Lord George, Britain's First Minister of First World War, Passes Away

Was Fighter All His Life From Youth to Old Age—Personification of British "Will to Win"

LONDON, March 27 (CP)—Earl Lloyd George, Britain's Prime Minister from 1916 to 1922, died at his home in Crickieth, Wales, yesterday. He had been seriously ill since January, having developed following an attack of influenza. He was 82 years of age and had held the Parliamentary seat of for fifty-four years. A lawyer and politician, he was first elected at the age of 27 years. He was elevated to the House of Commons two years ago.

Death of Lloyd George recalled but one of the "Big Four" at Versailles. The others were Woodrow Wilson of the United States, Georges Clemenceau of France and Vittorio Emanuele III of Italy. The last of these is the only one still Lloyd George, a fighter all his life, was at the peak of his power as Prime Minister of Britain during the critical years of the Great War. His "Irish Wizard" was the personification of the will of the British resolve to win the war halfway measures.

Foch said 1917 was a year of both sides. July 1918 was the blackest year of the war; Ludendorff then launched his last offensive. Lloyd George advised the cabinet to accept the terms of the armistice in London and to say: "The victory; we do with it?"

At the end of 1918, he declared that short of victory would compromise the future of the world.

History was won, and in 1919 Lloyd George in his memoirs revealed something of the struggles behind the scenes of the conflicts between military leaders, political ministers, and the public. His memoirs are a storm of controversy, assayed to pierce the veil of admirals, generals, and politicians alike with a pen as only Lloyd George's

Instead, had this still 1915, the policy of the Allies was concentrated on the immediate problems of attack and defence on the western front. Lloyd George himself was tremendously occupied with the great national effort to supply the British armies and the Allies with adequate munitions. But he was never indifferent to the larger problem. In the autumn of 1915 Lloyd George, a hitherto convinced believer in voluntary service, announced his conversion to conscription. The Germans were sweeping through eastern Russia and the Allied armies in the west were still heavily outnumbered by the altogether unexpected size of the manpower of Central Europe. He came out for conscription, and swung the government to his point of view.

In June, 1916, Lord Kitchener the living inspiration of the whole British military effort, met his death when H.M.C.S. Hampshire struck a mine. Lloyd George was called to take his place as war minister. Shortly afterwards the Rumanian disaster brought him to the parting of the ways with Premier Herbert Asquith. Rumania had declared war on Austria and had prematurely marched into Transylvania to be smashed by the German armies from the rear in Bulgaria. Lloyd George had been on the brink of resigning in protest over one policy or another several times since the conflict began, and the new crisis brought things to a head.

On December 1, 1916, he laid his views before Asquith in no uncertain terms. A cabinet crisis developed. Lloyd George was sincerely attached to Asquith, but he remained adamant on the necessity for reform in the administration machinery. He considered a smaller, stronger authority absolutely necessary for successful conduct of the war. He was willing to give the prime minister final control but demanded that day to day conduct of hostilities be placed under a tight little committee.

Asquith received authority from the King to form a new government but his first conviction was that he himself as prime minister must be chairman of the new war committee that Lloyd George had convinced everybody must be established. Lloyd George resigned. Andrew Bonar Law was the logical choice for the premiership, but the Canadian had no parliamentary majority.

The King sent for Lloyd George and he accepted. Most of the powerful figures of the Conservative party followed the lead of Bonar Law in submerging political considerations to the

JUST PLAIN ELIZABETH

Heir to Throne is Styled Elizabeth Windsor in Official A. T. S. Records
LONDON, March 27 (CP)—Second Subaltern Elizabeth Windsor of the Auxiliary Territorial Services will be plain "Ma'am" to her subordinates and sleep in a camp bed like any other girl in the forces—but she's the heir to the throne of England. Outside the A. T. S. she is Princess Elizabeth and she will take her training at a big camp somewhere in Southern England. Headquarters said the princess will live in the same conditions as any other officer of her rank in the camp to which she is posted. She will share the ordinary life of the mess and will be dependent on her senior officers for any privileges she may seek. But these privileges will be few, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said, because "the princess wishes to throw herself heart and soul into this job." "In this she is not only fulfilling her own desire but also that of the King and Queen." Princess Elizabeth's reasons for joining the A.T.S. were termed "purely personal." For many years she has shown partiality for this branch of the services. On the official entry form she is shown simply as "Elizabeth Windsor." She will take any parades which may be arranged in the usual routine and participate in all the ordinary work of her unit.

Enemy Lines Are Smashed in Massive Defeat--Eisenhower

ONE-MAN SEWING BEE—L/Cpl. M. B. Keith's sewing room is the Hochwald and his sewing machine is one that has just been liberated from the task of sewing up Nazi clothing. L/Cpl. Keith is an American serving with the First Canadian Army as a member of a famous Canadian regiment.

American Tanks Less Than 224 Miles From Berlin

PARIS, March 27 (CP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower declared today that main German defence line in the west has been broken and that the enemy has suffered a defeat which he cannot afford. He said that he believes there would be no negotiated surrender when the Allies from the west link up with the Russian armies. American tanks burst into the open plains of middle Germany less than 221 miles from Berlin today through enemy lines which Eisenhower declared have been broken in a massive defeat. The massed Allied armies are in sight of ultimate victory, Eisenhower declared.

PARIS, March 27 (CP)—Seven Allied armies are crashing forward in Germany today on a front 200 miles long—from Wesel to Karlsruhe. Exact progress of the drive is veiled in a security silence. Every army undoubtedly is far beyond its last announced positions but, in order to keep the Germans baffled,

NEW MANAGER FOR CAPITOL

Harry Black Has Been Active in Community Affairs at Pentiction Whence He Comes

General Eisenhower is not broadcasting the latest gains.

The American Seventh Army has crossed the Rhine but the point of the new crossing has not been disclosed. The enemy says the Seventh went over the river barrier just north of the French border and that the Americans now are fighting on the approaches to Karlsruhe.

To the north of the Seventh Army front, the American Third Army is placed unofficially at a point seventy miles beyond the Rhine.

London morning newspapers carry unconfirmed accounts that Third Army units are seventy miles beyond the Rhine in the Wuerzburg area. A London broadcast quotes an enemy dispatch as saying that other Allied spearheads are driving towards Fulda, 54 miles north-east of Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

Frankfurt itself is said to be imperilled by Third Army tanks. Elements of the Third Army are reported to have nosed their way into Frankfurt's rubble-strewn streets. Miles of the city are in ruins in the wake of Allied bombings.

Further up the line, the American First Army has reached Hachenburg, 35 miles due east of the Rhine. The First Army now is 247 miles from Berlin.

A partial news blackout hides the story of Field Marshal Montgomery's operations. According to latest word, the American Ninth Army is in the outskirts of Sterkrade, northwest of Essen. Other columns are fighting inside the river bank city of Duisburg.

The British Second Army has encountered resistance from Nazi Panzer units in the Wesel area. Canadian First Army regiments fighting in their usual left-flank East Rhine bridgehead positions are meeting strong Nazi opposition. Elements of the Nazi Eighth Parachute Division, the Fifteenth Panzer Grenadiers, and the German Sixth Division are opposing the Canadians with fanatical fury. Despite this, the Canadians have taken Bienen and have pushed on.

Mrs. Black is a past president of the Pentiction Parent-Teachers' Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Black have three children—Miss Betty Black, nurse in training at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria; Larry Black, an apprentice on the staff of the Canadian General Electric Co. at Peterborough, Ont., and Wanda Black at home.

Rev. M. B. Anderson, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Prince Rupert, will arrive in Terrace tonight and conduct a service in the Anglican Church on Wednesday night for the local Norwegian community. There will be a baptism.

Constable Ernest Bradley of the B.C. Police, Massett, is in the city on official business from the Islands. He expects to return home today.

Earl Lloyd George . . .

A tangled career that ranged from a local political fight over the right to bury non-conformists in a Welsh parish churchyard, up to leadership of the British Empire in the world war and down to management of the bickering remnants of a once dominant political party, made David Lloyd George one of the world's most picturesque public personages.

His rare personal charm, unusual gifts of eloquence and steady faith in the right as he saw it endeared him to his public. His unconquerable will, great courage and willingness to fight to the bitter end were contributors to this, but in his declining years they served also to speed the reaction that alienated scores of thousands of voters and led able lieutenants to abandon the party standard.

Always an advocate of the people's rights, he was denounced by the Tories up to the beginning of the world war as "the evil genius of England; the man who is leading the country to ruin." After his coalition government disintegrated in post-war days, his opponents said, "He won the war, but lost the peace."

When "V-E" Day Comes . . .

We should be observing "Victory in Europe Day" at any time now. After five years and more of conflict in that area in which we Canadians have been so directly interested, it will be an occasion for due rejoicing. It should be sober, thoughtful thanksgiving, however, and not the signal for careless excess and abandon. We will be justified in manifesting our appreciation and jubilation in controlled degree that half of our battle is over. Thoughts of the tragic losses we have sustained in the defeating of Germany and reflection that we still have unconquered another enemy to whom our concentrated attention must be turned and who may cause us further painful losses should temper our celebration and keep us within due bounds when "V-E" day comes. This war has been too serious a business to let ourselves go in unbridled licence and boisterousness in marking its culminating phases. When the occasion comes we would do well to mark it in that spirit.

L.-P. Meeting—

Future of Pr. Rupert

Is Tied Up to World Development, Local Candidate Declares

The future of Prince Rupert and northwestern British Columbia is inextricably bound up with the progress of the whole world and, if its people have faith in the prospects of peace and prosperity laid down by the three great world leaders, this country will move forward.

Bruce Mickleburgh, youthful Labor-Progressive federal candidate, accentuated this theme at a public meeting in the Oddfellows' hall Sunday night when he shared the platform with Tom McEwen, party organizer and L.P.P. candidate for the Yukon.

He scored people who talked as if it were inevitable that this city should return after the war to the condition in which it existed in 1939.

"In spite of those defeatists, Prince Rupert need not go back," he asserted. "There is nothing in the laws of history which make that necessary. However, it is up to us whether or not we go back to pre-war conditions."

"I cannot see how anyone can imagine that the world is the same now as it was before the war," he continued. "The United Nations are a positive force bent on striking at the very roots from which Fascism and reaction sprang."

"The problem of jobs for the people is not one for Prince Rupert alone. It is the problem of all men. We must take part in the international struggle and translate it into local terms."

Prince Rupert has received only 1.46 per cent of the ship contracts let on the Pacific coast. The closing of the shipyards here would be a major blow to the city, Mr. Mickleburgh said. The government was not aware of the prospects of the territory.

"The future of northwestern B.C. lies in planned regional development and international trade across the North Pacific must play an important part in it."

He accused the C.C.F. of carrying an isolationist viewpoint among the people, denying the international aspect of Canada's future development.

Strong Appeal For Unity

Tom McEwen launched a strong appeal for unity in Canada based on the philosophy of world progress developed by Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt at Teheran and Yalta.

"The political picture of Canada is like a crazy quilt—all patchwork. The country cries for unity. Countries which have been overrun by the Nazis and later liberated find little difficulty in achieving unity to create new democratic forms of government," he declared.

"Canada's future," he said, "no longer hinges on political parties. It is a question of policies and men."

The Progressive-Conservative party he disposed of with the statement that any candidate who had taken it on himself to carry the standard of Toryism had done himself badly.

"No enlightened man would carry it in the face of the record of international Toryism," he declared.

The C.C.F. came under criticism as having tried to "split Labor down the middle" by attempting to "hitch the labor unions to their party."

"The strike is no longer a necessary weapon of labor, but has been replaced by collective bargaining," he said.

He suggested that the unions of Prince Rupert hold collective discussions on methods necessary to keep the dry dock in full operation, and submit their ideas to the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations for support.

A collection during the evening yielded $51.

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER PASSES

supreme issue of the conduct of the war, accepting the leadership of the Welsh Radical, Lloyd George then won over the Labor party.

The new year, 1917, brought bitter disappointments to the new premier and the British people. Russia collapsed and the Red revolution followed. Argument was still poignant over the Hindenburg Line in front of Cambrai, entrusted to Sir Julian Byng, later governor-general of Canada, was another disappointment, and the Italian disaster at Caporetto crowded on its heels.

Lloyd George, now central figure of the entire Allied effort, never wavered. The last year of the Great War opened and within a few months the outlook was grave indeed for the Weisman and the Empire. It was not until August that the turning point came. Ludendorff called August 3 the "black day" of the German army. The Canadians were in the spearhead of the decisive attack on the Somme that day and the whole Allied front was soon advancing steadily. The armistice was signed at 5 a.m.

In the "Y" Gymnasium

Soo Suds will meet Acropolis Hill Wednesday at the "Y" in a single sudden death semi-final game. The winner will meet Navy for the right to play Port Edward for the area championship. Soo Suds have been practising diligently and hope to upset the powerful Acropolis team.

Hockey fixtures tonight at the "Y" will finish the first half of the Area League. Navy meets 29th Regiment in the first game while Fortress and Soo Suds tangle in the second game. Both games are important to Fortress and Twenty-Ninth for third position in the league—the last play-off position. Fortress is now one point up on 29th but a 29th win and Fortress loss would reverse the standing. Air Force has clinched the top standing with 16 points while Navy is sure of second place with nine points. The play-offs commence Thursday between Navy and the third place team in a two game goals to count series. The second game will be played Saturday night. The winner of this series will meet the Airmen in a 2 out of 3 series for the championship next week.

Lloyd George played a subdued role in the second great conflict, but his eloquent voice, practical judgment and unflinching integrity helped to shape the government's pattern.

As the nation's chief elder statesman, he had the ear of the policy makers at Downing St., and he still was sufficiently vigorous and compelling to sway his audiences.

His uncompromising directness of purpose then, his insistence upon the absolute defeat of the central powers, invited comparison with Winston Churchill's embodiment or arouse Anglo-Saxon spirit after the tragic debacle of 1940.

He devoted his last years mainly to the composition of a history of the parliamentary seat for the in Wales, which he first won in 1890, but it was a farmer, campaigning for increased production of farms of Britain that he knew him best.

He remained a formidable adversary whenever agitated the House of Commons. Historians of the future will place in their own momentous criticisms of the 1940 parliamentary debate over the expedition to Norway. The war was dark. It was Lloyd George of old who then came forward with a new newspaper writer alone pierced Neville Chamberlain's personal armor and him to visit the King and his seals despite his parliamentary majority.

He had, in fact, condemned policies of Chamberlain, and repeatedly the Chamberlain with a complacency and adequacy in his military commitments that might have cost the country.

Churchill's regime was itly more to his credit. Lloyd George jabbed it then, but his criticisms and in no way impaired the friendship between the statesmen.

The GARDEN

First Vegetables

The very first vegetables to be sown outside will be lettuce radish, spinach and garden peas. The first sowings of these can go in just as soon as the soil has dried sufficiently so that it will work up without turning to mud. Almost as soon as the kinds mentioned above will be the first carrots, beets and onions. Later will be the first potatoes and beans. Make at least three sowings of all vegetables two weeks apart and even more if season and location are favorable. Use early, medium and late varieties.

BLACKHEADS
Don't squeeze blackheads—dissolve them. Get two ounces of peroxide powder from any drug store and apply gently with wet, hot cloth over blackheads. They dissolve and disappear by this safe simple method.

: Family Allowances :

Question: Will family allowance be paid for a child above the age of six not attending school?
Answer: Under the Family Allowance Act, the allowance is not payable in respect of a child who, being above the age of six years and physically fit to attend school, fails to attend school or receive the equivalent training.

Question: Are adopted children covered?
Answer: Yes, in fact there need not be any legal adoption, just confirmation that the parent or other relative or person is actually maintaining the child.

Question: Do children in institutions receive family allowances?
Answer: No. The purpose of the Act is to help parents provide for the health and welfare of their children, not to relieve institutions of their responsibilities. However, where a parent is supporting a child in an institution, the family allowance will be paid.

Question: Will family allowances be paid to people who are already receiving mothers' allowances, dependents allowances, war pensions, unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation?
Answer: Yes.

HEALTH UNIT MOVIE HERE

Many residents of Prince Rupert and district will have the opportunity of seeing themselves as others see them when "A Test in Time" motion picture presented by the local Health Unit is shown at the Capitol Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Produced by Dr. R. G. Knipe, medical health officer, the film was directed by Bob Willett of the CBC who also does the narration. Photography is by W. T. Davis.

"A Test in Time" has an introductory sequence in natural color showing lumbering, canning, shipbuilding and other industries of this region. The audience is then taken on a visit to the Health Unit where various members of the staff are seen busily carrying out their many duties.

A Health Unit nurse goes to the hospital and also drops into a wartime house to supervise the bathing of a brand new baby. Several juvenile stars shine when the camera covers activities at one of the weekly baby clinics. The school nurse makes a classroom inspection at Conrad Street School. The sanitary inspector is shown at a city restaurant and a country dairy as well as at the chlorinating plant. More hospital scenes show laboratory work and x-ray testing for tuberculosis.

Many agencies which assist the health unit's work are also portrayed and Dr. Knipe gives an outline of future plans for the district and explains the activities of health units across Canada.

LOCAL TEAM WAS FETED

Prince Rupert Co-op basketball team returned from Smithers at the week-end after losing two games in a three-game hoop series, but winning the friendship of the interior town.

They were treated royally, the boys averred. Their visit was climaxed by a banquet at the Bulkley hotel given by Watts and Nickerson at which Bill Bacon made a speech of appreciation at the "hospitable way in which the visitors were received."

Len Evans, president of the Smithers Athletic club responded, saying that his club welcomed such sportsmanlike in-

PLANS FOR INVASION

CAPE TOWN, S. A.—A remarkable collection of maps and guidebooks prepared by the Germans for an invasion of the British Isles is now in the possession of Prime Minister J. C. Smuts. This blueprint of the invasion which never came off was found in a garage in Brussels during the dash through Belgium to Holland by the British Second Army.

vations and hoped that more could be arranged in future. Prince Rupert lost the final game in the series by a score 39-37.

Those making the trip were R. Holkestad, A. Arneson, N. Sheppard, B. Pierce, M. Teng, R. Menzies, J. Haugan, Fred Le-land and Coach Bill Bacon.

FLOOR HOCKEY CATCHES FANCY

By JAMES A. WARDELL

The war has brought to the fore many sports such as basketball, soccer, swimming, softball, etc., but the one sport which has remained in the background until the last year is Floor Hockey or, to say it with a Navy accent, Deck Hockey. This particular sport has gathered interest like a rolling snowball and is out-drawing some of the more well known games. The keen spirit of the players and the fast checking with many spills has caught the fancy of the spectators and players alike.

With the three services entering fast hard-hitting teams a real interesting league has developed. At present the R.C.A.F. have the lead with the Navy team hot on their tail. When these two teams get together a real exciting game is guaranteed.

The next games will be played in the local Y.M.C.A. gym tonight, Navy vs. 29th and Soo Suds vs. Fortress.

In the Navy home games, played in the Naval Drill Hall, extra entertainment is being provided between the playing periods, so that a good evening is assured.

Meteors are relatively small stores of rock swept up by the earth as it revolves around the sun.

Albert Mah Is in City

Captain Albert Mah, veteran China National Aviation Company pilot, arrived in the city Sunday to visit members of his family. He has been on a leisurely trip across the continent since he landed in New York last December.

The 24-year-old flier made more than 400 crossings of the Himalaya peaks between India and China in eight months as a transport pilot. Part of the time he was engaged in flying supplies to jungle troops in Burma.

He spoke casually of his job, as though it were not one of the world's most dangerous flying assignments. He did admit, however, that losses of planes and crews were high. Greatest percentage of the losses was due to the treacherous weather and jagged mountain peaks. More than half the planes lost were never accounted for, he said.

Last September the young flier made a journey on foot and by boat and bicycle to the coastal fringe of occupied China to visit his mother, three sisters and brother near Canton. He returned from the trip with his 14-year-old sister, Bernice, who is now living with other members of the family in Prince Rupert.

Questioned as to the route of his journey, he hesitated to use the names of cities.

"An American correspondent, Arthur Grayenurst, interviewed Tommy Harmon, the former football champion, and myself in China last year. Harmon had crash-landed in Burma, and the name of the village which protected him was given. Later the Japs killed 50 villagers in reprisal," he said.

A transport carrying a cargo of 600 gallons of gasoline into China for American fighter and bombing planes there used 822 gallons of high octane gasoline to make the return trip, the pilot said when questioned on the costs of air transport into China.

His lumbering Douglas DC 3 transport plane has been attacked by Japanese fighters. Once, over Burma, he was passing through a clear area 40 miles across when a Zero dove on him from 20,000 feet. With a cargo of troops he put the heavily loaded plane into evasive action. When the Jap tried to line him into his sights Capt. Mah dove the transport at a steep angle, and when he recovered, American fighter planes were taking care of the Jap.

"I pretty near got it that time," he chuckled.

Captain Mah said that one of his greatest surprises came when he was visiting his mother near Canton.

"She brought out a huge .45 calibre revolver which she used to frighten off robbers. To see my meek little mother with a gun almost floored me," he recalled.

Due to famine and the Japanese invasion, robbery is common in China, although robbers usually suffer the death penalty, he said.
