Prince Rupert and P.G.E.

ATURALLY from a purely sectional standpoint, Prince Rupert is interested in seeing a railway outlet for the Peace River district have its jumping-off point as far west as possible on the Smithers division of the Canadian National Railways. We have kept pounding along these lines for years but seemingly with little in the way of definite results. There has even been delay which has irritated us considerably in the implementing of a pledge made two or three years ago by Premier John Hart that a survey would be undertaken of the Hazelton route for a connection with the Alaska Highway.

The latest to come out definitely in support of he policy of extending the Pacific Great Eastern Railway through Prince George into the Peace River country is no less a person than Hon. E. T. Konney, minister of lands and forests and Member of the Legislature for Skeena. Of course, Mr. Kenney could hardly be expected not to support the government-accepted policy on this matter. At the same time he has to govern himself as a minister of the crown and consider all questions in the provincial perspective, compatible, of course, with the reasonably due interests of his own riding. As far as we Prince Rupert people are concerned, we may not enthuse unduly over the extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway into the Peace River, thereby dividing outlet honors and opportunities equally between Vancouver and Prince Rupert. On the other hand, it is difficult was just another calendar mark to oppose the said extension. The government is committed to it so we might as well accept the situation and feel at least some satisfaction that an outlet tapping our railway at Prince George will be a good deal better than what we have at present and is bound to be of some benefit to us. Prince George is more than half again as close as Edmonton even if it is about equidistant from Vancouver and Prince Rupert. It is difficult to ignore or refute the logic of extending the Pacific Great Eastern in the interests of British Columbia in general and the central and northern interior Monday. in particular.

Government Idea to Help All Central and Northern British Columbia

The Pacific Great Eastern Railway is not being extended to benefit any particular port but rather to develop the central interior and the northern portion of the province. The port of Prince Rupert, in order to justify its claim as the logical outlet for the Peace River section, should place facilities at the disposal tary.

of shippers to handle products.*-

Prince Rupert is in a "very pre- issaries being active in securferred" position but it is up to a port to establish its capacity to handle commodities and to be active in endeavouring to secure tonnage of commodities which can be economically handled. Such was the burden of comweek by Hon. E. T. Kenney, minister of lands and forests and M.L.A. for Skeena, in the budget debate in the Legislature when the port of Prince Rupert wa much to the fore.

FEW SNAKES ON ST. PAT'S DAY

To many Canadians Monday in the progress of time but to the Irish, and even those who claim remote connection with an Irish background, it was a semi-sacred ccasion dedicated to St. Patrick who instituted a snake round-up some time back.

While it is not even hinted that the occasional Irishman has not seen snakes since that ime, St. Patrick's Day, 1947, seems to have enjoyed dignified observance, with things running about the same as any other The logical result of combining blue Monday with the traditional green of St. Patrick's Day with any degree of seriousness probably would be a washed-out yellow, which few, including the Irish, care to court so early in the week. So, except for a few inoccu-

Mr. Kenney spoke as follows: "The honorable member from Prince Rupert expressed concern over the fact that Prince Rupert was the logical outlet for the Peace River section.

"I share this view with him but would also remind him that the port of Prince Rupert must, in order to justify its claim, place facilities at the disposal of shippers to handle such products. It is true that there is a fine elevator there of 1,250,000 bushels capacity and I see no reason why they should not handle a major portion of the wheat crop originating in the Peace River area but, when it comes to the matter of coal, naturally bunker facilities must also be available.

"I would point out to the honorable member that the shipper is the man who has the right to say where he wishes his product to be shipped and, from the fact that an extension of the P.G.E. Railway into the Peace River cannot possibly be made without an intersection of the C.N. Railway system, it is largely a matter of capacity to handle commodities as well as trade em-

CINCE there has been much discussion of prices) in the United States, some comparisons made in several cities across Canada and in nearby American cities in mid-January may be of interest. Prices of some 50 representative food, clothing and household goods items were compared. In addition to providing data on current prices in the two countries for items reasonably comparable in identity, quality, style, the survey yielded information on | healthy." price developments in the United States since the end of price control there.

The comparisons clearly showed that food costs, on the average, were lower in Canada. There seemed to be no wide differential in clothing prices, and Canadian prices were, with one or two exceptions, the same or lower than those for comparable lines in the United States. In some cases, especially in woollens, the Canadian garment was of superior quality. Normally, U.S. prices, particularly for cottons, are well below our own. In the field of home furnishings, prices in Canada were generally lower. On both sides of the border, supplies at the stated prices were not always adequate. This was perhaps more true of Canada, especially for some clothing lines.

Here are a few of the price compar.3ons as between neighboring Canadian and United States cities at mid-January:
