Mrs. Rutherford expressed doubt whether it would be necessary to open all of the new school's six rooms.

Miss E. Gibson and Miss N. E. Smith of the Seal Cove staff will be given positions in other public schools.

Only two members of the Conrad Street staff have been appointed so far. They are Edward Wahl, principal, and Miss M. McDonald, to whom a grade has not yet been allotted.

Dog Makes Jump in His Own Parachute

"There's something of the boy in every man," an airman recently returned home said the other day, "and just as kids love to have a dog as a pet, so servicemen, cut off from so many associations keep a mascot wherever regulations, or circumstances, permit."

There's the story of the crew of a Flying Fortress at a British base and their dog mascot, Lucky.

The crew made a special parachute, oxygen mask and wool-lined jacket for the dog, and then decided during a test flight that it was best to try out the apparatus under favorable conditions. Ambulance officers on the field below stood by, and Lucky was thrown, fully equipped, from the plane at 1,500 feet. The men on the ground were naturally a little apprehensive, but the parachute did not fail, and on landing the "patient" barked and wagged his tail. Lucky had lived up to his name.

A. McCreight won 43 of the 48 seats. Conservatives did better in the election, held in 1939, when they returned 19 members to the legislature.

Fishermen Wait Pinks as Sockeye Season Closes

Salmon fishermen on Naas and Skeena rivers are experiencing a slump as the sockeye run dwindles in its later stages. So far they have not been compensated by the strong run of pinks which is usual at this point of the season.

The Fisheries department announces that Sockeye fishing will close officially the evening of August 18.

So far, fishermen have been unable to determine whether the present scarcity of pinks is the result of a delayed run, or a poor season. They feel that catches at the end of this week and beginning of next week will tell the story.

A fair run of pinks has been reported at Naden Harbor, on Queen Charlotte Islands. Normally the pinks arrive there later than in the Naas and Skeena.

Daily sockeye catches on the two rivers this week are about 20 per boat.

Seal Cove School Will Not Reopen; Children to Attend Conrad Street Classes

The extravagant freedom of midsummer holidays which is embraced by school students between June and September is the precious possession of youth alone. It is not given to adults. Particularly is it not given to members of that pillar of the educational system, the School Board.

Illustrating this verity is the fact that from the time Prince Rupert schools close their doors at the end of June, the School Board finds it needful to begin preparing for the opening of another school term.

Complicating these, preparations this year are the resignations of 14 of the schools' 38 teachers, with the resultant difficulties of replacing them.

Mrs. J. A. Rutherford, School Board Secretary, Told the Daily News that Replacements for all but four of the vacated teaching positions have been appointed.

"However, it looks as though we are running into difficulties now. We have plenty of applications, but none with qualifications as high as we would like. Most of the well qualified teachers who changed their schools have found new ones by now," she said.

Ten of the 14 resignations received by the board came from Booth Memorial High School teachers, two from King Edward and two from Borden Street public schools.

Those who have left Booth are: Miss F. Collison, Miss E. M. Young, Miss M. Johnson, Miss M. Ryan, W. R. Anderson, E. J. Henry, D. G. Bishop, Miss Kay

STEPS TO NEW ERA

A strong advocate for greater unity and co-operation among centres of Central and Northern British Columbia, William Watts urges that with the opening of the Skeena Highway and a closer link with communities east to Prince George, it is now time for boards of trade along the C.N.R. line to meet in convention to discuss common problems and decide on a broad system to assist in the promotion and development of this country.

The Daily News supports this view heartily as it has already advocated that the newly-established highway celebration committees in towns along the railway line to be maintained indefinitely to co-operate in a one-for-all and an all-for-one policy to hasten the prosperity and development of the entire North-central section of British Columbia.

Mere enthusiasm for this country is not sufficient, however.

A Rotarian at luncheon recently brought up sharply two men who were generalizing on the great benefits that would come to Prince Rupert as a result of the new highway.

While not a pessimist, he threw cold water on the unbridled enthusiasm and optimistic views of the others. He cited what Prince Rupert could expect without much effort when peace returned. While open to conviction, he could not be hurried into over enthusiasm about the picture.

His sobering arguments made it clearly evident that a united body, representing all districts in this Northland must be formed immediately to determine what we have here, what we can develop, how it can be done and to lay a framework of steps up which we can all climb to a new era for this potentially wealthy land.

POLISH CHILDREN BECOMING STOICS

The courage and resolution with which the persecuted people of Poland face life in that unhappy country is illustrated in an article by a well known member of the underground reported in "Poland Fights".

"One day in the autumn of 1943 I had occasion to travel on a Warsaw street car. On a nearby bench sat a young woman wearing widow's weeds and accompanied by her blond five-year-old daughter. At one of the stops another woman entered the street car with her four-year-old son. In the struggle to get onto the rear platform (the front of the car being reserved for Germans only) the boy hurt himself and began to cry. My neighbor in black took her small daughter on her lap to make room for the other woman who also took her weeping son on her knee. The little girl looked quietly at the boy and then said to him gravely 'Polish children do not cry.'"

"Silence fell upon the street car. The mother of the girl blushed with pride, the little boy stopped crying and the little girl explained 'So I was taught by my mother when my daddy was killed.'"

Sicilians Now Feel Blissful As They Rebuild After Horror of War

CATANIA, Sicily, Aug. 10 (P)—It takes 90 minutes. The plane leaves Naples about eight in the morning, by 9:30 is at Catania, Sicily. Swiftly, a year ago, war whipped this rich, lovely island up into the maelstrom of modern conflict, spun it furiously, briefly, then as quickly moved on, leaving in its wake a battered land and a reeling, puzzled people.

But war is a long way away from Sicily today. Not so much the war of battles and fronts and fighting, but the war of ruined buildings, of hunger, personal suffering and spiritual torment. The industry of the Sicilian peasant and laborer when working for himself is incredible and his collective effort has returned the country to its peace-time state.

There are few indications of the 1943 campaign around now. Certainly not in the part traversed by the Canadians. There aren't more than 20 pieces of derelict equipment, Allied or enemy, in the fields and roads from the Pachino beaches, through that wide circle to Catania by way of Modica, Vizzini, Caltagirone, Valguarnera, Assoro, Nissoria, Leonforte, Agira, Regalbuto and Adreno. There may be a dozen burnt-out tanks, trucks and guns, no more. On Pachino beach Italian barbed wire emplacements still stand where not cut through or blown up by Canadian landing groups. A burnt-out truck of the Royal Edmonton Regiment is a short way up from the beach, while the front shield of a 17-pounder anti-tank gun is still in the water just a few yards from land. Salvage and cleanup have been thoroughly accomplished.

Officially or otherwise, whether they knew it or not, Canadian and British salvage units were wholeheartedly assisted by Sicilians everywhere. New tool sheds and primitive bits of peasant furniture have been made from Canadian equipment boxes with the name "Casket," code word for the landings, still discernible. Canadian cables, ropes and chains, pick-axes and shovels, have found their ways into Sicilian farms, not to mention untold quantities of military boots, summer drill uniforms and wedge hats in current wear.

Pachino Airport has just delivered up its first grain harvest since 1939. Reconstruction is proceeding apace and in southern parts, where damage was slightest, is completed. Bridges over gaps, streams and rivers are finished, all well-done in stone or brick. Only two bridges of interest to Canadians are incomplete, between Adreno and Regalbuto. One is a large, three-span effort over the Simeto river. Meanwhile, diversions and temporary bridges built by Canadian Corps' Engineers last autumn are still in use.

Pachino, Modica and Caltagirone are cleaned up and damaged rebuilt. Places like Vizzini, Gramicchio, Assoro are also back where they were a year ago—just as dirty. In a direct line between Agira Hill and Mount Etna, is the Canadian Military Cemetery, spread about a hilltop distinguishable for miles around.

Regalbuto and Adreno, two towns badly hit both by shelling and bombs, still lick their sores. But from their rubble order is coming forth. But Catania's life today is blissful. Indeed, so is that of all Sicily, which is forgetting, all too quickly, that just a 90-minute plane ride finds war a neighboring and grim reality.

FOR SHAVING COMFORT YOUR BEST BET IS BLUE GILLETTE BLADES

TED HUSING
—Ace Reporter on Gillette's 'Cavalcade of Sports'— says:

"YOU see, every Blue Gillette Blade fits the Gillette Razor exactly and protects you from the irritation of misfit blades. One reason is that the slot in the Blue Gillette is precisely centered so that the blade's edges are exactly parallel with the razor guard and have just the right degree of exposure. Your razor breezes through your whiskers. No drag! No pull! Your face looks well-groomed and feels refreshed."

I've found I can give up dosing!

"I've found a far better way to correct constipation! One that gives me the kind of lasting relief I've always wanted, and never got, from harsh pills and purgatives. I've tried ever so many, but it's KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly for me from now on."

If your constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, try ALL-BRAN. It gets at the cause of such trouble, supplies "bulk-forming" material needed for easy, natural elimination! Try eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN, 2 sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

ONE MORE REASON WHY—

WE CAN'T HAVE ALL THE GAS WE'D LIKE!

CANADA is able to supply only 15% of her own petroleum needs. The balance must come from the common pool of the United Nations. Seventeen gallons of every twenty used by this country must be imported in the form of crude oil from this barely-adequate petroleum products pool. Six gallons of every ten must be shipped to us by ocean tanker—at the risk of men's lives, at the risk of precious ships.

Today, with great military campaigns in full swing in Europe, in the Pacific, in Asia—every possible tanker is needed to keep up the pressure of attack by the Allied fighting forces. Every drop of this "fighting" gasoline and fuel oil must be carried vast distances across dangerous seas. Tankers must travel slowly in convoy; they must travel circuitous routes; they must return over thousands of miles of submarine-infested oceans, empty.

Today, war is making insatiable demands upon the crude oil resources and transportation facilities of this hemisphere. Here in Canada we dare not ask for quantities of petroleum beyond our bare, essential needs. We cannot justifiably ask for more than we are using now. This is why gasoline stocks on hand in Canada, as of March 31st, this year, were 55,000,000 gallons less than at the start of rationing on April 1st, 1942.

From Canada's total ration must come all the needs of the Dominion's armed services at home, all the needs of our war industry, of agriculture, and of essential transportation. It is not surprising that little is left for other civilian use—for our motor cars and trucks.

Keep these facts before you at all times. Remind yourself that every gallon we can do without means just that much more for the Allied fighting forces—that it means the release of vital tanker transportation to move Victory gasoline and fuel oil to the battlefronts of the world.

Urge Fresh Fruits For Added Health

Fresh fruits in abundant variety are one of the joys of summer.

The Nutrition Division at Ottawa suggests that this is the time of year to go one better than Canada's Food Rules by using two servings of fruit daily (in addition to tomatoes or citrus fruit) rather than one.

They urge fruit with every meal in the day. For a quick dessert that's rich in vitamins, they suggest fresh fruit topped with a soft custard sauce. Or, for a special treat, a good fruity pie.

Women's Corps Needing 5,000

Theatre patrons are being made pleasantly aware of the big job the C.W.A.C. is doing toward increasing the active fighting strength of Canada's army. Army Corps women joined the ranks of Capitol Theatre usherettes yesterday and will continue on through today, as an informative film short is shown, entitled "Badge of Honour" and which is narrated by Raymond Massey, outstanding Canadian actor.

"Five thousand more C.W.A.C. recruits are needed to release fighting men for the front lines. Girls and women, join now." This is the message behind the interesting film, showing how the women are taking over many jobs they have paralleled in peace time and how they are being trained for highly-skilled work.

As a stage musical feature, Miss Mary McAllister, of the C.W.A.C., sang "We're the Girls of the Army Corps" and "Little Gray Home in the West." She was accompanied by Miss Betty Craige at the piano.

DARING WORK—

AERIAL SNAPSHOTS HELP PROVIDE VITAL INFORMATION FOR ARMIES

One of the important elements of modern war is aerial reconnaissance and one of the biggest jobs of the arm of the air force is photography. The methods used today are a far cry from the last war when Royal Air Corps planes, often called "crested together by string and chewing gum," made shaky observation flights over enemy territory.

In the early days of this war reconnaissance photography was carried out by comparatively slow peacetime planes and many of these aircraft failed to return to the home base. To cut down on such losses, a number of the fastest aircraft were turned over for reconnaissance duty. Spitfires were stripped of their armament to increase their speed, fitted with larger gasoline tanks to increase their range, and equipped with automatic cameras.

Before the take-off, a technician adjusts the camera, setting the speed, the lens opening and the time between pictures. The Spitfire pilot proceeds to the section of enemy territory assigned to him, starts the mechanism of the camera by pushing a button on the dashboard. He cruises back and forth over the target until it is all covered, or until the enemy fighters come up to intercept him. Although he is unarmed, the greater height and speed at which he flies makes it possible for him to escape.

Since the first Spitfires soared over their photographic targets, many improvements have been made. The provisions of lenses with larger apertures than ever before, camera mountings designed to reduce the effects of the plane's vibrations, a continuous film developer for all size of film up to nine inches wide are a few of the advantages. Research has also been done in the field of flash photography, using delayed action flash bombs.

With the introduction of night bombing, night photography has become a vital necessity. Bomber Command must know whether or not the pilot has hit his target. In night photography, the target is lit by a flash bomb, timed to go off at a certain height. The glare of the flash falls on a photo-electric cell in the bottom of the aircraft which starts the mechanism of the camera, causing the lens to open.

A number of these improvements in aerial photography have been contributed by Canadian research workers at the National Research Council in Ottawa. Working in close collaboration with the United States and Great Britain, Canada has contributed to the advances in the field of photography.

Music Seen and Heard in Movie Starring Skelton

Music is both seen and heard in the Friday and Saturday film offering of "Bathing Beauty" at the Capitol Theatre.

The tune-spangled M. G. M. technicolor comedy starring Red Skelton and Esther Williams, champion swimming beauty, introduces visual music with Harry James and his band furnishing melodies for an elaborate water ballet sequence. Miss Williams is supported by 32 bathing beauties. As the rhythm of the music changes from sweet to hot, lighting effects within the swimming pool itself change color to harmonize with the mood of the melodies. Music for the picture

SPORT FLASHBACKS

By the Canadian Press

Remember when: Bobby Pearce sculled his way into the limelight 16 years ago with an easy victory over Ken Myers of the United States in the Olympic final at Amsterdam. After cleaning up on the world's amateurs, the Australian turned pro in 1933. He won two Olympic titles and the Diamond Sculls before turning pro.

is also supplied by Xavier Cugat and his Latin American band.

Skelton is at his best in this vehicle and he is ably abetted by the beautiful Miss Williams. The comedian takes the role of a song writer who forgets about his songs when he meets Miss Williams.

It's a fun and melody show that everyone will enjoy.
