment shall represent the citizens in the civic administration.
- 2. To use every endeavour to remove certain antagoisms and misunderstandings that at present appear to exist between the city and the various departments and officials of the government.
- 3. To undertake an immediate, complete and thorough survey of the condition of city streets, waterworks and sewer systems; and to have detailed estimated costs prepared covering a program of complete rehabilitation of such facilities.
- 4. To initiate preliminary steps towards refinancing the city debt on a low interest, long-term basis in - order that such rehabilitation may be carried out.
 To institute a fund to be built up during the war years with which such a program could be put in
- 5. To co-operate as closely as possible with organizations interesting themselves in post-war rehabilitation, whether they be local committees or governmental agencies.
- 6. To support every movement, either local or sponsored by the Provincial authorities, that will promote public health and social welfare in the community, having particular regard to recreational
- facilities for youth.

 7. To renew and maintain efforts to improve facilities for the fishing industry and to make immediate representations to the Government and the Can-
- adian National Railways to the end that a program of ship construction be maintained at the Dry-dock.
- 8. To foster well-being and good-will in the area by promoting a friendly interchange of ideas between people of the city and those of the towns of the Interior and of southeastern Alaska.
- 9. To enlarge the sphere of operation in utilities only after very thorough investigation of all factors.
- 10. To assist, so far as possible, in the establishment of a program of Federal Housing in the city.
- 11. To press for more equitable distribution of the costs of education.
- 12. To uphold the right of collective bargaining for civic employees.

The Man on the Street Says "NO" on the City Bus Purchase TWO to ONE!

Prince Rupert people agree with the Non-Partisan program for 1945. A lot of work can be done with the $40,000 that the purchase of an old bus system would require. Why don't we get better streets and sidewalks, better sewer systems and an improved waterworks system? The Non-Partisan

Association candidates will devote 1945 toward the beginning of permanent improvements to our important public utilities.
