Gory Insurrection Breaks Up Parley In Bogota

Gromyko Suggests Act of Veto Against States; Stalin Sees Red Enmity

RUSSIAN SUCCESS (CP)—Russia today vetoed Italy for United Nations membership for the second time. The veto came after the United States had urged by the Soviets with using the United States to influence the coming elections in Italy. Delegate Andrei Gromyko charged that the United States had resorted to "direct blackmail" and other forms of pressure in Italy's international affairs. The United States had demanded that Italy be admitted to the United Nations immediately. The American delegate, Warren P. Austin, told the security council that another Russian veto application would be interpreted by the world only as an expression of the Soviet Union's lack of friendship for the Italian people.

FINLAND IS FEELING SAFE

HELSINKI—Finland can now look to the future with confidence, Premier Passikwi told his people yesterday following the signing of the treaty with Russia. "We will not have to go to war ourselves and will be spared attack by Russia's enemies."

General Election In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG—The Union of South Africa will hold a general election May 26, an official proclamation announced today. The election will be fought out primarily by Prime Minister Jan Smuts, leader of the United Party, and Dr. Francois Malan, isolationist and head of the Nationalist Party.

Fourteen Nazi Exterminators Sentenced To Die For Crimes

NEURNBERG (CP)—Fourteen officers of Adolf Hitler's SS Elite Guard were sentenced today to hang for at least one million killings. The sentences wound up the biggest murder trial in history. The men were leaders of "Einsatz Commandos," special extermination squads which were sent into Russia to do away with people classified by the Nazis as racially undesirable. Two other men drew life terms and another five were sent to prison for lesser terms ranging down to ten years. Major-General Otto Onlendorf was one of those sentenced to death. He admitted in the trial before an American court that his Einsatz group had killed 90,000 Jews. He was top man in a special brigade of 2000 trigger-men organized by Hitler.

LABORITES SPLIT
VICTORIA—A split in the lobby against sales tax and labor legislation took place Friday when 18 straight labor men bolted the Labor-Progressive Party group and left for the mainland. Cause of the break was an attack by Harvey Murphy, vice-president of the British Columbia Federation of Labor, on C.C.L. leaders. William Mahoney, western director of organization for the C.C.L., demanded a retraction from Murphy of his remarks. Murphy refused.

FATAL EXPLOSION
VANCOUVER—Explosion of an anti-aircraft shell Friday night killed John McKay, 40-year-old ex-Army ordnance expert, and wrecked the rear of his Victoria Drive jewelry store. McKay, attempting to melt a shell with an acetylene torch, suffered multiple intestinal perforations and died four hours after being taken to hospital. He was making a shell into an ash tray for a friend.

BELL BILL TALKED OUT
OTTAWA—For the fourth straight time, a bill to authorize capitalization of the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada was "talked out" in the House of

Still Real Music Here

Large Audience Expresses Deep Appreciation of Symphony Orchestra and its Good Work

In these days when the radio receiver, the record player and the juke box seem to satisfy the musical effort and taste of so many people, it is satisfactory to note that cultural music is receiving some active attention as well as appreciation in Prince Rupert. A gratifying demonstration to this effect was the annual symphony concert of the Prince Rupert Symphony Orchestra at the Civic Centre auditorium last night. The twenty-four piece instrumental ensemble was heard in an harmonious and creditably executed program of popular selections from various masters of orchestral composition. Long hours of diligent and effective application and practice were rewarded with a happy result and Conductor Neville Gerrard and each and every one of his participating musicians were deserving of the congratulations and commendation which a very substantial audience implied by its enthusiastic plaudits. Lending further to the genuine pleasure of the evening were the delightful offerings of two charming assisting artists—Miss Frances Moore A.T.C.M., pianist, and Miss Grace L. Merrill, coloratura soprano. They too won sincere demonstrations of audience appreciation.

The presentation was under the joint auspices of the Prince Rupert Gryo Club and Prince Rupert Civic Centre Association. The program opened with the ever-popular von Suppe "Light Cavalry" overture and then three of the well known and melodious classical minuets—Beethoven's dainty "Minuet in G," Haydn's vibrant "Militaire" and Boccherini's rhythmic "Celebrated," giving full play to the dominant strings, were effectively rendered.

Miss Frances Moore once more showed her complete mastery of the instrument with her piano playing of Chopin's temperamental and technically complicated "Scherzo, Opus No. 31," her encore being the sweetly captivating "Butterfly Waltz" of the Canadian composer Ernest Seitz. The audience evinced complete appreciation and the presentation of a bouquet to the

REVOLUTION IN COLOMBIA

INTER-AMERICAN CONFERENCE IS DISTURBED BY BLOODY COUP

RED COUP DOWNED
ASUNCION (CP)—Paraguayan police announced today that they had scotched an attempted Communist coup. They said it was coordinated with similar moves in other countries aimed at interference with the inter-American conference at Bogota, Colombia.

BOGOTA, Colombia—The Conservative government of Colombia was overthrown by the leftist Liberals in a bloody revolutionary uprising yesterday even as the Pan-American conference, with representatives from 21 American republics including the United States, was in session.

The revolution followed a leftist Liberal leader being assassinated, his murderer being dragged forth and kicked to death. Setting up of the Liberal junta ensued.

Last night the capital city here was in wild disorder, almost uncontrolled.

Today the city was a paralyzed shambles with at least one hundred persons killed and 200 injured, according to one report. Thirty-five of the capital's major buildings were on fire in the embattled downtown area.

Conflagrations still raged in the heart of the city today with the revolutionary rioters surging through the streets which were littered with debris and corpses. Looters worked in the fire-torn premises.

The Conservative government, which is headed by President Mariano Ospina said today it expected to regain control. Perez declared communist influences inspired the revolution.

Revolutionary leaders claimed that the insurrection was spreading throughout the country following the proclamation by the Liberals of their own government.

Top-ranking diplomats of the twenty-one countries were in Bogota for the conference. Many have been without food since yesterday morning but all are believed safe.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall of the United States and his party are safe, Washington reported.

The disrupted inter-American conference venue may be moved to Lima, Peru, possibility being that an invitation would be accepted to transfer sessions there.

Colombian Army forces with tanks and motor trucks arrived at the American embassy in the riot-wrecked downtown section at the middle of this morning to remove United States personnel to other sections of the city.

Nations That Forget God

"PRIDE GOETH BEFORE A FALL, and a haughty spirit before destruction." That Scripture was never more tragically fulfilled than in the case of modern Germany. The devastation of German cities and the utter hopelessness of the German people today present a picture of dreadful contrast to that of the pompous magnificence and swaggering assurance of Nazi Germany.

But that pride and arrogance did not begin with Hitler; he merely revived them in their crudest form. They began with Bismark and rose to their height with the uniting of the German states in an Empire after the Franco-Prussian War of 1870. The sweeping victory over France went to the Prussian's head and he strutted before the world as a mighty conqueror.

We recall the pride that went before the fall of the Kaiser. We are well acquainted with the picture of its revival under Hitler, and we know how great was the fall thereof by the published photographs of bomb-shattered German cities and the degradation of the people.

To complete the picture we have only to think of the abject poverty and misery to which the haughty world rulers have been reduced. The survivors of the Nazi party are utterly disillusioned. All groups—politicians and scholars, engineers and doctors—are hungry, threadbare and poorly housed, with the result that they think disconnectedly, with the margins of their mind.

But we would be no better than they if we were to gloat over their humiliation and talk of "who won the war?" We have "beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." Well might the nations stand in awe in the presence of so terrible a judgment. "The Lord is known by the judgment which He executeth; the wicked shall be snared in the work of his own hands. The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all nations that forget God."

AN ANCIENT DEBATE

THEY WERE DEBATING Communism thousands of years ago and the essence of the whole thing—even here in Prince Rupert today—is much the same as it was on the Mediterranean shores, away, away back. Plato endeavoured to put over ideal commonwealths. Aristotle, who could see realism, opposed the idea, saying self-interest was more dependable than interest in the common good as an incentive to work. He was certain a man would work with more diligence to care for his own family than he would for people whom he did not know. Aristo, old boy, you had something, there!

HOW ABOUT THIS DUST?

DOWN HERE in our Third Avenue sanctum we have closed our window and, now we have got the dust out of our nose and eyes, we are going to write about dust. Surely we have been enduring it long enough and are entitled to wonder when our worthy public works department up there at the City Hall is going to do something. They may be assured that public indignation, not only of the poor folk who are forced to do business or live on Third Avenue but also of the good citizen who traverse the main drag, is rising as high as the billows of dust which nigh choke us every time the slightest breeze wafts its zephyrs these fine days.

Yes, we think it is high time that something was done about this dust. It is not only blinding, choking and nauseating but it is downright unhealthy, and we hope that the powers that be, for the sake of our health and our comfort and our good name as well, will find some way of ameliorating these dust-storms that daily blow. Or had we better just pray for rain in "Hecate Straits" and a few blocks further west?

PIONEER WOMAN OF CITY PASSES

When death came at the Prince Rupert General Hospital at 4 o'clock this morning to Mrs. Mary Ann Cumming, 667 Fifth Avenue East, a highly esteemed pioneer woman of Prince Rupert was removed. She had been in failing health for some years and her condition became such two weeks ago that her removal to hospital was necessary. Her passing came as a merciful release to suffering.

The late Mrs. Cumming was born seventy-six years ago in Newburn-on-Tyne, Durham, England. With her husband and two young children, she came to America in 1909 and the family lived for three years in Galveston, Texas. Then, after returning for a year to England, they came to Prince Rupert in 1913 and made their home here ever since except for a period of about a year in 1921 when Mr. Cumming was transferred to New York as representative of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. After Mr. Cumming's death in New York, Mrs. Cumming and her two children returned to this city to make their permanent home.

In addition to her son, William, and daughter, Frances, deceased is survived by one sister, Mrs. Maria Hill in Northumberland, England.

On Monday evening there will be a service at St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral after which the remains will be placed aboard the steamer Princess Adelaide and, accompanied by the son and daughter, taken to Vancouver where interment will be made.

Mrs. K. McCaig returns to Butedale on the Catala this afternoon following an Easter holiday visit here with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McRae.

Q. Is it proper for a girl to accept expensive gifts from a young man who has been calling on her for some time?

A. She should never accept an expensive gift unless engaged.

Q. What is considered "the first rule of etiquette"?

CHRISTIAN PRIDE
By REV. A. M. McCOLL, First Presbyterian Church
"For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."—Romans 1:16

When we open the hymnal of any Christian church we find it full of poetry and music glorifying Christ and His gospel. A hundred titles—"All hail the Power of Jesus' name." In the Cross of Christ I glory," "Blessed assurance," all proclaim the Gospel of Christ to be a source of immense pride to the Christian.

It is all the more surprising therefore, that the Apostle Paul should write to his converts in the Imperial City of Rome: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."

The statement implies that the Gospel, far from always being a source of Pride, can become a source of shame. For we all have a tendency to be ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, to cover up our identity as Christians, to keep silent when we should be witnessing in word and in action.

We all have an overwhelming desire to be like everyone else around us. We instinctively distrust people of a different color, a different background, a different religion, because they arouse unreasonable apprehension in us. This apprehension we rationalize into social rejection. Now, as a result of this attitude, we ourselves strenuously avoid being "different" for fear of becoming socially unacceptable, even as we do not accept those who differ from us.

Fear of rejection molds us into accepting the prejudices of the "crowd" to which we feel we must belong. We pride ourselves on being "a regular fellow—just one of the gang." The last thing we want is to be different.

Now it so happens that as Christians we are different, like it or not. We cannot be Christians and be like the rest of the world, for any one who has ever been truly confronted with the Gospel of Christ is bound to be different for a lifetime. Not necessarily in his conduct though! There he may be as callous or ruthless as any godless man. But in his heart he will never be able to destroy the challenge of Christ. Like it or not, he will have a gauge by which to measure all his deeds and all his thoughts. In Jesus' own words: "He will be in the world up to his ears but not of the world," because the remembrance of the Gospel will make his compromise painfully uncomfortable.

The Gospel of Christ is like a fortress. The proud Christians will gladly expose it to all attacks, knowing that no blockbuster or cynicism or evil can ever shatter it. The shame-faced Christians—doubting whether its foundations are solid enough, whether it is really liveable and defensible—will try to camouflage it by purposely talking and acting like the rest of the crowd. However, no matter how hard he tries to melt into the landscape of the commonplace and the ungodly, he will never feel secure and at peace with himself. The challenge will keep gnawing at his soul, accusing him of treachery, daring him to be "different."

Now we ask once again; why are we ashamed of the Gospel, when we profess to admire it so heartily, when we claim that it is God's greatest gift to man.

In Russia the answer might be simple. A Christian in Russia is at terrible disadvantage, because his religion is not respectable. As a matter of fact, it is considered a deplorable weakness. By practising it too boldly he might even endanger his life. Thus he has a good reason to hide it from himself.

Strangely enough, however, the Church has always been strongest when oppressed or persecuted. Whether the oppression is non-violent as in present-day Russia or violent as in Hitler Germany, the Christian Faith always emerges strengthened by its ordeal. True, the weak fall by the wayside, but the strong gain added strength and feats of witnessing—for "martyrdom" means "witnessing"—are accomplished for Jesus' sake.

In our country, however, Christianity is respectable, so much so that it has become difficult to talk about it. A witnessing Christian in our midst is not threatened with physical violence. The great threat is directed to his moral courage. It lies in the indifference, cynicism, ridicule of his audience.

We seldom realize how much we dread being ridiculous. As much as we like to tease and be teased, when people smile and shrug their shoulders at what we take seriously, when they will not listen with even a minimum of respect and courtesy to our cherished convictions, when they make downright fun of our most sacred beliefs, that is a different story.

We like to think of the spread of the Christian Faith in terms of the heroic and the spectacular. Before our eyes of the Church up to the present day. There were too many, and most of them left no record of their witness. Rather let us think of what Jesus Himself suffered at the hands of a jeering, unbelieving mob. Remember that the cross was a punishment meted out to criminals whose crime was considered particularly disgraceful. The super-church and leading up to our contemporary-martyr-forsthe-faith. We see them being burned at the stake, bleeding and contempt, and to fill his cup of agony to the brim, we read that the passers-by "railed on Him," and that even the two thieves who were crucified with Him, "reviled Him."

Railed... mocked... reviled—what shall we say? Shall we be ashamed of the Gospel of Christ or shall we be proud of it?

There is another martyrdom today, however. It has existed throughout the ages, whenever a Christian tried to bring a fellow-man to Christ and was met with ridicule. I venture to say that the number of these witnesses, martyrs, in the face of ridicule, is a thousand times as large as the number of physical martyrs, and that their company is just as glorious. There may be a certain satisfaction in spectacular martyrdom. At least you know that you are writing a chapter in the history of the faith. But to speak up boldly in a storm of mocking glee and to proclaim the gospel under the pelting of cynics, ignorant remarks—that seems to give no immediate satisfaction whatever. The only satisfaction of the nameless spiritual martyrs is the echo of Christ's words to him: "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you, falsely, for my sake. Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward in heaven. For so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." This is how the Gospel of Christ, from being a source of shame, becomes a source of pride to the Christian. Godliness and faith have been a stumbling block to the ungodly for ages.

Two incidents stand out in our minds, Ephesus and Athens. In both cities Paul underwent indescribable torment because the people would not take him seriously, but mocked him, taunted him, pilloried him with their "smartness." He conquered because he was not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. We cannot here trace the story of the spiritual martyrs

GOOD advertising copy and attractive layouts are, of course, essential to the success of your advertising. But from the standpoint of final results the answer depends upon the distribution of your advertising.

When you buy newspaper advertising you are paying for an opportunity to talk to people about your merchandise and service. young artist was a popular gesture. "Shepherd's Dance" from German's "Henry VIII Dances," with its swinging rhythm, and Schubert's "Marche Militaire," (an encore) rounded out the first half of the program in a happy manner.

The repertoire entered into a more technically exacting interweaving of the instruments in the opening group of the second half with Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 5 in F Sharp Minor," Greig's haunting "Solveig's Song from "Peer Gynt," and Brahms' famous and always acceptable "Lullaby."

Miss Grace L. Merrill, Prince Rupert's latest vocal find and an entirely delightful one, was in sweet and dexterous voice as she sang, to the accompaniment of Mrs. J. C. Gilker, H. Lane Wilson's "Carmena," Eva Dell Acqua's "Villanelle" and Harford Marshall's "I Hear You Calling Me," the last mentioned for an encore. Bouquets were appropriately enough presented to both singer and accompanist. To bring the program to conclusion on a high note and with a taste for more, the final offerings were Ivanovici's rolling "Danube Waves" waltz and Chopin's "Polonaise Militaire," which was a happy climax giving the orchestra full scope for its sweep and power. The overture to "The Caliph of Bagdad" (Boieldieu) was the encore response.

The personnel of the orchestra taking part in last night's concert was as follows:
 Piano—Mrs. Gilker
 First Violins—A. C. Cameron (Concert Master), Mrs. Charles Anderson, V. Tattersall, G. Varfeldt, Miss Olga Zabudny, Mrs. Norvald Rodseth.
 Second Violins—F. Conrad, Mrs. E. J. Smith, H. A. Ferguson, Mrs. James Greer, J. L. Lee, J. H. Ferguson.
 Clarinets—F. M. Gulland, W. E. Beck, T. A. Johnstone.

KETCHIKAN FIGHTERS HERE

Headed by trainer Harold Blanton, a dozen Ketchikan boxers arrived here shortly before noon today to take part in the Canadian Legion tournament at the Civic Centre to-night. Headline fighter is Bill Hamilton, who will meet Pat Johnson of Terrace. The Ketchikan group arrived in the boat Catalyst which was especially chartered for the trip.

SHORT SPORT

Two of Britain's leading boxing promoters are trying to rid ringsides of "certain elements" blamed for creating disturbances at big fights by their betting activities. Jack Solomons wrote 43 of his regular "patrons" telling them to keep away from his shows. If they persist in coming he threatens to get a court order to keep them out. Another promoter, Harry Greenberg, has done the same. He says: "Warning them from the ring has apparently not checked them. So I have now informed all of them they will not be allowed at any of my promotions and if they do appear, they will be removed from the halls." Solomons refused to comment on his action but said some of the letters went to men who booed the referees and shouted at boxers.

PRINCE RUPERT YEARS AGO

April 10, 1923
According to a story in the Vancouver World, a New York syndicate was planning one of the largest timber deals on the continent which would result in construction of a pulp mill at or near Prince Rupert.

A delegation consisting of W. E. Fisher, Miss R. M. Davies, Mrs. C. C. Mills and Mrs. E. C. McCoskrie appeared before the city council requesting that a grant be made by the city toward the operation of the Ridley Home.

There were 1,300 telephones in use in the city, according to the utilities committee report read by Alderman Macdonald. The committee planned to hold one "open day" a week so that subscribers might inspect the exchange.

April 10, 1913
James Hunter, rancher at Sandspit, died in the General Hospital here. He was a native of Scotland and was 64 years old.

The steamer Spokane was in port, crowded with gold seekers bound for Teslin Lake. Several prospectors took passage from here.

The interior district was in the grip of a severe blizzard. More than a foot of snow had fallen at several points along the railway in one day.

F. G. Dawson, who returned from Vancouver, announced that he had purchased the W. J. McMillan wholesale business and would take possession immediately.

LIFE in this Prince Rupert
by BIDDEE JINKS

There are a few persons so great that, when they have stepped to the top rung of the ladder to stay there, they find no occasion to cloak themselves in a popular garb excused largely as being "temperamental" and belonging to artists. One of these is George Chavchavadze who recently charmed city audiences by his exquisite powers with the piano—and by being, above all, himself.

After the first concert, I went home talking to myself. It is a haunting thing to hear something as beautiful as Chavchavadze's playing. And to see so gifted a man who has played before a packed Albert Hall, so willing to please this northern audience that he returned again and again, showing his fatigue, yet sitting down before the piano to make the evening yet more complete for his listeners.

So I thought, poignantly: "When, if ever, shall I again hear anything quite as beautiful?" That was Monday before anyone could know that on Good Friday another local audience would hear Chavchavadze play again.

There was no danger of disappointment in a second hearing. To most people, it was the satisfying last taste of something extremely good. Without knowing that when he was approached about this second concert and told there might not be the response as of first, he said: "I'll play if there are but 20 people who wish to hear me."

Chavchavadze is like that, ready to drop garlands of music wherever anyone is reaching for them.

During the war, before he and his wife (the lovely French Elizabeth de Breteuil) left England to zig-zag across the Atlantic, hoping to avoid Nazi submarines, he returned to his room after completing a recital in Salisbury. Hardly were his shoes off before the hotel manager was at the door to tell him a film in a local theatre had broken down. Would he play for the "boys," who were still there? He would. He walked on to the stage and looked into the upturned faces of hundreds of soldiers. He felt a surge of compassion for these boys away from home, but—what to play for them? What would they like?

In his quiet, unaffected way, he sat down. First, he played Schubert's "Serenade" and other of his compositions. Then Liszt; then Chopin.

He stopped, and his audience went wild with applause. He took his place again, when suddenly, into the hush of that one second before his fingers reached the keys, someone shouted: "Swing it, George!" Instantly, the offender was given such a "boo-ing" as only servicemen can muster. Then the cry: "We want more—we want more," took its place.

And Chavchavadze played. He played far into the night, until he was enveloped in exhaustion and his fingers numb. When he finally stopped, he rode about the hall, carried on the broad shoulders of his appreciative audience.

Though he has no children, Chavchavadze is fond of them and firmly believes they should be allowed to develop naturally whether playing or studying music.

His own childhood was a natural, most happy one, until it ended abruptly with the Russian Revolution in 1919. Up to that time he and his one brother and sister lived with their parents, Prince and Princess Alexander Chavchavadze in their ancestral Georgian estate at St. Petersburg, now Leningrad.

With the news that they, as aristocracy, were to be liquidated, the mother fled with her children to Rumania. Prince Alexander refused to leave. He felt safe, he said, for though he was a great land owner, he was much loved by the townspeople.

They bade him goodbye, and never saw him again. Revolutionists who took over the area, at first did not molest him, but later he was killed.

Chavchavadze was entrusted to a friend and taken to England where he completed his musical education under Miss Mabel Landor, founder of the Letchevitsky School in London.

He started his musical studies early, and believes all children should—3 years is a good age, he thinks.

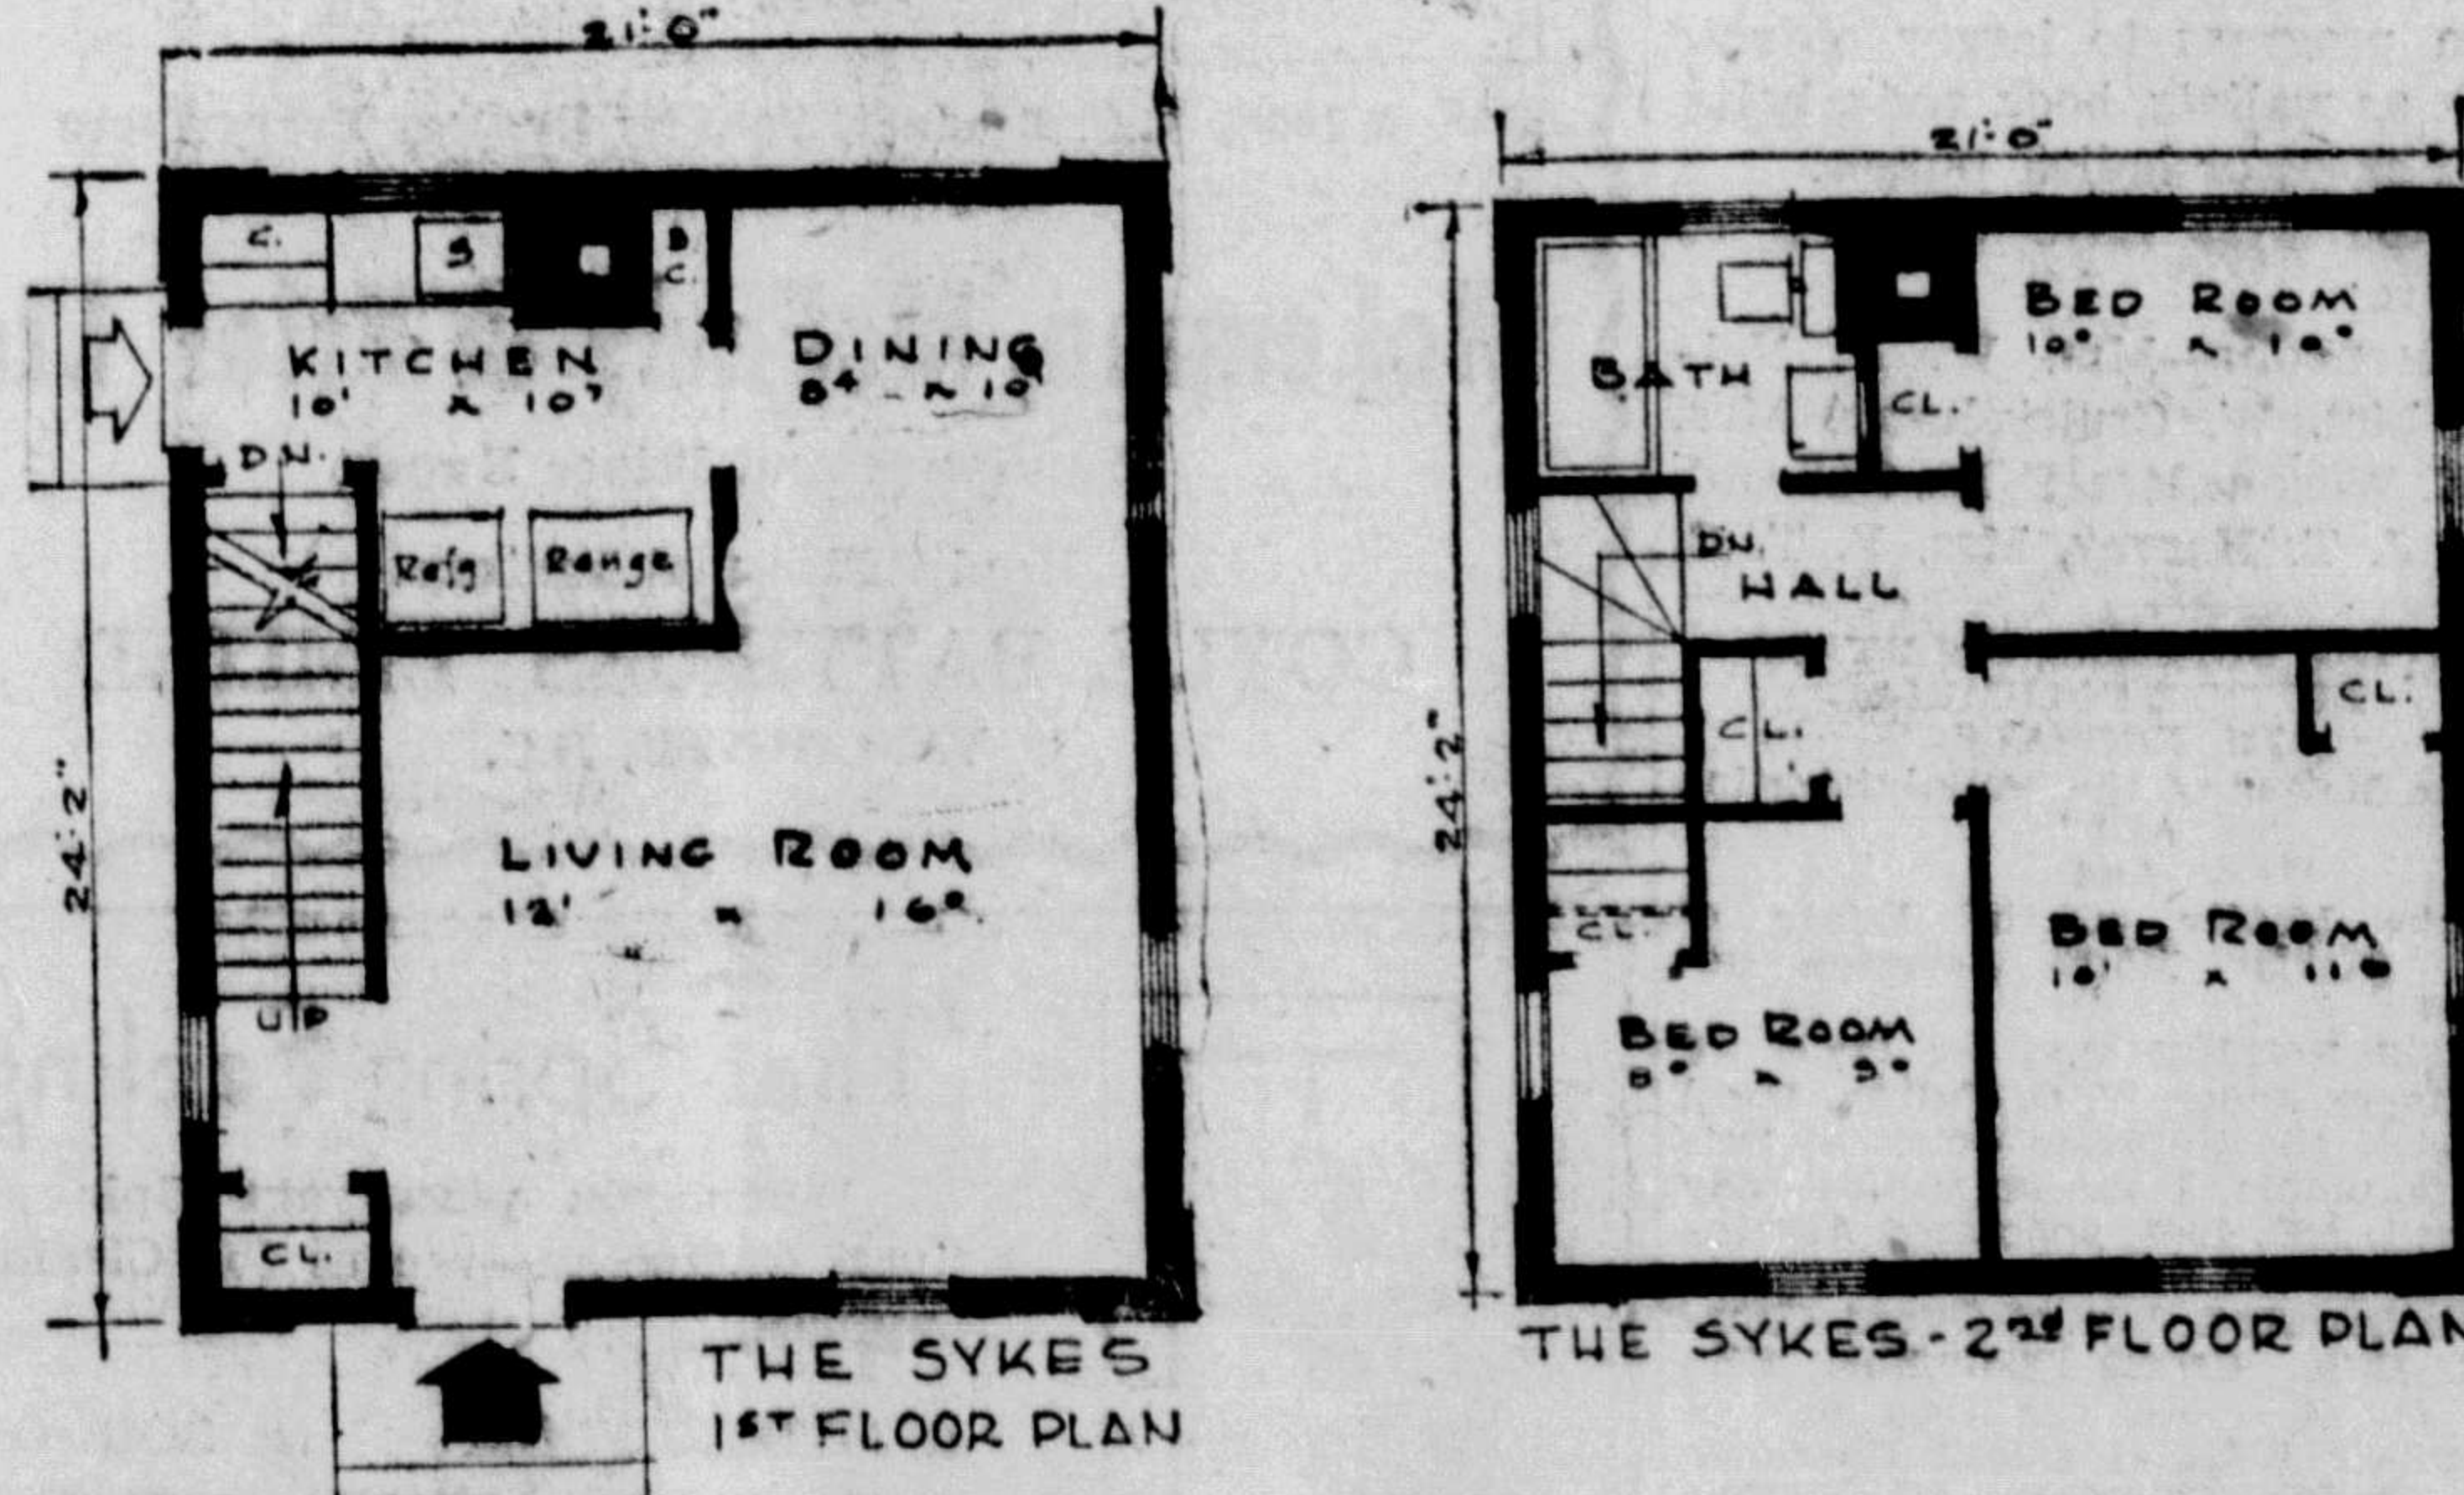

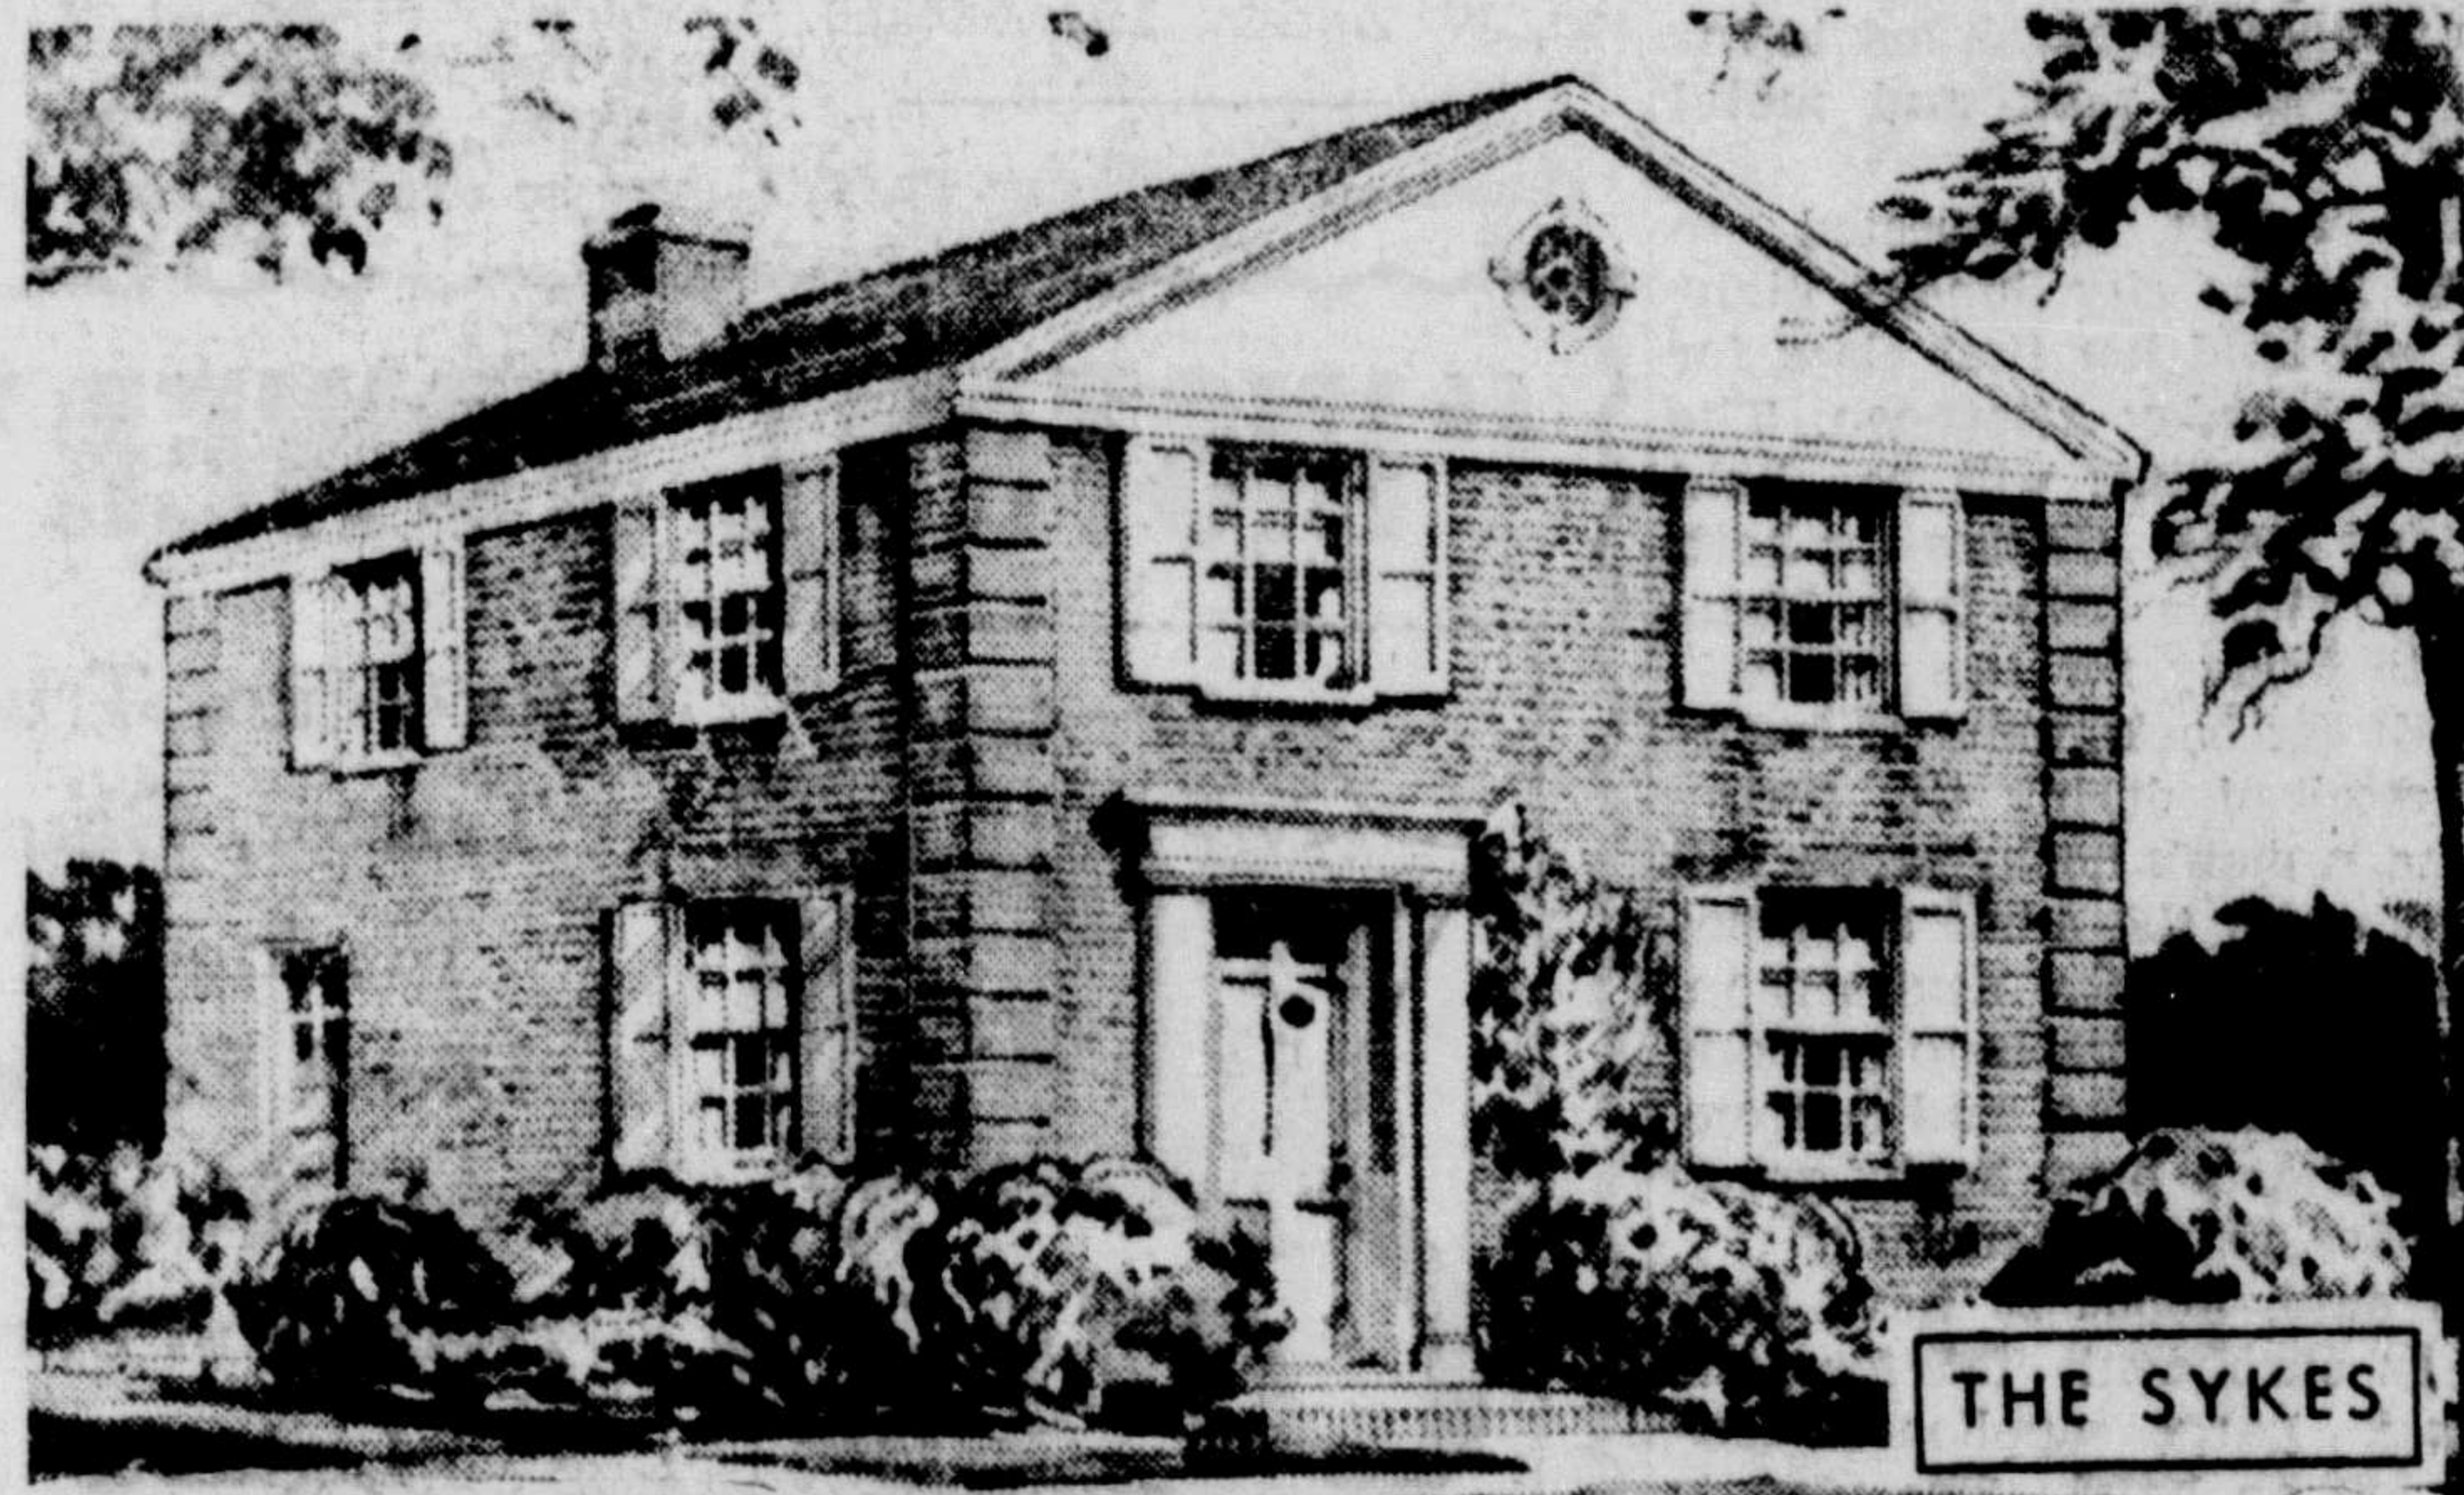

"But, bring music to your child," he advises. "If there is not music in a home, can you expect children to be interested, or like it?" And furthermore, it is bad strategy to take a son out of a ball game and force him to play piano. Instead, there should be a pleasant place for both."

And as complete diversion, he suggests fishing. In his own words: "After concert audiences, I find fishing very relaxing. There are no critics among the fish, they simply open their mouths and swallow anything I give them."

THIS AND THAT

"The budget balances nicely dear, Expenses just equal what we made and borrowed this month."

THE SYKES—is built of warm red brick with its dignified entrance, its solid shutters, and its flush board gable painted white, it is an authentic reproduction of southern Colonial architecture. Its well proportioned lines produce an illusion of greater size.

The SYKES, only 21 feet x 24 feet and containing approximately 12,000 cubic feet, will stand graciously either on a small lot or on a spacious grassy knoll approached by a tree shaded lane.

Greenwood will bring her collection which she made at Victoria, several of the pieces of which have taken prizes at exhibitions in Montreal. She will explain the processes of pottery making to those interested.

Mrs. Greenwood also will bring an extensive exhibit of handicrafts done by her daughter, Mrs. Ella Hamilton. These will include a cellophane evening bag, hand woven scarves and belts, hammered copper bowls, baskets of reeds and pine needles, runners, gesso work candlesticks and ice box flowers. Methods of making these types of objects will be explained by Mrs. Greenwood.

A.O.T.S. Group Discuss
Projects at Second Meeting

Despite that excellent work being done by the service clubs of the city and by the Civic Centre to provide recreational facilities for the youth of Prince Rupert, outdoor activities are still rather limited, according to Crawford Moore who spoke during a project discussion at the second dinner meeting of the A.O.T.S. group held last night in the United Church hall.

Mr. Moore spoke particularly about swimming and skating, suggesting the A.O.T.S. group might consider making the Salt Lakes more suitable for those who enjoy swimming in the summer and skating during the cold spells of winter.

The meeting felt that Mr. Moore's suggestion and those made by several others at the meeting should be tabled until the group receives its charter. When the A.O.T.S. has the official recognition of the parent body, committees will be appointed to look into the various requirements of the community.

As an example of what the A.O.T.S. groups are doing in and around Vancouver, George McWhinney, president of the local group, mentioned the "Search for Talent" that was recently completed in Vancouver, where $1,200 in scholarships was given to the winners in various divisions of the competition.

G. A. Johnson, chairman of the A.O.T.S. committee sponsoring Group 4 Scouts, gave a brief report on his meetings with Ken Jordan, district scout commissioner and with members of the Prince Rupert Scout Association's executive.

Herb Young of the refreshment and entertainment committee reported that arrangements had been made with the Senior Women's Auxiliary of the United Church to do the catering for the dinner meetings. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the ladies.

On the motion of Martin Stuart, Rev. R. A. Wilson was elected to the office of honorary president of the A.O.T.S. group. There were twenty-five men present at the meeting. Out-

"Some men work with their muscles, some men work with their brains, but I've come to the inescapable conclusion that you belong to neither category."

Reminiscences
By W.I. and Reflections

There has never been a bond of melting affection between Vancouver and this lowly column but one must admit that at least the great city has a justifiable "beef." That being the case, it is entitled to the distinguished sympathy and support of the north. Vancouver has no civic centre and laments such a bitter fact. We'll be terse and truthful. It's a d... shame.

Wearing of the "pill-box" will be seen no more at Canada's Royal Military College. Glamour is gradually going out! Perhaps a slowing down of all the traditional dash, smartness and color! More cold, scholarly efficiency in the science of killing.

town guests were G. W. Crane of Vancouver and G. M. Holtby of New Westminster.

LEATHER COURSE
OPEN FOR MEN

The leathercraft courses which are to be held in the Civic Centre here for two weeks, beginning April 12 by Miss Jean Travis of the University of B.C. extension department, will be open to men as well as women with the idea of developing a men's handcraft group that eventually will branch out to include wood work and metal work.

Miss Travis is expected to arrive in the city Sunday night and will hold her first class for women Monday afternoon. The first men's class will be held Monday night. Classes for both groups will be held from Monday to Friday for two weeks.

With the background of training received during the spring course, a men's hobby group will be added to the adult activities at the Civic Centre next season. Organization work is to be done by Bruce McCallum and it is expected that a boys' hobby group will develop simultaneously.

To date, about 20 have paid the $2 enrolment fee for the classes. Large supplies of leather are on hand. The plan is to begin with small objects such as change purses and key cases, then progress to larger objects such as wallets, book ends, belts, brief cases or ladies' purses.

Those who have enrolled so far are:

Trolling Fleet Getting Into Action—Predictions About Halibut Season

The trolling season will soon be going in full force. Literally hundreds of fishermen are doing final jobs on their boats and gear and the next three weeks will see an increasing number of them put for the Dundas group and Stephens Island for what they hope will be a profitable season.

So far, there has not been much activity. Less than a dozen trollers have to date obtained clearances for fishing but the readiness of the fleet is indicated by the fact that, so far, more than 100 have obtained trolling licenses.

To date, 114 have obtained trolling licenses, but this, of course, does not mean that they intend to use them right away. The majority have taken them out in advance of the season in order to avoid the last minute rush that annually comes around May 1.

Boats which so far have cleared for the trolling grounds are the Beryl, Marilyn, Nalad, Partner, Trump, Edward Lipssett and Pacific Troller. The Edward Lipssett, Capt. Fossum, was the earliest to take out a license. It has made a couple of trips since late in March.

Announcement by the Canadian government Friday that the embargo on shipping spring salmon to the United States is to be lifted probably will result in price increases for British Columbia springs, since the American market usually has a slight advantage over the Canadian market.

Renunciation of the embargo, however, is confined solely to spring salmon and does not apply to sockeye, coho, pinkies or any other canning variety. It is also understood that the springs must be exported in the "round," just as they came out of the sea. The move should have some advantage for the Canadian trollers.

The trolling season on the north coast will not really begin, however, until the company fishing camps are towed to their sheltered bays on the myriad of off-shore islands along the mainland and Queen Charlotte Islands coasts. The fishing companies and the Co-op all have their camps in readiness to go to the usual spots and the movement should begin about April 15.

There are predictions this year that the price of halibut may not be as high as last year and that the Area Two season may be shorter. Those expresing these opinions say that last year the American fleet did not enter into the picture because of difficulties between owners and crews and that the absence of some 200 Seattle boats on the grounds made a difference in the time required to catch the 24,500,000-pound quota. The shorter season predicted for this year will see a vast flood of halibut thrown on the market, possibly within a month, and this will be a markedly depressing effect. However, it is expected that the first catches, which will be shipped directly to the market fresh, will command good prices.

In placing Olof Hanson on the International Pacific Salmon Commission, Minister of Fisheries Hon. J. A. MacKinnon has given the job to a man whose background is solidly established in the industry. Mr. Hanson has had interests in the fishing business for many years and no doubt, will serve the commission well out of his wide experience. Mr. Hanson replaces the late Alvah L. Hager, president of the Canadian Fishing Company, who found in his service on the commission a hobby as well as a duty. Mr. Hager took a keen personal interest in promoting the preservation of the Pacific salmon industry. His replacement by Mr. Hanson would seem to be a happy choice.

Herring are spawning in great numbers in several areas of the north coast. Indications of spawning by the migratory population have been seen in many places, including Willis Bay,
