Veteran airmen, their faces grim and lined with weariness, following two days of exhausting, eye-straining flying, watched impatiently today for a break in the weather as heavily overcast skies and pouring rain brought a temperary halt earlier in the day to the search.

Pilots, who had gathered at search headquarters at Vancouver's Sea Island airport before daybreak, were pinning their fading hopes at that time of the early discovery of the plane on a report made late yesterday that "strange object" had been sighted on the south side of Thunder Mountain, a 3,500-ft. peak just north of Great Central Lake on Vancouver Island. Veteran pilots gave considerable credence to this report because the locality is only a few miles to the right of the radio beam A Royal Canadian Air Force plane was turned back from there by mountain-riding clouds and snow flurries.

CANADA'S NEWEST AND LARGEST

CANADA'S ENTRY in international and trans-oceanic flying is The North Star. Largely the product of native ideas and manufacture; it ranks with the world's best and it is now in the trans-Atlantic service of Trans-Canada Air Lines. The interior accommodation of T.C.A.'s newest and largest airliner, shown above, was planned to provide the maximum in comfort and attractiveness for air travellers. The chairs were especially designed to eliminate fatigue on long flights. A ladies' powder room is located back of the main cabin and a men's wash room up forward, both equipped with modern accessories. The picture of The North Star in flight shows the four powerful Britishbuilt Rolls-Royce engines; with two stages of super charging they power the giant aircraft with 7,200 h.p. When cruising at an altitude of 26,400 feet it has a maximum speed of 350 m.p.h., and a maximum cruising speed of 326 m.p.h.

WE GET AIR SERVICE

RANTING OF A LICENCE for a scheduled air service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert-something which we have long waited for and something which the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce has been active in promoting—is announced. Very soon, within the next few weeks, we have been given reason to believe the new service-marking an epoch in British Columbia coastal transportation-will have been commenced.

We will all be very pleased at the institution of this new modus of carrying passengers and express which is all the licence, as it now stands, encompasses. The full function of the service will not be effective, however, until provision has also been made for the carrying of mails. It is to be hoped that there will be no delay in the carrying also of the mails by air. Lack of such an air mail service has long been a handicap to Prince Rupert in carrying on its business with the outside world. With air mail between here and Vancouver, it will be possible for us to write a letter here today and have it delivered into Toronto or Montreal by tomorrow night. Now the very best we can do is some fiftysix hours. The same, of course, will also go for passengers and express now that we are at long last to be given the scheduled service between Prince Rupert and Vancouver.

Next step in bringing us a fully modern transportation service will be the establishment of a landing field locally to supplement the seaplane base which we already possess and which, it is to be assumed, will be retained. Steps are also being taken with that end in view.

STRIKES KEYNOTE

*** A KEYNOTE STATEMENT was made by Gordon Cockshutt, understanding president of the Chamber of Commerce, when he told the United States Chamber of Commerce in an address vesterday that "peace depends upon economic security." Mr. Cockshutt spoke not only for nations but for individuals. If free enterprise is to prevail, it must, indeed, be geared to provide that security. There must not only be freer trade and relationships nation between nation but man between man. There must be at least some measure of removal of the elements of predation and aggression and the substitution therefore of mutual satisfactions and understandings. .

Today, after 59 years of barbering, Horace Duhamel turned his shop over to Jack Guthrie. But today Horace isn't going to hang up his white smock and shelve his shears forever, that important ceremony will come after Jack secures the services of another barber.

Horace Duhamel began his shearing and shaving career at Kamloops in 1888. He saw Ru-United Church Spring Sale, pert for the first time in 1912 but Hazelton claimed him from 1913 to 1919. During the latter year he returned to this city and within 12 months had a business of his own. When the Capitol Theatre was completed Horace moved into the shop and Church Hall, Friday only, May he is now about to vacate.
