PRINCE RUPERT AS IT APPEARS TODAY

OW IT CAN BE SHOWN—The end of war and the suspension of censorship regulations enables the Daily News to publish as a sequel to V-J Day this ealing and attractive picture of downtown Prince Rupert and waterfront. eviously held up by publicity black-out, it depicts graphically the changes e years of warfare have wrought on this port which, in the coming days of peace, is expected to play an everincreasing part in trade and commerce the Pacific theatre. It shows improved and extended waterfront and terinal facilities which will prove useful in that development. In the centre close under the aircraft wing may be seen the enormous warehouse which the United States Army established here for the storing of goods in transit to the Pacific war. Just beyond is the extended and modernized ocean dock which has been under American control since soon after Pearl Harbor. In the immediate foreground is Prince Rupert's Court House building and grounds, long a civic pride while, almost in dead centre, is the fine YMCA war services building which, now the war is over, may soon become the civic centre. Only those who knew Prince Rupert before December 1941 will appreciate from this picture the many changes which it reveals.

Peace, So What? Post-War Future of Prince Rupert Is Moot Question

Entering its peacetime phase Prince Rupert, which had great wartime prosperity, is in for a future of ansion and development but its requirements will be ject to a number of qualifications—some of them tradictory—in the opinions of several city businessand leaders interviewed on the subject of Prince

Fire breaking out in his 50foot yacht Soogwilis forced Dr. R. G. Large and his party to abandon the craft in favor of a lifeboat and row for 12 hours to the nearest haven, Bell Isle Hot Springs, 40 miles north of Ketchikan, it was revealed today.

We have fought for destruction of the principles of which Hirohito has been a defender if not an advocate. Unconditional Surrender . . .

Unconditional surrender and nothing less has been earned by those who lie dead at bloody Japanese hands. It has been earned by the sacrifices of the civilian populace which has given up every non-essential to feed the machine of war with the ammunition and equipment necessary to beat down the enemy. It has been earned by those men and women of Labor who have worked long hours; taxed their own strength and health, and unhaltingly produced the vast fighting needs of our armed forces. They have sought no glory, have asked no special recognition. They will be well repaid only when victory is final and unconditional surrender has ended the Japanese menace.

Vision Needed For Progress

Hugh Killin, president of the Canadian Legion, which is the outstanding non-government body engaged in assisting servicemen to find their place in civilian life here believes that the city will progress or fail according to the amount of vision exercised by the city's businessmen.

"The Legion believes that young men should be given every encouragement to come here. Thousands of veterans are getting discharges in B.C. and they won't all be able to settle in the south. We should get as many of them as possible. Outline business opportunities, guide and assist them until they become established. That will be largely a responsibility of the city, its organizations and businessmen."

His own organization has the confidence of the returning men because it is meeting with success in its efforts to find jobs for them, Mr. Killin said.

"The new veterans seem to come to us first when they are looking for jobs," he added.

What Veterans Themselves Think

Need for some planned program of development and construction in this area is emphasized by the attitudes of returning servicemen who, with army-trained skills at their fingertips, are anxious to put them to use in civilian jobs.

Pte. Roland Bellis, son of Charles Bellis, returned from overseas recently where he served in a Royal Canadian Electrical Mechanical Engineers workshop in Rotterdam. Prior to going overseas he was with the Ordnance Corps at Prince Rupert. He also worked as an acetylene welder at the dry dock.

"I am going to Vancouver this week to get my discharge," he said. "I'd like to know if there are any plans for hydroelectric development in this district. I understand that there are two projects under way around Vancouver and I intend to get a job on one of them if there is nothing planned here."

justification, and even that may be very debateable, for the Japanese being permitted as a proviso to the unconditional surrender terms to retain Emperor Hirohito on the throne. That justification appears to be that, if he consents to act as a puppet for the Allies, he may be of assistance in ensuring a measure of unity and submissiveness among a superstitious people who regard him as a God who is infallible and cannot err. Of course, as he could never be trusted, that being implied by the very fact of his acceptance of a stoogeship under the Allies as he has been under the capitalistic Japanese militarists, it is just ridiculous to talk of allowing him any "prerogatives."

ONLY while flowers are blooming can the busy bee gather the honey which is its food. And so it puts aside a generous supply which is not touched until it is really needed. The bee survives because it is provident. We should take a lesson from the bee. Let us continue to buy Victory Bonds and War Savings Stamps every time we get the opportunity. But most importantlet us keep them until we really need them.

The baseball world was shocked five years ago by the suicide death of Willard Hershberger, 29-year old second-string catcher of the Cincinnati Reds of the National League. Hershberger, serving his third season with the Reds, was apparently despondent over his recent play and was found dead in a downtown Besten hotel.

Two pitchers who played in the Prince Rupert Ladies' Softball League last season enjoying only moderate success, Margaret Morgan of the Allies and Betty Hamilton of Bo-Me-Hi, have proved to be the circuit's outstanding hurlers this year. During the regular schedule Miss Morgan piled up nine victories against one defeat while Miss Hamilton won eight and lost one -a pair of impressive records.

The final standings of the girls' clubs reveals that Allies, counter in the fifth and Navy coached by Master Sergeant Dietsch, and Bo-Me-Hi, coached by Corporal Silverman, finished Only one of the 19 hits made in a tie for first place with nine

The Allies had a good record last year as well as this season, but the Booth team dropped seven games out of ten in 1944, so their achievements this summer have been all the more creditable.

Another improvement can be seen in the Canadian Women's Army Corps club for they won four games this campaign as compared with only one in '44. Rube Sher coaches the C.W.

Three new teams were entered night will see Barrett colliding in the loop this season and two with Port Edward at Port Ed- of these finished the schedule. ward. RAINY WEATHER CURTAILS CITY'S V-J DAY SPORTS

The V-J Day sports program in Prince Rupert was cut short by wet weather but two senior softball teams played 11 innings at Gyro Park before they had to stop on account of rain with the score tied. The baseball games scheduled for Acropolis Hill were cancelled.

At Gyro Park, Navy and 11th Coast Battery met in a suddendeath game to decide which club would enter the Senior Softball League playoffs and when the fixture was halted the score stood at nine-all.

The sailors piled up a lead of 7-0 in the first five innings but the Army athletes tallied three runs in the sixth, four in the seventh and two in the eighth so that only single counters in the seventh and eighth innings by the Navy men kept them from falling behind.

After blowing their big margin, Navy settled down with their hurler, Mousseau, and the second Army moundsman, Larsen, pitching shut-out ball th last three frames.

The score by innings follows: . 004 300 110 00 -11th Coast 000 030 420 00 - 9 Batteries: Navy - Mousseau and Smith:
