After War.

Mayor H. M. Daggett announced this morning that the Department of National Defence had agreed to make changes in the plans of the proposed Young Men's Christian Association war services building here as recommended by the Prince Rupert Civic Centre Association and turn over the building six months after the war at a price to be subject to arbitration.

Asked for a statement this morning in regard to this announcement, Dr. R. G. Large, chairman of the Prince Rupert Civic Centre Association, said that civic centre funds were not being jeopardized in any way and promised a full statement on the whole matter in the near future.

The site of the Y. M. C. A. building, which may some time be part of the local civic centre, is on the west side of McBride Street through from First to Second Avenues with a depth of 135 feet.

This belief carried him more than once into violent opposition with Liberal governments with which he was often otherwise in general agreement.

In 1911 a great crisis faced Sir Clifford Sifton, the owner, Dafoe, the editor, and the Free Press, one which aptly illustrated the perfect relations which existed between them. The great battle of reciprocity with the United States loomed up. Dafoe never for a moment entertained any doubts of the beneficial possibilities of reciprocity for Canada but his friend and employer took a different view. In a series of interviews and speeches Sir Clifford denounced the treaty as perilous to the national future and fatal because of its dependence upon the uncertainties of American politics.

Dafoe meanwhile had taken another line editorially and there resulted the spectacle of a great newspaper vigorously advocating a policy for whose defeat its proprietor was exerting all his energies. Reciprocity was defeated to Sifton's great delight but the issue was never more than a matter of friendly argument between himself and Dafoe.

With the formation of a new government by Prof. Waldemaras, a member of the Nationalist party who became premier and foreign minister, Smetona again stepped aside. It was not for long, however, for when the new government took office the later part of the month, Dr. Grinius resigned and Smetona again was chosen preseident.

The successful coup so enhanced the popularity of Smetona that at a public function in his honor in 1927 a proposal was made, and vigorously applauded, that Lithuania return to the monarchial form of government with Smetona as king. The president frowned upon the suggestion and later was said to have severely reprimanded the one who inaugurated it.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO --

(January 10, 1919)

A board of enquiry sat in Victoria to investigate the sinking of the steamer Princess Sophia in Lynn Canal on October 25 last.

Mayor McClymont presented a year-end report on civic affairs. Highlight of the summary was the sound condition of civic finances following a period of taxation difficulties and high costs during the war.

A meeting was held to organize a branch of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada. Sponsore of the local branch were George Logan and Walter Adams.

A PRESENT FOR THE JAPS Japanese bombers go up in smoke as planes of the U.S. Army 14th Air Force paid a visit to the Shinchiku airdrome, on the northwest coast of the Jap-held island of Formosa, on Nov. 30. The damage seen was accomplished by low-level fighter attack before the bombers made their run.

AUXILIARY HAS BEEN DISBANDED

Little Group of Women Did Excellent Work For Navy Boys Since Beginning of War.

The original local Women's Naval Auxiliary, a comparatively small group of hard and faithful workers, which has functioned since early in the far to provide comfort for men and boys of the naval services locally and abroad, had a final disbandment meeting last night at the home of Mrs. A. L. Holtby, Dunsmuir Street. *

The group has carried out such useful work as looking after sick boys, purchasing a radio for the sick bay at H.M. C.S. Chatham and sending no less than 101 Christmas parcels to local naval boys.

The work which this group has carried on will be continued by the newly formed Women's Auxiliary to the Navy League of Canada with which the most of the members will join up.

The members were Mrs. J.
