Herbert Hoover Making Comeback as Economic Adviser

WASHINGTON, (P) (P)-A former United States President, Herbert Hoover gave warning Sunday night that the United States cannot continue for long its huge burden of foreign gifts clues. without impairing its own productivity. The warning found ready agreement among Republican leaders in Congress as well as among many Democrats. It also served to forecast the emergence of Hoover as among top economic counsellors of congressional Republicans. A seldom paralleled popularity comeback is giving Hoover a growing role in helping shape the future United States foreign policy.

Possibility of Effect On Prince Rupert Is Seen

NEW YORK (CP)-An bus occupants suffered injuries. ment to foreign ports in American ships from United States ports as the twoday sit-down C.I.O. strike tightened its grip on the nation's maritime commerce. The American Association of Railroads ordered shippers to send no more consignments to United States ships in the eastern, western and Gulf coast ports.

The restriction, effective immediately, also applies to freight destined for coastwise shipments on American vessels.

The action is designed to guard against undue detention of freight cars at all Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports where 100 ships are tied up because of the C.I.O. the province's labor legislation work stoppage. This would prerequiring a government super- vent clogging of port facilities.

Air Base Responsibilty

LARIFICATION is still to be obtained as to the future status of the Seal Cove air base here. The establishment of scheduled air service out of Prince Rupert, involving the use of the base now on somewhat tentative basis, brings up the question as to what is to happen there.

The base, conceived originally as a Royal Canadian Air Force defence project, even before the outbreak of World War II, is now temporarily at least in the hands o the Department of Transport. Many of the buildings having been declared surplus to War Assets after the Air Force pulled out, have now been removed but other installations remain and one of the most important of these is the fine big hangar. Who is to be permanently responsible for it is something that is yet to be settled.

Meantime the hangar has developed some roof defects and, in order to support it, rows of timber pillars have been erected which make it impossible to bring in under cover such aircraft as the big Canso amphibian which has just been commissioned in the air service between Prince Rupert and Vancouver. The disadvantage of not being able to shelter this craft is already becoming apparent.

With commercial air service already in operation here and with Prince Rupert undoubtedly destined to become an important centre of coastal air navigation, a seaplane base appears to be a public utility of more than local responsibility. The natural thing to be expected is that it should be taken over and maintained by some federal department—probably the Department of Transport. There is something the same sort of a situation here as in Vancouver where Mayor McGeer is contending that the Sea Island airport is more than a municipal responsibility.

CONCERNING THE BLIND

LELEN KELLER, the famous writer who started life without sight or speech or hearing, always requests that those who can see might move up a little closer on the bench of life in order to make room for a blind brother.

This call comes to citizens in the City of Prince Rupert and district. An appeal is going forth on behalf of the more than 1100 blind persons in this province.

To help the blind to help themselves and to prevent blindness is the call which reaches us. To share a little of our sunshine with those who live in the shadows is a noble sentiment.

A manifestation of our public spirit will help to maintain a Field Secretary who visits the blind, deals with their problems, teaches touch reading and handicrafts and generally brings within reach to all blind persons those services which the Institute has available, such as home teaching and employment services, the maintainance of residences for the blind, distribution of white canes, radio repairs, free radio licence, travel concessions, comfort allowances and adjustment in respect to home and community life.

Surely all these valuable aids to blind persons are a matter of deep concern to all those who are able to count good sight among their richest possessions! The happiness we get as a result of our contribution will, perhaps, be somewhat in proportion to the personal sacrifice each of us makes in this effort to help.

The members of the local Chapter I.O.D.E. are sponsoring a tag day on behalf of the blind this coming Saturday.

NEW GARDEN CONTEST ON

For Wartime Housing Tenants -Payne, Balagno and Others Speak at Club Meeting

The Prince Rupert Horticultural Club decided at a meeting last night that there will be a special class in the garden contest for tenants of wartime houses with prizes up to $25 donated by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation (formerly Wartime Housing). J. L. McEwen, local representative of the corporation, spoke to the meeting in the Civic Centre.

J. J. Payne gave a comprehensive talk on the best types of anquals and perennials most suitable for this climate. A full list of flowers named and grown by Mr. Payne will be given under Garden Club Notes at a later date as most members will want rence next year when they plan 600 in 1920. heir gardens.

President C. P. Balagno advised members that their best friend in the garden is a hoe. "A hoe is far more important than a hose nere," he stated. But evidently ultivation is an art too. "An ordinary hoe may be all right for otatoes but anot for flowers. said Mr. Balagno. "Use a hearthaped hoe-keep both edges sharp." Two sizes were recomnended—a small one for small corners. Mrs. Robert Cameron has found a three-pronged fork satisfactory while S. P. Woodside had a warren hoe cut from the sual type.

"When hoeing, you must not pear in too deeply as you may in- gardener. jure the feeder roets-the tap root of a plant being mainly its stabilizer," said Mrs. Balagno: "So don't chop off vital rootsust skim under the surface of the earth around plants and turn the warm earth down under where it will absorb moisture from below. Hosing is seldom necessary if heeing is done often. And with this regular stirring of the soil, you will not be troubled with weeds."

Some members reported finding pretty wild flowers along he highway and are trying to cultivate them in their gardens. The Skeena River lily (not the skunk cabbage) is a pretty, white blossom found under trees and logs at a spot just past Prudhomme Lake. Other flowers worth looking for are wild spirea. seedums in variety, campanulas. and one which resembles London Pride.

Mrs. Arthur Oswald suggested that the club start a lending library-every member bringing book on gardening or favorite seed catalogue or magazine and exchanging with other members. This idea was well received.

Mr. Balagno invited members to relate all their tried and proven ideas in gardening at each meeting so they could be recorded by the secretary. Mrs. William Slater, with the idea of

Fire Truck Delivers Water When Pipe Line Breaks Down

TERRACE-Friday the thireenth delivered a portion of illluck to the water users of Terrace. A couple of connections in the town's mainline pipes gave out and residents looked for a dry week-end. Adding to the difficulties, Little, Haugland and Kerr Ltd., whose mills usually can be counted on to supply water in emergency, was shut down for boiler inspection.

The 350 gallon capacity fire truck was pressed into service as a water delivery wagon, hauling the water from the Army camp to fill tanks, tubs, and pails for householders and business establishments. Repairs to the pipe-line are expected to be completed by yesterday.

GET APARTMENT AFTER 20 YEARS' WAIT-It's a big day for Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Littlefield, London, for after a 20-year's wait they at last have an apartment of their own. In 1927, after their marriage, they applied for a council house. As they waited their family grew. They now have 11 children. The chances of getting a place big enough seemed remote. Two months ago a bus demolished the temporary accommodations at which they had been living and so they moved to a rest centre. Now their application for a council flat has been approved. They watch as the piane is moved in.
