

CANADA'S NAVAL LEADERS

By Scott Young (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

CMDR. FRED A. PRICE

job of dove-tailing the Royal Canadian Navy's strength into the requirements of the Royal Canadian Navy for the great amphibious operations of 1943 belonged to a balding, efficient, middle-aged officer from Quebec, Cmdr. Fred A. Price, R.C.N.V.R. During the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, when hundreds of Canadians manned landing craft and served in the small ships so vital to amphibious warfare, Cmdr. Price was the voice of the Canadian Navy at the British Admiralty, and the voice of the Admiralty to Canadian Naval Staff in Ottawa. "It's largely just that," he says, "I tell the Admiralty what the Canadian Navy thinks, the men at the Admiralty tell me what they think, and I pass it on to Ottawa. It's a job of close liaison."

For this one of the select group of V.R. officers who have risen to appointments of importance in the Canadian Navy since they were called to war from their peacetime occupations in 1939, his tenure as Senior Canadian Naval Officer (London) was another step on the road that has led up through staff and sea appointments from his command of the Navy's Quebec division at the outbreak of war.

ON ACTIVE SERVICE

He joined the Navy's Volunteer Reserve in 1926 in Quebec, and as a lieutenant-commander was called to active service a few days before war broke out. For ten months he served in Quebec, then went to Halifax, where he later took a commander's course.

His next shift was back to Quebec as a staff officer to the Naval Officer in Charge at Quebec, and three months later he went to sea. He served in the Gulf of St. Lawrence in command of anti-sub patrol vessels and later as senior officer of a group of Canadian minesweepers. Early in 1943 he received his present appointment.

In and out of his Canadian Navy office in London pass the many Canadians serving on loan with the Royal Navy, in addition to those visiting London on leave or on business. Men from the Mediterranean, where Canadians served on R.N. fighting units through the entire three years of African campaign, report to him. Their welfare is in his hands. It's a big job, but Cmdr. Price, who is strictly "Navy" always, is looking ahead to the time when he will be back at sea again.

Missionary in Orient for Fifteen Years Talks to Local Audience

The real problem of Christian evangelizing in Japan is that of state shintoism, Rev. T. P. Williams, for fifteen years a missionary for the Baptist Church among the farmers and working classes in central Japan, told an interested gathering which assembled last night in the social parlors of First Presbyterian Church. Mr. Williams' subject was "The Christian Church in Japan." He donned a Japanese costume to lend an appropriate touch in delivering his talk. In spite of many difficulties imposed by the ruling class of Japan and the overall control by state shintoism, "The Way of the Gods" which was promoted by the militarists of Japan who held the country in subjection, some progress had been made before the war in Christian evangelization in Japan although no one, of course, could tell how the missionaries and their work were now faring.

Mr. Williams opened with a brief geographical description of Japan, explaining that the country was one-sixth larger than the British Isles, one-twenty-fifth the size of Canada and two-fifths the size of British Columbia. The history of modern Japan went back to 1854 when Admiral Peary compelled the country to open its ports to world trade. Before that Japan had been a closed nation, refusing to open its ports to world trade with other nations. Once started, however, Japan soon had a rapidly expanding trade and by 1857 she had treaties with Great Britain, Russia, France and Germany. Since then she had rapidly assumed importance as a naval and world trading power.

Turning to the subject of religion in Japan, eighty percent of the 73,000,000 people were Buddhists with Christians numbering 300,000 — 210,000 Protestants and 90,000 Roman Catholics. It had been found that the Christian church had been an influence for the good in controlling to some extent prostitution, drinking and gambling. However, there was the transcending influence of state shintoism which was the real obstacle to effective evangelization. Back in 1929 a famous Japanese general had declared that without state shintoism Japan could not be great. The general of Japan objected to the individualism of Christianity. Their teaching was that the Emperor was the head of the state and the family and not the individual should be the unit. In spite of the difficulties which beset them, missionaries had remained steadfast. Even under the persecutions and trials of war the missionaries remained faithful. Up to 1937 missionaries were permitted to hold Christian evangelistic meetings in Japan. Since the "China incident," however, there had been an increasing limitation of Christian evangelism. In the course of his address, Mr. Williams told of the limited food allowances in Japan — 9½ ounces of sugar per month for one person, a greasy margarine mixture in place of butter, two ounces of cheese a month and two loaves of bread a week for a man, his wife and one child.

Rev. A. F. MacSween presided and introduced Mr. Williams. There was a vocal solo "Beneath the Cross" by Mrs. Martin. Mrs. E. J. Smith presided at the piano for the hymns. Rev. M. Amundsen of the Pentecostal Mission pronounced the benediction. Mr. Williams left Japan in the spring of 1941 to spend a six months' furlough in Canada and was about to return there when "Pearl Harbor" occurred. He is at present supplying in the pulpit of First Baptist Church here.

CHARGES were not laid against two other men arrested at the same time and thought to be connected with the affair. LONDON — Fewer blond women are to be seen about London these days and the reason given is that dyes and bleaches are not so plentiful as they were. The result is that hairdressers, as a rule, will not accept new blonds, preferring to keep their quota of dyes and bleaches for their regular customers.

NEW OCEAN SPEED MARK — Trans-Canada Machine Makes Crossing in 13 Hours, 16 Minutes. MONTREAL, Feb. 29 — A new record which clipped fourteen minutes off the previous best time for a westbound non-stop trans-Atlantic flight from Montreal to London, was made on the arrival of a big transport plane operated by Trans-Canada air lines in the Canadian government trans-Atlantic service. From take-off in Britain to landing in Montreal the elapsed time was 13 hours, 16 minutes. The previous best time for a non-stop flight from Britain to Montreal was 13 hours, 30 minutes, made by British Overseas Airways Corporation in 1941. The aircraft carried 3,291 pounds of army and diplomatic mail, as well as 368 pounds of valuable military aircraft parts. Seven official passengers were also carried. Captain A. Rankin, a senior captain piloted the plane. Trans-Canada air line pilots hold both west and east-bound non-stop trans-Atlantic routes to and from Montreal and Great Britain.

Health and Morals . . .

A recent poll of Canadian citizens showed a very large majority in favor of a frank, nation-wide campaign against the plague of venereal disease. No doubt the startling facts that have already been revealed have aroused public opinion out of its lethargy and made people realize that the old policy of secrecy and silence on this unpleasant subject has only led and abetted the spread of these ghastly social diseases. It is strange that the cloak of false modesty is so long been permitted to shield this front ranking enemy of society, preying alike upon the innocent and the guilty. Like other evils, it thrives in the dark. Turn the searchlight of publicity upon it in its natural setting and it will cringe and slink into the shadows like the wretched thing it really is.

Maclean's Magazine has a full-length article on the subject, reviewing its ravages among our armed forces, as well as among civilians. The writer calls "No. 1 Saboteur" and quotes figures to prove it. In the Air Force, he says, has 2.1 new cases per 1,000 per month, the Army 4 new cases for each 1,000, while the Navy has the questionable distinction of 29 new cases per 1,000 per month. No other contagious disease has half the prevalence of V.D.

The writer discusses the campaign being waged against the plague from four angles. The first three names as health, law-enforcement and welfare, all of which are admittedly important. The fourth offensive against the enemy, the moral sector, he discusses with a brief paragraph on the ground that on that subject "there isn't much for a reporter to report." "Obviously," he says, "it's a job for the individual, the boys and girls themselves, their parents, their teachers, their pastors." The discussion of the moral side of the question has been woefully overlooked or skimmed over as of minor importance. Instead it should be regarded as basic and fundamental to everything else. If a man or woman has adopted right moral principles and is not merely trying to avoid the consequences of sin there is something substantial to work upon. Acceptance of divine laws of health and purity is possibly the best assurance against the practice or encouragement of social vice, with its train of ill-health and moral degradation.

The more arguments you win, the less friends you'll have.

Importance of Beauty . . .

This is hardly the weather to stimulate great enthusiasm over flowers but those who have the finest gardens in the city are already making plans for this summer's showing, says the Prince George Citizen.

Flowers, fine gardens and attractive homes take much planning to assure full satisfaction. Growing flowers and improving your home grounds gives you pleasure for all who can see. The beautifying of our grounds and the city generally is an obligation we should all face up to, especially during war time when the maintaining of home front morale is so important.

When you stop to think, don't forget to start again.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. (By DOROTHY GARBUTT)

Closed for alterations! Yes, at last we're to have the Hut floor fixed and so we have closed up for the next few weeks. However that doesn't mean we're walking out on you! By no means. Just transfer your daytime activities to the Empress "Y" where there will be the usual games, ping pong tables, magazines and writing desks. The service men and girls are welcome there but I'm sorry to say that we can't hold our Service Wives' Club meetings until we are back in the Hut once again. So perhaps you Service Wives might arrange to meet in each other's homes for awhile. In the evenings the Empress activities will carry on as usual with shows and dances but during the day use it as your downtown recreation hall and meeting place. The Y.W.C.A. Hostess (that's me) will be at the Empress during the week from 1.30 to 5.30 p.m. and traveler's aid and rooms registry work will be carried on from there. Mrs. Woodside will have a canteen open at the Empress, although she will not be able to serve hot meals.

So don't grumble, boys and girls, help us make the best of it and think how beautiful the old hut will be with new floors. We'll let you know just as soon as we're opening up again. Besides it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. Won't Mr. Ello be glad to have a rest from the continuous tramping of feet overhead? Breen tells me too that we're to have elegant new rugs in the Ladies' Lounge and I'm working on very pretty curtains for the Powder Room.

Jean Melvin returned to her home in Victoria today for a holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Craig of that city. Jean as you know, is Mrs. Breen Melvin and has been up here since last July when she came up here with Breen just after their wedding. We shall all miss Jean ever so and I can see we're in for quite a job of cheering up Breen.

SPORT NEWS

Jock McAvoy, recently-retired British middleweight champion, has left the ring because he is "disgusted with the whole boxing business." The 35-year-old McAvoy says it all began two years ago when he signed a contract to defend his title against Ginger Sudd at Norwich. There was a dispute over the purse because of an increase in the entertainment tax and McAvoy called the fight off. British Boxing Board officials decided in favor of the promoter and ordered McAvoy to pay a $900 forfeit. He refused. "I feel that after nearly 20 years in the ring I have been treated unfairly," Jock told newsmen in announcing his decision to hang up the gloves. "I am retiring as undefeated champion on a matter of principle."

One of the most versatile fighters of modern times, McAvoy lost to John Henry Lewis in a world championship light-heavyweight bout in New York eight years ago. Known as a middle with a heavyweight punch, his real name is Joe Bamford. Now in the Royal Air Force, his home is at Westate, Lancashire. Len Harvey, former British and Empire heavyweight champion termed McAvoy "the toughest man I've ever fought." Boxing spectators always wondered why Jock bit both his thumbs between every round of a fight. Some thought it was a show of temper. The reason, however, was that McAvoy had both thumbs fractured while working in a cotton mill. Since then they have been stiff at the joints and he loosens them by pulling them with his mouth.

A sallow Welsh miner who rates as a leading contender for the title vacated by McAvoy came off the floor four times to snatch a victory from the country's hardest-worked boxer. It was the third straight victory for Tommy Davies of Comgorse village over coffee-colored Lefty Flynn, Jamaican champion who is in Britain's merchant marine. Lefty was far ahead on points when the battle was stopped after the sixth round because of a gash above the Negro's eye. The fight, at the Queensberry Club in Soho, was seldom spectacular. Davies showed himself susceptible to Flynn's vicious, short body blows, while the injury showed again that Flynn's greatest problem is how to prevent facial cuts. Such cuts previously have lost him bouts in which he was leading on points.

Pupils of the public school in Prince George have accumulated the total of $780 in War Bonds and $580 in War Savings certificates since last September.

A quota of $2700 has been set for Prince George in the Red Cross drive.

Three men were found guilty and fined in Prince George police court for the illegal handling and sale of meat. The charges were laid by the War-time Prices and Trade Board.

A reward of $50 has been posted by Sam Stevens, manager of the C.C.F. Hall, for information leading to the conviction of the person responsible for setting off an explosion which blew a hole in the floor of the Hall when a dance was in progress one night last week. A stick of dynamite was believed to have been set off. No one was injured.

RED CROSS CONCERT—

BAND DUO REUNITED

New Naval Bandmaster is Taking Over Here.

Separated more than eighteen months ago after gaining acclaim in Halifax, an instrumental duo, recently reunited, will be a feature of the Royal Canadian Navy band concert Thursday night in the Naval Drill Hall.

The concert has been arranged, through the kind permission of Commander C. M. Cree, R.C.N., naval officer-in-charge, Prince Rupert, to raise funds for the Red Cross.

Members of the duo are Petty Officer G. Noakes of Toronto, cornetist, who will take over the duties of bandmaster of the Navy band here soon, and Petty Officer H. A. Jeffrey of Toronto, trombonist, who is the assistant bandmaster.

Thursday night's concert will probably mark the last time that Prince Rupert citizens will see Chief Petty Officer S. E. Sunderland will be remembered by local music-lovers as the conductor who deftly wielded the baton during the band's semi-monthly radio broadcasts.

The cornet and trombone duo will play a bright polka, "Ida and Dottie," which will enable them to demonstrate their amazing technique and brilliant triple-tonguing.

Petty Officers Noakes and Jeffrey are former members of the Navy band at Halifax, which became famous in eastern Canada two years ago under the direction of Sub-Lieutenant A. E. Zealley. He now holds the rank of Lieutenant-Commander and is the Navy's director of music.

The pair were divided when

P.O. Noakes was drafted to Newfoundland and P.O. Jeffrey was drafted to St. Hubert, Quebec. Promotion of Noakes to the rank of Petty Officer is expected due course.

WAR WORK DEMANDS THIS Vitality Element

NO OTHER NATURAL CEREAL GIVES IT SO RICHLY

With less meat today, wise women are happy to know that by serving Quaker Oats for breakfast, they can give their hard-working family a rich source of meat's main element—protein. No other natural cereal is so rich in this vital factor for energy and growth as whole-grain oatmeal. And it is richest of all natural cereals in Vitamin B₁ needed for sound nerves and energy! No wonder more families than ever are calling delicious, hot breakfasts of Quaker Oats daily a "must" for wartime diets.

First Stop Malta

Today Canadians in uniform are fighting in almost every climate under the sun—from Labrador to Ceylon. But wherever they go they find their favourite Sweet Caps help them to relax and enjoy their moments of leisure. Sweet Caps have what it takes to make them first over here, first over there, first with Canadians everywhere!

Miraculously escaping harm while the city about her was reduced to ruins, the "Little Queen" still sits, silent and proud, among the valiant people who defended Malta through a year of almost constant bombing.

SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES

"The purest form in which tobacco can be smoked!" Our "overseas correspondence" files contain a story of Sweet Caps despatched to a warrant officer, then in Malta. They caught up with him months later in Ceylon, still in good condition!

TUNESOME FILM HERE

Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie in "The Sky's the Limit."

Agile Fred Astaire in "The Sky's the Limit" coming Wednesday and Thursday to the Capitol Theatre is teamed for the first time with Joan Leslie in a tenuous romantic offering which deals with a pilot's adventures during a brief leave in New York City.

Robert Benchley heads the supporting cast as a millionaire publisher and Miss Leslie's employer, the heroine being a roving photographer for one of Benchley's magazines. Astaire, wearing civilian clothes to avoid notoriety during his few days of leave in the metropolis, falls hard for the girl and tries his best to intrigue her.

He does so, successfully dodging all her efforts to find him a job, but then he discovers that Benchley also is in love with her. Feeling that a flier in wartime has no business asking a girl to wait for him, Astaire tries to further Benchley's suit. The heroine doesn't see it that way, and things build up to a gay climax of cross-purposes and misunderstandings.

Two striking dance routines by the two stars, two solo dances by Fred himself and four new hit tunes by Johnny Mercer and Harold Arlen are featured in the picture. "My Shining Hour," "I've Got a Lot in Common With You" and "One for My Baby and One for the Road" are hit song numbers, the music being that of Freddie Slack and his orchestra.

"If it hadn't been for the RED CROSS we wouldn't be alive now!"

"It was the Red Cross parcel that gave us courage..."

"I don't know what we would have done without Red Cross parcels"

"The Red Cross did another great job there..."

HERE is evidence that cannot be denied... unsolicited praise for Red Cross straight from the hearts of repatriated war prisoners, men who have been through it and know from first hand experience just what it is all about.

Thousands of their comrades are still in enemy hands. Help Red Cross bring each one of them back with the same wonderful story to tell, a story of Red Cross light in the very shadow of death.

Over 39% of the money you give is earmarked for prisoners of war. Give generously that this amount will swell to meet the growing need. What we've done is small to what we've yet to do!
