More Austerity

IN THE DESPERATE EFFORT to increase production for export so the nation's credit abroad may be bolstered and the economic crisis weathered, Britons will have to face even more austerity. However, the measures, as announced yesterday by Prime Minister Attlee, were no more drastic than might have been expected.

In view of what Mr. Churchill said, it may be anticipated the new program will be adopted and put into effect with a minimum of delay.

Britons will have to go without some more things, the principal new economies being in social service, education, administrative and public works costs. The essentials of living, it appears, have been left alone as much as possible.

Thankful, can we again consider ourselves in this pleasant land of Canada when we compare the lot of old Britain where even a benign government is forced to extending measures of stringency.

MR. NEHRU SPEAKS

THE RESULTS have demonstrated, as Prime Minister Nehru referred to in his speech at Ottawa, of the new spirit that exists between India and Britain in the changed set-up of independence within the Commonwealth. If nothing else, the era of peace that has prevailed of recent months in that long strife-ridden land has illustrated it.

Mr. Nehru also spoke of the new India's desire to have no entangling alliances with any nations but to be in peaceful and friendly relations with all.

Mr. Nehru's visit to Canada should further strengthen that spirit of international friendship toward which he strives. Much interest is being taken in his visit and he is making an excellent impression.

THE BY-ELECTIONS

THE EIGHT FEDERAL by-elections went differently than some might have expected. Four again elected Liberals and the other four showed independence of the government. It was not to be expected that any of the Liberal seats would change particularly after a general election which had such spectacularly sweeping outcome in favor of the government party. In the one Ontario seat, the Progressive-Conservative majority had been small—163—in the general election, but the opposition party, with an outstanding candidate, increased this substantially. The electors showed no inclination to get on the bandwagon but an attitude of favoring stronger opposition.

THE NEW GOLD RUSH

THE ALASKAN GOLD STRIKE is attracting interest in Prince Rupert, as well as everywhere else on the coast or even further away.

Getting there today, is by air. That's the only way if it's speed you need. If the excitement amounts to anything, all who manage to reach there will not, of course, travel by plane. With a boom on, they will just go.

This strike is different from the 1898 stampede. For one thing, it's in Alaska.

Reports said that at a point between Fort Yukon and Circle, a man who followed fishing, made a placer strike. It became known and has resulted already in a tent town and crowded aeroplanes arriving at all hours.

It is understood that claims are being staked, but not much development work will be pushed until later in the season. The thing today is to stake ground.

Old timers in Prince Rupert who were through the Klondyke evince a keen interest in what's going on. Some say they are not surprised. Today, however, they face handicaps that forbid hitting the trail again.

I'm too old. If I were fifteen or twenty years younger, I'd be on the way. That appears to be how so many of them feel.

OLDEST WOMAN?—Probably the oldest woman in Canada is Mrs. Isabella Sharrow of North Bay who this week celebrated her 110th birthday. Mrs. Sharrow has been in hospital for more than two years under treatment for a hip injury. Nurse Colleen McMahon gives the frail woman a helping hand as she poses for this birthday photo. ### Highway Opening to be Red Letter Day—Down But Not Beaten

Premier Johnson and his cabinet can hardly wait for November 2. They are praying for fine weather. That day the much talked of, long delayed Hope-Princeton Highway will be opened to traffic. The rich Okanagan Valley will be brought within six or eight hours driving of Vancouver.

The Premier will cut a silken tape across the highway at Allison Pass while more than 2,000 persons look on. An honored guest will be John Hart, who was Premier when the first contract for the road was let four years ago. Another will be T. D. Pattullo, the only other living ex-Premier, who would have liked to start the road when he was government boss but never could because government tills weren't bulging in those days as they have been in recent years.

November 2 will be a double red letter day for Public Works Minister E. C. Carson. It will be his twenty-eighth wedding anniversary. No finer present could be given to him and Mrs. Carson than official opening of the road that has caused the Minister so many headaches in the last few years.

Certain public health officials in British Columbia would like pasteurization and immunization laws. They would forbid people to drink raw milk or go about without medical protection against diphtheria and other diseases. More patient people, while agreeing pasteurization and immunization are necessary for a high standard of public health, believe in going slowly. They believe that if people are forced they will rebel. Take pasteurization—most people today will not drink raw milk. They have learned, through education, that pasteurized milk is the safest. If there had been a pasteurization law many people who now won't drink raw milk would have been stubborn and refused to co-operate in pasteurization. Such is human nature.

The argument for compulsory immunization was heard in Legislative corridors here when it was learned that Dr. W. G. Blair, M.P. for Lanark, said in the House of Commons that parents should be prosecuted if their children die from diseases against which they could have been immunized.

British Columbia public health officials agree immunization is vital if children are to be healthy. But they don't want to stir up a hornet's nest by having it made compulsory. They believe education will do the job, more slowly. It is true, but more effectively. There won't be any compulsory pasteurization or immunization in B.C. for a long time yet.

Colin Cameron, fire-eating C.C. F.er, has been trounced by the public on several occasions in recent years but that doesn't discourage him. He talks whenever he can and, whether you agree with him or not, it must be admitted he's an effective speaker. He told a U.B.C. student C.C. F. Club that war or a drastic rev-

Ray Reflects . . . . . . and Reminisces

Prince Rupert's first theatre stood somewhere on ground now occupied by the railway yard or the American Army built warehouse. It was situated then on what was known as Rupert road. The films were tough on the eyes. The seating consisted of benches or kitchen chairs and could be classed as hard on any thin person. An adventurous piano took chances with the late Frank Stevens and the music was hard on the nerves.

How consumers in Prince Rupert managed to find water long before there was any Lake Woodworth service and the use of free flowing taps in homes is clearly enough to remember. There were frequent rainfalls and nobody worried about its purity. There were many muskeg holes and from this source of supply many a painful was packed home.

One fact about the proposed railway to Alaska is its virtual certainty, although no one can say at present what route it will take or when. There is more than one sound reason why steel should link the United States with its vast northern territory. Today, travel to Alaska is made by air by sea and by highway. But not one is more important than rail.

Whenever you see a man with handkerchief, socks and tie to match, you may be sure he is wearing a present. EX

We sing "O Canada" in different ways and with different ideas. Some think we have a flag and others are not quite sure. We say we are Canadians, and a neighbor reckons our great-great-grand grand fathers and mothers had something to do with it. Oh Unity, Carry On? We'll get there some day!

When a scow became too much one-sided on the way out to Shawatlands the other day and eighteen tons of coal went to the bottom, it was not the first time something like that has happened here. Years ago a large consignment of coal unloaded itself instead of being emptied on the wharf. Somehow the fuel spilled into the harbor and it was a dead loss, too. Old timers may remember the incident.

Experience is said to be the best teacher. And considering what it costs, it ought to be.

Tens of thousands of persons hold Irish Sweep tickets and its silly to pretend you're not interested. If you made a real killing you'd be supremely delighted, and so would your sisters, cousins and aunts—as well as envious. Most of us enjoy a fling, and, if it wins anything, the keener the satisfaction. Many are buying tickets for this or that practically all the time. The practice keeps no body poor, is neither sin or folly, and always some folks make the right gamble.

ENTHUSIASM FOR NAVY SEEN BY LOCAL OFFICER AT OTTAWA MEET

There is much enthusiasm generally in Canada for recruiting in the naval divisions, Lt. Walter Smith, executive officer of H.M.C.S. Chatham, reported last night following his return by plane yesterday from Ottawa where he attended a conference of commanding officers or their representatives of 20 of the 21 divisions across Canada.

Lt. Smith told of good progress which had been made by the conference in the way of planning and training programs considered in the light of the overall picture.

He enthused over the way the proceedings had been carried on under the leadership of Capt. H. L. Quinn, D.S.C., director of Naval Reserves for Canada. Capt. Quinn is a former Prince Rupert boy and his first naval experience was in the old Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Naval Reserve here twenty-five years ago.

"Everything was strictly business," said Lt. Smith describing the sessions.

Added interest was lent to the proceedings through the presence for the first time of a representative of H.M.C.S. "Cabot," St. John's, Newfoundland, in the person of Lt. Cdr. Fabian O'Dea.

Lt. Smith gave a report to his fellow officers last night in the course of the weekly parade of the local division which was followed by the showing of training films and a sports night which featured basketball practice.

The local division now has a strength of about 45 officers and men.

EXPERIENCES

While in Ottawa, Lt. Smith met E. T. Applewhite, M. P. for Skeena with whom he had luncheon and who showed him around the Parliament Buildings.

An experience in Toronto was watching one of the world's two commercial jet passenger planes taking off, flying and landing. It was an amazing spectacle at Malton Airport.

On Saturday night Lt. Smith saw a National Hockey League game at Maple Leaf Gardens when New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs played to a

FORT BABINE POST OFFICE

A post office may be established soon at remote Fort Babine in the central interior country. In response to representations made by E. T. Applewhite, M.P. for Skeena, an investigation is to be made immediately as to the feasibility and desirability of opening a Post Office there.

S. B. Roberts, chief engineer for Celanese Corporation of America, arrived in the city by air Monday afternoon on a business trip to the Columbia Cellulose Co. plant.

Distance was cut down to a minimum in relation to time when Lt. Smith flew home from Toronto yesterday between 1:30 a.m. Eastern Standard Time and 3:30 Pacific Standard Time.

Timely Recipe

Celery Stuffing

12 cups dry bread cubes
1 medium onion, chopped fine
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine
2 10-ounce tins cream of celery soup

Mix bread cubes, onion and seasonings; pour on butter while stirring. Stir soup; then add, blending lightly. Stuff fowl. Makes moist stuffing for 12 pound fowl.

The gravy to go with the turkey and stuffing should be plentiful. Another tin of soup will help you extend it in a way everybody will enjoy. Use cream of mushroom soup to add good mushroom flavor.

Seasonable Ideas for Housekeepers

TALKING ABOUT TOMATOES, HERE ARE INTERESTING FALL RECIPES

Pity our poor ancestors who spurned the "love apple" or tomato, as it is now called, simply because they superstitiously thought this vegetable was poisonous. Present day housewives have more than made up for the loss because nowadays tomatoes rank very high on the list of popular vegetables and, when they are in season, they are used by most families every day. Tomatoes are a most versatile vegetable and can be found on the menu as appetizer, soup, salad, vegetable, main dish, pickle and even dessert.

Much has been written to extol the virtues of ripe, red tomatoes and it would be a poor cook book these days that didn't include many recipes featuring tomatoes. The green tomato which is the mature but unripened tomato hasn't received the same publicity but it should not be neglected. Most people are quite familiar with green tomato and onion pickle, often called Governor's Sauce, or with chow chows or relishes containing a high proportion of green tomato but comparatively few housewives use them in cooking.

Home economists have recently tested several recipes using green tomatoes and one or two of them are passed along today.

The experts also suggest putting away a few green tomatoes to ripen slowly for use later on. It must be remembered of course that these tomatoes, although green, should be mature; they should be absolutely free from insect injury or skin punctures and should not have been touched by the frost. The tomatoes should be individually wrapped in paper and stored in a box or drawer in a cool, dry place. They will ripen slowly and should keep for several weeks.

Green Tomatoes in Spicy Sauce (Vegetable Dish)

2 pounds green tomatoes
1/4 cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons dry mustard
Dash of cayenne pepper
Dash of pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash of cloves
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water
Wash tomatoes, remove stem and any scars. Cut tomatoes in quarters. Add onions. Mix sugar and spices, add to tomato mixture and cook slowly about 10 minutes. Blend cornstarch with cold water and add to mixture. Cook until mixture has thickened and the mixture is clear, stirring occasionally, about 5 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Green Tomato Relish

1 1/2 lb. green tomatoes (12 small)
1 1/2 lb. tart apples (6 medium)
1 1/2 medium onions
1 sweet red pepper
2 1/2 cups vinegar
2 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons ginger
1/2 teaspoon turmeric
1/2 teaspoon salt

Wash tomatoes, remove stem ends and any scars. Peel, core and quarter apples. Peel onions and wash and remove stems and seed pod of pepper. Put tomatoes, apples, onions and red pepper through a food chopper using fine blade. Boil vinegar, sugar, cayenne pepper, ginger, turmeric and salt for 1 minute. Add the chopped vegetables and apples and cook for 1/2 hour. Pack into hot sterilized jars and seal. Yield: about 6 cups.

Green Tomato Marmalade

5 cups chopped green tomatoes
3 cups sugar
1/4 cup chopped, preserved ginger
1 lemon, grated rind and juice
Wash and peel tomatoes. Put through food chopper, using coarse blade. Add sugar and let stand overnight. In the morning, bring to boil and boil gently for 35 minutes. Add grated lemon rind, lemon juice and chopped ginger and boil rapidly for about 20 minutes longer. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Yield: about four 8-oz. jars.

dential wall party line phones is $1.75 monthly, while 412 subscribers who have monophone wall party line phones pay $2 monthly. The new plan would lump both together on a net $2.50 charge.

Similarly, residential party lines with standard desk phones, which now pay $2.25 and residential party lines with desk monophones, which pay $2.50, would be grouped together with a $2.75 charge.

Residential main line standard wall phones, and residential main line mono wall phones, which now pay $2.75 and $3.00 respectively, would both pay $3.50, while residential main line standard desk and residential main line mono desk instruments, which now pay $3.25 and $3.50 respectively, will pay $3.75.

Ratio of increase on business telephones is greater than on residential-phones. However, because of the vastly greater number of residential subscribers, bulk of the total increase will come from residential subscribers.

All increases in subscriber rates will be on a net basis, payable by the fifteenth of the month previous. A gross amount of $1 more will be charged on accounts payable after the fifteenth.

On motion of Alderman H. S. Whalen, seconded by Alderman W. F. Stone, the plan was adopted. Favoring the motion were Alderman Whalen, Stone, Black, Forman, Casey and McLean.

Alderman Daggett opposed the motion. Alderman George Rudderham, acting as Mayor in the absence of Mayor Nora Arnold, did not vote.

A bylaw will be necessary before the new rates come into effect. It will receive its first
