City May Borrow Money For Street and Sewer Rebuilding

To raise money to rehabilitate its streets and sewers, Prince Rupert may issue a serial bond loan of $150,000 as an alternative to its apparently unsuccessful plan to withhold payments into its overpaid sinking fund. This idea was suggested last night by Mayor Nora Arnold in her report to council the city's financial mission

Mr. Anscomb refused absolutely to consider it pointing out that we had once been in bankruptcy and were now very close to getting ou' of our difficulties."

Mr. Anscomb then suggested that the city might borrow money and that he would consent to the floating of a loan.

CONDITIONS OF LOAN OUTLINED

The conditions of the loan, presented by Mayor Arnold and Alderman Youngs to Municipal Minister MacDonald and approved by him, contained the following suggested proposition:

"A loan of $150,000 on a 20year basis would call for annual payments of approximately $7, 500 in principal and $6,000, thus making the annual total $13,500. Opening Up Peace River

APPARENTLY in exasparation at the disinter-Mestedness of the Canadian National in bringing traffic to Prince George and Prince Rupert from the Peace River and the failure of the Dominion to keep its promise made so long ago to provide a connection from the Peace River to the coast, the Prince George Citizen calls upon the provincial government without further delay to undertake the extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to the Peace River.

The Canadian National Railways and the Dominion government appearing to be even less interested in the Pacific Great Eastern Railway than they are in their own line from Jasper to that "fine but neglected port" at Prince Rupert, the Citizen contends that the people of the Peace River are entitled to better consideration by the province of British Columbia.

"From the point of view of the financial affairs of the P.G.E. and their relation to provincial finances; from the point of view of our duty and responsibility to the people who live in the Peace River portion of British Columbia; from the point of view of post-war reconstruction and the neces--sity of an expanding economy to bring full employment, the Province of British Columbia must undertake the extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to the Peace River," contends the Citizen.

Don't expect too much from the man who talks about what he did instead of what he's doing.

Chinese Immigration

THERE WILL, doubtless, be much discussion pro and con over the announced intention of Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his government to remove restrictions of a special nature which have existed for several years against the immigration of Chinese into Canada. Now Chinese are to be put on the same basis as other nationalities in the matter of immigration and the immediate effect will be the enabling of wives unmarried children of Chinese men resident in Canada to come here and join

Of course, this does not mean that the bars are lowered to free immigration of Chinese for, under the present immigration policy, it is fairly difficult for nationals of any foreign country to get into Canada except under special circumstances. An unlimited influx of Chinese into Canada would, no doubt, be regulated by selective provisions as to qualification and desirability which will necessarily form a part of a new over-all immigration policy for this country which it is anticipated will be forthcoming before long.

Our Monarchy

ANLY LINK, constitutionally, that holds it together now is that everyone in the British Commonwealth and Empire has the same King and Queen. Take away the British monarchy, and it is a political fact that by the Statute of Westminster there is really nothing left. What remains, of course, is solid enough: the links of language, and common political ideals which hold the whole of the English - speaking world to-

The relationship between the British Dominion governments and the British government is, broadly, on the same basis as the relationship between London and Washington. The difference is simply that the constitutional head of the State in Canada, for example, is the King of Canada who happens to be King of England as well. And, as King of Canada, the King deals directly, and independently, with his government in Ottawa, through the Governor-General, in the same way that he deals directly and independently with the different governments as King of Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand.

For instance, parents are expected to see that their children get their required sleep and regular meals; that they are punctual and attend regularly and that they do homework tie has been cultivated almost when necessary.

Parents are also expected to provide a background of moral support. If a child creates a problem in any way, his home life is investigated as a first corrective measure.
