The Borneo Campaign . . .

The Australians are finding their landings on Borneo almost unopposed which is not surprising as the Japanese, having lost command of the sea and air, are condemned to a role of completely passive defence. In so vast a space their garrisons of men must be thin on the ground. Considerable Japanese strength was absorbed on the island at Tarakan off the northeast coast of Borneo, where organized resistance has been overcome. By landing first on Tarakan, then at Brunei and now at Balikpapan, on opposite sides of Borneo, General MacArthur effected surprise.

A sound course for the Japanese forces in Borneo to adopt would be to withdraw into the interior of the island and retain their mobility. So long as they exist they cannot be written off as a potential danger to Allied communications and the oilfields. However, the enemy on Borneo are not likely to be left alone. The Australians have shown themselves past masters in the art of offensive patrolling in the jungle. The Australians now have on their hands operations in four separate areas: The Solomons, New Britain, New Guinea, Borneo. The last of these is a new commitment, the other three are legacies from General MacArthur's earlier operations in Melanesia.

SHADE OF POST-WAR SLUMP UP BEFORE COUNCIL

The shadow of a post-war burden which some B.C. municipalities fear may press down on them as a result of wartime centralization of population entered city council chamber last night in the form of a communication from the municipal council of North Vancouver. Aldermen tabled the matter for later discussion.

"North Vancouver has a large number of wartime housing tenants who were ordered here to work in war industries or who migrated here because of the high wages paid to shipyard workers," the letter states. "There is a similar condition, we understand, in your own municipality."

"The prospect of having to care for these tenants of Wartime Houses after the war is a matter of mutual concern for us both. The war industries have been operated for the mutual benefit of Canada as a whole and this city objects strongly to being placed in the position of responsibility for social assistance for Wartime Housing tenants in the future under the 'Residence and Responsibility Act.'"

The letter asked that Prince Rupert city council support North Vancouver when the matter is presented to the next meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities. Aldermen seemed sympathetic to the idea but tabled the letter until the return of Mayor Daggett.

"It's a big problem and one that we should decide in concerted action with other mun-

ALASKA ROAD

Editor, Daily News.—The people of Northern British Columbia and Alaska have been harping for roads ever since I can remember so I suggest a project that is practical as well as necessary. The people of Alaska and Yukon Territory surely deserve an outlet to the outside world with the shortest route possible. This route should start at Terrace and go up the Kitsumkalum valley by way of Stewart (or nearby) and reach Ketchikan, Juneau, etc., where the most people live.

I think the idea of building roads hundreds of miles through wild forests and mountain divides just to boom some old-established centres is ridiculous. The people of Alaska and the Yukon should urge the governments responsible to act in a more practical manner and put roads where the people actually live.

RALPH HEPPELL, Terrace.

LAWN BOWLERS USE NEW GREEN FOR FIRST TIME

Plans for an official opening of the new green of the C.N.R. Lawn Bowling Club are under way but no definite date has been set for the function. The new greens received their first casual use on Monday after being mowed by energetic club members.

It was the first time that local bowlers had an opportunity to bowl since the old green was torn up to make way for a military warehouse three years ago.

According to club secretary, James Irvine, the lawn was a bit soft due to recent rains, and also somewhat uneven, because of the soil settling, but it is expected to get the green in good shape this summer.

A few members gave it a try-out on Monday, but it was soft," Mr. Irvine said. "However, we expect to have a few games next Sunday. We don't know when the green will be officially opened, but we plan on having some sort of ceremony."

Western Feature Showing at Capitol Theatre Here Today

Swash-buckling adventure-romance, "Gentle Annie," starring James Craig, Donna Reed and Marjorie Main, is the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre today only. It is the screen version of the novel of the same name.

Craig has the part of a two-gun marshal who battles outlawry in colorful Oklahoma territory at the turn of the century. Donna Reed, in the romantic lead opposite Craig, is a high-spirited, resourceful frontier girl. Marjorie Main is the hard-bitten although warm-hearted mother of two bandit sons—Paul Langton and Henry Morgan. Barton McLane, Noah Beery, Morris Ankrum and John Phillips complete the supporting cast.
