The New Industry

THE GREAT cellulose mill project for Prince Rupert is moving along according to schedule.

Heads and experts of the Celanese Corporation of America are here to fit the designing and plans into the site at Port Edward so that the final arrangements for the starting of construction may be executed without delay. That the actual construction will start within two months time is the gratifying announcement that is now made. It is all very cheering and adds to the optimism and enthusiasm that was inspired locally when the original announcement of the project was made some two months ago.

Those who interviewed Mr. Schneider and his associates following their arrival in the city yesterday afternoon found them quite as enthusiastic and keen as are the people of Prince Rupert themselves. Those who had the opportunity of following their activities today saw that they mean business and are losing no time about it. Each expert with the party has his particular job to do, all, of which will be co-ordinated into the magnificent industrial development about which the whole country is talking.

But while Prince Rupert may well feel happy over it all, there are certain obligations too that we must assume. First and foremost, it is of the utmost importance that Prince Rupert should have the best of connections with the mill site if the city is to enjoy the full advantage of having it located nearby. That brings up the question of highway and the celanese company officials are not backward in saying that the existing road is certainly not good enough and nothing short of a well-engineered and routed hard-surfaced highway will do-not only without but within the city limits. So there is something to work upon. Assurance has evidently been received, according to company officials themselves, that the province is prepared to do its part. The city will have also to give immediate attention to its section.

The advent of the new permanent industry also focusses attention upon the necessity of adequate housing, educational and hospital facilities. These are matters that Prince Rupert itself will have to look after. We have long hoped for the entry of industry on a large scale. Now it has come. We will have to meet it—and that without delay.

THE LUXURY OF ERROR

MALE JUST MET an unusual man. He seemed obsessed with the importance of doing things just right.

He gets his hair cut on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month, pays his bills promptly when rendered, takes one drink and no more, cleans his teeth twice a day and sees his dentist twice a year.

He keeps a box of sharpened pencils in his desk and owns two fountain pens, one of them always filled. His date-book reminds him a day in advance of his wedding anniversary and his children's birth-

He plans even his fishing trips, checking the meteorological bureau for weather, the red-hook calendar to see whether the fish will be biting and the solunar table to make sure he goes out at the right time of day.

Asked why he bothered so about details, his reply was he hated to have worries.

Some day this summer when he has forgotten his regular haircut and perhaps overlooked an anniversary, maybe somebody will pour him a second drink and take him fishing-without checking the red-hook calendar and the solunar table.

He will probably catch the first fish, the largest fish and the most fish. More important, he will have learned something entirely new to him-the luxury of error.

THIS AND THAT

"Watch me drive him crazy. These are all flying fish!"
