City Council Does Not See Eye to Eye on Matter of Returning Japs to Japan

The majority of the city council of Prince Rupert is opposed to advocating the repatriation to Japan following the war of all people of Japanese origin. The issue came up at last night's meeting of the council during consideration of resolutions to approval of a resolution from the Board of Trade and the City of North Vancouver demanding the repatriation of all peoples of Japanese origin, the repatriates to be allowed to take with them to Japan any assets they may have here in Canada.

Ald. McKay moved approval of City Council Asks Government the resolution and Ald. Black seconded. The division resulted as follows:

Beware the Face-Saving . . .

In this hour of rejoicing the Allied peoples have double cause to remain alert, warns The Christian Science Monitor. We dare not allow our assurance of victory to hide the dangers latent in Japanese views of it. Believing we have obtained "unconditional surrender," we shall only at our peril fail to note the ways in which Japan has not surrendered.

It has not given up false pride. The Tokyo radio is saying that the Japanese have been "defeated but not beaten." It is boasting that "what we have accomplished in the war is something unprecedented." And the Emperor in his statement to the people reached an all-time high (or low) in understatement: "The war situation has developed not necessarily to Japan's advantage."

It is easy to smile at this as facesaving and say: "Let them have it. There is no harm in it so long as we can disarm them." But let us remember that Hitler based his drive for German resurgence on the fallacy that Germany never was beaten in 1918.

Japan has not surrendered selfrighteous hypocrisy. Listen to Hirohito's words: "We declared war" the declaration was treacherously timed to follow attack) to "insure Japan's self-preservation" (they really believe that) and "the establishment of East Asia" (establishment is a nicer word than conquest). He has the effrontery to add: "It was far from our thought either to infringe upon the sovereignty of other nations or to embark upon territorial aggrandizement."

We can smile again and remember that all nations have tried to make aggrandizement sound like something else. But repentance is the first step in reform. Such blatant denial of guilt is the plainest sign that reform has not begun.

The Japanese have not given up the ineffable, but vicious, make-believe about the Emperor's divinity. Witness the Domei broadcast describing the people, "honored with the Imperial edict in the sublime palace grounds," scraping and bowing, begging the Emperior to forgive them because their "efforts were not enough." He urges faith in the imperishableness of their "divine land."

Let us remember that emperorworship focuses the fanaticism and superstition which has supported Japanese militarism. Then let us note that the Japanese have not in their own eyes surrendered their emperor. Hirohito puts it baldly this way: "Having been able to save and maintain the structure of the Imperial state, we are always with ye, our good and loyal subjects."

Japan has not surrendered plain and fancy face-saving prevarication. Would it be too fantastic for the Emperor now to hide his approaching role as the Allies' messenger-boy by requesting the attendance and advice of "Shogun MacArthur"? We cannot afford to pass all this off merely as the peculiar Japanese way of adjusting themselves to unpleasant facts. At the least we should make sure there is adjustment to the facts, not a continual denial of them.

According to Hirohito this is the Japanese view of our victory: Japan sought no conquest but only the "emancipation of East Asia." Things went badly-not apparently through any failure of any Japanese-but there will be another time to try. Japan stops now because her enemies have used a "most cruel bomb" and humanitarian Japan wants to prevent "the total extinction of human civilization." This may be face-saving. But it is also arrogant, impenitent lying. We should not let it trick us into hatred. But-we should see that as a foundation for peace it is quicksand.

8. Repair Insulation Insulation on hot water and steam pipes and boiler should be repaired to prevent heat loss in basement. 9. Take Care of Hot.

Water Tank An insulating jacket on your hot water tank will save heat. At frequent intervals drain off any accumulation of sludge through the tap provided. 10. Don't Let Taps Leak

Use hot water sparingly. See that your taps do not leak. This is your warning. If you fail to take it seriously, you and your family may have a cold home next winter.

Bear trails clambering up the mountain,

Marmot whistles where the grey rock sluffs.

The grouse goes snow-shoeing through the slush.

Rabbits hopping through the underbrush,

The fur-bearers, the fisher, one and all,

'Long comes the trapper, bright-eyed, keen,

In her little traps they pinch their toes;

They wear beautiful fur for winter clothes.

She makes little "sets," with good fresh bait;

Has travelled the same trails as the mule deers.

These "something for nothing" animals just can't wait.

With the first flurry of the snow

They all make tracks where they go.

All the little signs by her are seen.

The wily fox for many years

Squirrels running up the trees

Scolds "like heck," at all he sees.

Bear tracks out upon the sandbar;

Great big wolf, tracks like a plate

Down my trail the coyote's been;

Bears seen fishing where the fish are.

Sinking in the sand near the fish he ate.

One winter the tracks of two big lynx

The marten's toes are covered over;

The mink tracks are far more bare,

Down the slough the web-fcot beaver

When for a beaver you make a "set."

Under the water your trap must get.

You must be cunning to deceive her.

The marten you rarely find alive

Of all the fur I love the marten,

The very sight of her does hearten.

The feminine things I love the best;

They are much more dainty than the rest.

For very few hours she does survive.

If so, there pours from out her throat

The strangest little growl to echo about.

Coyote's feet are just the same;

So it is with most of the game.

He has stopped short at each trap he's seen.

She leaves smooth tracks, she's quite a rover.

Climbs up the banks when none should see her.

Chews on the trees with stained orange teeth

With a weight attached to drown the beaver;

Jut above the roots and the boughs beneath.

Led to a set where I'd caught many links.

His toes are naked, there's not even hair.

Start to travel in the fall.

Bear tracks, lumbering down again.

Goat trails running round the bluffs,
