The Lumber Situation

NOT TO BE UNEXPECTED is the lower price I development in the lumber market which was told about in a week-end dispatch. Prices for some time have been exorbitant. Indeed, much major building activity has been deferred or even cancelled because of the high price situation, not only in lumber but all building materials. Now, in spite of the great need and desire to build, something of a buyers' strike has been developing. A price recession was, therefore, bound to come.

If all concerned in the production and handling of lumber from the raw material to the finished product are reasonable about the matter and cooperate towards economy of production and marketing, an orderly movement from producer to consumer may still be maintained, sustaining employment or reasonable profit for all those who benefit from the industry which is of major importance, particularly in the economy of British Columbia.

There is a great demand and market for lumber from a vast need for construction not only in this country but throughout the world. A gradual and orderly scaling down of prices would appear to be essential if it is to be taken advantage of fully. There is no need for a panic but there will have to be a readjustment from abnormal profit and wage conditions which have prevailed in lumber production since the war days when it was a case of "lumber at any price."

SALES TAX ON NEWSPRINT

THERE IS an eight percent tax on newsprint in Canada and the request has been formally made the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association that it be removed. This request has been made not without reason. The tax does not apply to magazines published in Canada or periodicals from the United States, or comic and pulp fiction publications. But it does apply to every daily and weekly paper in Canada—and, from the standpoint of necessity and usefulness, the latter are considered more essential than the other. And incidentally, it might be mentioned that the cost of newsprint has been climbing for years.

KETCHIKAN SYMPATHETIC

FOUR COGENT REASONS are presented by Editor W. L. Baker of the Ketchikan Chronicle - as to why the port installations established at Prince Rupert by the United States Army should be retained instead of being sold for demolition. The Chronicle editorializes as follows:

"The Chronicle is sympathetic with the desires of the Rupert chamber of commerce and civic leaders to have the buildings retained on their site. They are on land of the Canadian National Railways which possibly is putting some pressure on the war assets group to sell them. Or the drive to close out war assets and liquidate the agency itself may be behind the latest move.

"Two possibilities present themselves at once to Alaskans, however. Since the extension of the accean dock is being used for storage of Alaska canned salmon, one wonders why Rupert can't have it retained for similar purposes? The time is coming when Alaska-made pulp will be shipped by barge to Rupert and stored for shipment over C.N. rail lines to rayon mills i nthe eastern states. Perhaps more than one of these buildings could be used for the purpose.

"Secondly, Rupert long has talked of becoming a free port, which is still in the back of its mind. If it takes that step, or sets up a bonded warehouse, which is the next thing to it, it can use part of these facilities very nicely, it would seem.

"Thirdly, and perhaps of more immediate importance, is the outlook for Alaskan statehood which would automatically rescind the objectionable section 27 of the Jones shipping act and give Alaskans the right to import freight via Rupert on Canadian ships, promising more regular service because of the fewer labor tie-ups on Canadian lines, and in some cases lower rates.

"A fourth possibility, of course, is that of war with Russia. In any such a struggle, the Rupert gateway to Alaska would be indispensable; even more so that it was in the struggle against Japan. The same facilities we used in that war might be needed again and it might be costly not to have them. We have felt the U.S. erred in not building the sub-port on Alaskan soil, or on Canadian soil leased to the U.S. for 99 years, so this problem of demolition would not have to be faced. But certainly it costs little or nothing to maintain the facilities still left there. They might be worth their weight in gold in a few months or even years."

the west before they are a least a little better informed RURAL ELECTRIFICATION IN NEW BRUNSWICK - More today. It happened last Saturday. The Stampeders from Calgary won the Dominion football final.

The Stampeders had brought more than football and football lingo to correct the conventional Toronto. They brought along real cowboys, ten-gallon garb, mustangs, a chuck wagon, Indians and all the other trimmings of the great plains. Let it be said Toronto was delighted. The mayor rode the mustang and in front of th city hall ate a dish of flapjacks prepared for him right in the street. He consumed it with his fingers. All in all, a pleasant time was had.

Much is heard, today, of the need for Canadian unity. The Stampders have already performed a valuable service. They threw, right into Toronto's lap something of the spirit of the West-something that will be remembered and talked about. This get-together and each other objective requires encouragement. For what does B.C. and Alberta know of the Martimes, Quebec and Ontario? Or for that matter, the other way around?

FUND FOR QUADS OPENS IN EDMONTON (ENG.)-Big news in Edmonton these days is the birth of quadruplets. But hold on, it's not the Edmonton familiar to Canadians we're talking about but a community in England-North Middlesex county. The mayor of Edmonton has launched an appeal fund for the quads and states that trustees will be appointed to administer the fund. The quads have left their oxygen tents and are now quartered in a special nursery. Here Sister Dorothy Dean of Liverpool feeds Annette with a Belroy Feeder, which holds eight teaspoonfuls of milk, while, left to right, Paul, Robert and Kevin await their turn.
