The Key Control

ABOLITION of exchange control would be equivalent to opening a free market for gold. Canada's gold mining industry would boom. Other industries would be put in a sounder position and there would no longer be need for any control of imports beyond that exercised by the customs tariff. Most important of all, Canadian industry would attract investment—domestic and foreign—on a vastly increased scale. In sum, the full benefit of the devaluation policy adopted last September would at last be felt; an artificial obstacle to the expansion of trade and industry would be removed.

There should be hardly any unemployment in Canada today beyond the inevitable minimum due to weather conditions and job-changing. Yet so accustomed have we become to war-necessitated controls of one sort or another that the abolition of the key control—the control of all controls—has apparently received scant consideration, although it is plainly hampering the return to a reasonably free economy. Nobody would pretend that exchange control is the sole cause of joblessness among Canadian workers; some of the workers themselves, badly advised, have priced their labor out of a market. But the return of freedom of international exchange would point up the other errors of public and private policy that are now obscured by the greater error and indicate their correction.

It should be worth trying, at least for an experimental period, as a high financial authority has suggested. No nation in the world can better afford than Canada can today to show its faith in a free economy. No nation's example would be more highly regarded by other nations which are disposed to take the same step. Some nation, some time, will lead the way; it might as well be Canada as any other.

REST—AN INVESTMENT

NOTHING could be further from the truth than to say that sleep is a loss of time. Sleep is a most important factor in our daily lives. During sleep, the body recuperates from the day's hardships; nervous tension disappears thereby inducing complete relaxation; during sleep, the heart works at a minimum. Such complete rest increases resistance to fatigue and disease and enables a better use of all faculties.

Some adults have died relatively young who would have enjoyed a much longer life span had they given proper attention to the importance of rest. Others may have failed in business or home duties because of a bad temper, or because of jumpy nerves because they tired easily. Lowered resistance due to overwork and lack of sufficient sleep very often predisposes to colds. Such troubles could well be avoided by taking more rest.

The average person requires a minimum of 8 hours sleep every night. For young children, an average of 12 to 14 hours is suggested; for adolescents, it should be at least 9 or 10, if at all possible.

Services in the Church

SATURDAY SERMON

By Capt. W. C. Poulton (Salvation Army)
Text: They Were All With One Accord In One Place. Acts 2:1

On Thursday of this week we were celebrating the anniversary of a great day in the history of the Christian Church and an even greater day in the Divine Plan for all mankind who are either in or out of the church Ascension Day.

Jesus said to his followers that it was expedient that He go away from them. That was hard to understand and much harder to take. When He was taken from them in physical death on the Cross, the blow hit them so hard that they scattered and fled and hid behind closed doors. Peter, the bold brave fisherman, who drew his sword and would have started a scrap in the garden of Gethsemane, ran away to do some fishing and thus hide himself.

Then came the Easter Day of the Christian Church, and Jesus was with them again. Slowly, very slowly indeed at first, He re-grouped them again—proved

His resurrection. Talked with them and expounded the things that they had only understood imperfectly while He was in the flesh. It had been a wonderful experience for forty days. Not until all had been gathered back into the company and all had believed in His resurrection... even Thomas who wanted physical proof... did He tell them that He must leave them again.

Leave them! for the second time in six weeks! But what a different effect this time! At the Cross only a few could be found to watch Him die, whereas at the Ascension they followed Him out to His beloved Bethany and, after listening to further words of instruction and guidance, they were able to watch Him leave them in a cloud.

There was no scattering now, no cringing in fear behind closed doors, no rushing back to their fishing boats. Jesus, their Lord, had told them to tarry at Jerusalem for further instructions. What then could be more sensible than to start a prayer-meeting and wait on the Lord. The Prayer meeting lasted ten days and then came the Power that enabled these ordinary men to go out and do what had been denied even to their Lord during His earthly ministry, the power to sway crowds to believe on Jesus.

This is a day when prayer-meetings are not popular places. In fact this is a day when prayer itself is left to the minority—except in times of national disaster when there usually comes a demand for a national day of prayer—and all too often to those who are the paid ministers of the Church. These cowards who had run for cover at His Crucifixion, were brave prayer-meeting men after His Ascension. They were men with one accord and were willing to meet in one place.

Why??? They had met the risen Lord. Take away the fact of the resurrection and you will soon lose the desire for prayer.

We will be in the week of the celebration of the anniversary of that great prayer-meeting until next Sunday when we remind our hearts of the coming of The Holy Spirit to live with and in men.

How many of you will pledge: (Continued on page 3)

LETTERBOX

Mrs. Elfert Appreciated

Editor, Daily News

It would be appreciated if you would permit space in your valuable columns to be used to publicly express the gratification of the Department of Transport for the very able manner in which Mrs. J. R. Elfert has carried on the joint duties of Harbor Master and Shipping Master of the Port of Prince Rupert during the past year, pending an official appointment.

Captain J. R. Elfert died on May 5 1949, after holding the important post of Harbour Master at the Port of Prince Rupert, for twenty-two years, with the exception of the period he served with the Royal Canadian Navy during world war II. Since her husband's untimely death, Mrs. Elfert has carried on most of his duties in a most efficient manner and has earned the respect and admiration of all the citizens of Prince Rupert.

Regulations require that a Shipping Master be in possession of a Certificate of Competency as a Master of a foreign-going steamship. In compliance with such regulations, the position of Harbour Master and Shipping Master at Prince Rupert has been thrown open to competition by residents of British Columbia who have this and other required

That cheerful old gentleman, the Dean of Canterbury, 76 and robust; tells Ottawa war is imminent and democracies have not a chance of survival. Incidentally he is called the Red Dean, and he proclaims he is on a crusade for peace. When a fellow turns 76, and tries to be active, he's liable to do or say anything.

While this has no direct bearing on future possibilities, it nevertheless discloses how Soviet Russia has not entirely lost its sense of strategic values. Twelve live American mink were recently exchanged for twelve live Russian sables. And now it's discovered the sables were sterilized before shipment. A new twist to "the cold war."

Tim-Ber-Lox is a clear liquid made from the finest, toughest resins and water-repellent oils and is used as a thinner for oil based paints or as a clear primer before painting or varnishing.

You will be proud of your paint job when you use TIM-BER-LOX because:

1 Tim-Ber-Lox helps prevent paint from "Peeling and Blistering" by affording protection against moisture.

2 Tim-Ber-Lox, mixed with paint, reduces "brush drag" to a minimum, thereby giving increased coverage and a superior, longer lasting paint job.

3 The use of Tim-Ber-Lox with paint actually saves YOU money because each quart of Tim-Ber-Lox you use replaces a quart of paint.

4 Paint mixed with Tim-Ber-Lox flows on more evenly, more smoothly, allowing an inexperienced painter to do a smooth professional looking paint job.

OUTSIDE PAINTING

In order to secure a good paint job it is first necessary to secure a good ground or prime coat. It is in this prime coat that the addition of Tim-Ber-Lox to paint is highly recommended. Paint with Tim-Ber-Lox added, has superior penetrating and sealing qualities which provide a reinforced foundation against moisture and helps prevent the peeling and blistering of succeeding coats of paint.

PLYWOOD

A single application of Tim-Ber-Lox will prevent separating, will greatly reduce warping, buckling, surface checking and will eliminate "Grain Raise," leaving the surface smooth and uniform for subsequent coats of varnish or paint. It costs no more to use Tim-Ber-Lox -- as Tim-Ber-Lox replaces the prime coat of paint or acts as a varnish undercoat where plywood is later to be varnished.

HARDWOOD FLOORS

Tim-Ber-Lox gives a beautiful, soft, natural floor that is water, dirt and stain resisting. Tim-Ber-Lox floors are sealed beneath the surface and therefore easier to keep clean, and retain the wax much longer.

MILLWORK

Tim-Ber-Lox treatment of all millwork -- sash, doors, window frames, etc., will help prevent moisture "pickup" which is the reason for paint peeling and blistering, will also greatly reduce warping, shrinking and checking. Millwork can be treated just as economically with Tim-Ber-Lox as it can be with ordinary paint.

Ratepayers Are Blamed
For Road Situation In Rushbrook Heights Area
The Community Ratepayers Association, "through their obstinacy," was blamed Thursday night by Ald. George Casey at the Association meeting, for neglect of roads in the Rushbrook Heights section. He said something could be done if a common policy was adopted. He then called on City Clerk H. D. Thain, who was present to describe steps necessary to procure new roads.
Mr. Thain explained that, owing to Prince Rupert's default on a bond issue sometime ago, all loans for local improvements had to be approved by the Department of Municipal Affairs. As long as there was a strong enough petition from ratepayers demanding construction of roads in certain areas the government would approve the loan. Otherwise, he said, the government would not consider authorizing the loan. He explained that normally the cost of road construction was borne by ratepayers of

More Power For International Fisheries Commission Advocated—Area No. 2 Closing Soon

What he describes as Canadian government inaction in not reopening negotiations to change the International Halibut Fisheries Treaty with the United States is creating a hardship on Prince Rupert halibut fishermen, says George Anderson, secretary-treasurer of the Deep Sea Fishermen's union here.

Mr. Anderson remarked particularly on the estimates of some members of the International Fisheries Commission that an increase of 4,000,000 pounds in quotas would be possible with a split season. He felt the commission should have its power extended so that it would have control beyond merely opening and closing the fishing season. The commission, he explained, had scientists working with it to determine the habits of the halibut and were in touch with the situation all the time. Therefore, it was logical that they should have more extensive power to control the fishing. There was no power in the treaty now to split the season, he said.

The United States, he said, was willing to negotiate a new treaty but the Canadian Government was doing nothing about it. Mr. Anderson reports Fisheries Minister Robert Manion informed him earlier that his department was willing to make the change increasing the commissions power from the economic standpoint but there had been a hold up by the Americans. But, said Mr. Anderson, the Canadian government had done nothing since the United States had signified her willingness to reopen the treaty.

In the meantime, according to the scientific staff of the fisheries commission, fish stocks are not being exploited properly. Stocks on the banks when the season opens are being depleted too severely because the whole quota is being taken in a short time. Mr. Anderson explained there seemed to be a completely different stock come in in July and August. Among them were no chickens and the fish were larger and better developed.

Mr. Anderson feels that if the government is not prepared to give the commission power to regulate the fisheries on this coast according to the findings of the scientific staff, the commission might as well be closed down. Building up the fishery had now become an economic matter.

Mr. Anderson is well qualified to speak on matters affecting the fishing industry. He has been associated with the industry since 1911 and was actively engaged in fishing from 1913 to 1926.

HALIBUT LANDINGS UP

On the whole, halibut landings in the port of Prince Rupert this season are better than last year but this does not necessarily mean that both Canadian and American landings are ahead of the 1949 landings.

Up to and including May 18, total landings here have been 5,482,800 pounds. In 1949, total catch up to the same date was 4,739,000 pounds. Canadian landings thus far this year are 742,300 more than in 1949 while American landings are 1000 pounds less.

From Area No. 3, up to May 18, American and Canadian halibut fishermen have brought in 1,013,000 pounds into this port, 260,000 less than the 1949 total of 1,273,000 pounds.

Following are individual comparative landings here up to May 18:

	1950	1949
Canadian	441,300	3,669,000
American	1,071,500	1,070,000

Total 5,482,800 4,739,000

Announcement is expected today of the closing of Area No. 2 to halibut fishing at midnight June 1. The increased rate of fishing brings the fishing to a close even earlier than last year when it ended June 2.

Returning to Prince Rupert on Monday morning following her first northern voyage this week, Canadian National Steamships palatial steamer Prince George, Capt. E. B. Caldwell, will have on board 250 members of the Oregon Journal's second 11-day annual tour to Alaska, first of which was held in 1949. The party, headed by Vernon R. Churchill, assistant to the publishers, Oregon Journal, will visit Ocean Falls, Prince Rupert, Ketchikan, Sitka, Juneau, Skagway, Wrangell and Victoria before returning to Vancouver. This will mark the first occasion since Prince George went into service in 1948 that the ship has called in at Sitka, capital of Alaska when that territory was under Russian rule.

ANGLING SEASON NEXT

Under a calm and blue sky in or beside a calm and blue B. C. lake or rippling stream will foregather many citizens with a few lengths of line, a heavy dose of patience and a dash of fighting spirit. This will all take place in case you don't know, on May 24 and will carry on throughout the summer, into the fall and trip over into next year.

But the busy season for angling as people such as Joe Scott

"Heiress" Is Impressive

Impressive translation to the screen of a famous Broadway stage play, "The Heiress," is the week-end offering at the Capitol Theatre. It concludes its engagement tonight after having pleased good audiences on Thursday and Friday.

A distinguished cast, headed by Olivia de Havilland, who contributes a memorable performance, includes Montgomery Clift and Ralph Richardson.

Set 100 years ago, this is the story of a plain girl whose only sex appeal seems to be her father's bankroll. Her lack of know, is between Queen Victoria's birthday and Labor Day. As usual, people who either can't scrape enough money for a boat or whose love for the sea is not inherent, will be fishing at Rainbow and Prudhomme Lakes and along the Skeena highway.

On the other hand, other citizens will work an angle every week-end to take trips to Wark Canal, Levenson Lake or Bill's Lake. That is north country. To the south, there is Salmon River, Lowe Inlet and Clew Nugget.

Prince Rupert's eminent angler Joe Scott, said to this scribe the other day that tackle is easier to procure this year. And in addition, he said with a twinkling eye, English tackle is lower in price this season. Speaking of our tackle manufacturing friends across the border, Mr. Scott said their supplies are fairly good for Canadian anglers.

Of course, as usual, you can't get anything for nothing and a small donation is required by the government in order that any prospective gentleman or lady with an angle can hook the big ones.

They tell us that Prince Rupert is one of the few places in this country where a fisherman can go fishing without losing his temper and fish. It is not over crowded and R. K. Mansell happened to be around and passed the remark that there are so many places to go, it's more work finding a crowded spot. People and fishermen practice different religions during the angling season.

With a full freight cargo and considerable list of passengers, Union steamer Camosun, Capt. William McCombe, arrived in port at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Vancouver. Westview, Bella Bella and Butedale, sailing at 11 p.m. for south Queen Charlotte Island points whence she will return here tomorrow afternoon to sail at 9 p.m. on her return south. Passengers included twenty-five men for logging camps on the Islands. Persons disembarking at Prince Rupert included Mrs. A. N. Kopala and child, Mrs. R. Erwin and child, Mrs. Peterson and two children, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bradley and family and Mrs. G. A. Hunter.

groom keeps her shy with strangers. Clift falls in love with Olivia, but goes for the loot and makes a pitch.

Richardson sees through the adventurer, but Olivia is blinded by her first and only love.

As soon as one gets into the flowery Victorian costume and the leisurely action of those times, the gripping story holds one in an intelligent, but thrilling classic manner.
