Rich Ore Find— Stewart Mine Looking Good

STEWART—Ore samples from the Gold Drop mine, which has made a new strike, suggest that another property of potential importance has been found in the Portland Canal district. The ore is said to be similar to that which was originally found in the Premier with gold rather than silver predominating.

J. O. LeFrancis, managing engineer, reports that, of six channel samples which were taken, the average value was $130 per ton. One sample assayed as high as $112 in gold, $56.14 in silver, $28.07 in lead and $21.04 in zinc. A vein 70 feet long and three feet wide has been exposed.

The property, on which Montreal interests have so far spent $60,000 in development, is situated in the Marmot River zone, half a mile away from Marmot dock. The same company owns the Mountain Boy property.

Gordon Boosts Savings Bonds

MONTREAL—All officers and employees of the Canadian National Railways system were urged to invest in the fifth series of Canada Savings Bonds which go on sale next Monday in a message issued by Donald Gordon, C.M.G., chairman and president.

"Our personal welfare and the welfare of our country are both served when we invest in Canada Savings Bonds," said Mr. Gordon. "I strongly recommend that all officers and employees of the Canadian National system take advantage of the opportunity. In previous years many of us have purchased bonds for cash but the most popular way of saving is through the company's payroll deduction plan. The same arrangement will be available this year and foresight impels all of us not only to save as much as we can but to save systematically."

Responding To Health Survey

The public is co-operating well in the Canada-wide sickness survey now being conducted, according to a statement by Dr. D. McC. Black, director of Prince Rupert Health Unit.

He said that at first there was a little reluctance on the part of the housewives to take onto themselves the extra burden of keeping track of all minor illnesses and accidents but, when the idea and importance of the survey to the general health of the Dominion was explained, they gave their full support. All families under survey in this district have received their initial visit, he said.

Last Ditch Resistance Is Stiffer

TOKYO —There seems no question that the Korean war is in its final stages, said Major General Hobart R. Gay, commanding officer of United States First Cavalry, today.

TOKYO —While United Nations forces closed their steel clamp on 20,000 North Korean Communists just about the 38th parallel, one South Korean spearhead lunged to within 50 miles of the Red capital of Pyongyang today. Although advances were continued, official reports today stated that enemy opposition was stiffening north of the parallel.

A development of the past two days, only reported today, was of two commando raids by the British Royal Marines.

The Canadian destroyers Athabaskan and Cayuga were among the Allied warships which participated in this week's seaborne strike against North Korean targets and supply lines this week. The third Canadian warship—HMCS Sioux—has been in action on the east coast.

There was a general drought of reports on ground action today following announcement that United States First Cavalry Division had captured Kumchon on the southeastern approaches to the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. Kumchon is 70 air miles from Pyongyang.

Major General Hobart R. Gay, commanding officer of the First Cavalry, said that spearheads had smashed eight miles north of Kumchon to Hanpo on the main escape route of the Reds.

"The trap is closed," Gay said. "They will not get out any tanks, guns or vehicles."

The American push toward Pyongyang is supported by United Nations air cover and followed by British and Australian troops.

The South Korean First Corps pounded north along the coast from captured Wonsan toward the big chemical centre of Hamhung and west to form another spearhead toward Pyongyang.

The British commandos, in weird war paint and heavily armed, made their two daring raids on North Korea's east coast only 65 miles from Siberia. The commandos, going ashore in rubber boats from a United States destroyer, were reported to have destroyed two bridges and a tunnel in lightning hit-and-run raids.

Special Meet For Natives

Word was received by Frank Calder, M.L.A., this morning that there would be a special convention of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia November 10 to discuss Bill 267, the bill to amend the Indian Act. The information did not name the meeting place, but Mr. Calder thinks it is apt to be at Alert Bay.

A lot of organizations have been taking an interest in the bill, Mr. Calder said, and have been discussing it. The Public Affairs Institute planned sessions from now until the time it comes before Parliament again.

Daylight Time

WE SUSPECT that there will be more than a few mothers and fathers to agree with the theory expressed by Dr. Duncan Black, director of the public health unit, that daylight saving is detrimental to the health of the children of this part of the country where summertime days are long enough without making them any longer. We have heard a good deal of complaint ourselves from parents who find it difficult to get the children to bed while the sun is still high in the heavens. It is logical, therefore, for Dr. Black to come up and tell us that daylight saving is detrimental to the health of the children because they are losing sleep.

In spite of the advice of the good doctor, however, there will, undoubtedly, be those in Prince Rupert and British Columbia who will again want daylight saving in another year. We can only hope that, whether or not we have it again, there will, in any case, be some uniform practice established on an all or nothing at all basis. We have experimented with daylight saving off and on for 35 years now and we are still as confused and disagreed as ever.

United Church Meetings Here

Prince Rupert Presbytery of the United Church met here this week drawing delegates from as far south as Bella Coola and from Smithers in the interior. Those attending the meeting were Rev. A. J. Lawton of Port Simpson, chairman; Rev. P. H. and Mrs. Mallett of Terrace, Rev. J. H. Matthews of Hazelton, Rev. L. C. Johnston of Smiths, W. E. Bowd of Quick, Rev. H. S. Forbes and Mrs. M. Fougner of Ocean Falls, Rev. L. Scheutze of Bella Coola, Rev. G. K. King and T. Harris of Bella Bella, Rev. L. G. Sieber and Don Forward of this city.

In reviewing the work of the presbytery charges under the Home Missions report it was noted that the work and influence of the church was growing in this central part of British Columbia and in the marine missions.

In reviewing the property of the congregations it was deplored that so much property had not been kept up in Central British Columbia. The property was not in worse condition than other churches in the area, but improvement was urgent. New property included three new church houses and one new church.

Two students returning for the ministry did summer work under the Mainland Marine Mission at Klenmu and by means of the Thomas Crosby boat. Their work was outstanding in all points touched for influence and effectiveness. The students were B. J. Smiley of Toronto and W. L. Burnham of Vancouver.

A highlight in the two-day presbytery meeting was an afternoon report and discussion on the World Convention of Christian Education and the report of the chairman on the adult convention at the United Church Training School at Naramata.

Speaking on "The Secular Confronts the Sacred," A. J. Lawton defined the secular as the philosophy confining life to things and seeing man as things and not persons. This means

School Hears Blind Official

Yesterday afternoon students of Booth Memorial High School gathered at the Civic Centre auditorium to hear a talk by Harold Guest, regional supervisor,

Canadian National Institute for the Blind. His talk centred about prevention and the do's and don'ts of eye care. He told the students about one half the 17,000 cases of blindness in Canada today could have been prevented with proper attention. He was pleased with the attention the students gave and hoped they would follow out some of the suggestions he outlined.

Since his visit to the city in July, Mr. Guest said, there had been five or six new cases of blindness reported here. Most, he said, were people who had not realized they were eligible for listing as blind. He was high in his praise of member of the local branch of the CNIB and the Social Welfare Department for bringing the cases to the attention of the institute.

Mr. Guest arrived in the city Tuesday and left by last night's train for the interior, visiting Terrace, Smithers and Prince George and flying to Fort St. John and Dawson Creek before

Colorful Show— Fall Fashions Are Displayed

New horizons in fall fashions were carefully scanned by the spectators who viewed them last night in the Civic Centre auditorium. The fashion show, staged by the Job's Daughters and sponsored by the Rupert People's and Wallace's Department Stores, included the latest creations in formal, suits, sportswear, casuals, coats and tea-time dresses. Fall's favorite fabrics, in colors as bright-hued as autumn days, were complemented by the shimmer of jewels from George Cook's store.

Some of the style trends observed were the reed-slim skirts with half-pleats for walking comfort; cuffed, bell sleeves; shutter-tucking and buttons for trim. Outstanding because they combined chic with practicality were the raincoats with berets and cloche hats to match. One raincoat, in a brilliant hue, featured a becoming, flared sou-wester.

THE SHOW
Mrs. Quivell Woytella acted as commentator—introducing the models and interpreting the fashions. Following were the models and the ensembles they wore:

THE CLIMAX
A bridal scene climaxed the fashion show in which Lorna Donaldson, dressed as a bride in a white, embossed organdy with a deep all-round flounce and gosomer net veil, was escorted down the dais and back by Mel Skalemerud. They were preceded by Norma McKay and Margaret Strachan as bridesmaids dressed in brocaded satin dresses, one in strawberry-ice pink, the other in heavenly blue. Alex Mitchell and Barbara Teng sang

"Always."
Director for the evening was Alex Mitchell. Pianist for the fashion parade and the program was Mrs. J. S. Black.

Assisting with the entertainment, which was interspersed throughout the evening, were Barbara Teng who sang, "Bless This House;" Olive Strand on the accordion accompanied by Mary Strachan at the piano playing, "Wedding of Lily Marlene," "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," and the "Rhinelander;" Diane Kennedy and Shirley Hougau doing a clever skit impersonating an Axel Olsen and a Pete Pedersen. A group of the Job's Daughters, among them a strange dark singer, harmonized and led the audience in community singing.

Donna MacArthur, Honored Queen of the Bethel, gave an address of welcome and called on Mrs. L. M. Felsenthal to accept a bouquet in appreciation of her husband's assistance.

Because of their help behind the scenes, presentation were also made to Miss Dorothy Newcombe, Mrs. Mary Strachan, Mrs. Vera Eyber, Mrs. Winnie Webster and Mrs. Evelyn Berry.

CIVIC CENTRE NOTES

The handicraft courses under the direction of Miss Jean Travis of the University of British Columbia extension department have had fine attendance and good results during the past week. The enthusiasm of those taking the courses is gratifying.

to the instructor and several of the members of the group are taking all four courses.

The stencilling course has proved most popular during the afternoon sessions, and aprons, tablecloths and scarves have been artistically brightened with original and colorful designs.

The course in lino block printing will be held every afternoon of next week under the guidance of Miss Travis who is looking forward to even better results in the field of decorating on paper.

The course in leathercraft fundamentals includes carving, coloring, saddlery, and is of most interest to those who have taken leathercraft previously or anticipate doing so.

The splendid course in creative and practical design given on alternate evenings has proved most enlightening to those attending and will be continued this coming week.

It is expected that an attractive display of the finished articles can be arranged in the members' lobby at the Civic Centre at the completion of these UBC extension department courses, thus proving that hidden talents may be encouraged to the full by perseverance.

The motor vessel Sidney, Capt. O. Hendrickson, arrived in port this morning from Ketchikan with four carloads of frozen fish for trans-shipment by rail to eastern United States markets.

C.N.R. Annual Report Model

NEW YORK—In the final ratings of the independent board of judges for the financial world survey of annual reports, Canadian National Railways was judged as having the best annual report of the Canadian railroads. The bronze "Oscar of Industry" trophy will be presented to the company at the annual awards banquet in New York on October 30. More than 5,000 annual reports were submitted this year in the international competition, the tenth in the series of surveys. And these were judged in one hundred industrial classifications for the "Best-of-Industry" awards.

Home After Norway Trip

Fresh from the land of the "Midnight Sun," Mrs. Harold Helland, 656 Fourth Avenue East, with Sylvia, Roy and Peter greeted Prince Rupert with smiles yesterday after five months' vacation in Norway.

"Sea travel seems all right for children but for older people it doesn't seem so good," said Mrs. Helland referring to her vacation trip to the long sea trip on the S.S. Stavangerfjord which left Oslo, Norway, for New York September 26.

"Lilacs were blooming and it was a warm and nice summer—the best the old country has seen for years," said Mrs. Helland describing Norway at the time they arrived in May.

After visiting with Mrs. Helland's relatives in Gjøvik, they travelled to Vesterdaalen Island off the north of Norway where they stayed with Mr. Helland's relatives for July.

"When we arrived there at 1:30 in the morning the Midnight Sun was shining. It was never dark during the month we stayed in the north. At night the sun is a beautiful red ball," recalled Mrs. Helland.

While visiting their grandparents on the island the children fished for grey cod and swam in the ocean.

"The children also learned a little of the language," said Mrs. Helland.

"It was fine if they had more food and oranges and that," joked Sylvia, 11, who enjoyed the wild flowers of Norway "most of all."

Sugar, coffee and clothes were still rationed, with food prices and taxes higher than in Canada, Mrs. Helland found.

"But woolen goods and knitting wool are unrationed," said Mrs. Helland. She found that Norwegian women make the most of their clothes, using few cosmetics.

"The aftermath of the war is still felt. They received very little food during the war," said Mrs. Helland.

"It's good to be home. Although there's beautiful scenery in Norway, the landscape from New York to here—with the green, yellow and gold—was just as nice," concluded Mrs. Helland.

Blackwood On Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

Bridge is not an exact science. There is an axiom as true now as it was 100 years ago.

A correspondent sends the hand shown today, and writes:

"I have been reading your articles on sacrifice bidding and thought I would try a little of it. On this my opponents bid to game in confident tones. It was my guess they could make it, so I sacrificed at four spades. As I had figured I went down only 300 points. But the trouble is that if I had doubled my opponents instead, I would have set them 300. Total net result of taking your advice—minus 600 points. Phooey! M. H."

Neither side vulnerable.

Well, M.H., you've got me on this one. You made what is known as a phantom save. These ghosts will rattle their bones in bridge games.

Maybe, holding two quick defensive tricks in the ace, king of diamonds, you should have figured your chances were pretty good to beat four hearts. But you may ask, "How can you be sure?"

The answer is that you can't. If you could, bridge would be an exact science, and then it wouldn't be nearly as much fun. All I can tell you is to use your best judgment.

Consider the bidding. It offers important clues as to the location of enemy's high cards. What defensive help can you expect from your partner? If he has opened the bidding or doubled for a takeout, figure him for two winners (conservatively) or three winners (optimistically)—not over one defensive trick if he has merely overcalled.

If you think you have half a chance to set your opponents, don't make a sacrifice bid which you feel may go down over one trick. You say this is still guessing? Well, I call it using judgment. But to use your term, the player who guesses right most of the time will be the winner in the long run.

Remember the greatest experts occasionally make phantom saves. Remember there is no "never," no "always," no "absolute certainty" in bridge.

And therein lies the charm, the excitement and the beauty of the game which through the centuries has delighted with equal vigor the great and the lowly, the wise and the foolish, the expert and the dub.

SATURDAY SERMON

(By Rev. Basil S. Procter, Canon of St. Andrew's)

I am not objecting to the occasional operation of an open swindle for some harmless purpose for a bit of fun. But it is time somebody said something about the truth of the matter. Otherwise more and more people are going to regard this abnormality as the only normal and right way of supporting charitable and religious causes.

A raffle is a swindle not because the Irish Hospitals only get about fifteen cents out of every dollar invested in the sweepstake but for two much more obvious reasons.

The first has to do with the confusion between giving and getting that the ticket presents. If I lost, well, I made a donation. If I won, it was an investment. But it never was a donation, except in a minor sense, for somebody has to get the car, the trip, the toaster or whatever it is. So it is a swindle, because, in commending its general sale to the public, it is called support for a worthy cause.

The second reason is that you are really swindled out of your money because the raffle people have already figured you will not support the project they have in mind unless they dangle a carrot. In other words, what they really say to you and me is—we know you are not very interested in this project of ours, in fact we are pretty sure you don't want to give, so why not buy a ticket?

I could understand honest people feeling really insulted and replying: "If this thing is good enough for me to give to, I will give to it. If it isn't, there is no reason for me to buy anyway."

In other words, I say it is a swindle because people are fooled into contributing to things in which they are not a bit interested and should not be interested.

I know perfectly well that almost all who read this have in their present possession one or more tickets on something or other. And provided you regard them as gambling or fun money little harm is likely to ensue. But when in our minds they start speaking themselves with the sacred name of charity, good works, common weal and so on, then I say there is a horrible danger.

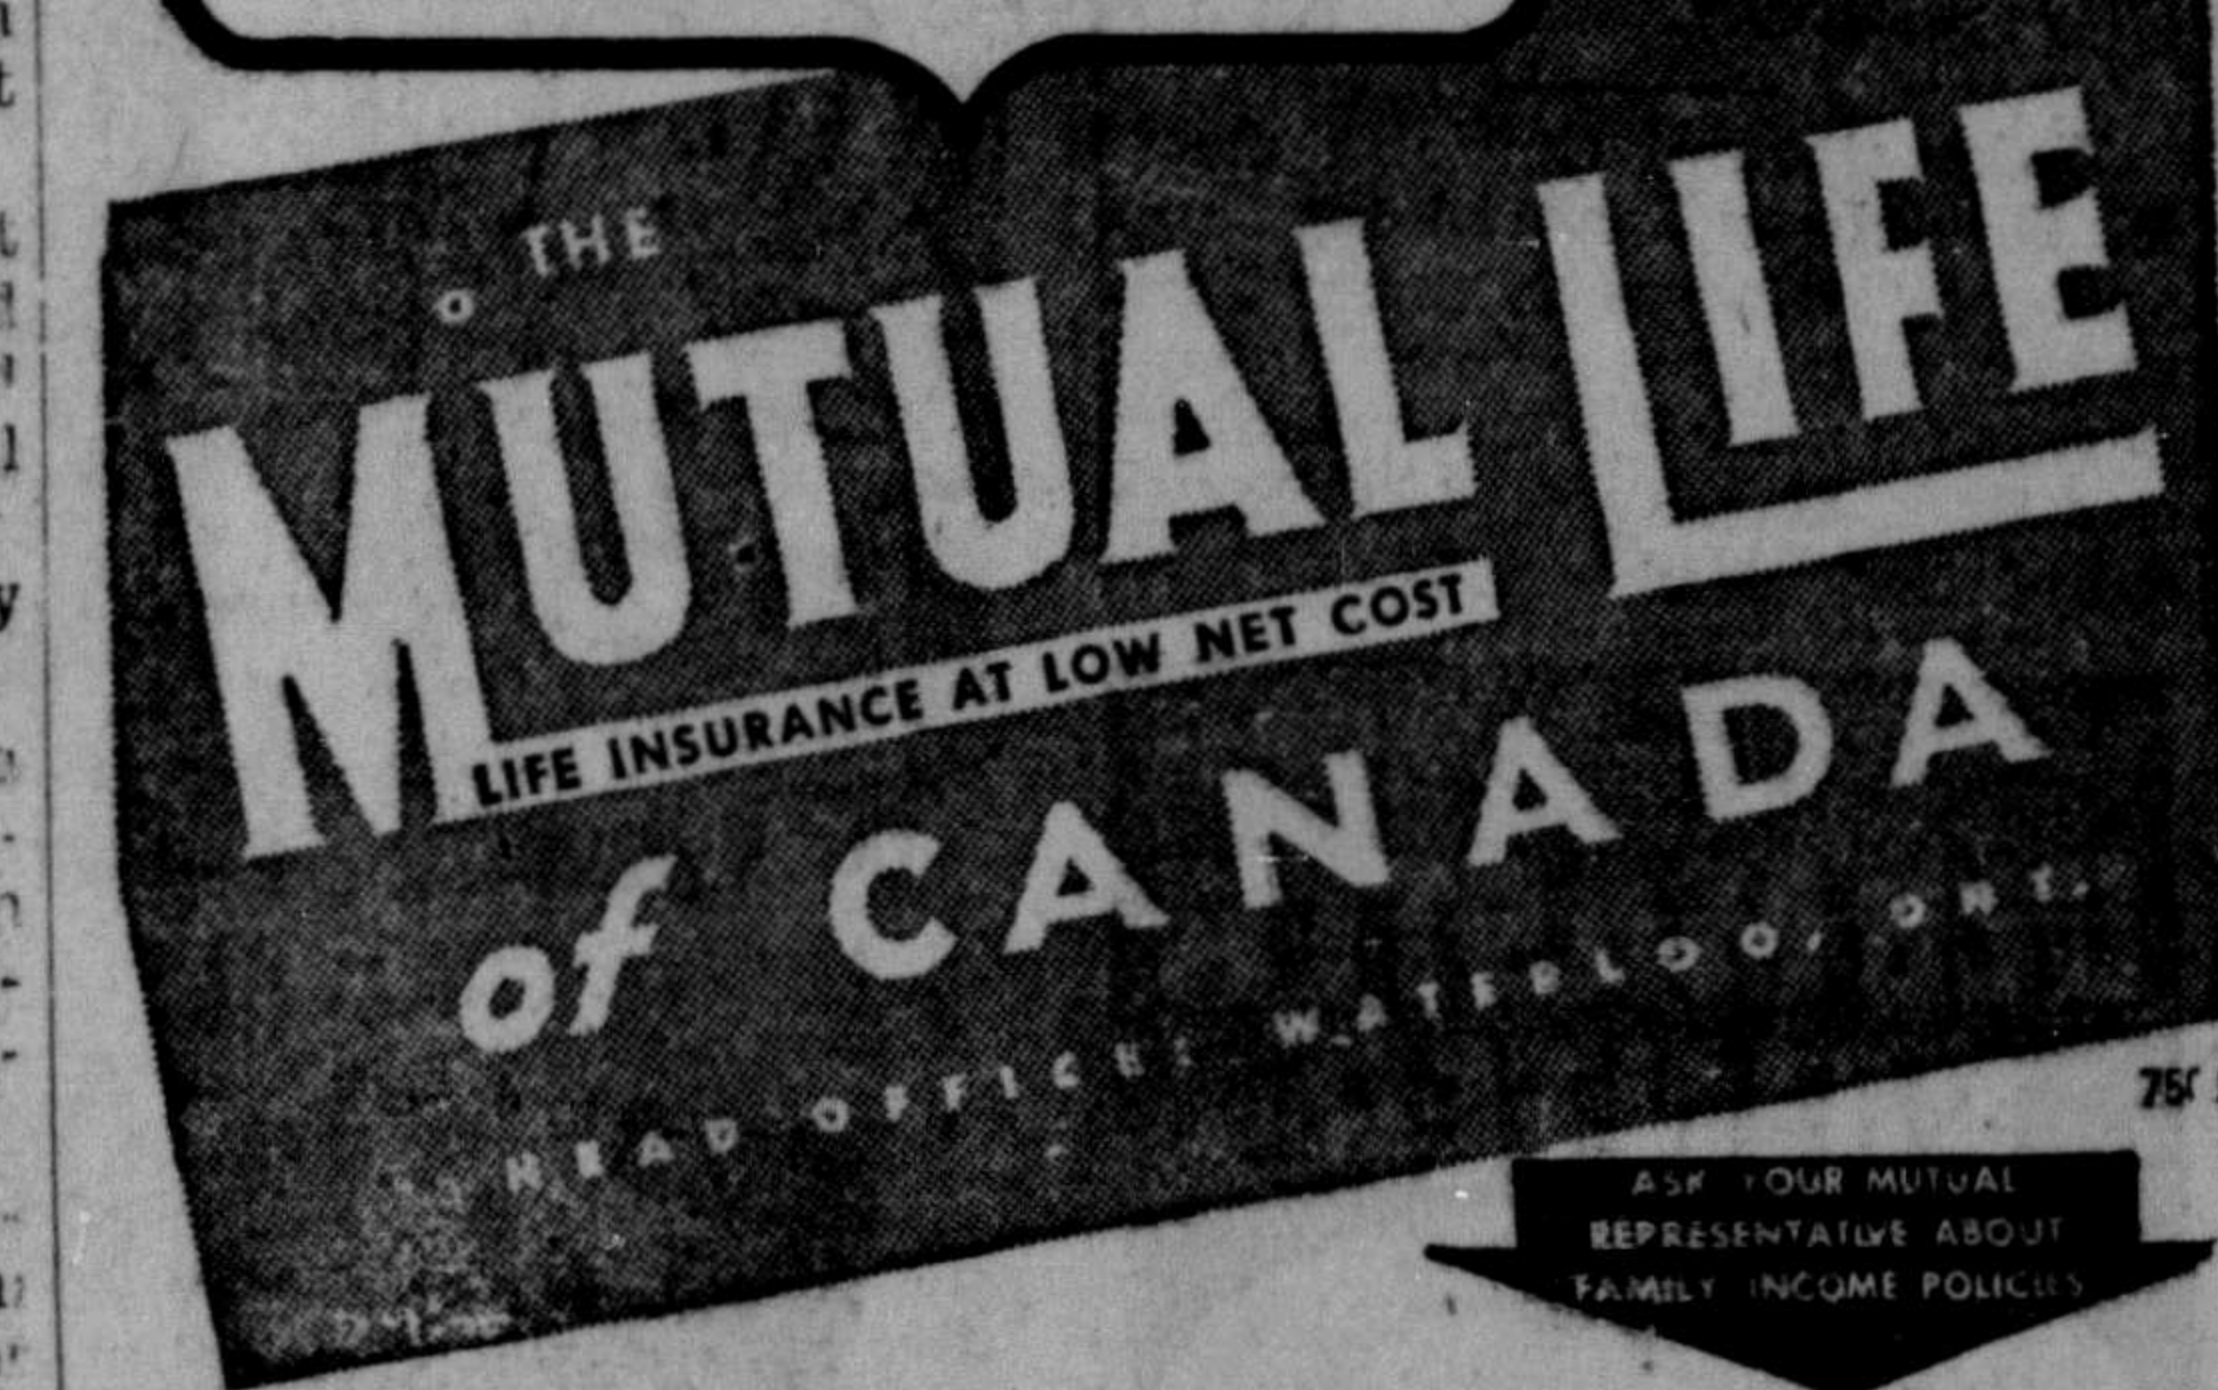

There is only one logical and right way to care for the needy to help the children, to spread the Gospel and that is by people honestly and sincerely setting aside a part of what they have to be given freely and wisely. There isn't any substitute for giving. And the trouble with raffles is that they make people forget this.

Suppose a business on Third Avenue attracted quite a lot of custom by having a white rat in the store. Would the business man assume that he would be better off to have twenty white rats in the store? I think the raffle is like the white rat. It may be interesting and amusing. But it is abnormal and the more it increases, the more obvious this would become.

I wonder how many people were shocked when it was proposed in Prince Rupert last May that the flood victims of Winnipeg be relieved by means of a raffle stunt in connection with ALMOST FROM the first 1938 issue of this signed Canadian newspaper column I have backed out-and-out federal union of the western democracies.

It was, therefore, a great encouragement to me when our Canadian Senate issued a strong call for a convention of all the North Atlantic countries to lay the foundations of transforming that loose alliance into an organic union.

IT WOULD BE silly to imagine that our Canadian Senate would pass such a resolution (with only one contrary vote) unless our government was favorable to the idea.

Now we get most convincing evidence that the British government too is moving in this direction. Two successive issues of Economic Record, issued by the United Kingdom Information Office at Ottawa, indicate this. The August 1950 issue shows that in two years Canada sold to Britain one billion dollars worth of products which were paid for by Marshall Aid.

In other words Britain was only able to buy because Uncle Sam was handing out huge international doles.

IN THE September number of Economic Record the U.K. Information office discusses a recent article in Lloyds Bank Review. It is by Professor Lionel Robbins of the London School of Economics.

Professor Robbins shows that the Marshall Plan has succeeded in its first objective—to stave off social and economic collapse in western Europe. But it has failed utterly in its second—namely to wipe out tariff walls and political barriers in western Europe.

He makes no bones about the main reason: "It is difficult to think of any body of responsible opinion (in Britain) which would exchange the known advantages of the central position in Commonwealth for the hypothetical benefits of political union with Europe."

Professor Robbins advocates the "integration" of the Atlantic Community as a whole. As an immediate step towards this end he would have one tariff and one money for the whole western group—that is, the U.S.A., British Commonwealth and all associated countries.

All the positive arguments favor federation of all the western democracies to pool their military forces and to integrate their economies. This can never succeed unless Uncle Sam joins—as "first among equals"—and not as the rich uncle overlord, as is now the case.

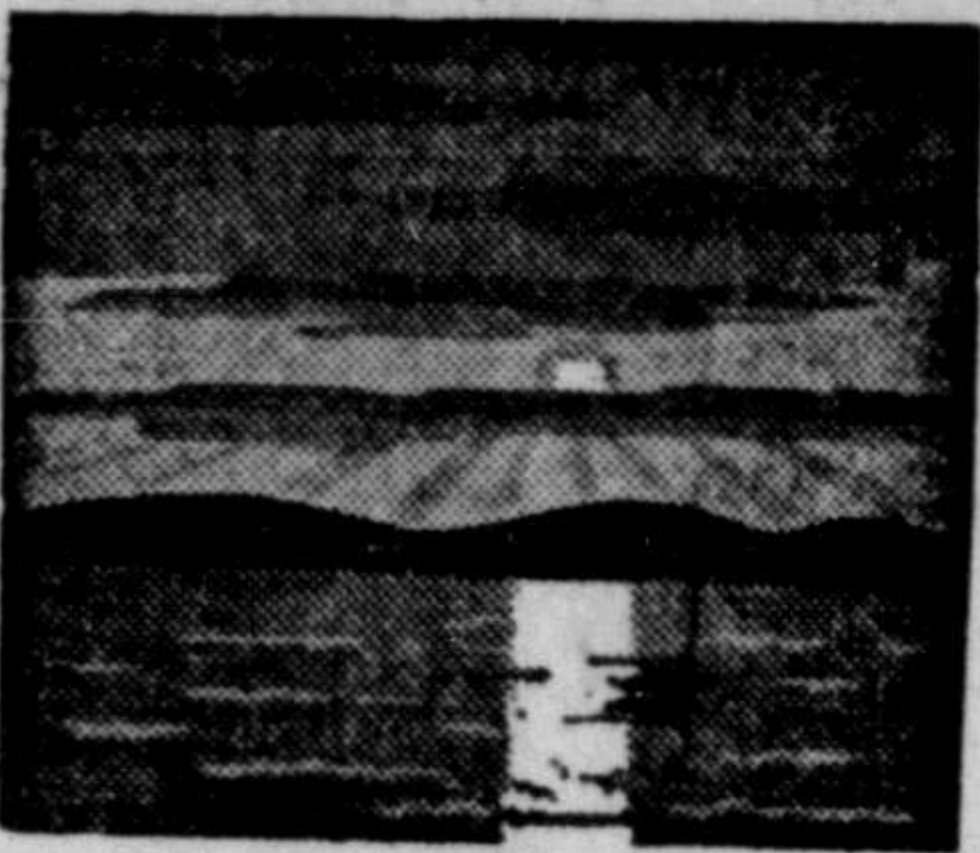

Just this week I noticed that U.S. Marshall Plan officials have notified Britain that she will have to cut her expenditures on housing and welfare services in order to carry out the huge rearmament program. As most of the money to pay for this latter comes from U.S.A. Britain must do what she is told—or else.

As things now stand we are, satellites of the U.S.A. and we are kidding ourselves if we don't see it. In a federal union even Canadian, Englishman, Frenchman, and so on would have as much control over the policies of the entire federation as every American.

It's a choice of being puppet or partners.

Salmon Season Cleaned Up—Sea Maid Has Trouble—Fantome Sails Again

This week has seen pretty much the cleaning up of the salmon season in the northern district. The last camp of Canadian Fishing Company arrived in port last night to hibernate for the winter, and other camps, if not already in, will be within the next few days. The larger fishing boats have now all headed south, where the season is still open. But the local waterfront is quiet after the busy time since halibut fishing opened May 1.

Next week Prince Rupert will see once again the familiar Union steamship Camosun on the northern run. But instead of arriving here Friday as she did all summer, she will relieve the Coquitlam on the run to Stewart and arrive Sunday. The Coquitlam will then have its annual vacation for repairs and refitting. The Camosun has been relieved for a few weeks by the Chilcotin.

The local codder Sea Maid developed difficulties off the west coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands when a part of the motor broke. Captain Henry Dolron is arriving here this afternoon to replace the broken part. The boat was towed into Queen Charlotte City yesterday.

Union steamer Chilcotin, Capt. H. E. McLean, arrived in port yesterday afternoon from Vancouver and way points. Disembarking here were Mrs. Docherty and Mrs. Martin. The Chilcotin sailed last night for Masset on in so doing, will return to North America this winter as a dollar-earning floating showroom for British exports. She is the former barque-rigged Fantome II, a 70-ton "dream ship" once owned by the Irish beer baron, A. E. Guinness, who died in 1949. The 50-year-old vessel is being converted at London and is expected to sail in January for a six-month cruise to United States, Canadian, Mexican and West Indian ports. British manufacturers are being invited to take exhibition space aboard at about $80 a display stand. The venture is under the control of a London firm specializing in international exhibitions. The sales experts will sail aboard the Fantome to the West Indies, through the Panama Canal and up the west coast of the United States, afterwards she will return through the Panama and visit east coast American and Canadian ports. Some of the ports the seagoing salesroom will visit are San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Vancouver, Cuba, Charleston, S.C., Norfolk, Va., Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto, and Rochester, N.Y. The Fantome's sales team will carry samples of textiles leather goods and costume jewelry. A crew of 25 is being recruited for the voyage.

It cost Capt. Nels Larsen of the Alaska packer Heather Kay a thousand dollars in Ketchikan court recently. He was charged with illegal fishing. The accused pleaded guilty. He was charged with fishing during a closed season, fishing within 500 yards of a creek mouth, and commercial fishing with gill net. The accused paid the thousand dollars.

Rt. Rev. James B. Gibson, Bishop of Caledonia; Rev. Canon Basil S. Procter and Rev. S. Kinley of Aiyansh are sailing Sunday night on the Chilcotin for Vancouver to attend provincial synod of the Anglican Church. Bishop Gibson returned yesterday from an air trip to Aiyansh, Greenville and Kinco-lith. Mr. Kinley also came in from the Naas River.
