Drive For Road Work

City Council Making Representations to Provincial Government Along Lines of Co-operation With Ottawa

Following receipt of advice from Olof Hanson, M.P., advising that the federal government was prepared to go fifty-fifty with the provincial government, on the cost of rebuilding the section of the Skeena Highway between Kitwanga and Hazelton so that it would be brought up to the standard of the rest of this highway now nearing completion, the city council last night decided to get in touch with the provincial government at once with a view to having the work on this link carried out without delay before the road building equipment in the area is removed.

The council is getting in touch immediately with Premier John Hart, T. D. Pattullo, M.L.A. for Prince Rupert, and all other northern members and is also enlisting the support of all chambers of commerce and other public bodies in the area affected.

To Check Up On Electric Wiring Here

The question of electrical inspection in the city came in for considerable discussion at last night's meeting of the city council, culminating in the decision that Superintendent of Utilities Samuel Massey carry out during the next two months a general inspection of wiring in the No. 1 fire limits area with a view to tightening up from the safety standpoint. Wiring in many old buildings, it was stated, was now overloaded and constituted a fire hazard. The utilities committee had recommended that a full time inspector be employed for such length of time as might be necessary to check existing electrical installations.

WOMAN M.P.'S HOMEWORK

Lady Frances Joan Davidson, Member of British Commons, Knows Something of Ordinary Housewife's Problems

LONDON, June 20 — A woman politician's lot is not a lazy one as Lady Frances Joan Davidson will prove to you any day in the week.

The Conservative viscountess who is a member for Hemel Hempstead, is a housewife as well as a parliamentarian. When her home in Westminster was bombed she moved her family to a country house and now being a rural chatelaine is another of her headaches.

When she first entered the House of Commons in 1937 her children were little more than babies, so she used to wheel the two youngest in a pram to the House and park them with a co-operative policeman who looked after them while the mother got on with her job.

The babies are schoolboys now, but the Davidson home still is packed to the roof. A married daughter with her baby and several small boy evacuees are regular members of the household, an A.T.S. daughter is there for leaves, and the young sons are home for holidays.

Lady Davidson plans all the meals, manages the household, does the shopping and queues up for fish on the way home from the House.

She does her housekeeping before she catches the 8.50 a.m. train to London with her secretary who takes dictation during the hour's journey.

Groceries are picked up on the way home, and before dinner she does most of the putting of the evacuees to bed.

Lady Davidson doesn't feel sorry for herself. "Running a house and bringing up a family is a great advantage to a woman M.P.," she says. "You know what an ordinary housewife's problems are."

LONDON — Frederick W. Brown, solicitor, said in private court he was one of the few practitioners surviving who saw the Law Courts opened by Queen Victoria in 1883.

Rain has muddied the ground.

To Look Into Sewer Outlet

There was a letter before the city council last night from M. A. Burbank, divisional engineer for the Canadian National Railways, placing an estimate of $7500 as the cost of building a 36-inch concrete drain alongside the railway track as a means of carrying off sewerage from a broken line below First Avenue in the neighborhood of the round house. Platforms at Calais Are Guarded by Thousands of Aircraft—Defences Effective

SHEAF, June 20 (CP)—More than 1500 American heavy bombers today simultaneously attacked rocket bomb platforms near Pas de Calais and defences in central Germany ranging from oil refineries to machine and tank plants. A fighter escort, the sky was filled with more than 2000 planes, probably the greatest force in history.

Stockholm reported that 16 Allied bombers made forced landings in Sweden.

Meanwhile ack-ack guns and fighters blasted dozens of the Nazi rocket planes out of the sky overnight and balloon barrages and such defences accounted for others.

The Allies now appear to be getting the range of the new weapon on the sixth day of the "buzz-bomb" blitz. The Nazi kept the robots coming all England today.

BETTER RADIO DEAL SOUGHT

City Council Backs Up Representatives For Direct Hook-Up With National Network

Backing up representations already being made by the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for an early setting up of the local radio station by direct wire connection with the national network, thus representing a pledge that was made over a year ago on behalf of the corporation, the city council last night decided to communicate with Augustus Frigon, general manager of the corporation. The city council also got in touch on the matter with Olof Hanson, M.P. of Skeena, asking that he follow up the matter.

Mr. Alex Sinclair, in moving that the representations of the Chamber of Commerce be supported, expressed the opinion that the commission had been exceedingly slow in meeting its promise to give Prince Rupert direct connection with the network. The consensus of opinion of the council was that Prince Rupert had not been treated fairly in the matter of radio service, and that an improvement had already been overly long deferred.

CEILINGS ON CHERRIES

OTTAWA — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board today announced ceilings on Canadian-grown cherries of all types for the first time and ceiling on imported cherries during the period of July 30 to September 30. The order brings cherries under the same price and mark-up control as now in effect for most other domestic fruits and vegetables. It would result in consumer prices slightly lower than last year.

Gift From Pensioner

Opening Contribution to Pioneers' Home From One of Inmates

Among the first public contributions toward financing a new Pioneers' Home in the city was for $2, turned over to the Daily News by S. B. Caulder, supervisor of the present Home, on behalf of an inmate who preferred to have his name remain unknown.

"The man who gave it is one of four here who receives an old age pension," Mr. Caulder explained. "I think it is a pretty clear indication of how the men themselves feel about getting a new Home."

Mr. Caulder revealed that the pensioners turn in $15 each month to contribute to their keep, retaining the balance for their own uses. Those who have no income are provided for wholly by the city.

None of the men, whose ages range from 56 to 84 years, is able to work. The youngest is a disabled war veteran, afflicted with a nervous disorder from his battle experience. The oldest is bedridden. Among the others is a man who operated the pile driver which helped to build the first wharf on the Prince Rupert waterfront in 1907. He worked on the waterfront for years afterward.

"This island was covered with virgin timber when I first landed here from Vancouver," he recalled.

Another man worked in mines in this district after coming here in 1909. All are extremely interested in the city council's decision to build a new Home.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. (By Dorothy Garbutt)

The Port Edward boys and girls added their bit to the general uplift, morale and entertainment of the troops Sunday night at the "Capitol Theatre" when they put on their G.I. Review called "Stairway to Hollywood." This was a series of skits, gags, and songs and the whole was held together by Walter Morgan, the master of ceremonies. Dressed in an amusing combination of dinner jacket, lumberjack boots and a battered felt hat he wisecracked his way between each number. Introducing the Port Edward Revelairs, an eight-piece orchestra who played their own spot numbers and accompanied the musical numbers, Walter gave way to Carlson, Whitman and Douglas—that's the way they would have been billed in the old vaudeville days—in a neat little skit with a comic denouement. Following upon this Private Johns as a very dark ducky told us about his folks and the time he went b'ar huntin' with the preacher.

Betty Greg, candidate for Queen in the coming carnival, was introduced and asked for the support of the audience.

A nicely staged cabaret scene was the background for some more music by the Revelairs and songs by Joey McInnes and Corporal Webb. During Joey's song several stalwart soldiers in the audience sighed loudly in unison and came near to swooning thus making Joey a female Sinatra. A dramatic rendering of old sob classic, "Brother Can You Spare A Dime" by the versatile Morgan was followed by four boys playing "Are You Nervous in the Service, Mervie?" a boogie woogie number by Sergeant Miller. Those playing were Sergeant Miller, piano, Pte. Brown trumpet, Pte. Carlson, clarinet, and Port Edward's Clark Gable, Yyrone Power and Victor Mature all in one, that little brown-eyed boy on the drums, Johnny Howard from Massachusetts, Boston, I presume? As a finale the crack Drill Squad of Port Edward, under Sergeant Sides, gave a novel and entertaining display of precision and eccentric drill. Those boys could make their muskets sit up and eat out of their hands. And the amazing part was that they took all their orders in what seemed to be a foreign tongue—at least it was intelligible only to the drill squad. The main word, barked at close intervals seemed to be "Hup!" And how they hupped!

The evening was closed by band very courteously played our National Anthem. The Special Services Branch of American Army, to whom give our thanks.

The armed forces are requested by the city to refrain from dumping and rocks on the city streets less they are prepared to adequate repairs. A recommendation to this effect from board of works was adopted.

STRAWBERRIES COMING HERE

Luscious Fruit Makes Appearance—Other Seasonal Lines
The season's first strawberries are expected to arrive in the city this week and retailers are quoted as saying that the prices of 23 cents a basket for the highly perishable fruit, in spite of the fact that growers in the south of the province are experiencing difficulty in getting fruit pickers, an adequate flow of berries is expected to continue for the season.

reduced the price of front quarter cuts. The reason given is that meat retailers experience difficulty in selling front quarter cuts due to a job-sided public demand for the better hind quarter morsels. They are sold out of hind quarter steaks and roasts within a few hours of opening and are then left with nothing but front quarter meat. To distribute the demand more evenly for the whole carcass the Trade Board has raised the prices of hind quarter meat, and lowered it for the front quarters.
