ALASKA CARS OVER HIGHWAY

Three Ketchikan Automobiles Head for Seattle Over Local Road. Three Alaska automobiles headed out today over the Prince Rupert Highway for Seattle, being among the first, if not the first, cars from the territory to essay the trip. One car was that of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Johnson who arrived last week from Ketchikan and have been visiting with Mr. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Johnson, Seventh Ave. E. They plan to take up future residence in Seattle. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Sr., and Mrs. Paul Hanson are driving south with Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Johnson. The other two Alaska cars arrived from Ketchikan on the Prince Rupert last evening. One was that of Ed. Lynch, Ketchikan fish trap operator, and Mrs. Lynch. The other had Mrs. Frank Lloyd, wife of a Ketchikan canneryman, and her son, David.

BODY AND SURVIVORS PASS HERE

Further Account of Incidents at Prince George's Destruction. Verdun McDaniel, 32 year old fireman, who perished in the fire which destroyed the steamer Prince George at Ketchikan last Saturday and whose body was brought here last night on the steamer Prince Rupert bound south, had served five years in the Royal Canadian Air Force, part of the time against the Luftwaffe in Germany. He was for a time stationed at Prince Rupert. McDaniel's cremated remains were recovered from the Prince George by cutting a hole in the side of the ship as it was impossible to otherwise make entry to the stokehold in which he had been trapped. A flag-draped casket contained the remains. McDaniel, whose home was at 3557 West Sixth St., Vancouver, was a fireman first class who joined the crew but two weeks ago.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (C.C.F.)—Mr. Caldwell has issued statement saying his party believes that rationing is necessary and that the government is not doing about it in the right way. Dr. Herbert Ewart, Australian Foreign Minister, Has Something to Say. LONDON, Sept. 28 (C.C.F.)—Australia's External Affairs minister, Dr. Herbert Ewart, demanded that all countries which fought against the Axis, and not merely the Big Five, be given a voice in making the final peace settlements. Dr. Ewart spoke at a news conference as Big Five foreign ministers neared the end of their discussions in London. These talks touched on peace treaties for Italy and the Balkan countries, as well as other questions referred to them by the Big Three at Potsdam, or introduced since the talks began three weeks ago. The Australian minister urged that the Big Five either extend to include all countries whose armed forces contributed to victory over tyranny, or else make clear that the present conference is merely advisory and prelude to a full scale peace conference.

Crisis Over Rationing Meat Coming to Close

Longshoremen Return to Work As Meat Shops Reopen—Representations Being Made for Different Plan. MONTREAL, Sept. 28 (C.C.F.)—Meat stores were reopening in all parts of Montreal today following decision to call off the four-day strike in protest against meat rationing. The waterfront saw its first activity in three days as dock workers trickled back to work. Announcement ending the strike came after a meeting between a strikers' committee and the general manager of Quebec Food Distributors Inc. Stores already open were moderately crowded by housewives who had found meat difficult—at times impossible—to get during the preceding four days. A delegation representing the strikers will go to Ottawa Monday and recommend that a voluntary meat rationing system backed by educational campaign be tried out in the meantime. Police Sergeant Laurent Beaudet, 33, is "showing some improvement" in hospital after suffering a fractured skull in a police-longshoremen clash yesterday in front of the T. Eaton store on St. Catherine Street. Doctors said Beaudet has a good chance of recovery.

LONDON, Sept. 28 (C.C.F.)—Britain, Russia and the United States made an eleventh-hour attempt yesterday to achieve at least a partial decision on the Balkan treaties before adjournment of the first session of the council of foreign ministers. Molotov, conferred on the procedure of drafting treaties for Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria. It was learned later that the Big Five foreign ministers had agreed on French demands for restitution of property stolen by the Germans and which the Russians are said to have taken from Germany as reparations. The British-American-Russian talks resumed today.

Still Shooting . . .

Prayers of thanks followed announcements that the shooting had ended in Europe and the Pacific. Indignation is aroused in many quarters over the shooting that is under way in the woods now the hunting season is on. But there will be nothing but praise for the "shooting" the British Columbia Government Travel Bureau photographers are continuing in some of the more attractive sections of this province soon including the Prince Rupert and Central British Columbia area.

Combining a high sense of artistic with a definite appreciation of educational and entertainment values, that department will be able to capture on film many of the beauties that make this province an area of rich enjoyment for the tourist. The film on this area will doubtless live up to the high standard of excellence achieved in other camera work.

To those British Columbians who would like to see more of their own province, but are unable to cover the ground taken by the photographers, the results of the latter's work is highly gratifying. While many of the films have been widely circulated, a more complete method of making them available to the general public would be greatly appreciated.

Japanese—By One Who Knows

General Jonathan Wainwright has had more than enough opportunity to observe how the Japanese behave when they feel themselves to be master. He feels that the character of the nation is "revealed transparently" by the Japanese soldier. General Wainwright says of this soldier ". . . he is a bully with all of the bully's smallness and love of brute force to impress his authority. He enjoys inflicting pain, both mental and physical, on anyone who lacks the power to strike back."

This soldier, General Wainwright says, "is not a coward but he lacks the generous spirit that gives meaning to courage."

This added point to another of the General's observations, namely that what had impressed him about the Japanese nation was the smallness of its way of life. He said that the Japanese had imitated western ways without absorbing any of the great spirit of progress which had made western powers great.

Wainwright confirms an impression which has grown stronger as the almost daily reports of Japanese atrocities have come from released prisoners of war. This is that the Japanese is a primitive creature—venerated with some knowledge of the outward ways of the civilized world but with no comprehension of the inner forces which these ways express. If such experience as that of General Wainwright determines the mold of Allied policy toward Japan, the future of that nation may well be one of tutelage for generations to come.

THIS AND THAT

"But, darling, can't you wait'll we get home to see the souvenirs I brought you?"

BODY AND SURVIVORS

will be held in Vancouver next Monday.

Officers and men of the Prince George, here last night, were reticent about discussing details of their experiences in the disaster or the circumstances thereof.

Capt. Neil MacLean said that he had doctored his ship in the usual way at Ketchikan and everything seemed to be normal as he took his breakfast. He was in the dining saloon when the fire alarm bells sounded. He proceeded immediately to the bridge and then endeavored to go below again to the scene of the outbreak but was blocked by dense smoke within the ship. Meantime, smoke had started billowing through the grilling between second and third funnels. The skipper lost everything but the uniform in which he stood. He even lost his watch.

Purser Bert Robson was at work in his office when the alarm bells sounded. It seemed no time before the ship was full of smoke and flame.

G. A. McMillan, superintendent of Canadian National Steamships, who was also here aboard the Prince Rupert last night after making an inspection of the wreck, was silent as to possible future plans of the company following the destruction of the Prince George.

There was general agreement, however, on the fact that the Prince George herself is a total loss, probably not even worthy of any salvage whatever. She is now but a twisted, shattered hulk. Only one funnel is left.

Speculation as to future company action ranged from the possibility of borrowing a steamer to supplement service on the coast or speedily building at least one new vessel.

Accompanying Mr. McMillan to Ketchikan were Robert Edmunds of London, England, and Harry Workman, underwriters' representatives; Bernard Allen, manager of the Prince Rupert dry dock, and Robert Cameron, superintendent. All visited the remains of the stricken vessel and made such inspection as was possible.

The round trip passengers who were on the Prince George at the time of the fire and who returned here last night on the Prince Rupert were Lieut. and Mrs. R. Knight of Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cross of Vancouver, Mrs. Florence Dreyer and daughter, Lillian, of Vancouver, and E. Woodward and James Hogg of Prince Rupert.

MICKLEBURGH SEES NEED FOR LABOR GOV'T

Seeing a need for what he termed a "truly labor coalition" government at Victoria, Bruce Mickleburgh, Labor Progressive party candidate for the provincial election in Prince Rupert, struck out at both the Hart-Maitland Coalition and the C.C.F. party in his first public meeting of the campaign last night in Valhalla Hall.

Before an audience of 35 he harked back to the "hungry thirties" to provide background for arguments that the inherent policies of the present coalition government cannot bring about the expansive movements required to put this province in the economic and social forefront.

The C.C.F. he described as "not representative of Labor as a whole," castigating that party for what he termed its failure to unite with the Liberals and Conservatives and form an all-party coalition at Victoria in 1941.

"The Hart-Maitland coalition would not exist without the isolationist attitude of the C.C.F.," Mickleburgh declared. "Claiming to represent labor, it nevertheless refused to give labor a voice in government by joining a war-time coalition."

"In that regard the C.C.F. differed widely from the labor government in England."

Consulting the voting figures in B.C. for the last federal election, Mr. Mickleburgh declared that the totals indicated that the C.C.F. had no possibility of defeating the combined Liberal and Conservative vote but that a party consolidating the full force of the labor vote stood a much better chance of victory.

T. D. Pattullo, Mr. Mickleburgh said, was both "hard-boiled to the members of his own party and reactionary in his approach to the problems of his constituents."

"In the last four years Pattullo has completely failed to represent the people who voted him in to office."

"The election in Prince Rupert boils down to a fight between the Labor Progressives and the C.C.F."

Hon. E. T. Kenney, Hon. H. G. T. Perry and Hon. George Pearson were singled out by Mickleburgh as the most advanced thinkers of the present coalition cabinet. Kenney, Mickleburgh said, "has put up a fight for the north and for good government—in his own way."

"The work of the provincial government rehabilitation committee headed by Mr. Perry was described as a "magnificent document which touched on every problem."

"It was a fine piece of work, but the government has done nothing to implement its recommendations," the speaker said.

Hon. George Pearson was described as "the best labor minister for Labor in Canada."

Chairman of the meeting was Stan Boshier, who gave a brief introductory talk. Collections amounted to $34.75.

figures are 6,729,000 in industry; 470,000 Afs. Waafs, Wrens or nursing services and 80,000 in civil defence as air raid wardens' firewatchers.

Civil defence workers already have been demobilized, uniformed services are now down to little over 400,000 and after V-E Day married or single women with household responsibilities, women wishing to join husbands coming out of the service or women over 60 were permitted to leave industry.

Before the war, he said, the number of women workers was about 4,750,000 as compared with 7,250,000 during the war. He says: "They've had a taste of it now and know what it's like to get their money at the end of a week. Lots of them like it."

Gradual Transition

He said there had been no prediction when compulsory war work would be discontinued and the uniformed services demobilized but that it would be done gradually and would depend on what happened to employment in the next few months.

Among projects proposed to the ministry of labor to help the problem of employing women, he said, was one to make domestic service more attractive by having a union for domestics of better wages and better hours.

During the war, women have held all sorts of jobs and had little choice in the matter.

Those born from 1918 to 1923 were conscripted for either services or munitions work. Others were permitted to volunteer for services but were conscripted for industry with the women's land army as alternative. Whatever jobs they held, from bus conductresses to aircraft workers (and they were all compelled to hold some kind of a job unless they had children under 14 or were physically unfit) they were placed there by the ministry of labor. The spokesman explained: "But if a woman refused to take any of the jobs offered we would direct her to one—serve her with legal notice advising her of the job and telling her to report at a certain place at a given time, or otherwise there would be a $450 fine and three months in prison."

Women physically unfit for such jobs as factory work, he said, were placed in other jobs, such as telephone operators or even bar maids, but this was all done through the ministry of labor.

TRADITION OF TIMES

"Rich, Beautiful Prose" of Feature Has Been Subject of Satires But Carries On

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 28 — Buried on an inside page of The Times, about once a week, is a short item always entitled "The Course of Nature" and always attributed to "a correspondent" who is never named.

Here, if the reader can wade through "fine writing," is the place to find out whether the season for butterflies is good or bad, whether the size of bird families is normal.

"The Course of Nature" has been satirized in many humorous books about reporters on Fleet Street — including Evelyn Waugh's "Scoop"—and overseas newspapermen clip the more flowery efforts as examples of how not to write a news story.

But the nature notes continue, as much a part of The Times tradition as the daily paragraph in which it "announces with regret" the death of prominent persons or its daily list of important "invalids."

"The turtle-dove still turrs, and in tall trees the chaff-chaff keeps up what Andrew Collett has described as its chiming cry, though the chaff-chaff's twin, the willow-wren, is silent save for plaintive notes which suggest a keen anxiety."

So started one recent column, typical of them all. It ended with a north country saying supplied by "Mr. Herbert Sharples" about the cuckoo:

"In April she's coming;
"In May she's in her prime.
"In June she is going;
"And in July she's gone."
"Which," added The Times, "seems to accord better with the cuckoo's very early departure than the more widely accepted rendering, with its unnecessary final warning, "In August go he must."

"The garden is full of the sound of young birds," was the opening sentence of a late-July column. It told how a pair of goldcrests were feeding their young, "ranged neatly in a row along a fir bough and of an almost unbelievable smallness, tinier even than their parents, but with much louder or more penetrating voices."

"The goldcrest's song is the merest whisper, its call-note a high-pitched 'see-see-see' — inaudible to many, but he must be deaf indeed who cannot hear the young goldcrests," said the anonymous writer.

Not Foolproof, However

The "Course of Nature" is not foolproof, however. One column reported that "it is a 'patchy' year for butterflies," with some species not seen again when "after each bright spell there followed an even longer period of wind and cloud and rain."

"Nature herself quickly corrected an erroneous impression," apologized The Times. William Bagzaley had written that in Ruislip Woods, Middlesex, he "saw, perhaps, 40 in an hour, including one specimen (of White Admiral) much darker than the others, almost coal-black."

Now and again there is a modern touch quite out of keeping with the usual presentation. There was the story from Rough-ton Rectory of a red-legged partridge which returned to an apparently deserted nest to hatch successfully a clutch of eggs more than two months old. There must have been raised eyebrows when The Times introduced the story as a case of "delayed-action hatching."

Blackpool Has Eye For Lost Kiddies

BLACKPOOL, Sept. 28 — A lost property office equipped with babies' feeding bottles, tiny chairs, toys and games instead of shelves for parcels has been opened by the Blackpool police for lost children.

So many children were "lost" on the beaches and in the shops that a special house had to be opened beside the police station. Many of the children are claimed within an hour and grateful parents gladly sign on the dotted line that they have received their property back in good order.

NEW GOV'T IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Sept. 28 — Austria has a new government. The Vienna radio has announced that a so-called all-Austrian government has been formed under Dr. Karl Renner, whose previous administration operated only in the Soviet Zone of Occupation. A general election for Austria has been set for November 25.

The Vatican City state was named February 11, 1929.

ACCENT IS ON GLAMOR

Desire For Return to
Models at Couturier Openings
PARIS, Sept. 28 (AP) — French designers have decided that the end of the war means women want to get back into elegant feminine clothes.

This attitude is reflected in almost every dress, particularly the afternoon and evening gowns, shown during the first week of couturier openings here.

Necklines are daringly low, with emphasis on the bustline. Tiny waistlines are dramatized by the use of bustles and full flaring skirts.

Jacques Heim, noted for furs and sports clothes, presents a collection of designs all emphasizing and highlighting the feminine figure. He uses lustrous velvets, satins and rustling taffetas for his more formal clothes and dresses up the suave, simple lines of his well-cut spectator sports clothes with such feminine touches as high pockets, tricky collars and sharp shoulder lines.

Madeleine de Rauch, famous for sports and informal gowns, is hitting the same note. Her collection is rich in plaid, one of the season's most popular materials.

While Heim uses quantities of material in the skirts of his sports clothes, De Rauch places primary interest in decorated pockets and sleeves.

Such designers as Maggy Rouff and Worth are showing clothes which will be wearable and practical during the anticipated rigors of the approaching winter.

Worth's large collection accents the short coat in both cloth and fur. His suits are snug with marvellous moulding over the hips, and wrist-length jackets.

Maggy Rouff, also shows plenty of short coats, with the favorite swagger type seven-eighths length.

She makes interesting use of gowns in adding flare to skirts. The outstanding trend of the entire collection is extravagant use of material in lavish drapes and pleats, all ultra-feminine and flattering. Afternoon and evening clothes place emphasis on bustles which range in size from moderate to huge.

Rouff, like others, favors tunic dresses, particularly in black.

ARE BETTER NEW

"New" potatoes have more tender skins and less starch than old potatoes and are ideal for boiling and for serving creamed, mashed and fried potatoes.

The Experts Say - -

VALUE OF FOOD RULES—It is the steady, even pace that usually wins in the long run. This is especially true of foods needed for good health—for eating the right foods only one day a week does you about as much good as having religion only on Sundays.

For example, Canada's food rules require that a citrus fruit or some other foods supplying vitamin C be eaten every day. The reason for this is that vitamin C cannot be stored by the body to any extent, so that if you eat a large quantity a few days a week the surplus goes to waste and eventually your body is short of this necessary vitamin.

Recent experiments, which may achieve positive progress by next hay fever season, are being carried on to see whether or not the ailment is connected with a lack of vitamin C or faulty utilization of it.

At this time of year, the vitamin C foods to include in the daily diet are tomatoes, citrus fruits, potatoes and vegetables such as cabbage, brussels sprouts and cauliflower.

Skill in handling food is developed these days with meat rationing drawing upon the resourcefulness of all food preparers, because rationing calls not only for careful buying but also for proper cooking.

The Agriculture Department Home Economists say the old-fashioned way of roasting meat in a hot oven and cooking it at a high temperature shrinks it and reduces the number of servings. To get the maximum out of a roast, keep the oven at a moderate temperature, 325 degrees F., to 350 degrees F., during the entire cooking period.

Cook uncovered, fat side up. Do not add water. Add fat to lean roasts and baste occasionally. Place rolled or flat roasts on a rack. Turn rolled roasts every half hour. Dredge the roast with flour and season it before cooking if you like.

Cooking times vary with the meat, thickness, shape of roast, and proportion of bone to fat. Use a reliable timetable for various kinds of meat, taking into consideration these factors and try to get the cooking time exactly right.

Let the cooked roast stand in a warm place for a short time. This makes for more economical carving.

Seasonable Ideas for Housekeepers

Old-Fashioned Thrift Means More and Better Meat Meals

The "roaring twenties" saw a temporary eclipse of the virtue of thrift. In those years prodigality was in fashion and the words "a thrifty housekeeper" carried an implication of meanness.

The war changed all that and plain old-fashioned thrift was restored to its place among the common-sense virtues.

Applied to meat rationing thrift means more and better meat meals within the allowance.

The three recipes following use small amounts of meat to make dishes that are substantial and unusually good.

Corn and Beef Loaf

1 cup soft stale bread crumbs
2 cups corn, cooked and cut from cob, or canned
1 lb. ground raw beef
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Pinch of cloves
Pinch of cinnamon

Reserve 1/2 cup of the bread crumbs. Combine all remaining ingredients. Pat part of the reserved crumbs onto bottom and sides of a greased loaf pan. Add meat mixture and top with remaining crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for one hour. Six servings.

Veal With Noodles

1 1/2 lbs. boneless stewing veal
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
3 cups water
1 cup canned or chopped fresh tomatoes
1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon celery salt
3 cups noodles, 1-inch pieces
1/2 cup sliced onion

Cut veal in cubes, dredge with flour, seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown in hot fat. Add garlic and water, bring to boiling point, cover and simmer for one hour. Add tomatoes, milk, sugar and celery salt and simmer until meat is tender, about 30 minutes longer. Meanwhile cook noodles and onion together in boiling, salted water until tender, about 15 minutes, drain. Serve on a platter surrounded with noodles. Six to eight servings.

Meat Patties With Tomato Sauce
1 lb. ground raw beef
1/2 lb. ground beef liver.
1 small onion

2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 cups mashed potatoes
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons fat
2 cups canned tomatoes

Mix meat, seasonings, potatoes and egg yolk lightly together; shape into 12 patties. Brown on both sides in hot fat then cook slowly until well browned, 8 to 10 minutes. Remove patties to a hot platter. Add tomatoes to pan, bring to a boil and pour over patties. Six servings.

Two London Women Throw Real Party for Faithful Patrons of The Blitz

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP) — Dark memories of the dingy years when sirens wailed and flying bombs fell were wiped away for a group of London women when their grocers threw a party.

And what a party it was! Miss Esther Gibbins of Walworth and her partner, Miss Florence Lee, decided they should do something for the customers who had stuck with them all through the raids. Bright and early one morning 32 women queued outside their grocery store. At nine o'clock the door opened, and in trooped the customers.

They had their ration books but this time they did not mean as much as usual. Out came the glasses. For the faithful customers their was Scotch, gin, rum or beer.

They had a round, plus one for the road. They put on paper hats.

Outside the charabanc driver was loading up 20 cases of beer, ham, egg and corned beef sandwiches. There were cigarettes, too, 20—no less—for each customer.

As the glorious loading went on they had another one—maybe two—"for the road."

First on the bus was Mrs. Lawrence, 54, who had no alarm clock and had been up since 4 a.m., to be sure she would not miss the party.

Off they went to Southend in the charabanc. On the way they had a picnic and another one—perhaps two—"for the road."

There was an accordian along, and the music was fine.

They got right into the swing of things with the other holidayers at Southend. Down on the beach some of them went for a paddle in the shallow water, and one or two even had a real dip.

Then they came home, all tired out and happy, not forgetting the little courtesies to the road.

BOWLER ON WAY OUT

LONDON (AP) — Demobilized servicemen are no longer "reaching for their bowler hats" for the bowler is going out of fashion and the Anthony Eden black felt is unchallenged as headwear for the city worker. The bowler retains its popularity only in Manchester and Birmingham.

REV. MYRWANG SENDS GREETINGS

Rev. J. H. Myrwang of Poulso, Washington, formerly pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Prince Rupert, has written to the Daily News sending regards to his many friends in Prince Rupert and giving news of his family, two of whom are in the American armed services.

"Visiting the city last April made me realize how strongly attached I have become to the community and how many friends we have there. We want to keep alive those contacts so we keep the Daily News as a good medium for those purposes, Rev. Mr. Myrwang writes.

"It appears that from time to time sorrow strikes at the homes of the friends we knew in the years we served at St. Paul's Church. Reports of these are made in the Daily News. We shall continue to remember them all.

"Our son, Haakon, who has been in the war for about three years, came home recently. He has been in the air corps as radio and radar technician, stationed for the last year at Saipan, with a B-29 group. He has flown over Jap territory.

"He expects to be discharged by Christmas. He was given the Air Medal with five clusters, the Distinguished Flying Cross and several battle stars. It is so good to get the boys home again. There are so many who will not come back to their loved ones.

"Our daughter, a trained nurse, is still in the service, being stationed in California. She was commissioned in the Army Nurses' Corps."

A brief farewell talk by D. McE. Lowe in which he advised club members to sing at their meetings and "occasionally forget the troubles of the world" formed part of the program at the regular weekly meeting of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club Thursday.

Mr. Lowe, a former member of the club, has been in the city for the last week as representative of the War Assets Corporation. He left last night for Vancouver. He described the activities of the Rotary Club at St. John's, Newfoundland, where he spent six months as resident engineer with the Navy.

Martin Stuart told of the progress of the children's hospital ward committee of which he is chairman and outlined proposed plans for financing it.

Guests at the meeting were T. E. Taylor, Vancouver; Pilot Officer Stuart Hetherington, T. D. Pattullo, and Sgt. S. Waring of the Canadian Army.

WOMAN TO TRAIN AS AIR ENGINEER

LONDON, Sept. 28 (P)—Dorothy Gwynne, 18, of Coventry, has been awarded the first Army Johnson Scholarship by the Society of British Aircraft Constructors. She will be the first woman in Britain to become an apprentice aero engineer and to receive an engineering scholarship granted by an industry.

Now working as a draughtsman, Miss Gwynne soon will start a four to five year aeronautical engineering course.

Army Johnson, heroine of many lone world flights, died in January 1941, when the plane she was piloting as an Air Transport Auxiliary officer crashed in the Thames estuary.

LOCAL GIRL WEDS U.S. MAJOR

Miss Philomena Murray and Joseph Carew United

The wedding of Miss Philomena Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murray of this city, and Major Joseph A. Carew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Carew of Dubuque, Iowa, was solemnized Wednesday morning at the Pro-Cathedral of the Annunciation, Prince Rupert. Father Carroll read the nuptial mass before the altar adorned with baskets of seasonal flowers. On either side of the altar were lighted candles. The wedding music was played by Miss Frances Moore who also accompanied Sgt. Warren J. Sweeney in singing "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Arthur Murray, was attired in a gold beige gabardine dressmaker suit with violet accessories and carried a white prayer book adorned with orchids and trailing be-ribboned tea roses. Mrs. Stanley McClay of Vancouver, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and was frocked in chartreuse honeymoon crepe afternoon dress and accessories to match. She carried a colonial nosegay of vari-colored carnations. The bride's mother was gowned in a green silk crepe ensemble accented by gold accessories and wore a shoulder corsage of sweetheart roses.

Mr. Carew was attended by Capt. Frederick Rivara and the ushers were Shane Murray, brother of the bride, Capt. Charles Holmes and Capt. Terry Myser. 1/5 Edward J. Kaemmerlin and Sgt. Robert F. Cochran served as attendants at the altar.

In the evening a reception was held in the Officer's Club where many beautiful gifts were displayed. The toast to the bride was proposed by Capt. Rivara and responded to by the groom.

The bride, who was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, has been a resident of this city for many years. The bridegroom was born and educated in Dubuque, Iowa, and has been serving with the U.S. Army for the past four years having been stationed in Prince Rupert since 1942.

Major and Mrs. Carew departed on their honeymoon for Ketchikan and will reside temporarily at 744 Sixth Ave. W. on their return to the city.

Q. When setting the table in what position should the spoons be placed?

A. They should be placed to the right of the plate, and to the right of the knives, with the hollow side of the spoons upward.

Q. Is it good form for a man to smoke in a public vehicle?

A. Yes, unless there is a rule forbidding it, or the smoke is blowing into some other passenger's face.

Q. Is it necessary to acknowledge gifts and cards received during an illness?

A. Yes. If one is too ill to write the notes personally, some member of the family can do it.

A Grand Milk for Babies

NOTHING but milk—good whole milk with only part of the natural water taken out, and all the food value left in—Carnation's a very fine milk for babies.

There are three big reasons... First, it is as nourishing as milk can be—and provides extra "sunshine" vitamin D to help build bones and teeth. Second, it's safe, because it is sealed and sterilized... keeps indefinitely in the unopened can. Third, it's readily digestible because heat-treatment makes it a soft-curd milk.

SHORT SPORT

The possibility of a British rugby team flying to Australia is being discussed by Rugby League officials in the Old Country. James Wilson, league secretary, said that an invitation had been received from Australia to send a side as soon as possible after the war "but naturally there are difficulties in the way of accepting it." Normally for an Australian tour the British team leaves in April and arrives in Sydney in May.

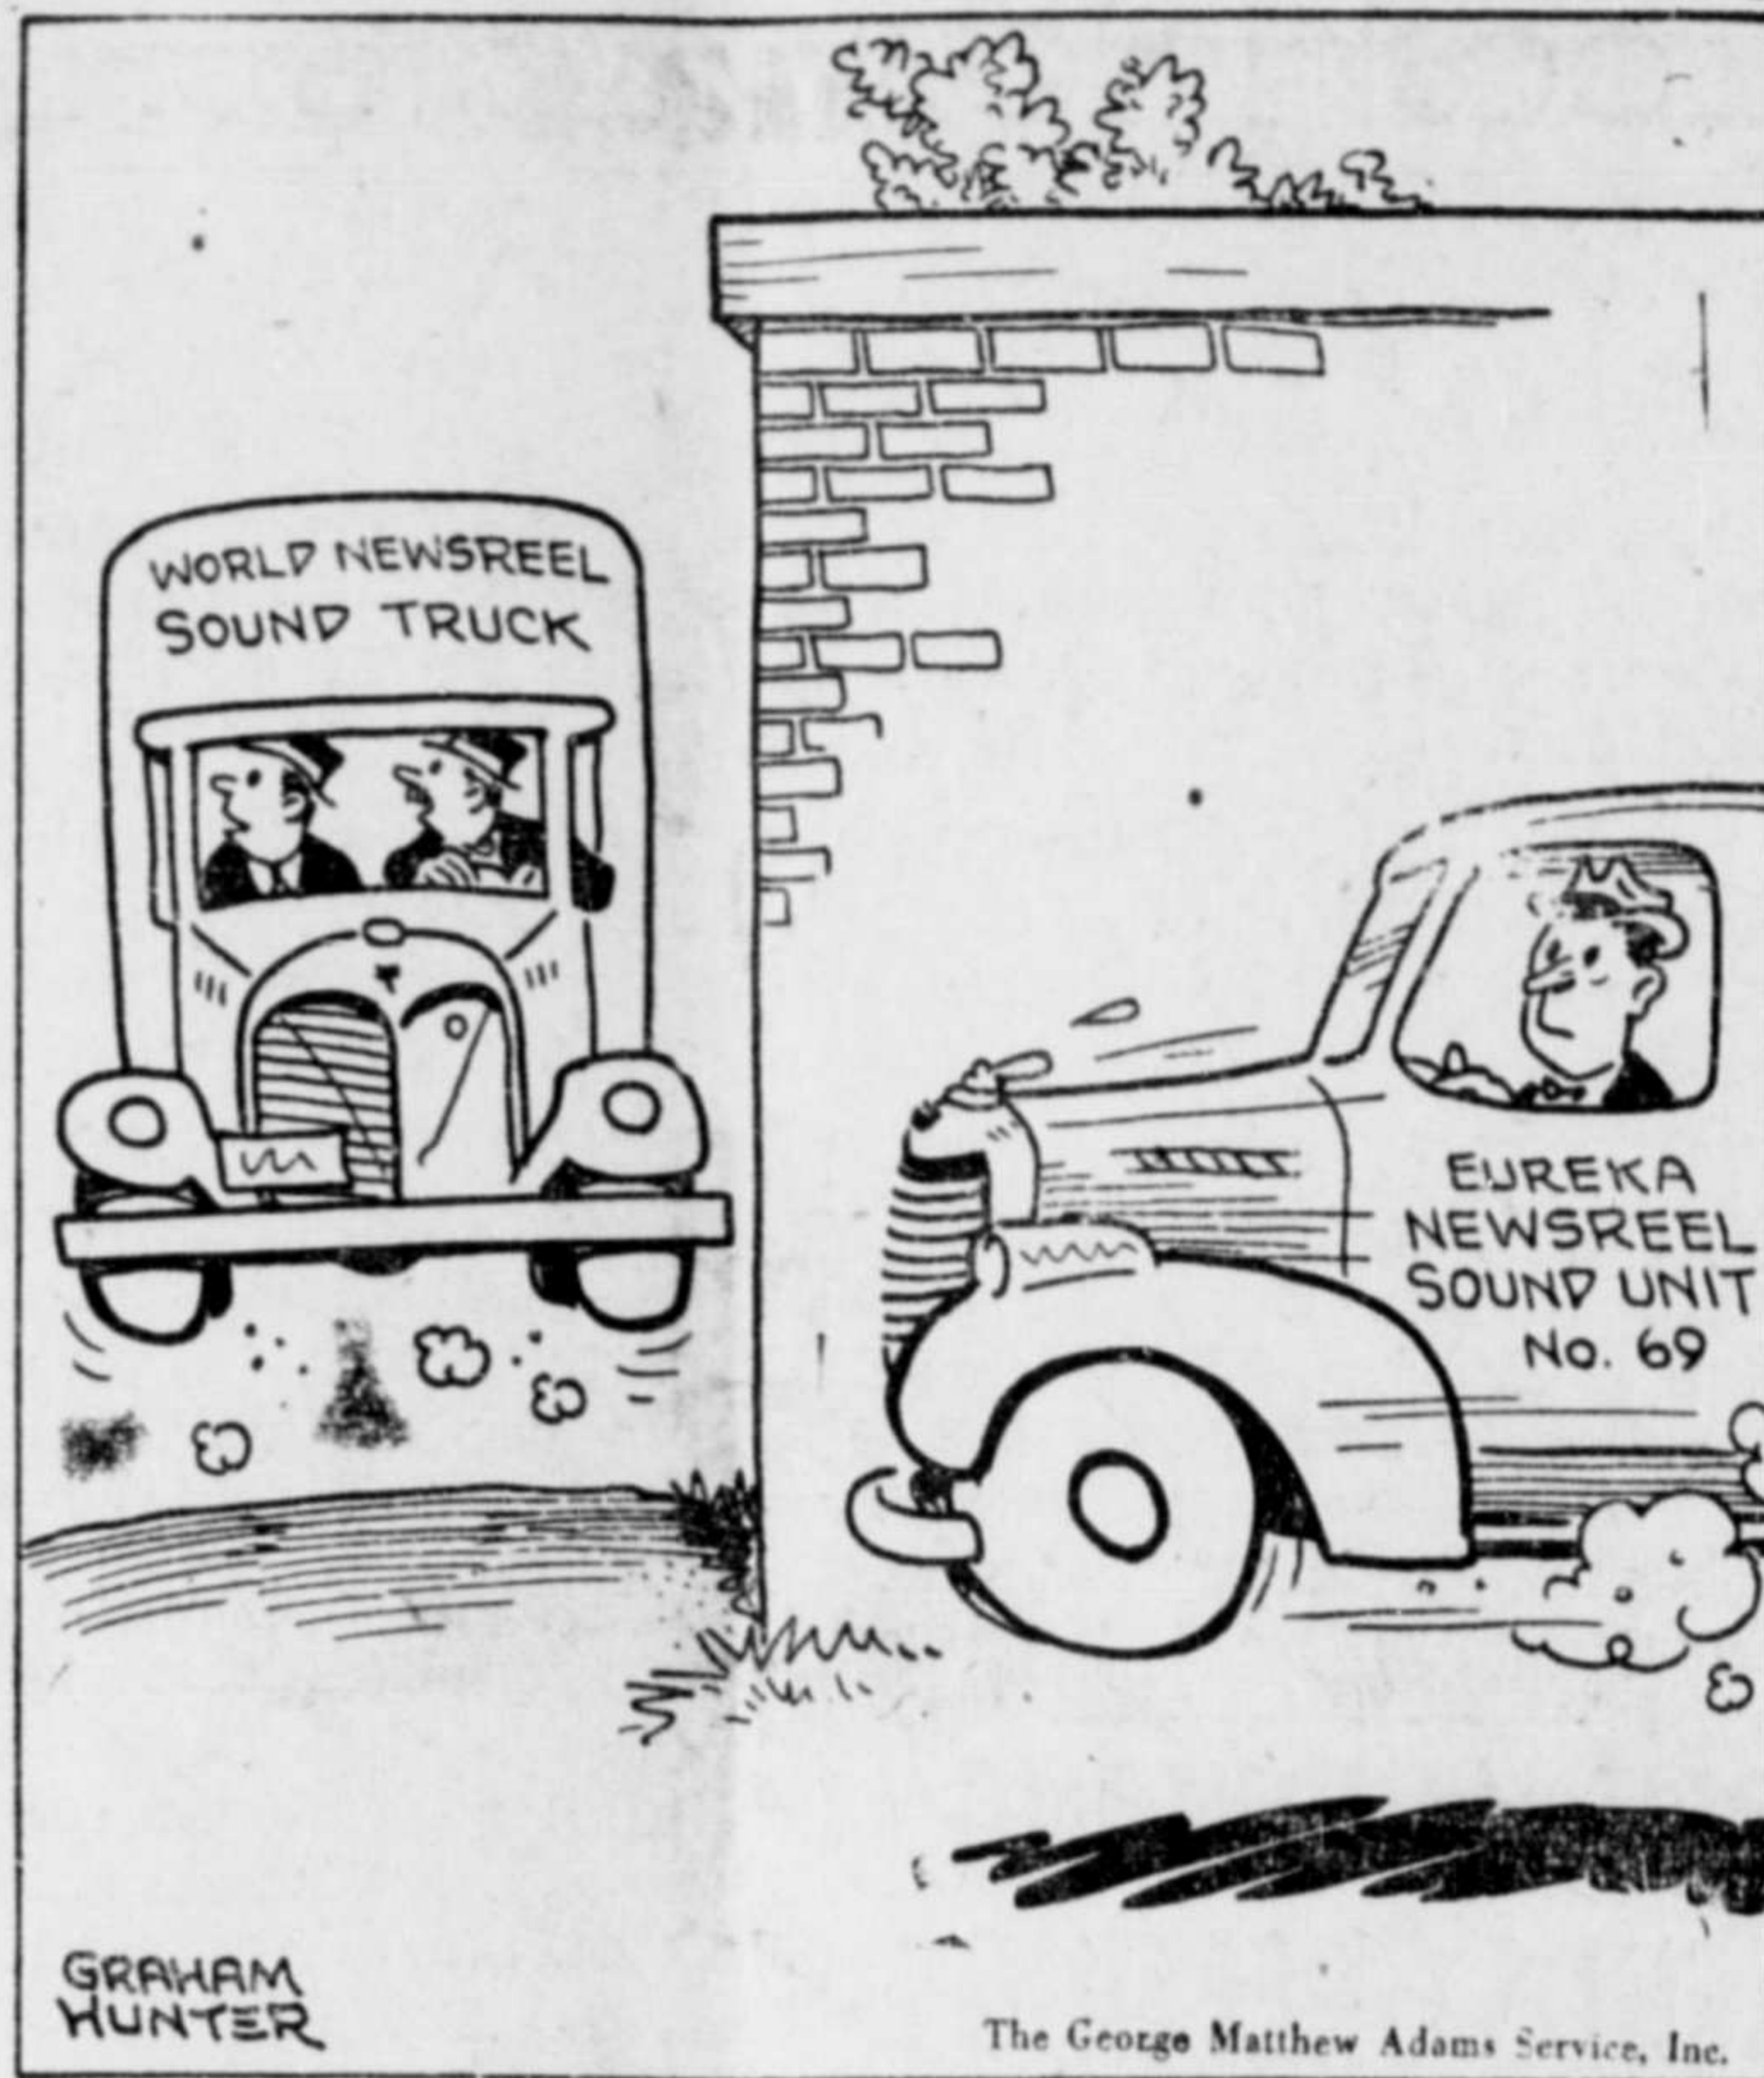

Dorothy Round, last Englishwoman to win the Wimbledon singles title (in 1934 and 1937), has been reinstated as an amateur by the Lawn Tennis Association. Under her married name of Mrs. Douglas Little, she was evacuated to Canada with her baby son in 1940 and while there became a professional. During her coaching travels, accompanied by her son, she lived in a caravan presented to her by the Lake Erie Women's College. She returned to England in the summer of last year and since then has played exhibition matches for charity.

POST-MORTEM FOR SCIENCE

LONDON, Sept. 28 — Lord Dawson of Penn., physician-ordinary to the King, who died in March, directed in his will that a post-mortem of his body be made.

His doctors, however, decided that a post-mortem would serve no useful purpose to science, as he died of pneumonia.

"What Lord Dawson had in mind was obviously that if he had died of some obscure complaint it might have been possible to add to the sum of human knowledge by carrying out a post-mortem," a relative Lord Dawson's will said. He do not sufficiently realize importance of post-mortem examinations being made, at the advantages of knowledge and therefore to future generations, which will thus not be lost. "Modern people do not like to have operations done alive and should not mind operations done with the care, gentleness and reverence being performed on their bodies after death.

"Surely this is a rightfvice which the dead should be the living," the will contai. "The benefit of such serv the living is very great."
