Speculation On Canadian Food Is Suspected

NEW SCHOOL ON BOOTH GROUNDS PROPOSED BY CITY ENGINEER

Possibility that the School Board may select the ys Cove Circle, now occupied by Booth School, the site of the city's proposed new high school se last night when board members viewed a sketch wn by City Engineer C. B. Howe which proposed eing the new school on the site of former Wartime Housing staff houses.

Involved in the proposal would be the demolition of the present High School and the construction of a new elementary school, possibly on the King Edward School site, in addition to the new high school.

According to Mr. Howe's plan, the new High School would be situated at the eastern portion of the Hays Cove Circle grounds, the site of the former Number Two staff house, overlooking the Hays Creek Bridge.

It is also proposed that the western side of the grounds be extended beyond their present limits to include the lots on which seven other staff houses were situated during the war—between Fifth and Seventh Avenues.

The extension would enlarge the grounds to an area of nine-and-a-half acres.

Traffic on Hays Cove Circle from Sixth Avenue would be so arranged that all east-bound vehicles would travel along the Seventh Avenue side of the circle and westbound traffic along the Fifth Avenue side.

Booth Memorial High School, which now occupies a spot in the centre of the circle, would be demolished. Under an earlier proposal by the Board, the new High School would be built at Roosevelt Park and Booth School would be used as an elementary school.

Mr. Howe's suggestion would result in the demolition of Booth School, and construction of a new elementary school, possibly on the site of the present King Edward School.

Board members showed considerable interest in the proposal.

ARMS SHIP BOYCOTTED

Singapore Waterfront Workers Refuse to Handle Cargo- Other Vessels on Move

SINGAPORE (CP)—The Singapore Federation of Trade Unions yesterday announced that a boycott had been proclaimed by all harbor workers against the Canadian vessel Oceanside which it said "is carrying arms and ammunition to the Nanking government" in China. A trades union spokesman said that all Chinese, Indian and Malay workmen voted to refuse to unload the vessel. He said that the amount of arms aboard the vessel was unknown but it was "considerable." Patterson, Simons and Co., the ship's local agents, denied that the Oceanside was carrying arms.

Meanwhile the steamer Cliffside, which had loaded at Montreal, had arrived at Hong Kong enroute to Shanghai, also laden with arms for Nationalist China.

At Halifax the Ironside was loaded and about to sail for China.

SPRING MAY SOON COME TO RUPERT

Early Spring?

Indications in the garden of A. F. "Bud" Skattebol at 340 Biggar Place seem to point that way. For two weeks this gardener and others in the city have watched the growth of green shoots of tulips which do not usually show themselves until the end of February.

Mr. Skattebol brought the tulip bulbs from Holland, where he served with the Canadian armed forces for a time.

Reports from other parts of the province indicate that British Columbia generally may look for an early spring.

C.N.R. AND DEMOLITION

Railway Company Might Co-operate in Saving United States Installations

Demolition of former United States Army waterfront installations at Prince Rupert is something over which War Assets Corporation has no jurisdiction, the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce is advised in a letter from Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of reconstruction, but, should the buildings be purchased, there is no reason why the purchaser should not approach the Canadian National Railways from whom the land on which they stand has been released, with a view to an agreement that would permit the buildings to remain and be used for business purposes.' "I feel certain that your organization and local interests would be in a position to approach the C.N.R. to this end," suggests Mr. Howe.

Mr. Howe's communication was in reply to a message from the Chamber of Commerce expressing opposition to demolition of the installations and suggesting that the various units of the installations should be offered separately.

Hopeh's Capital Holds Communists Outside Wall

Population of 120,000 Safe In Ancient Chinese City Despite Two-Year Siege

By Spencer Moosa

PAOTING, China (AP)—The most impressive thing about this capital city of Hopeh province is its massive crenelated wall, which has helped it to withstand repeated Communist assaults and a siege which has lasted through most of the two years of civil war.

The wall encompasses in a neat rectangle a shabby looking city of 120,000 persons. The streets are narrow and unpaved. There is no sewage system. The city posses not a single taxicab. One either walks or takes a rickshaw.

Outside the walls is a moat, protected by its own wall, which is being heightened and strengthened by drafted laborers. They work lackadaisically under the casual supervision of soldiers in padded cotton uniforms.

Behind the moat are deep ditches to serve as anti-tank traps—in case tanks ever come this way. There are also numerous gun emplacements, trenches, machine-gun pits and pillboxes, most of them unmanned.

In a wide ring outside are mud forts spaced about one-third of a mile apart.

Paoting's lone airfield is about a mile outside the walls. The main activity there is the arrival and departure of Chinese relief air transport planes, which arrive empty and take baled cotton to Peiping, 90 miles to the northeast.

SIX NATIONS SUING GOV'T

Century-Old Grievance Accompanied By Million Dollar Wampum Claim

OTTAWA, (CP)—Armed with ancient treaty and law books, Indians of the Six Nations tribes came to court here yesterday seeking settlement of a 100-year old grievance and wampum to the extent of $1,289,467.20 from the Oshweken Reserve near Brantford, Ontario.

The tribesmen came to the capital to sue the government for losses of Six Nations lands and funds incurred in the building of a canal through their territory in the 1800's. The claim finally reached court after sporadic action over eighty years.

Yesterday in Exchequer their counsel argued legal points as to whether their suit against the crown could be pressed further.

HANGING AT PT. ARTHUR

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Charles Martin, 35-year-old Vancouver miner, was hanged in the district jail here early today for the rifle murder of Joseph Grant, 71-year-old prospector, who was killed with his partner during a robbery more than a year ago. The two men were killed in a lonely cabin near Schreiber.

Probe at Ottawa Mooted As Prices Still Move Up

Controls and Austerity Proposed By Socialists—Meat Buyers' Strike Starts

TORONTO (CP)—Upsurges in the price of pork and other meat products continued today to hold the Canadian spotlight with discussion concentrated in how to meet and check the rises in prices. It is reported unofficially that the Combines Investigation Commission is probing to determine whether some food handling organizations in both the wholesale and retail fields might be boosting prices unduly, taking advantage of the present situation to engage in speculation.

M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the C.C.F., has demanded that the federal government call by-elections immediately in vacant Yale and Ontario constituencies to place the question of price controls restoration before the electors.

The Canadian Congress of Labor suggests an austerity program for consideration as a measure to check prices. It proposes that its members decrease their purchases of food as a demonstration of opinion that prices have risen beyond all reason.

Ontario farmers' organizations are protesting at the increases in food prices, holding that the cost to consumers has soared to a point out of all proportion with the prices being paid to producers.

In Halifax restaurants have removed steaks and pork products from their bills-of-fare rather than endeavour to charge the customers what it would cost to serve them.

In Vancouver and Victoria bacon is commencing to stack high in stores as consumers refuse to pay the prices.

Worst Appears to be Over in Oregon With Six Dead and Thousands Homeless

EUGENE, Oregon (CP)—Flood waters of the Willamette River had passed their peak today after having swept through a 100-mile stretch of rich farmlands in the middle and lower valley where tributaries had burst their banks, bringing death by drowning to at least six persons and rendering thousands of people homeless. After six days of incessant pounding of western Oregon, the rains were easing off today.

INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jack and Miss E. M. Earl Victims of Freak Vancouver Accident

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jack and Miss E. M. Earl, formerly of this city, sustained serious injuries in an automobile accident at Vancouver Saturday night and are now in Vancouver General Hospital. Mr. Jack has hip and leg injuries, Mrs. Jack has face and head lacerations and Miss Earl has shoulder injuries.

They were taken to General Hospital following a freak accident between two cars in which one of them crashed into the residence of Mrs. Samuel Flack, 2691 Alma, doing about $1500 damage.

Police said a truck driven by Mr. Mills was going north on Alma when it collided with an auto driven by Mr. Jack. The car mounted the curb and crashed into the side of the house before being stopped by the concrete foundation.

Mrs. Flack was in her bedroom a few feet from where the car came to a stop. She was alone.

"I thought it was another earthquake," she declared. "The whole house shook and made an awful noise."

Statehood Recommended

IT DOES NOT necessarily follow that recommendation to Congress by President Truman will result in Alaskan statehood, but such recommendation is an important step with that end in view. The President had been carefully advised on the pros and cons of the matter before he made his pronouncement that the time appears to have come when Alaska should be permitted to join the union as an autonomous state with all the privileges and the responsibilities that such autonomy implies. There may be considerable discussion and, without a doubt, some powerful opposition in certain quarters to Alaskan statehood—opposition which has already made its appearance and may be expected to be carried through to the end. However, the prospects, as a result of the presidential pronouncement, are now vastly improved.

Prince Rupert, as the most strategically located rail port to Alaska, is almost vitally interested in Alaska's campaign for statehood. Such statehood will release Alaska from many of the shackles of the territorial status. Possibly most important to us will be that, with statehood, the Jones Act, which restricts use of Canadian vessels in trading to Alaska, will become no longer applicable to Alaska as a state.

RUSSIAN BACKGROUND

A GREAT MANY of those well-meaning folk who are so anxious to prove themselves friends of Russia have assumed that the Russian attitude of chronic resistance springs not from anger but from a deep sense of hurt. Did they not bear the brunt of the struggle against Nazi Germany, and do they not deserve the credit?

Well, yes, they did. Though it must be admitted that, in the early days of the war, they had invaded Poland and signed a mutual assistance pact with Germany. Later, as opportunity arose, Russian troops attacked Finland and occupied Lithuania, Latvia and Esthonia and threatened Romania. In June, 1941, Germany brought an uneasy association to a close by invading Russia. So it must be admitted that while Russia did bear the brunt of the German attack, it bore it in self-defence and had a great deal of western Allied help in that defence.

History might suggest some explanation of the difficulties involved in finding a common ground between Russia and the rest of Europe. Russia learned to live under a rigorous and cruel dictatorship and its people learned to surrender their rights. The princes who drove out the Tartar invaders of Europe and the Czars who followed them changed the situation little. Dictatorship had become characteristic of Russian life. It has come to its full flower under the proletarian Stalin.

Until there is reasonable evidence that Russia is hankering for freedom more than for dominance and that means until she sets aside the forthright methods of the Tartar in favor of the method of co-operation, she is bound to be misunderstood, and that despite efforts to misconstrue history or the somewhat woolly sentimentalism of her uncritical friends.

UNCLE JOE'S HEALTH

IF JOSEF STALIN is not afflicted with grave disabilities, it will not be the fault of those who profess to know something about the state of his health.

One day it is asserted, though not confirmed, that he has suffered a stroke. Another time it is suggested that he finds it necessary to use crutches. And more than once, it has been claimed a cancer specialist, dropping all other duties, has been called to Moscow. Readers are left to their own conclusions.

There cannot be anything but a continuation of uncertainty and unsupported rumor so long as the Iron Curtain remains undisturbed. It will be recalled that for months, previous to the passing of Lenin, there was a long series of stories, and half-truths concerning periods of illness. If one remembers accurately, he had passed away some time before it became known officially that this was so.

SHOPPING SPREE IN MOSCOW—On December 16, open trade at uniform government prices was started in the Soviet Union, and Russians could buy ration-free goods for the first time since the war in all the stores, pavillions, stalls and workers' settlements in Moscow. This scene was in the "Bolshevik" confectionery store on Moscow's Gorky Street. Dropping of rationing coincided with the devaluation of the ruble.

A Jollopy's End

Time, August 22; Place, Francois Lake

I crawled 'neath the jjollopy, all shrouded in dust,
Clothed in a straight-jacket as mechanics must;
To survey the damage and then declare
It was an aged, decrepit sort of affair.
I tugged at the throttle and twisted the wheel
"I'll tell you, jollopy, just how I feel
It's three miles back to Rupert—or bust
So wriggle your chassis and shake off your dust.
For I'm nearly exasperated, my wits at an end,
And ready to go back, my jollopy friend.
I've heard of pneumonia and heart attack too,
I don't think I've got them, old can, do you?
I've looked at your feet, no corns have you got,
You were found at a wreckage, the best in the lot.
So, now old jollopy, why turn against me,
When I'm far from home, one hundred times three.
In answer to the editor, the jollopy I now mourn
It also arrived in 1900, when I was born.
I swear once it was my owner's pride,
But that day he gave up and for once and all died.

SAW ROYAL WEDDING PROCESSION' VISITED DIEPPE AND SON'S GRAVE

Mrs. W. M. Brown, formerly of Prince Rupert, and her daughter, Mrs. George Matlack, are back in Essex, Ontario, after a memorable trip to England and Scotland, one of the highlights of which was their good fortune to have been in London on the occasion of the marriage of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. They viewed the procession from the Mall and later visited Westminster Abbey to see the decorations. In addition, they went to St. James Palace to see the royal wedding presents of which there were listed no less than 1347 with more than 1000 still unopened. Among other things they saw the gifts from the people of Canada—the mink coat, the canteen of silverware and the 36 pieces of antique silver.

Besides visiting relatives in Scotland and England, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Matlack went over to Dieppe, landing there without realizing it on August 19, the anniversary of the Canadians' landing in 1942. They were surprised to hear "O Canada" being played and soon found that commemoration services were being held at the cenotaph close to the beach, also at the Canadian cemetery at Hautot-sur-mer, three miles south of Dieppe where Mrs. Brown's son, Bill, who lost his life on service with the Royal Canadian Air Force, is buried. "We found the cemetery beautifully kept but it was very sad to see the number of crosses with a date.

It was a coincidence as Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Matlack recrossed the Atlantic homeward bound on the Queen Mary that the lady seated next to them at the dining table was a former resident of Prince Rupert—Mrs. F. W. Stamp-Vincent. They enjoyed every minute of the voyage and never missed a meal.

As the hands collect dirt and bacteria quickly, it is wise to wash them frequently.

NO COMPLAINTS ARE YET MADE

Ottawa May be Expected to Take Action if Fruits and Vegetables Become Scarce Here

If and when maldistribution of vegetables and fruits to Prince Rupert area occurs under the present quota system and the parties concerned find themselves in difficulties through inadequate supplies, it is possible that special federal quotas may be obtained, suggests H. G. Archibald, M.P. for Skeena, in a communication to the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce. However no concrete complaints have yet been made although the Chamber of Commerce, at the instigation of local produce distributors, recently communicated with Ottawa in fear that the present distribution from Vancouver as the centre might result in a drying up of supplies here in case of shortage.

The matter is being watched by the Trade and Commerce committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

NAVIGATION CLASSES MAY BE STARTED

Night classes in navigation may be held in Prince Rupert this winter under auspices of the School Board and Department of Education if a sufficient number of paid-up students can be enrolled before it is too late in the season.

The School Board last night received a letter from the Department of Education stating that the Department would provide a grant up to 30 per cent of the instructors' salary providing a minimum of 10 students are enrolled.

Navigation classes, under instructorship of Capt. J. R. Elfert have been held in former years under sponsorship of the federal Department of Transport but that department no longer operates them.

The Board wrote the Department of Education in December after Capt. Elfert had received requests from a number of fishermen for navigation instruction. The department replied that, if 10 students enrolled, it would provide up to 30 per cent of the instructor's salary during the fourth-month course.

The board set $20 as the tuition fee and now is waiting to receive a list of at least 10 paid-up students before it authorizes the night classes. The classes would be held four nights a week for the duration of the course.

Possibility that many of the fishermen may consider it too late in the season to begin the course may result in it being postponed until next winter.

REMAINS SCHOOL BOARD CHAIRMAN

CORDOVA—One can think of a better place in which to die than Cordova.

BABY'S COLDS

Help Nature To Fight Them Off

Medical Science denies there is any such thing as a cure for colds—only Nature herself can do it. So when baby's sniffles, or stuffy breathing warn you of a cold's presence—cooperate at once with Nature.

See that baby is kept warm, gets plenty of sleep and take extra care that the bowels are thoroughly cleared of harmful wastes. To do this without upsetting baby's whole system and further weakening it, try Baby's Own Tablets. Mild, yet act promptly in getting rid of the irritating materials that make baby restless and feverish. Mrs. George McBride of Scarboro says: "My baby of 26 months caught a nasty cold so I tried Baby's Own Tablets and she threw this cold off quicker than ever before. I certainly am for Baby's Own Tablets from now on." Effective also in teething troubles, constipation and other simple baby ailments. 25c.

Chennault, famed wartime commander of the Flying Tigers, and Miss Anna Chan, a Chinese newspaper writer, shown here together in 1945, were married in a surprise ceremony at the general's home in Shanghai. Miss Chan, daughter of a former Chinese consul in San Francisco, met the general during the war when she covered his headquarters as a reporter for the Central News Agency.

Gold Brings Boom To Farming Area

ODENAALSRUST, South Africa, (CP)—This Orange Free State town near which rich gold strikes were made two years ago, now has as many new motor cars in proportion to its population as Johannesburg. It is blossoming into a miniature city amid golden wheat fields that stretch as far as the eye can see.

Where once people lived frugally money is now flowing freely. Business undertakings—from the local lawyers to the hairdressers—are flourishing.

The population is increasing rapidly, but local ministers state that there is not much improvement in church attendances.

Civic leaders now are planning to provide healthy and constructive diversions for the many newcomers. There is little amusement at Odenaalsrust at present, and movie theatres which attract large crowds are shown in sessions in order to accommodate everybody.

The liquor licencing board recently granted conditional authority for two new hotels, each costing £50,000. Work is expected to start on one hotel this month. It will be a three-storey building with 57 bedrooms.

Town clerk van der Vyver said voters had increased from 400 to 1,200 since last year.

SHIPS and WATERFRONT

Susan Light in Milbank Sound is reported not burning, according to a local notice to mariners from the Department of Transport. It will be attended to as soon as possible, according to Keith Dixon, local agent of the department.

Weather was so sunny and pleasant as the steamer Prince Rupert steamed north on Tuesday toward Prince Rupert on her weekly voyage from Vancouver that some of the hardier passengers were able to sit on deck and take full enjoyment of the fresh air and balmy breezes. It was a break from the recent stormy weather which has been prevailing rather generally all along the coast. The Prince Rupert, with Capt. Ernest Caldwell in command, arrived in port at 12 noon yesterday from Vancouver via Westview and Ocean Falls, sailing at midnight for Ketchikan whence she will return here tonight southbound. The vessel had a fair list of passengers.

Plan Model Town To House Orphans

MELBOURNE (CP)—Citizens of Wattle Park, a Melbourne suburb, are to build a model children's town as a Second World War memorial. Twenty-two acres have been acquired in picturesque parkland country for the erection of the town, which will be used to house orphan immigrants from Great Britain. The organizers of the project have collected more than $190,000, and an appeal has gone out to Melbourne inhabitants to provide to finance it. It is proposed to bring the orphans from Britain so that they may live with Australian youngsters in modern surroundings. They will be selected by Melbourne organizations in Britain, and it is hoped that the town will be completed in time to receive the children when the present lag in shipping makes up its leeway.

Boosts Prince Rupert In Boise, Idaho City

Interest of the Boise Chamber of Commerce in Prince Rupert has resulted from a recent visit to the city of E. C. Cameron who, while here, was a speaker to the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce. Writing to E. T. Applewhaite, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, Earl C. Reynolds, manager of the Boise Chamber seeks further literature and information about Prince Rupert for a tourist bureau which is being set up in Boise. "Mr Cameron" says the letter "is loud in his praise of the work of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce and of the scenic country surrounding your area. You have a very definite booster in the person of Mr. Cameron."

Alaskan Not Very Happy in Hawaii

FAIRBANKS — Mr. and Mrs. Bob Synder, who were transferred from here to Hawaii last October, are not finding life in the mid-Pacific precisely all they were looking for.

For example, there is no getting away from the high cost of living. Just because the weather is warmer does not make the necessities of life any more reasonable.

In a letter to friends in Fairbanks, Snyder mentions walls are about a foot thick. There are no glass windows, with just screens and Venetian blinds. With all buildings open there is no lack of a variety of noises. One usually hears half a dozen radios blaring at the same time.

Clothing is simple. The country is not style-conscious. Temperature remains around 70 to 85. Rain can and often does fall ten times in a day. It's warm, and few mind. Streets are crowded and narrow. Fresh fruits are cheap, more particularly pineapple.

BOOK PERPLEXES EVEN CRITICS

Surrealist Author Henry Miller Confuses Readers, Inspires Writing Cult

By ELMONT WAITE

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — A mountain in the wildly-wooded primitive Big Sur country 35 miles to the south is harboring a literary character who is stirring up quite a few ripples, especially on the brows of critics.

He is an ex-Brooklyn gamin named Henry Miller who defies classification. Hence he has been classified by Harpers Magazine as the leader of a new cult of mysticism, sexualism, anarchism and surrealism; by the San Francisco Examiner as the leader of a "cult of hate,' which consists of "a group of fugitives from the time clock and dishpan"; and by the San Francisco Chronicle's art critic, Spencer Barefoot, as a "gentle, charming fellow who writes beautiful prose and wishes he could buy his baby daughetr a magic lantern."

Miller, now 56, came to the Big Sur country in 1943, after long residence in Paris. With his young Polish wife and their baby girl he lives in a pink stucco bungalow, complete with vines, atop a mountain at Anderson Creek. A little group of other artists and writers has moved into the same rugged but beautiful neighborhood. One of them, a bearded war veteran named Murray Von Graff, says they are just young people with limited funds, trying to make a name for themselves as artists.

These comprise the cult which —the Examiner's Clint Mosher reported—is convinced "modern civilization is on its death bed, and the sooner the mortician is called the better." Mosher termed them morbid and grim rather than truly Bohemian, and found them not particularly concerned with sex.

Miller himself snorts gently at all the talk of cults. Small, greying, and rather bald, he shuns publicity.

800 COPIES PRICED AT $100 EACH

In his latest book, limited to 800 copies at $100 each and printed by hand with the silk-screen process, his new art form is a combination of handwriting, in ink, with symbolic illustrations. Miller calls it "Into the Night Life,' to be read "like a psychoanalyst hearing the dreams of his patient.

A copy of the book was put on display at the San Francisco Museum of Art. Its handwritten lines ranged from small, for routine sentences, to B-I-G—for important phrases. Sometimes words were underscored for emphasis; and often he switched to a different color ink. Palestinian artist Bezalel Schatz provided the illustrations for the book, which was bound by hand in a little shop.

The book does seem to offer some support to those who say there is a central theory among the Millerites—a theory that the duty of an artist is not to bother with beauty, but to attempt critical self-analysis and record the result.

Miller achieved some degree of fame by his writings during long years in Paris. His use of four-letter words, however, forbade reprints in America, and he has not become widely known to the American public. To print his new book, he sold several prized art possessions.

But don't get the idea Miller is a literary hobo. He landed in the Saturday Review of Literature a while back where the critic said that Miller—let's see, he said Miller was . . . Wait, let's look again . . . Hmmm!

The critic must be puzzled, too!

Make Baby Bonnets Of Trouser Linings

TORONTO (CP) — When Amelia K. Prentice sent out an urgent request for clothing for children in Austrian displaced persons camps, she found the only material was lining of men's trousers. But with a little ingenuity, she transformed them into baby bonnets and shirts.

Miss Prentice brought back several samples to show her friends when she returned to Toronto after work with the International Refugee Organization as the chief welfare officer of displaced persons camps in the British zone of Austria. When she returns to Austria she will be in charge of 1,000 tubercular patients housed in unheated wooden huts.

"AUTOMISM" STIRS ART

MONTREAL (CP)— Pierre Gauvreau, a young Montreal exponent of the much-debated but little-accepted "automatism" in modern painting held his first exhibit in Montreal recently.

Described as a "decorative and poetical" painter, Gauvreau's art is said to be ahead of the French abstractionist movement and non-figurative artists. Gabriel (Le Canada) Lasalle said Gauvreau was "the most advanced" of the "automat" group and that his first show "definitely proves that his art is clearly personal and original while being well ahead."

Gauvreau himself does not mind the automat influence. He explained that his normal development brought me to an abstract form of art which, for unknown reason, was called automatism." He did not believe his art to be "mechanical" for all that adding:

"I work without any preconceived idea and the materials I use are supplied instantly while I am painting. These materials come from the unconscious but the creative act never occurs outside a very great emotive and intuitive impulsion, an intuitive, emviric and spontaneous plastic desire which both imposes rigor, unity and feeling to the objects I paint.

"However, I do not paint coldly; I paint under the influence of an internal feeling while origin I do not know and which changes for each work."

DORY HELPED GREEK VESSEL

By A. HARRY ROSE
Canadian Press Correspondent

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Two seamen of the Foudation Josephine, a powerful Canadian tug which left Halifax late in November to answer a call for help from the Greek freighter Vernicos Nicholas, have added a new chapter to the volume of heroism at sea.

The two men—Chief Officer Walter Myalls and George Green, a seaman—rowed for nearly five hours through high seas and gale winds to put emergency food aboard the Nicholas which had to be towed 400 miles into Bermuda after her engines stopped three weeks previously. The ship had been hove to waiting for aid in foul weather.

Capt. John Cowley, youthful English-born skipper of the tug, told the story of the exploit.

Arriving at the scene, the Josephine found the American freighter Extavier standing by the helpless Greek ship which she had tried to take in tow and had only abandoned the attempt when two lines parted.

SHIP WAS WITHOUT FOOD

Capt. Constantine Pavlidis of the Nicholas reported there was no food for the 38 persons on board including Mrs. E. Rodinos, wife of the chief engineer. The tug had none to spare and the American ship warned it would have to run for port to refuel.

Pressed for time and unable to transfer supplies by breeches buoy due to the violence of the storm, the two men, both Newfoundlanders, offered to tackle the job in a dory although Capt. Cowley said he would not order his men to try such a task.

The dory was lowered and straining at their oars the stalwart Newfoundlanders began the hazardous pull between the rolling ships. Since it could not be risked to bring the freighters close together, the men had to relay the food first to the tug and then to the distresed vessel.

For nearly five hours the operation continued with the tiny craft in constant peril. When the food was finaliy hauled the Nicholas' side and the foundlanders fought their back to the tug they were aboard in an exhausted tion.

OPERATION ON EYE BELIEVED SUCCESSFUL

Whether or not Thomas Meillas, 66-year-old Pioneer Home resident for whom a public subscription fund was raised last month, will regain his vision will not be known for at least three weeks yet. He was operated on in Vancouver for a cataract on December 20.

According to word received by Mrs. Ross Richardson, who took a leading part in raising the fund, "his condition is satisfactory and it is felt that there will be at least some slight improvement in his condition."

The letter was received from Miss Eileen Scott of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, who added that "it is yet too early for the doctors to make any statement regarding the prospects, but that they feel there will be some improvement."

Mr. Meillas left hospital on January 3 and is now in a nursing home. "When he is completely recovered and fitted with glasses, which should be in about a month, we will return him to Prince Rupert," Miss Scott stated.

BIRTHS UP, MARRIAGES DOWN IN '47

The human race achieved a slight numerical gain in Prince Rupert in 1947, but the marriage rate was considerably lower than in 1946, a summary of local vital statistics obtained at the government agent's office shows.

In the city last year, there were 97 deaths, while during the same period there were 265 births, showing a "profit" of 168 for the 12-month period.

Co-incidence decreed that the number of marriages last year should equal the number of deaths—97. Marriages in 1947 were considerably below 1946 when 119 local residents entered the holy state.

Local citizens have shown an almost continuous decline in fruitfulness since the peak war year of 1943 when 307 babies were born. Births decreased steadily to a 1946 low of 254, then jumped to 265 last year.

Deaths in the city during the five-year period maintained a fairly even number, except for 1946 when they dropped to 70 after having been steadily above 90 for the previous three years.

There was only one stillbirth in the city and district in 1947, as compared with three in 1946 and nine in 1945.

In the Prince Rupert electoral district, exclusive of the city, there were 14 deaths, six births and no marriages.

Mrs. Glen Lundquist and Miss Delphine Balagno, who have been visiting over the Christmas and New Year holiday season with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Balagno, are sailing tonight by the Prince Rupert on their return to Seattle. Mrs. Lundquist will be accompanied by her two young sons who have been here for the past year with their grandparents.

ALL-STARS TAKE ONE-POINT VICTORY ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ FROM ARROWS IN EXCITING GAME

All-Stars 67, Arrows 66

In a close, fan-rousing opener to the current inter-city basketball series, Prince Rupert All-Stars last night took a fourth-quarter lead and managed to turn back a last-minute victory bid by the Vancouver Arrows. The locals won by a 67-66 score.

The game closed in a rousing climax which set the jam-packed audience in the Civic Centre screaming wildly as the final whistle found the locals leading by a single point.

Jimmy Forman vindicated Coach Alex Bill's judgment by turning out the outstanding performance on the local team. He marked up 18 points, mainly by his uncanny ability to get in on the re-bounds and shoot effectively.

Arrows owed their strong fourth-quarter position largely to Don McKay, their red-topped forward who in the second quarter went on a scoring spree that resulted in a 27-27 score at half time.

McKay scored his team's final basket just as the final whistle blew when he interrupted Prince Rupert's last-minute delaying tactics, designed to protect their three-point lead, and sunk the basket just as the bell rang.

The All-Stars showed a slight edge all through the game, a margin that may not be so pronounced tonight now that the visitors have got the "feel" of the floor.

Close of the first quarter saw the locals leading by a 15-14 point score while the half-time score was 27-all. The third quarter score was 54-52 in favor of the locals.

However, throughout the game, the score see-sawed precariously in a manner that provided grounds for continuous finger-nail biting by All-Star boosters.

In the third quarter, Macphee, the All-Stars' elongated centre, and Lindsay, finally got functioning smoothly and in a series of fine combination plays, scored 16 points between them. Meanwhile, McKay, the Arrows' gadfly, marked up 12 points.

In the fourth quarter, the All-Stars moved into the lead on baskets by Forman, and with two minutes to go, brought forth their stalling tactics to hold their three-point lead.

It was then that McKay stole in, snaffled the ball and made his final score.

For Reg Lavigne, who went in as a forward, in the first quarter, the game was short and painful. Lavigne sprained his ankle after eight minutes of play and warmed the bench for the remainder of the game.

High scoring for Arrows was done by McKay, with 20 points and Byford with 15, while for the locals, Forman scored 18, Lindsay 16 and Macphee 14.

Referee Johnny Comadina doled out 45 personal calls during the game, 26 against Prince Rupert players and 19 for Vancouver. Lindsay was banned for five personals in the fourth quarter.

SHORT SPORT

A too-intelligent horse lost bettors thousands of dollars at Lingfield races in England—because he had learned a few hours earlier a short cut from the course to the paddock. The Prince led all the way around the 3¾ miles of the Stayers' Hurdle until he reached the last jump, 200 yards from home. Jockey George Slack looked around, the other horses were all beaten, and the Prince got ideas. With his ears cocked as if to say "this is where I came in," he swerved to the right, brushed past the last hurdle, jumped the railings and disappeared behind the stands into the stables. This was, indeed, where The Prince had come in. The short cut home was the way he had entered and left the course for an exercise gallop in the morning.

Another story going the rounds at Lingfield concerns Mr. "A" who found a roll of 15-£ notes ($4) and was taking them to the office of the clerk of the course when Mr. "B" accosted him with "Don't do that, there's the man who dropped them" pointing to Mr. "C" who, questioned by Mr. "A" about the amount, replied: "I don't know, I've had such a good day. But I dropped part of the roll." Satisfied, Mr. "A" handed over the money. Five minutes later it was announced over the public address system that a wad of £1 notes had been lost in the members enclosure and "would the finder please return them?"

Vancouver Man Feels Ashamed

Prince Rupert is so Far Ahead of Southern City With Its "Amazing" Civic Centre

"After Seeing Prince Rupert's 'amazing' Civic Centre and gymnasium set-up we will certainly have something to say when we get home to Vancouver where we not only have no Civic Centre but hardly one decent gymnasium." Ted Milton, coach of the visiting Vancouver Arrows basketball team, declared to the Prince Rupert Gyro Club yesterday at luncheon. "There are numerous athletes and athletic organizations in Vancouver but they are facing an almost hopeless situation due to lack of gymnasia. We are certainly going to set Prince Rupert up as a shining example to the author-ities in Vancouver when we get home." Mr. Milton also attested to the superiority of Prince Rupert's weather over Vancouver's.

Mr. Milton and his party were guests of the Gyro Club for the luncheon. They were welcomed by President C. G. [illegible] and Jack Lindsay introduced Mr. Milton.

Neil Ross was a guest in addition to the Vancouver visitors.

Arrangements were reported completed for the annual installation of officers party on January 19. Lieutenant Governor Gordon Hunt of Penticton is coming to the city to conduct the installation. The committee in charge consists of W. D. Laing, Orme Stuart, W. J. Scott, C. Balagno and N. R. Youngs.

The club received an invitation to attend the installation of officers in Seattle January [illegible].

CANADIAN PRESS HONORS VETERAN PUBLISHER—Senator W. A. Buchanan's 40 years in Canadian news publishing was honored by the Canadian Press recently by the presentation of a painting by A. Y. Jackson. At a complimentary dinner tendered to the senator by the Lethbridge Board of Trade on the 40th anniversary of the publication of the Lethbridge Daily Herald, the senator, right, founder and publisher, received the painting in recognition of his contribution to Canada's co-operative news agency. The meeting was attended by many newspapermen of the prairie provinces and British Columbia.

KINSMEN'S PLANS FOR THIS YEAR

May Day Celebration and Kiddie's Kamp

Every day of 1948 may be likened to Sadie Hawkins Day and with that in mind, the Kinsmen Club discussed plans for a leap year dance during the business session of their first regular dinner meeting of the new year held last night in the Civic Centre.

Details of the novelty dance were left to the management of Chairman Bruce Stevens and his two assistants, Wilfrid Smith and Russell Cameron. The dance will be the first Kin project of the year but President R. G. Moore pointed out to the members that organizational work on two of the Kinsmen's biggest projects, May Day celebration and Kinsman Kiddie Kamp, would be coming up next meeting.

Among the correspondence read by Secretary Charles Collins was a memo from the Vancouver city archist, Major J. S. Matthews, who enclosed a clipping from a Vancouver paper reporting the award made to Leonard Smith by the Kinsmen and describing Leonard's courageous act. Major Matthews informed the club that, if the report was authentic and the Royal Humane Association was notified of the facts in the case, a suitable certificate or medal would likely be presented by the association.

Twenty-two members and one guest, Jim McLeod, were present at the dinner meeting.

John Coste at 97 Believes In a "Firm Foundation"

TORONTO (CP)—Take it from a veteran of the war in Africa—1882-1884—the way to live to a grand old age is to build a good foundation for living.

John Coste is 97. He has never taken medicine and he still uses the rifle given him by King Edward VII, as Prince of Wales.

He credits his longevity and good health to following the advice of his uncle, a British medical officer. His uncle told him to build his life on a firm foundation.

And John Coste did just that. He started every day out right with a pound of steak for breakfast and rounded the day with a couple more steaks.

That regime, he says, carried him through the desert fighting around Khartoum, Egypt, as a young sergeant-major under Lord Kitchener.

When he came back from the war, he went to a gun club where his brother worked. The then Prince of Wales, a member of the club was trying out a new gun which he liked so much that he turned to the desert veteran and gave him his old gun.

Of course, Mr. Coste allows that the modern generation will have a more difficult job building a good foundation for life. The ingredients were cheaper in his day. Steak was three pounds for 25 cents.

AIR VETERAN IN BUSINESS

"Pat" Deane Identified With Wife in New Dry Cleaning Estabisishment

A well-known Prince Rupert boy who served with distinction during the war in operations over Europe with the Royal Canadian Air Force, and his wife, an equally well known and popular local girl, are setting themselves up in postwar business in Prince Rupert. They are Pat and Dot Deane who have taken over the premises on Fifth Avenue West, formerly occupied by Hawkinson's Laundry, and on Monday will open up for business as Deane's Quality Cleaners.

Born in Port Simpson, Pat Deane received all his schooling in Prince Rupert and, even before the war, became identified with the dry cleaning business as an employee of Evenson's Ideal Cleaners. Early in the War he enlisted with the Royal Canadian Air Force and went overseas as a navigator. He made twenty-three bombing trips over Germany and, on the twenty-third, was shot down, receiving injuries which took him out of active service. For his meritorious services in charge of squadron navigation, he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and was mentioned in dispatches. Returning to Canada, he again became identified with the dry cleaning business in Vancouver and took a course in Silver Springs, Marvland, at the National Institute of Cleaners and Dyers.

Mrs. "Dot" Deane, a locally raised girl, was for seven or eight years with Evenson's Ideal Cleaners before the war and, after the war, was also engaged for a time in the business in Vancouver.

DRY WINTER

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Rivers are low and many wells have gone dry in the area of this northern Ontario community. Lack of rain last fall is blamed for the fact farmers are hauling water earlier this winter than usual.

"That saleman gets them when their resistance is weak!"

Modern Etiquette
By ROBERTA LEE

Q. Would it be all right for a girl to allow her fiance to pay for part of her trousseau, when he is wealthy and she is not?

A. No; she should insist upon paying for all her trousseau.

Q. Shouldn't a saleswoman, to be efficient, advise a customer what she should choose?

A. Not if the customer seems capable of making her own decision. When the customer seems timid, doubtful or uncertain, a pleasant suggestion now and then is all right.

Q. What is the best way for a man to ask a girl for a dance?

A. "May I have the next dance?"

Canada's Biggest Dental Business

OTTAWA—The biggest dental business in Canada is in the armed forces with 58 dental officers in army uniform responsible for the dental fitness of approximately 33,000 navy, army and air force personnel. Allowing for a fair number of "store teeth" this entails the yearly checking of some 900,000 teeth. During the war, army dentistry boomed.

INVOLVED IN MULTIPLE MURDER — Drinking party in a Kitchener hotel preceeding a shooting was described by Eleanor Springer showing blood-stained torn scarf she wore. She says killer, who was not at the hotel party, hit her when she returned to the Letson home with the four murdered persons. He shot his victims, played solitaire; then 20 hours after he killed his cousins, he shot himself.

IRENE SELZNIC SCORES SUCCESS

"A Streetcar Named Desire" Proves Smash Hit on Broadway

By JEAN MEEGAN

NEW YORK—Until the December night "A Streetcar Named Desire" triumphantly opened in the Ethel Barrymore Theatre, Irene M. Selznick, the producer, was a little-known housewife and mother.

Her life had been spent 3,000 miles from Broadway, raising two little boys, helping organizze psychiatric clinics, working as a social worker and juvenile court probation officer. Broadway knew her only as the tall, dark-eyed daughter of Louis B. Mayer, the one who was married to David O. Selznick.

Now she has achieved a feat that seasoned old-timers dream about. Her show is a perfect artistic integration of setting, acting and script. She put them together expertly in her second attempt at anything theatrical. Her first experiment expired during try-outs last season on the road.

"I think you need more than study and training for this," she says. "You need a kind of instinct. You need to know about color, sets, timing, have a sense of showmanship and have an instinct about actors and actresses."

In show business where artists, scene designers, actors, writers, and directors do not get along with the pack but adjust only to the particular, Mrs. Selznick is effective. Perhaps the key to her success is what she calls "controlling circumstances and environment to avert calamity."

AFRAID TO TRY

Her father and Selznick from whom she is separated, talked over every entertainment enterprise with her and, she says, "their inordinate confidence in me was actually discouraging. It made me afraid to try anything. I didn't want to burst the bubble of their illusion."

She could have been the crown princess of make-believe. Her father is the king of Hollywood. Selznick is the decisive, second-generation movie figure who made "Gone With the Wind," "Nothing Sacred," "A Star is Born," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Rebecca" and other top-ranking pictures.

She is part owner of Selznick's Vanguard Films; her father has Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer; her sister's husband, William Goetz, heads Universal-International.

Selznick wanted his wife to do something in pictures. "But," she says, "I had no incentive. Pictures are too big, the stakes too high. If I were going to do anything I wanted it to be small."

"A Streetcar Named Desire" is not small but judged by Hollywood standards it's a compact, litlte unit presided over by one individual, Irene Selznick.

To the all-important question "Why did you get into this thing?" she replies:

"It's certainly not for the glamor, I've had that all my life. I'll have the same roof over my head and get around the same. It's just that after my husband and I separated I had more time.

"This is hard work. It makes terrific inroads on your vitality You can't do it witlf any kind of high goal and manage a family too."

planes of Maj.-Gen. Claire Chennault that this correspondent came to Paoting. The pilot, James Bledsoe of Los Angeles, 34-year old former Flying Tiger, made four round trips in a day.

HAZARDOUS LANDING

Coming in, he put his C-46 transport into a steep decent from 8,000 feet. It felt like descending in an express elevator. On the ground, he explained a normal glide would expose the plane to machine-gun and rifle fire by Communist guerrillas. Hardly had his plane settled than waiting coolies began loading it with more than five tons of cotton. Sporadic cannon fire could be heard in the distance.

Then he took off and gained altitude in a tight spiral over Paoting before heading towards Peiping. Again the idea was to escape ground fire.

In Paoting, wondering if they should fly out, are seven United States missionaries and a half-dozen French Catholic priests and nuns. Dr. and Mrs. William Cochran of Plainfield, N.J., operate the American Presbyterian hospital. Civilian war casualties compromise about two-thirds of their 65 patients. Some of these are farmers, injured by Communist-planted mines almost within the shadows of the city walls.

When Shihkiachwang, 82 miles to the south, fell to the Communists in November, there was panic in Patoting, and provincial government officials fled. Many of them have since returned and panic has subsided into uneasiness.

Aside from the air, there is one way out— by truck convoy 33 miles through Communist-infested territory northward to Tinghsing, where refugees can board a train for Peiping.

Meanwhile, within Paoting's walls, a family company still produces as it has for a century, a highly-prized sauce by secret formula, and the city retains its fame as the source of walnut-sized iron globes which calligraphers throughout China toy with to keep their fingers supple.

Reminiscences and Reflections
By W.J.

Prince Rupert has a shaggy mountain in her back yard. Years ago, surveys for a driveway were run. There were no engineering snags. Still, it might as well be understood now, as well as later that until you can scale Mount Oldfield on four good wheels, instead of Shank's mare, there will be little movement in that direction. But when a car is used, you'll have something. Nearly everybody in his heart of hearts likes to look down on something.

Contemplate the past and cheer up, darn you! It's only 25 or 30 years ago that crushed soft rock from local blasting would be shovelled on the city streets. This done, the rock would be reduced to mud and the job done all over again. It might have been a bit monotonous, yet there was lots of fresh air.

Modern fur farming in Canada originated when early fur traders kept alive foxes caught out of season until the fur was prime.
