Churchill Sees
Europe Danger

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill warned the West Saturday against getting too deeply involved in Asia's troubles because the danger of Communists in Europe is far greater.
"Threats in the Far East are on a very small scale" compared to them, he said.
He said, however, that he did not think war inevitable.

Israel Crisis—
Gurion Resigns

JERUSALEM (CP)—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's government resigned Sunday, plunging the state of Israel into the first cabinet crisis in history.
Ben-Gurion has been Prime Minister since the new state was formed in May 1948.
A religious bloc of cabinet members notified Ben-Gurion after a heated party caucus that they were unable to accept a recent cabinet change proposed in the face of Israel's economic and financial troubles. He had proposed the appointment of a financial expert from South Africa as the new minister of commerce and industry.
President Dr. Chaim Weizman is expected to ask Ben-Gurion to carry on.

"Such pilots could play a vital part in case of war," said a Department of National Defence spokesman.

Apple Sale
Is Success

Prince Rupert Gyro Club will know at the end of this week how it made out financially as a result of the Apple Week campaign which reached a peak last week during which time members telephoned the people of Prince Rupert to solicit box orders.
Gyros and helpers were on the street corners on Saturday to further promote the sale.
Deliveries will be made at the end of the week.
The effort is, as usual, for the club's playground work including the clearing off of obligations on the fine new McClymont Park swimming pool.
Hundreds of boxes are already known to have been sold.

Chance To Help Blind

MANY worthy organizations conduct annual appeals for financial support in Prince Rupert. Another has been added. It is the Canadian National Institute for the Blind which is now having its first campaign here. It is to be commended for the generous support of Prince Rupert and it is to the generous support of Prince Rupert and it is accomplished. There will be no canvass but the appeal will be conducted by means of letters inviting subscriptions, general advertising, a tag day, Sunday evening concert and other efforts.

The Institute for the Blind, of whose good works we have heard considerable during recent days, aims, in general, "to ameliorate the conditions of the blind and to prevent blindness." Its services have become available to the local community through the recently established local branch which is sponsoring and directing the campaign.

DIME SOFT DRINK

THE MINISTER of Finance called it a budget (small size) to help prevent prices from going higher. One feature was an increase in taxes on corporations. Since corporations produce most goods, and since taxes are a cost of doing business, all who produce goods must try to raise prices to recover their higher cost.

Another feature was to add a cent to soft drinks and candy. Many soft drinks traditionally have been sold at five cents. The bottlers already were in a squeeze, since the 1950 nickel is a shrunken and miserable caricature of the nickel of Mr. Abbott's school days. If the tax of one cent cuts sales (as it likely will) the loss of volume to bottlers will reduce the margin so much that the price is likely everywhere to go to seven or eight cents. Mr. Abbott is bringing nearer the happy day of the dime soft drink.

A third feature of the budget is the measure to fix minimum terms for sales on the instalment and other credit plans. This is a good thing all around. It is good that dealers and finance companies will not lend too heavily and it is even better that buyers don't buy a new washing machine at least until they get the stove paid for. The catch is, however, that many a good lawyer believes the law is an encroachment on provincial rights. So maybe Mr. Duplessis, who is watchful in such matters, will bring about a contest to decide whether or not Ottawa can do it when there is no national "emergency."

Mr. Abbott says that the government itself will reduce its spending on things not related to rearmament. Good intentions are duly noted. Mr. Taxpayer, however, has long been married to a wildly extravagant wife—the government—and he'll be worried into his grave before she reforms to the extent of firing one hairdresser, or one photographer in the film board.

JARGON

LANGUAGE of specialists in any subject, from sport to religion, tends to grow away from common speech. Sometimes this is necessary. The physicist and the theologian, dealing with matters and processes not directly present to the senses, are almost forced to develop a language of their own to avoid the confusion that would ensue if they used everyday words to express something out of the ordinary.

In other professions or trades, mystifying language it is suspected, is used principally to impress the layman. The theory is that the layman will more cheerfully pay for services that he believes to be immensely complicated than for something so simple that he can clearly understand it.

That explanation may account for the writing of some academic economists. There are honorable exceptions, but the erudite economist who condescends to explain to the layman that two and two make four is likely to say something like this: "Under certain favorable conditions and when similar objects are in question, if two such objects are added to two other such objects, the total may almost invariably be equated with four."—Printed Word.

Silver Wedding Is Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Frew Honored With Surprise Party

On Saturday evening, which was the eve of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Frew of Borden Street gathered to celebrate the occasion.

Taken completely by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Frew were ushered to the party hall at the Murdoch home on Amrose Avenue where some 50 friends had gathered. To stirring bagpipe music played by Piper W. McKay, they were greeted by their friends.

A corner of the room had been decorated with the occasion with pink and white streamers and wedding bell beneath which was spread a banquet table centred by a beautiful anniversary cake that was the contribution of their daughter, Mrs. Eric Tycho.

The evening commenced in true Scottish fashion with the Circassian Circle to bagpipe accompaniment and continued in lively tempo with George Murray acting as master of ceremonies and Mrs. L. Halcrow accompanying on the piano.

An impromptu program was part of the proceedings with songs and recitations by members of the gathering and community singing by all.

At midnight delicious refreshments were served by the ladies and the anniversary cake was duly cut by the bride and groom of a quarter-century ago.

After the hour of midnight, which was the anniversary day, October 15, J. S. Irvine, on behalf of the assembled guests and those who were unable to attend, presented Mr. and Mrs. Frew with a lovely silver hot-water jug and sheaves of fall chrysanthemums. Mr. Irvine expressed the best wishes of all on this their silver jubilee. Mr. and Mrs. Frew, he said, had been married 25 years ago in Prince Rupert and had lived here ever since, were good citizens and community workers. During these years they had made many friends and tonight these gifts were presented as a token of that friendship. He asked that all rise and drink a toast to the honored guests, wishing them many more happy anniversaries.

Mr. Irvine also read telegrams of congratulations from the son-in-law, Eric Tycho, at present working at Prince George.

Passengers sailing from here on the Princess Louise Saturday afternoon for Vancouver included R. Alpin, A. E. Ferguson, O. Olafson and C. W. White.

Field Service In Tuberculosis

Miss Grace Harris, P.H.N., arrived in the city Saturday night from Montreal to be in charge of a new service which is being undertaken from the Miller Bay native hospital here—field work in tuberculosis control. Making her headquarters at the local institution of the Department of Indian Affairs, Miss Harris will spend much of her time travelling in the area between Vanderhoof and the Queen Charlotte Islands on the east and west and Telegraph Creek and Bella Coola on the north and south—conducting surveys and follow-ups by means of tuberculin testing.

Miss Harris comes here from Royal Edward Hospital Clinic at Montreal where for the past eight years she has been case supervisor.

Gets Year For Theft

Douglas F. Self was sentenced Saturday in magistrate's court to one year's imprisonment for theft of articles from a room he was allowed to use after his release from jail. Self was released Friday, October 6, after serving ten days in the city jail for supplying liquor to an Indian.

Upon his release he asked permission to use the room of Joseph Matwick in the Commercial Hotel. When Matwick returned he found some clothing and other personal effects missing. Self was picked up that night and found guilty in magistrate's court the following morning. He was remanded for sentence until last Saturday, when he received his term.

Likewise, you face different problems in protecting the family income in case anything happens to you.

With life insurance you can find security in both of these ways—arranged to fit your own special needs. You have a choice of many different kinds of policies for different purposes. And the services of trained life underwriters are at your beck and call to help you make that choice wisely.

Nothing but Life Insurance gives YOU this control over your future.

So today—and tomorrow—rely on your own life insurance to meet your own personal security needs!

A. J. CROXFORD—

Wood-Carving Hobbyist Derives Much Satisfaction From Interesting Work

(By MIKE HOLMAN)

Although A. J. Croxford, Eighth Avenue and Claude Street, has been given a life membership in the Canadian Legion Prince Rupert Branch 27 for the work he has done in making war memorial plaques, he believes there are far greater ways of preserving memory of the dead.

"The most fitting memorial for dead veterans would be looking after the living ones," Mr. Croxford suggests. "The Legion has helped the world war two veteran 100 percent over the help given after world war one. But hundreds of aged veterans are hardly able to eke out their living. They could be helped by building them rest homes, something like sanatoriums or old age homes."

"These homes would almost be self-operated, since they could look after the heating and care-taking themselves—there's no handier man than the old army or navy trained vet," says Mr. Croxford.

He feels that monuments or drinking parlors do little to help the old vet.

"But a rest home where they could work with tools, or do a little fishing, would be better than these memorials," he said indicating what he made for the Legion auditorium.

Near the end of the second war Mr. Croxford remembered how easily veterans of the first war were forgotten. His daughter, who was then in the airforce, sent him the stump of a crashed trainer plane's propeller, stamped at the factory '1943.' I received it September of that year—some of them don't last very long," noted Mr. Croxford. "I thought it would make a good memorial for the pilots."

WAR MEMORIALS

On the propeller he mounted the names of M. Hudema, A. Leighton, R. Morin, E. A. Smith, William Brown, R. F. Warne, G. B. Finley, W. A. Hadden and G. J. Zbura, men from here who were lost with the airforce. Mr. Croxford says that more names are to be added with names of men who died later from wounds. Metal letters of Latin and English, print out "Lest We Forget" on the mahogany base of the propeller.

By 1945 he had finished a third dimension gothic-arch memorial plaque bearing the names of deceased Prince Rupert army and navy veterans: David Oland, Aldo Compagnola, Frank E. Hodgkinson, D. J. Edlund, Thomas H. Ryan, James Suden, Jack Campbell, Whitfield Elder, D. Montgomery, Leonard Macdonald, and old Ponder, Alan Davies, Harry Monkey and E. L. Keays.

The natural grain of birch, mahogany, pine, Sitka spruce, yellow cedar and teak—the wood that has been used for the memorials—have been brought out by skilled workmanship. Mr. Croxford, who works as a pattern maker at the C.N.R. drydock, collected the wood during the war. One piece of Ontario elm that came into Prince Rupert as scrap wood for flat car props was made into an ornamental vase. While turning the wood Mr. Croxford left some of the elm bark on the base of the vase, which contrasts between the circular grain of the wood above.

"When I had finished the 1939-45 memorial, it didn't seem right unless we had one for the first war," noted Mr. Croxford. An old St. Andrew's Society plaque with the names of A. Brighton, C. Dennis, W. Elliott, J. Florence, Geo. Haggie, H. Hunter, N. Keith, F. Watt, N. MacKay, J. W. McKenzie, R. G. McKinnon, F. McVittie, Jas. Russell, R. A. Stalker, Jas. Stewart and J. S. Watt, members of the Prince Rupert society killed in the 1914-18 war, was mounted on another panel. "To add to this, part of Macrae's poem, 'Flanders Field,' which goes:

"To you from falling hands
"We throw the Torch"
"Be yours to hold it high," was written below the 1914-15 panel. Then in an answer for the 1939-45 panel these words were written:

"The Torch you threw we caught,
"Passed it on burning clear,
"Rest in Peace."

Mr. Croxford denies having literary talent. "Why, when I read anything except the Daily News I fall asleep," he states. But when cornered Mr. Croxford admitted writing the answer to Macrae's poem.

HONORED BY LEGION

The Legion life membership was given to Mr. Croxford in 1946 after he made an original flag standard for the Prince Rupert branch out of scrapwood. Upon the base, made from stained white pine, are printed in metal letters General Currie's words: "They served till death, why not we?" At the top of the standard is the Legion emblem. From this to the base run the letters in clear yellow cedar, "Prince Rupert 27," contrasting against the varnished yellow cedar background. In the centre of the standard an ornamental vase embossed on the wood, slides out to show the crossed (Continued on page 8)

APPLE CRUNCH PIE
Make pastry for two-crust 9-inch pie.
¾ cup shortening
2¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup water
Sift flour and salt into bowl. Take out ½ cup flour. Cut shortening (with knives, fork or a blender) into remaining flour until the pieces are the size of small peas.

Mix ¼ cup water with flour to form paste. Add flour paste to shortening flour mixture. Mix and shape dough into a ball. Divide the dough into two parts.

Apple Filling:
6 large tart apples or 5 cups pared sliced apples
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon shortening

Crunch Topping:
1 tablespoon shortening
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt

Roll pastry ½ inch thick. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry and trim edge even with plate.

Pare and slice apples. Combine with other filling ingredients. Place in pastry-lined plate. Top with pastry which had had small steam vents pricked in the top. Trim edges to ½ inch beyond edge of plate. Fold edge under, seal, and flute with the fingers of a fork.

Sprinkle with topping ingredients blended together until crumbly. Bake in a hot oven (425°F.) 10 minutes; lower temperature to 350°F and continue baking about 25 to 30 minutes.

HOUSEKEEPING

Buying By Grade Is Penny Saver; Home Economists Tell How to Do It

A PENNY SAVED

"Take care of the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves." Most people think it rather necessary to take care of the dollars too but at least we may start with the pennies.

Home economists say that buying by grade is a wonderful penny saver.

Take eggs for instance. Whether from the seller's or buyer's viewpoint, grading is a decided advantage. There are four grades for eggs in Canada. All eggs sold in Canada are graded. If the eggs are packed in thirty-dozen cases the grade will be indicated on each end of the case; if packed in cartons, the grade-mark will be on the top of the carton; if displayed for sale loose, as in baskets, the grade may appear either on the container or on a tag displayed with the eggs.

GRADE A1—Clean, fresh and sound in shell, finest flavor. The eggs are marketed only by inspected farms operating under a special permit from the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Eggs of this grade are not available on all markets. They are, of course, higher in price than other grades.

GRADE A—Clean, fresh and sound in shell. The white is firm and jelly-like. These are suitable for cooking in the shell or for poaching or frying.

GRADE B—Reasonably clean eggs, sound in shell. The white is less firm. These are good for general cooking.

GRADE C—Any egg which, because of low quality or lack of cleanliness, cannot be placed in higher grades. These are suitable for use in baking.

GRADES A1 AND A—Are sold in three sizes:

Large—24 oz. and up per dozen.

Medium—22 to 24 oz. per dozen.

Pullet, Grade A1—20 to 22 oz. per dozen.

Grade A—18 to 22 oz. per dozen.

The grade of an egg may be judged by the appearance when it is broken. An upstanding, firm yolk and a jelly-like white usually means a top grade egg. A yolk that tends to flatten out and merge into the white and a white that is "runny" and spreads out, indicates a grade B egg or perhaps a grade C.

Grade B eggs are just as high in food value as the higher grades and may be used in dishes where the eggs lose their identity when mixed with other more flavorful foods. The higher grade eggs are a "must" for cooking in the shell when delicacy of flavor is most important and for poaching, where the yolk should stand up and be covered by the water.

Whatever the grade purchased, careless handling in the home will cause high quality eggs to drop a grade in a surprisingly short time. Eggs must be kept cool all the time. The retailer should keep eggs under refrigeration and when they reach the kitchen they should be popped into the refrigerator immediately and not too near apples or Roquefort cheese as they readily absorb odors. Eggs should be stored with the larger blunt end up. This large end contains the air cell. If the large end is down the weight of the egg presses on the cell and tends to force it upward. This may loosen the protective inner skin of the egg. The yolk will rise to the small end of the egg and cling to the shell so it will be difficult to remove the egg from the shell without breaking the yolk.

So to save the pennies it is wise to know which foods may be purchased by grade and to give careful attention to the foods when they reach the home kitchen.

Indian Dep't Indifferent?

But in Prince George, Not Prince Rupert

The Vancouver Province makes editorial reference to an Indian woman convicted in the County Court at Prince George of arson and sentenced to two years. She had pleaded not guilty. The judge, the paper says, passed sentence reluctantly. The accused had no counsel and spoke little English and could not understand court procedure. Obviously, to quote, "here was a case in which the Department of Indian Affairs should have been represented and should have at least provided counsel for its ward." (The Province said the case was in Prince Rupert whereas it was actually in Prince George.)

England Is Fine

Mrs. Nesbitt Home—Tells Of Experiences After Franconia Stranding

Mrs. R. Nesbitt returned home a few days ago after a three months' visit to her native England which she saw at its best. Mrs. Nesbitt agrees with other Prince Rupert people who have said how lovely it is in England now and how happy and prosperous the people appear to be in spite of the continuation of certain phases of austerity. She is in complete accord with previous reports that have been received of the sobriety of the people in the old land in contrast with the intemperance which is so obvious in public in this country—particularly Prince Rupert. Mrs. Nesbitt's home is in London but she also visited Hull and Brighton and saw Buckingham Palace, Windsor and other points of interest. It was the first time she had been "home" in 39 years but she hopes to go back again in two years.

Mrs. Nesbitt left here July 5 for Quebec and embarked on the steamer Franconia which ran on the rocks of the St. Lawrence River shortly after departure. There were 850 passengers on board but there was little in the way of panic. The situation was met capably and calmly by ship's officers and Mrs. Nesbitt speaks highly of the fine treatment which was given after they were transferred from the Franconia.

Describing her experiences further, she said: "We had to run immediately for our lifeboats and eventually we were taken ashore by tugs to Chateau-Bonniers, which was about a mile away. Here we had to wait for further transport. Meanwhile we had coffee, sandwiches, beer and liquors. We then had our pictures taken for the newsreel."

"About 5 o'clock in the morning we were taken back to Quebec where they had to find sleeping accommodation for the 850 passengers. Some went to hotels, some slept in hallways, some in pulman cars and the rest anywhere where they could sleep in a blanket."

"From Quebec we went to New York via Quebec bridge, six miles long, through a five-mile tunnel under the Hudson River, coming out into Pennsylvania Station. "We finally sailed from New York in the R.M.S. Caronia on July 19 and arrived at Southampton, England, on July 24. From here we boarded the boat train to London, arriving at Waterloo Station in the evening."

Frank Waterhouse freighter Chilliwack, Capt. G. Pengelly, arrived in port yesterday to load wire for Cumshewa Inlet. Today she is at Masset loading 80,000 board feet of lumber. From there she will proceed to Kienut to pick up 3,600 cases of canned salmon and 4,000 gallons of salmon oil before returning to Vancouver.

School Teacher Beautiful Bride

St. Andrew's Anglican church was the scene of a beautiful wedding Friday night when Marian Idwa, daughter of Mrs. Alice Watson, Vancouver, and the late A. Watson, became the bride of Nigel A. Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hale, "The Haven," Woking, Surrey, England. Rev. Canon Basil S. Procter officiated. Henry Pluym was organist.

Dressed in royal blue velvet with portrait neckline and cowl collar, a Valenciennes lace insert at the bodice, the skirt falling in graceful folds from the nipped-in waistline, the bride had in her hair a spray of pink Pinnocchio roses. She also wore a three-strand string of pearls (something borrowed) belonging to Mrs. R. Murray. Accessories were gray.

The bridesmaid was Miss Marjorie McPhail, whose gown was of rustling navy taffeta with a plunging neckline, unpressed pleats around the skirt and navy accessories. She carried a corsage of pink carnations.

J. S. Wilson was groomsman.

Following the wedding, was a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Murray, 1141 Eighth Avenue East. The toast to the bride was proposed by A. M. Hurst and responded to by the groom.

The bride, a graduate of normal school at Vancouver and the University of British Columbia, has been teaching this year at Booth School and will continue to teach. The groom attended Salesian College at Farnborough, England. He is a veteran of the Royal Navy.

Following their wedding trip to the Queen Charlottes, from which they returned yesterday, the couple are making their home in Prince Rupert.

Recreation Hall For Miller Bay

One hundred members of the staff of Millar Bay Hospital will soon have available a fine recreation hall to augment the entertainment facilities in conjunction with the institution. The building is the one that was used as a recreation hall at the Seal Cove air base. The contract being in the hands of Mitchell & Currie, concrete foundation work is now being carried out at the location below the Nurses' Home at Miller Bay and, when this is completed, the building will be taken down and removed the seven or eight miles. RIGHT AND WRONG

MR. CHURCHILL has climaxed his visit to Denmark by advocating the early setting up of world government.

"Unless some effective world super-government can be set up and brought quickly into action, the prospects for peace and human progress are dark and doubtful."

Thus the great British war-time leader once again raises a banner to which all believers in human freedom can and should rally.

WHAT DO we mean by world government?

What is the difference between the United Nations Organization, as it now stands, and a true world government?

The UN is a mere association of 60 sovereign nations. It has power only to recommend action by the separate national governments. The UN cannot order any individual, anywhere on earth, to do anything right. It cannot order any individual anywhere on earth to stop doing anything wrong. It can only act THROUGH NATIONAL GOVERNMENTS. Every national government on earth retains the LEGAL power to order any one of its citizens to do anything that is humanly possible.

The U.S. government, for instance, could legally order its airmen to atomize twenty million Russians within the next 48 hours. The S.U. (Soviet Union) government could equally legally order its vast armies to sweep west across Europe; to stoop rockets into England, or U.S.A., or Canada—loaded with deadly germs.

As the law now stands no citizen in any country may lawfully disobey his country's orders. He is compelled, by law, to do anything he, or she, is ordered to do. That is true of the North Koreans today. It was true of the Germans in 1939—when Hitler ordered his armies into Poland—and when some German soldiers were shot on the day of invasion for trying to disobey.

WHEN WE GET any kind of world government the individual nations will have to cede some of their powers to the higher authority. The sovereign power will have to pass from the individual nation to the world authority much the same as it passed from the provinces of the Dominion of Canada when we set up our Federation in 1867, or much the same as it passed from the 13 states to the United States in 1789.

MR. CHURCHILL has once again led all the statesmen of the world in his outright advocacy of what a great many ordinary people (like myself) have been advocating for many years. This is proof that this idea has grown up in the true democratic manner, from the grass roots. It has now reached the level of practical politics.

But it seems to me that Mr. Churchill is away off the beam in his plan for making a United Europe, as one of the foundation stones of the future world government. The very term "United Europe" is a misnomer. For obviously neither Mr. Churchill nor anybody else proposes to include Russia in it. Yet Russia is geographically a part of Europe. It would be impossible to form a United Europe, even with Russia excluded, without her cooperation, except as a result of another war. And another war which destroyed Russia's power to prevent the union of Europe would automatically and simultaneously end the reasons for excluding Russia from such a union.

"Facts are stubborn things" and Russia is a fact.

BRITAIN CANNOT join a United Europe without liquidating the British Commonwealth.

Not long ago I had the privilege of telling a distinguished U.S. conference (including the Assistant Secretary of State) why this is so, in the opinion of one Canadian:

"Britain won't join anything which Canada won't join. Canada won't join anything which does not also include the U.S.A." There is nothing that a United Europe could do that a World Government could not do better. There are at least ten powerful reasons why it would be easier to form a world government than a true European union.

Why waste time on a blind alley?

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

One just naturally loves an apple. It has color, flavor and certainly is a form of good food. It is pleasant, and a health-giver in any shape, raw or cooked. The apple tree is found almost everywhere, outside of the Arctic and tropic zones. There are richer, more lavish fruits, but these we tire of, after a while. Not so the apple, with its stimulating bite. In practically all seasons, the apple can be hailed as the welcome companion. It's been with us since Eden.

A baby, born in London, was found to have a tail. When eleven months old it was skillfully removed, the treatment restoring the child to a normal state. Under all the circumstances, it was just as well. Later in life, there might have been embarrassing moments when the desire to do a bit of speedy tail-wagging was felt.

Of course, these mutual dislikes between provincial cities are only pretended. There is no actual ill will, and the provinces get a somewhat grin, if enjoyable "kick" out of it. The papers, are, doubtless, responsible. It's a fact Prince Rupert relishes whatever is to the disadvantage of Vancouver. Calgary and Edmonton, Saskatoon and Regina, Winnipeg and Brandon—they all exchange plat pleasantries. Quebec slaps Montreal where its supposed to hurt the most. Halifax and St. John have been scowling for a century, and it would never do to stop now. As for Newfoundland, there has not been time. However, it will come.

Canadian troops are at Fort Lewis, in the State of Washington, and it's being said that never before has the red ensign been seen there. This, in a sense is doubtless the truth. Yet, as a matter of fact, there was a time when British Crown authority, rather than confederated Canada, was represented at a point on the west coast far south of where Fort Lewis stands today. This was the Hudson Bay Co. at Vancouver, in southern Washington, near Portland. Before the border line finally fixing the American-Canadian boundary from sea to sea was agreed to, negotiations were lengthy, and sometimes inclined to be sharp.

Many a man, when he feels the need of a haircut, drives to Hollywood (Florida) where the charge has been cut to 35 cents. It's all right for the home folks, but where visitors are concerned a lot depends on how much gasoline is used.

There is nothing at all surprising in what motor tourists say concerning the absence of mile post signs, indicating distances to Prince Rupert. Has it not always been like that? It is not so long ago that anyone a thousand miles or so distant from Prince Rupert had his own time trying to discover any dependable data about the town at all. As a matter of fact, Prince Rupert cannot have too much up to date publicity all the time if for no other reason than trying to offset the effect of forty years of mischievous and misleading yarns.

BRIDE-TO-BE—Sixteen-year-old Hasar Ali Tasse arrived at Winnipeg's Stevenson Airport after a 6,400-mile flight from Lebanon. Speaking no English, she was unable to tell airport officials who she was or who was to meet her. After four worried hours, her husband-to-be, a Manitoba farmer, arrived at the airport—having been delayed by a timetable misunderstanding. The two had never met, but had carried on a courtship by mail. (CP PHOTO)

FOUR ARE ONE—Sault Ste. Marie's famous four, the Hargreaves quadruplets, seem to find more fascination in the photographer's antics than in their cakes as they pose for their first birthday picture. The quads are celebrating their birthday (Oct. 13) in a new home, built largely of material and labor donated by the residents of the Sault. Acting the perfect little ladies by restraining their desire to sample the cakes, they are, left to right: Jennifer Ann, Janice Barbara, Joyce Carol and Joan Diane. (CP PHOTO)

WOOD CARVING HOBBYIST

Union Jack and Legion flags, which drape on either side of the standard.

As well as wood turning, Mr. Croxford has model and sailing yacht building as a hobby. One of the 14 sailing ships he has built took second place in the 1936 Canadian sailing championship at Vancouver. He is now working on a three foot long model of the "Britannia,"—Samuel Cunard's first Cunarder. It is a three masted square rig, with paddle wheel auxiliary power. He is making it one eighth of an inch of a foot scale. Unlike some hobbyists, he doesn't bottle ships. "I like something I can work and play with," he explains.

Since he was 15 years old, Mr. Croxford's hands have constructed, usually in wood, the first living models of everything from 6 ounce pins to 30 ton stem frames for boats.

After serving with the Royal Engineers in the 1914-18 war, Mr. Croxford, who married in England, made his home here in 1919. A son, and daughter, served in the last war.

lost at sea in 1879. As far back as 1716 he can trace the names of his sea-faring relatives. "Maybe some of them came out from Biddeford and Tiegmouth with Drake," he mused. "Yes, I suppose there's salt blood in our veins—I wanted to go to sea, too, but mother wouldn't stand for it." Instead Mr. Croxford binds ships for a pastime. Since an accident during his war service left him deaf, he finds his hobby satisfying recreation. "But you can't rush it," warned Mr. Croxford. "One old ship builder worked on a model of Nelson's "Victory" for 20 years, and still wasn't quite finished. No, you can't force attention on it, or you make a mess of it. I do this woodwork just when the spirit moves me."
