New Medical Film Theme

Movies have often gone in for medical interest but there is a novel slant to the theme of the new picture "No Sad Songs for Me" which presents Margaret Sullavan, returning to the screen for the first time in six years. She plays the fruity part of a wife who gives herself to her husband and little daughter in entirely different circumstances. Knowing that she is to die shortly of an incurable malady, she fosters the interest of her husband in another woman and even grooms her as her successor as wife and mother.
