BERLIN—Three British and one American soldier, held by the Russians in an east Berlin jail, escaped last night and made their way to the western sector. They brought with them a tale of maltreatment at the hands of the Russians.

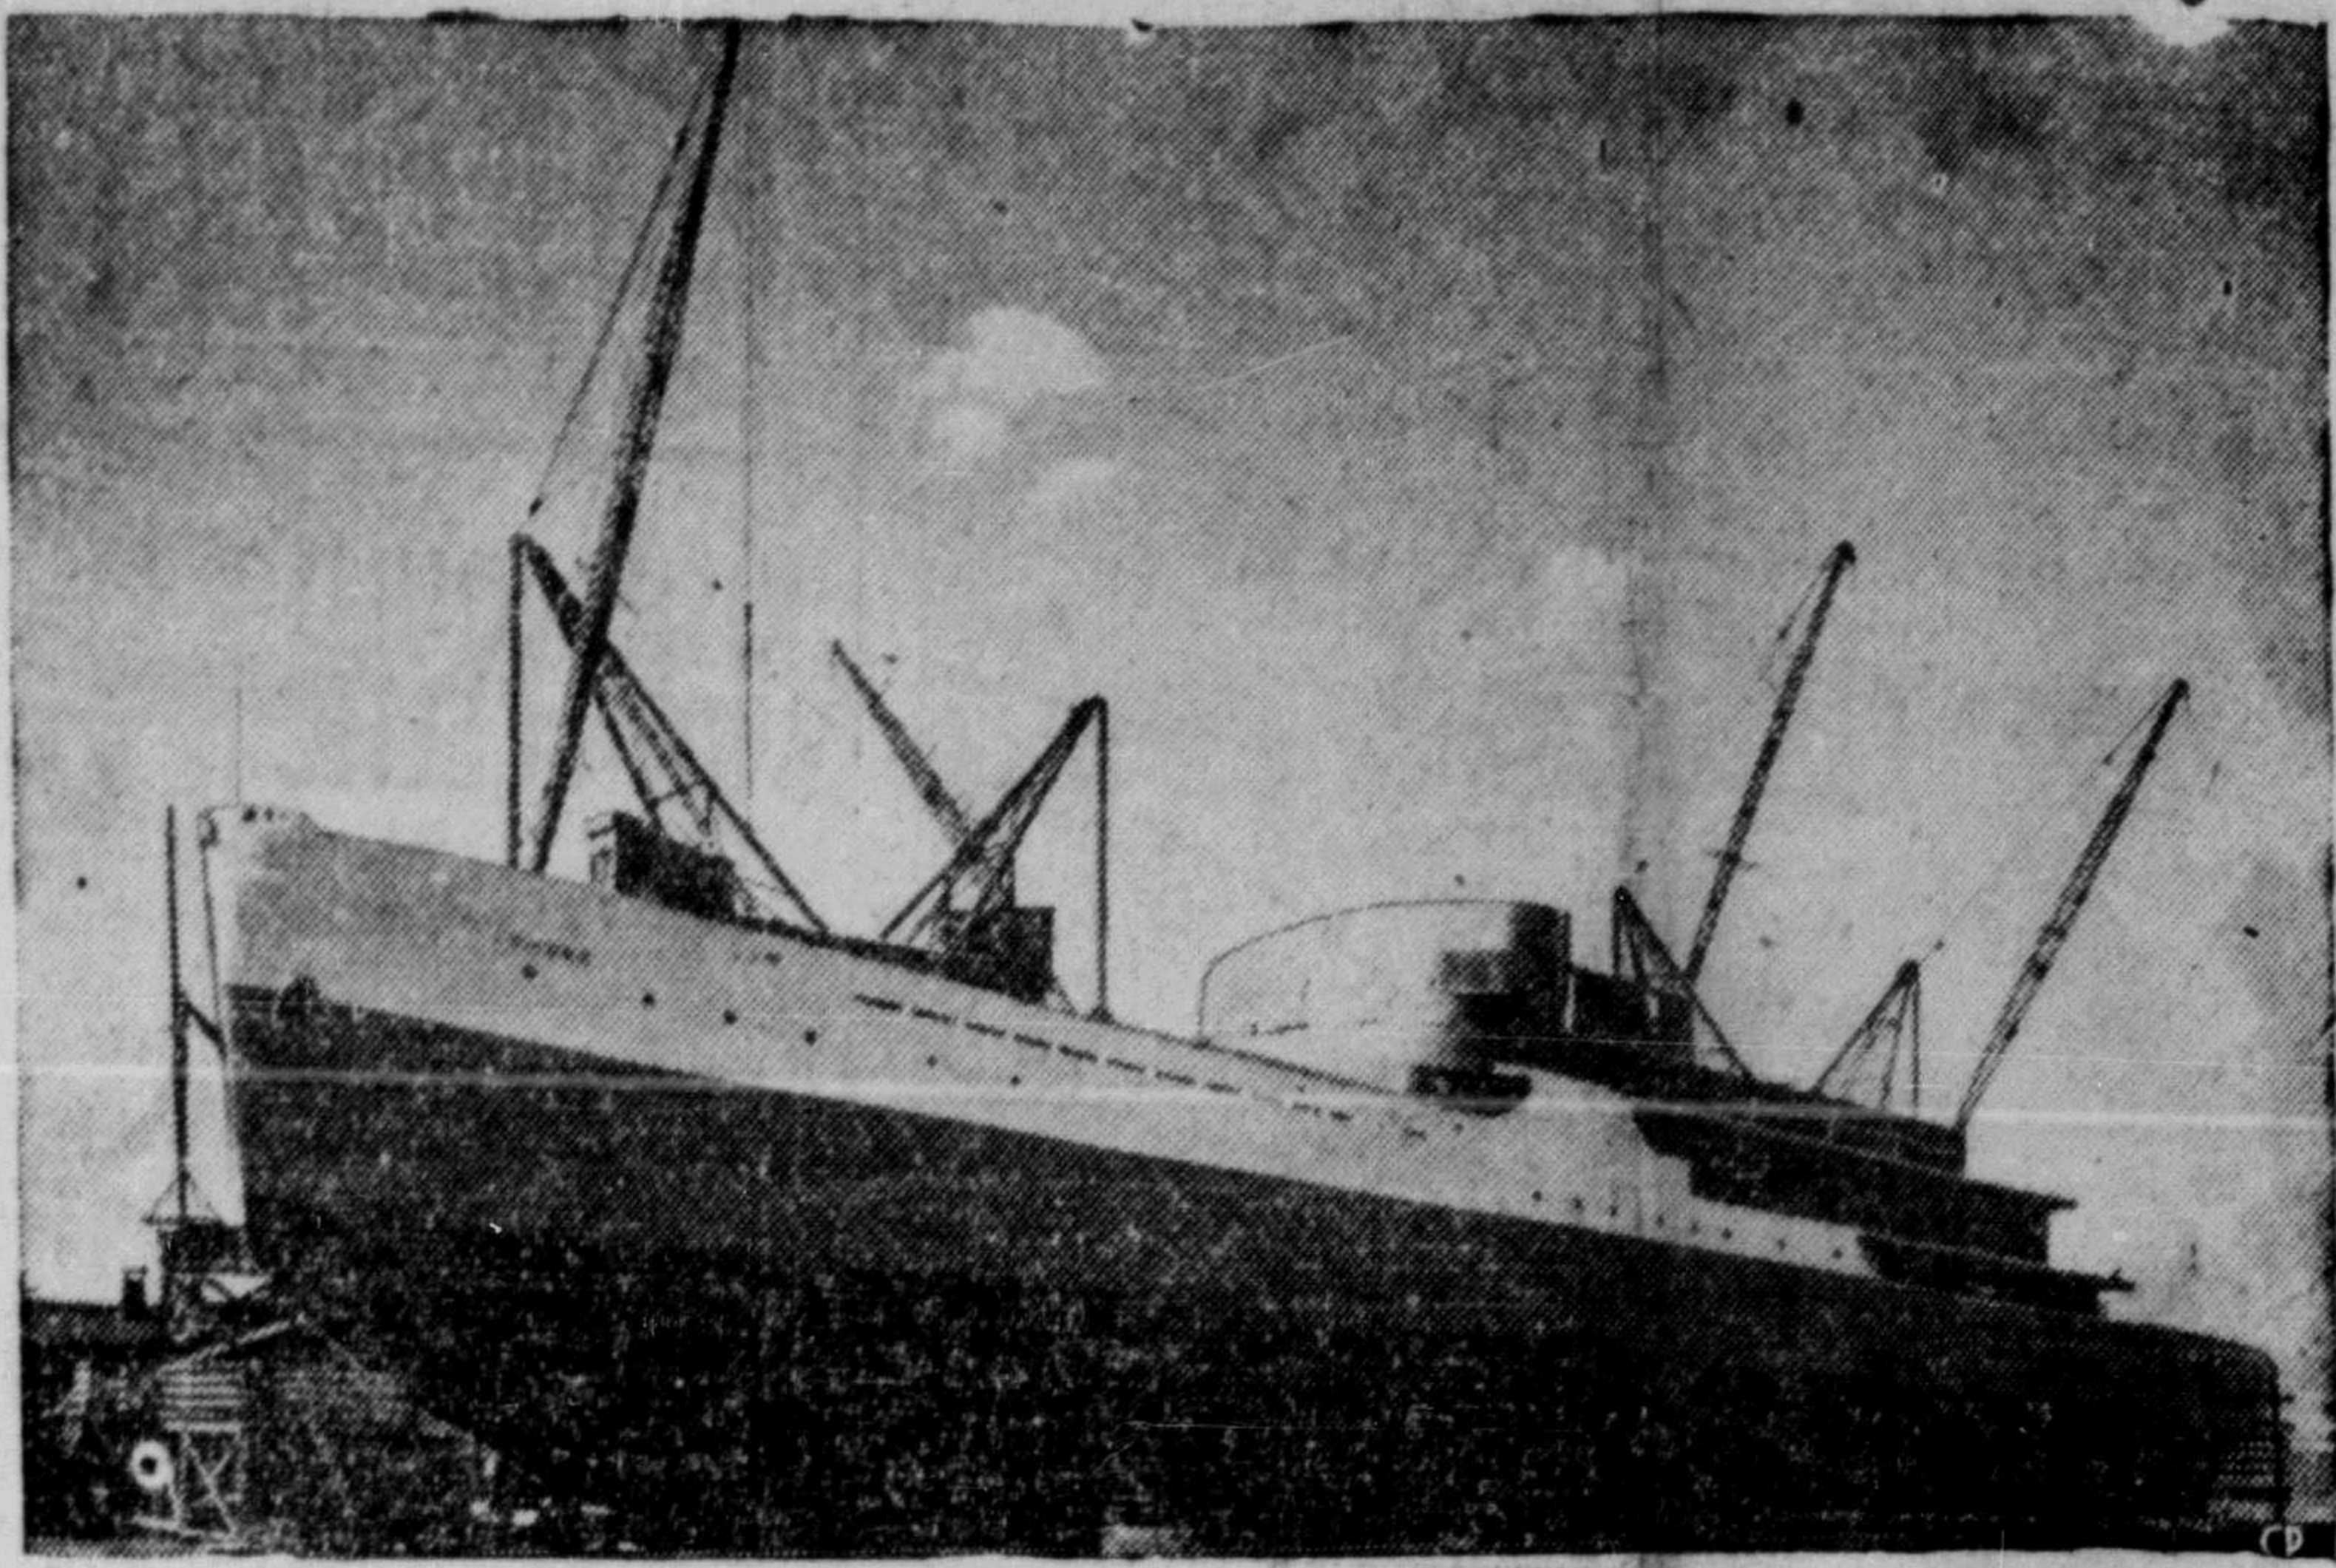

The three British soldiers, said to be deserters, had been in Soviet custody for more than a year. The American had been held since last November after he had been seized when he crossed the border in a street car.

All three had been subjects of repeated demands for release on the part of British and American authorities.

The four said that they had been continuously ill treated while in the Russian jail.

CAMBRAI PLANS ACTIVE SEASON

A broad program of action and a membership drive to fill its ranks were outlined at the first post-summer meeting of Cambrai Chapter, I.O.E., at the Civic Centre Tuesday evening.

The membership drive will begin immediately, members decided after studying the various projects lined up for accomplishment in the next few months.

Continuing projects, which have been carried on through the summer have been the shipment of food parcels overseas and the aiding of the Queen Elizabeth Children's Hospital in London and another children's hospital in Scotland.

An autumn sale of home cooking is planned for late September and the dedication of the chapter's flag at the next meeting.

The chapter also is sharing sponsorship of the musical concert being given at the Civic Centre by Aaron Shapiro in October and also plans to aid the Girl Guide movement in the city. It also will sponsor the sale of Cancer stamps in Prince Rupert.

A tag day in aid of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is planned for October 1 and organizing also will begin shortly for a fall bazaar to be held in November.

The meeting, which was under chairmanship of Mrs. G. G. Withers, Regent, also authorized a donation to the British and European relief fund.

Winner of a bud vase which was raffled was Mrs. Jens Muntze.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—A giant B-36 bomber hurtled into Lake Worth last night at 100 miles an hour, killing at least one of its crew of 13.

Four were missing and eight injured.

A mysterious power failure as the plane roared down Carswell Air Force base's long runway was blamed for the accident, first major mishap since the big bombers started flying a year and a half ago.

Sgt. William G. Seymour of Fort Worth was fatally injured.

Los Angeles Newsboys Visit Here on Newspaper Tour

The Princess Louise enroute to Skagway today carried twelve lucky youngsters from Los Angeles. They were the winners of the Los Angeles Examiner's newspaper boys' circulation contest and are being treated to an all-expense tour of British Columbia and the Yukon.

Everyone in the party highly praised the beautiful scenery of British Columbia and were especially taken by the wonderful people they have met in Vancouver and other cities on their route. Although they were in Prince Rupert for only two hours today they were taken on a whirlwind tour of the canneries and packing plants and Mr. Lambert said they hoped to spend more time getting acquainted on their return trip.

Forty other carriers of the Examiner contest were taken on a tour of the Grand Canyon in Arizona and 115 others went to Yosemite National Park in California.

Mr. Lambert and Dr. Merkle were particularly interested in Prince Rupert's Civic Centre, which they plan to examine on their return from the north.

EARL, WIFE LEAVE JASPER

JASPER PARK LODGE—Thrilled with their few days at Jasper and leaving with regret, the Earl and Countess of Iveagh, accompanied by the lady Patricia and Lennox Boyd, M.P., and other members of their party, boarded the Continental Limited for Vancouver this afternoon for a visit to the Pacific Coast.

During their stay at Jasper the Earl and Countess had "an enjoyable but thoroughly lazy time" while the other members of the party played over the famous Totem Pole golf links and finished, the Lady Patricia got the thrill of her life yesterday afternoon as a member of a fishing party on Lake Edith, a few miles from the Lodge, when she hooked into a three pound rainbow trout that measured 26 inches. Several fine trout were caught and these provided a most enjoyable luncheon for the party just prior to leaving.

When asked about the north Mr. Knox stated that he thought this to be one of the most beautiful parts of the country.

As for future plans, Mr. Knox said "This is only the beginning and comes at a good time with the whole north country in the stage of great development and we were intended to develop with the country."

Official opening took place this afternoon at the new Shell plant with G. R. S. Blackaby, president of the Chamber of Commerce acting on behalf of the citizens of Prince Rupert in the absence of Mayor Arnold who was unable to reach the city in time from Vancouver.

A Growing Unity

THE UNITED STATES and Canada, in matters of defence, are following what might be termed a common policy. This also is another example of mutual goodwill as well as a sensible course to follow in promoting security.

It's a far cry, back to the days of 1862, when Britain and the United States were on the verge of hostilities, with Canada as a potential battle ground. War between the States was raging. There was undoubted sympathy, in the British Isles, for the Confederacy. Refugee slaves had for years been finding their freedom in the Dominion, and it was there that prominent Confederates had conferred. The S.S. Trent brought affairs to a crisis and British troops were ordered to Halifax. Diplomacy and forbearance prevailed, but the feeling of apprehension in Canada, as the Civil War continued, did not become any the less. The military might of Washington had impressed the world. Was there any certainty that the power of the Union armies might not reveal itself in the vast northwest—presumably part of Canada, but still unsettled, and to some extent, unexplored? Canada, actually, was a fringe along the border between the Great Lakes and the Maritimes. Canada looked to Britain for defence, and to the United States for trade. Reciprocity had ended. There were no cities of any size. There were racial difficulties, and in politics, no small degree of distrust. In short, the general outlook was not encouraging.

Had it been possible to read the future, back in the sixties, acceptance of what it held would have surpassed fondest dreams. Canada's citizens could have hardly foreseen a land that today, in some respects is the envy of many other nations.

CUTTING APRON STRINGS

IT IS EVIDENTLY the intention, as disclosed in the Speech from the Throne, to make changes in the constitution which will remove the faintest suggestion of Canada still being a colony. While it can hardly be said the expression "colony" affords just grounds for resentment, it is equally true that when what, once was actually a colony, has grown and developed in importance to the point where it merits another designation, that fact should be recognized without delay.

Ray Reflects . . . . . . and Reminisces

The House of Commons gets down to business with the largest membership in its history, plenty of work for each to give his full time to, and a brand new province.

The outlay of millions will be represented in the laying of a pipe line from Edmonton to Regina. A lot of wealth was overlooked when the Hudson's Bay Co. ran the Canadian west. But the Gentlemen Adventurers did not miss much else.

Sometimes when days shorten skies are dull and the splash of rain is heard, thoughts of Calgary sunshine awaken. There is a feeling of envy. But it will pass when you learn of the 8.3 inches of moisture in Calgary since September a year ago. Almost all of the snowfall in December, January and February evaporated, instead of soaking into the ground. This would leave no more than 5.78 inches of rainfall in Calgary for the last 12 months. Suppose that was all Prince Rupert ever felt in a solid year! It does not follow that distant fields are also green.

Use of sidestreets, eases a little, the Third Avenue parking problem. The owner of an automobile does not have to go far on foot. Compared with Vancouver, there is no distance. There, a

Edmonton Tears Down 'Gold Rush' Landmark

EDMONTON, ©—One of the last surviving links with Edmonton's little "gold rush" of the late 1860's—an old mud and straw fireplace—was torn down recently.

The eight-foot-high fireplace was built by "English Charlie" Stephenson, who sold newspapers in London and New York before making his way north to pan gold. Inside the cabin he built about 1873 on the bank of the North Saskatchewan river he set up the fireplace.

The cabin burned to the ground several years ago but the old mud and straw chimney survived to keep alive the legend surrounding its builder.

"English Charlie" had a great appreciation for warmth. That's why he built the fireplace in his lonely prospector's cabin.

Legend has it that the gold panner set out for Edmonton in the late fall and was caught in a blizzard on the central Alberta plains. Just when Charlie appeared to be destined to be frozen to death, a herd of buffalo, stampeded by the storm, appeared on the scene.

Old timers tell you that "English Charlie" shot one of the buffalo and saved his life. He disembowelled the animal and crawled inside the carcass until the blizzard passed.

New Teeth, Heal For Eskimo Girl

Caroline Returns Home After Year in Cochrane Hospital
COCHRANE, Ont. ©—Caroline has gone home to her Eskimo village on Hudson Bay, all fitted out with a new heel and a new set of teeth.

Caroline is a young Eskimo woman who was brought to Lady Minto hospital here last year from Port Harrison, on Hudson Bay. Her heel had been frozen during a long walk and had to be replaced by surgery.

Her expenses were paid by a grant from the local department of Indian Affairs and by public contributions through the local weekly newspapers—the Cochrane Northland Post.

By the time she was ready to return home—to be married—she had learned enough English to be able to carry on some conversation. But the hospital staff never learned any more of her name than "Caroline."

IRISH WOULD WIDEN CELTIC LITERATURE

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUBLIN ©—Lovers of Celtic literature want to launch a world-wide publicity campaign to seek money from fellow Celts and distribute Celtic books on a large scale.

The idea was discussed at a Celtic congress meeting at Bangor, Wales. It was put forward by Liam Gogan of Dublin's National Museum.

Gogan blamed the slow development of Irish literature on "the negative influence of bureaucratic elements." One of the major stumbling-blocks to wider sales of Irish books was the import ban imposed against them by the United Kingdom Board of Trade.

Some Irish literateurs would like to see the republic set up a counter-ban against English books which sold to the extent of £208,000 ($832,000) in southern Ireland last year. They argue that they do not want to "censor" English ideas, but merely to use a trade boycott as a weapon to have Irish books admitted to the United Kingdom.

IRISH TEST DROPPED

One of the ways Ireland's government has sought to preserve the Gaelic tongue has been to make knowledge of it necessary for passing senior civil service examinations. The "Irish Test" now has been dropped.

Instead, knowledge of the language will be tested which are normal efficiency tests but a man who speaks but otherwise lacks qualifications for a service post stands a chance of passing.

"The Plant in the Window" Book by Canadian Writer in New York

NEW YORK (C)—Ross Parmenter, a Canadian who works for the New York Times, found a bedraggled philodendron in his apartment. He became so interested in the plant that "he wrote a book about it."

Speaking of marriage, Mr. Hughes said: "In our younger days, we hardly ever heard of divorce. We worked hard had little money and spent a lot of time at home with our family."

Mrs. Hughes added: "It's simple to be happily married. Just keep the mind interested and the body busy. Also have at least three children."

Mr. Hughes was a horse and coach expert in his youth and often drove his passenger coach as much as 80 miles a day.

He has smoked a pipe for 70 years, and still enjoys a glass of beer, but advocates "everything in moderation."

Parmenter, a son of the late R. H. Parmenter, K. C., of Toronto, was graduated from the University of Toronto in 1933 and became a reporter on the Toronto Evening Telegram. Now he is a concert reviewer and Sunday columnist for the New York Times, but retains his Canadian citizenship.

One of the surprising things he learned, says Parmenter, was the vast number of indoor gardeners. People turning from pets to plants because modern living makes it hard to keep animals.

"People turn to plants to gain some fulfillment for basic psychological needs," he writes.

In a machine age dominated by material concepts and the urge to make money, we have less and less companionship in our inner lives. We have less sense of home in the places where we live. We find less and less satisfaction in our work. The world seems to grow increasingly ugly. Our sense of any control over our destiny steadily diminishes. Joy has gone from us.

"And in remaking the world in the likeness of a steam-heated air-conditioned metropolis of apartment buildings we have violated one of our essential attributes—our kinship with nature."

FRACTIONATING TOWERS

These fractionating towers are part of the "cracking plant" at Shellburn Refinery where heavy fuel, resulting from distillation of crude oil, is subjected to temperatures as high as 925 degrees Fahrenheit and pressures of 300 pounds per square inch—a process which actually changes the molecular structure of petroleum to produce modern, high quality gasoline.

Shell in British Columbia

This major investment in our new Sales Agency and Bulk Storage Depot at Prince Rupert is further evidence of Shell's continued faith in the future growth of our great province—British Columbia. It is also evidence of our determination to spare neither money nor effort to provide petroleum products of the highest quality. This was stated by N. Y. Knox, vice-president and general manager of Shell Oil Company of British Columbia, when commenting on the opening of the company's new installation at Prince Rupert.

Shell commenced marketing operations in B.C. in the year 1913, thirty-six years ago. Operating from a bulk storage depot in Vancouver, in many respects similar to the new Prince Rupert Agency, Shell imported refined petroleum products for marketing in B.C. From this modest beginning the company has grown to be the second largest Refining and Marketing Petroleum Company in the province, with a capital investment of approximately 5½ million dollars.

In 1932 Shellburn Refinery was constructed on Burrard Inlet, just outside of Vancouver. Occupying about 100 acres of wooded hillside overlooking the beautiful shoreline of Burrard Inlet, the new refinery has steadily grown until today little can be recognized of the original refinery unit. Here crude oil is refined into aviation and motor gasolines, heating oils, diesel bunker and industrial fuels, asphalt, road oils and emulsified asphalts. Motor oils and industrial lubricants are other products blended and packaged for shipment.

Immediately after the war years, when steel and machinery, which had been unobtainable for so long, became available, a modernization and expansion program at Shellburn Refinery, and which to date has cost 2¼ million dollars, was initiated. Taking advantage of processes developed during wartime, the first phase of this program, involving the expenditure of $1,600,000, centred around a new "thermal cracking" unit and "polymerization" unit, both of the most modern type, designed for the production of high octane motor gasoline. The second phase of the program was completed this year at an expenditure of $600,000, when a new crude "fractionating" unit was installed, increasing production of petroleum products by 20,500,000 gallons per year, and at which time additional storage tanks were added.

Where in 1932 stood one crude oil distillation tower and its accompanying storage tanks, there is now a veritable maze of processing units, pipes, valves, fractionating towers and huge tanks, where each year more than 80,000,000 gallons of petroleum products are manufactured and stored.

Besides having its own truck fleet to distribute products in the metropolitan areas of Vancouver and Victoria, Shell has a fleet of railroad tank cars for bulk deliveries throughout the interior of the province. Marine transportation is widely used, and includes the coastal tanker "M.V. Western Shell," with a carrying capacity of approximately one-quarter of a million gallons, and two barges, each with a capacity of over 110,000 gallons. The "Western Shell," which soon will be a familiar sight in Prince Rupert, journeys along the B.C. coast delivering products to Shell Marine stations and to the outposts of B.C. lumbering, fishing, and mining industries.

"M.V. Western Shell"

The M.V. "Western Shell" one of the most modern oil supply ships on the coast is a former U. S. Navy tanker from the United States Navy. She carries a complement of 18 souls and is captained by R. C. Laing, a veteran of over 30 years service on the coast. Serving as Chief Engineer with the ship is Allen Minty and W. "Bill" White is the first mate.

The ship herself is propelled by 500 horsepower Union engines and is capable of carrying 250,000 gallons of oil and gasoline. Other special equipment included the first installation on the coast of 288 Mariner radar scope, a new radar direction finder and a recordio fathometer.

as a pilot in December, 1942, chose Prince Rupert as his home with his bride the former Anne Walker, a graduate of the Prince Rupert General Hospital who is well known to local citizens. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan are the proud parents of two lovely children, Allan age seven, and Shirley, age six who are both attending King Edward School. Allan Morgan is very active in the community and vitally interested in sports especially basketball having sponsored various teams in the city. He is a member of the Masons and the Canadian Legion. Before starting the Northern Machinery Limited, Mr. Morgan was employed by the United States government as special accountant. On his plans for the future Mr. Morgan states that Prince Rupert is a good bet for young people and is a mighty fine city to call home.

Mr. Allen Morgan manager of Northern Machinery Limited has just been appointed to represent the Shell Oil Company of B.C. in Prince Rupert. Mr. Morgan after his discharge from the R.C.A.F.

Wide Area Served in B.C.

From the newest agency in Prince Rupert to some 50 other selling agencies in all other major cities and towns Shell is now serving the people of British Columbia. Supplies are moved by tank train in the Fraser Valley, and by oil tanker on the coast.

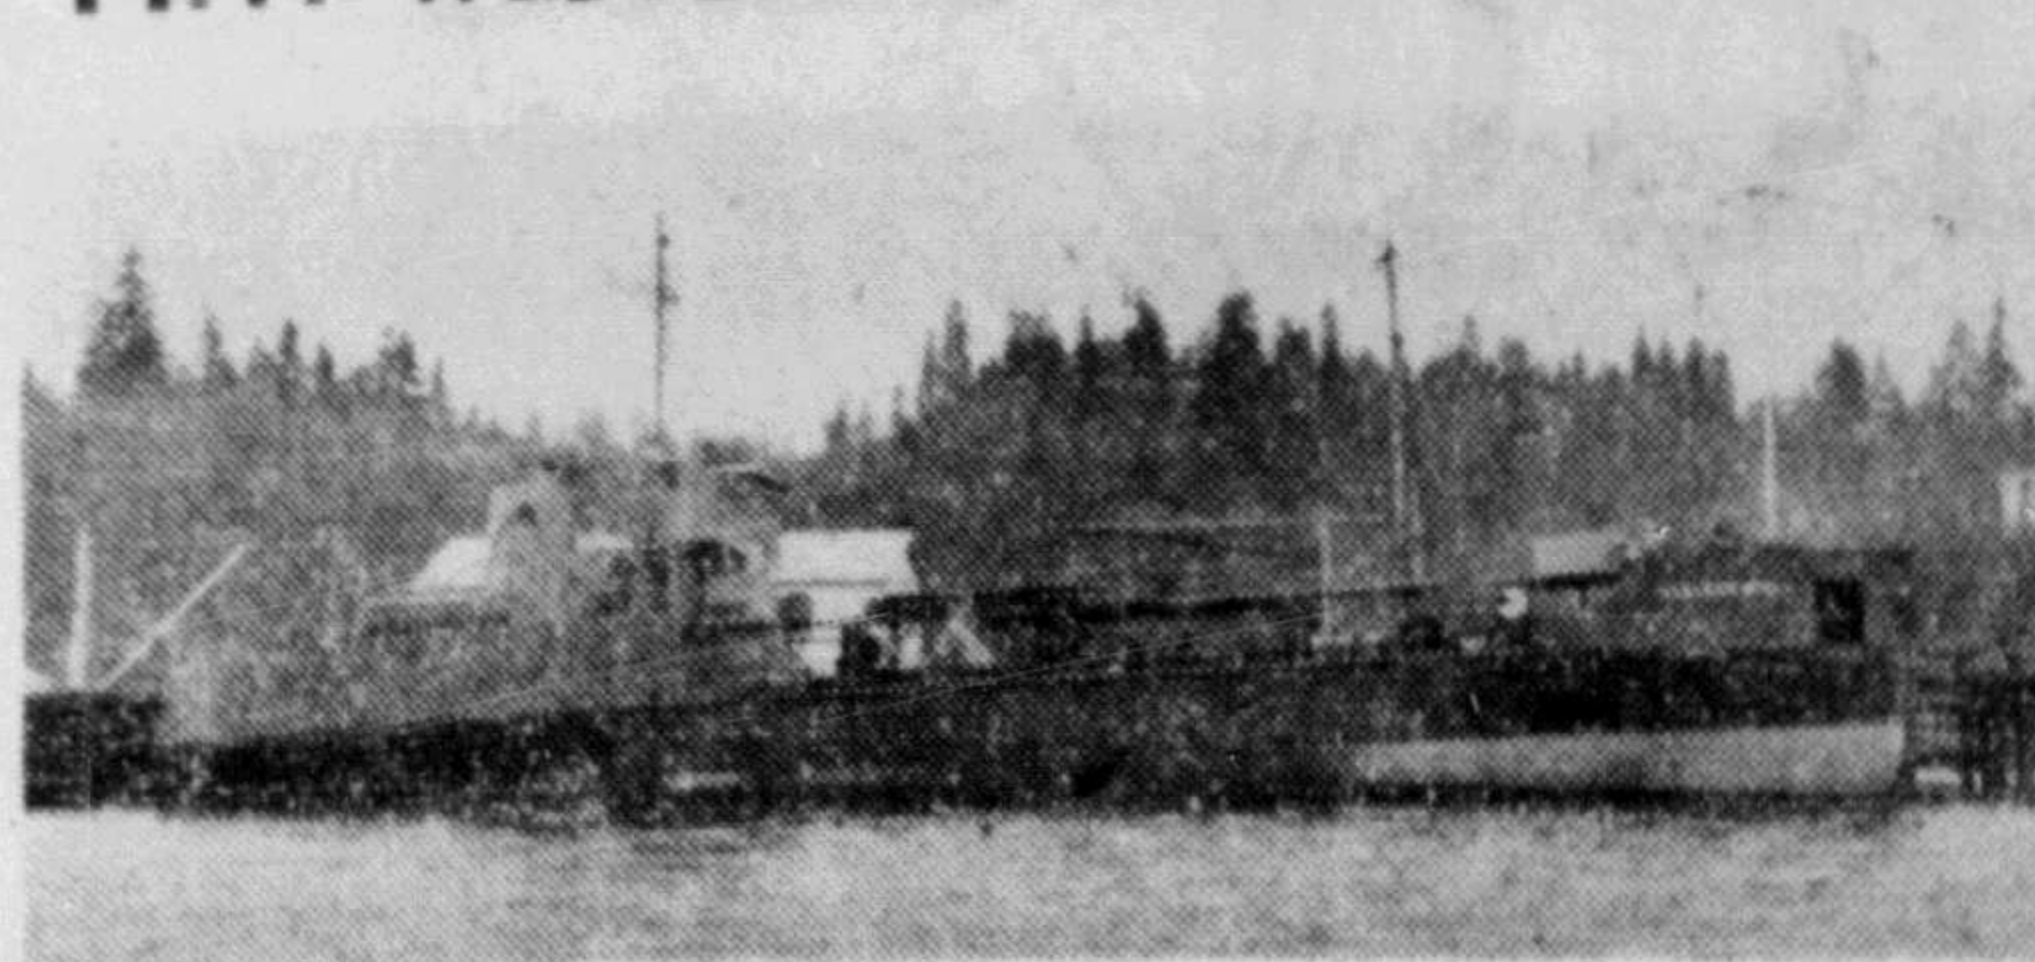

Shell agents have now completed a link between here and Vancouver, and other cities, by road, rail and steamship and the motorist can now drive almost anywhere in the province on Shell products.

Earlier this year the bulk storage depots were reopened at Cranbrook and Creston after being closed for a year because of short supply. But now the whole East Kootenays are again being served as the supply is becoming "better than ever."

The general program of Shell of B. C. is to service all parts of British Columbia that are accessible by road, rail or water with the best that modern science has to offer. With the Prince Rupert agency servicing from here as far East as Prince George and covering the Queen Charlotte Islands, and south to Ocean Falls.

"M.V. WESTERN S HELL" AT DOCK

The tanker, "M.V. Western Shell," with a total cargo capacity of approximately one-quarter of a million gallons, is the "supply line" of Shell products to the marine service stations and logging and fishing camps on B. C.'s rugged and beautiful coast line.

SHELL DISTRICT MANAGER

Mr. D. R. MacKerricher has been appointed District Manager at Prince Rupert for Shell Oil Company of B. C. Limited. Mr. MacKerricher has been with Shell for 14 years and has had a wide experience in the field of petroleum marketing. He is well known in marine circles and for the past year has been Shell's deep sea Marine Sales Representative in Vancouver.

SHELL PLANT OPENS HERE

Shell Oil Opens New Agency at Prince Rupert

N. Y. Knox, vice-president and general manager of Shell Oil Co. of British Columbia Ltd., this afternoon officiated at the opening of the company's quarter-million gallon bulk storage depot and sales agency here.

Constructed at a cost of $130,000, the new terminal will be the distributing centre for Shell products for the neighboring coastal area, the Queen Charlotte Islands and interior points enroute to Prince George. Located on the waterfront, adjacent to the Grain Commissioners' dock, the plant is equipped for rail and road shipments to northern interior points. Railway tank car loading facilities have been installed to handle large bulk shipments of petroleum products.

The new Sales Agency is at the present time the most northerly unit in the chain of Shell Marine Stations on the B.C. coast. A new float is being built and modern pumping equipment installed to service the large fleet of commercial fishing craft and towboats that operate out of Prince Rupert.

Supplied from the Shellburn Refinery, via the tanker "M.V. Western Shell," the new agency

Official Opening

Mr. G. R. S. Blackaby, the president of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce will officially open the new Shell Oil plant at Morse Creek this afternoon. Following the opening the plant and the M.V. "Western Shell" will be open to inspection and this will be followed by a reception in the Moose Hall.

will be operated by the Northern Machinery Limited which firm has been appointed Shell's selling agent in Prince Rupert. Northern Machinery is a local company which handles logging and industrial machinery for the Prince Rupert area and is under the management of Allen Morgan, who formed the company with the plan of developing its business with Prince Rupert's expansion.

DELIVERS THE FIRST CARGO TO SHELL PLANT

The "V.M. Western Shell," the Shell Oil Company's new tanker, docked at the company's wharf near the grain elevator yesterday morning to make the first delivery of 250,000 gallons of oils and gasoline to the new Shell plant on the Morse Creek flats.

The vessel's arrival marks the final step in an expansion program which has resulted in the company entering the domestic marine and industrial lubricant and fuel business in this city.

Under command of Captain R. C. Laing, the tanker will remain here until Saturday afternoon before sailing south. She will be here to take part in the local plant's official opening this afternoon.

Officials of the company who arrived last night and this morning include N. Y. Knox, vice-president and general manager, who arrived by boat this morning, and G. E. McKinnon, assistant to the vice-president, and J. M. Courtright, provincial retail sales manager, who arrived by C.P.A. plane last night.

Aboard the "V.M. Western Shell" were H. L. Hinchcliffe, operations manager for the company, and R. N. Nicol, marine manager.

DOPESTERS FAVOR MERCHANTS TO WIN SWAT TITLE IN SUNDAY GAMES

Baseball experts are favoring Merchants to cop the play-off Savoy for the first time in their career suffered considerable absentee-ism through the start on Sunday. Whether one team has the power to make a clean sweep of the double-header is another question and it is possible that the final decision will be delayed another week.

Merchants had best results against the Savoy squad, winning five games from them compared to three setbacks over the Commercial crew in regular league play. Most of Merchants victories came after the middle of the schedule and they were undoubtedly the strongest club in the league toward the end of the season.

PIONEER AIRMAN WRITES CANADA'S AVIATION STORY

WEST VANCOUVER—B. C. — An authoritative history of Canadian aviation is being completed by Frank H. Ellis, 53-year old municipal bus driver here.

"Wings of Memory," started 14 years ago, is expected to be ready for publication shortly.

From the first recorded Canadian flight by Frederick W. Casey Baldwin in 108, the 225,000-word encyclopedia of Canadian flying facts covers every phase of the Dominion's aviation history up to the Second World War.

Mr. Elli estimates he has received 5,000 letters related to his book. More than 500 picture will illustrate the history.

Recently he received a letter and pictures from R. Booth, one-time commander of the famous dirigible R-100. "I have got in touch with famous fliers all over the world," Mr. Ellis says, "and everyone has expressed keen interest."

His wife, Elsie, does the proof-reading.

Worthwhile Record

Baldwin, who died last year, wrote the book preface: "It is important that the tradition and background which preceded and laid the foundations for the great future of Canadian aviation should be appreciated and recorded in a book such as this."

A bus driver for 4 years, Mr. Ellis has been interested in aviation since he came to Canada from Nottingham, England, 37 years ago.

He was the first Canadian to make a parachute jump from a Canadian aircraft. That was in 1914 when he and Tom Blakely of Winnipeg built and flew a Curtis Pusher bi-plane in Calgary.

The author also flew as mechanic on the first flight north of latitude 53, in 1920. Piloted by Hector Dougall, one-time president of Canadian Flying Clubs, the plane took three days for the trip from Winnipeg to The Pas.

His aim in writing "Wings of Memory" is not to make money. "If it is included in school libraries or other institutions where the information will be available to young Canadians, I shall be content."

DEAF SON OF WAR WORKER MAKES PROGRESS

Local friends of Mrs. R. J. Garbutt, who during the war served in Prince Rupert as Supervisor of the Y.M.C.A. and was active in army work generally have been informed of the progress being made by her sixteen year old son Peter. The family live in Winnipeg.

Since Peter was a year and a half old, he has been deaf. Announcement was recently made that Peter, who has been attending the MacKay School for deaf in Montreal has won the Dr. Robert Fletcher Scholarship for General Proficiency. This will help cover his expenses while he attends the Kendall School for the Deaf in Washington, this winter.

"Peter is certainly no child prodigy," Mrs. Garbutt said. "He is just a normal, teen-age and his handicap does not make him any better or worse than the usual young person of today. He is very interested in linotype work and he plans to take a linotype course along with his academic subjects."

Mr. W. H. (Buster) Hill, assistant fire chief here, left on the Prince George last night to spend his two week vacation in Vancouver and the south.

Seven New Teachers At High School

(By D. P., Grade 13)

Miss Yvonne Lepine was born in Vermont, U. S. A. She received her education in Vermont and Saskatchewan. She has been teaching for nine years. Previous to her arrival here she taught a Japanese settlement at Greenwood, B. C. Miss Lepine teaches Grade 7.

Miss A. McAlpine, another American, was born in North Dakota. Most of her education was received in Saskatchewan. Maple Creek, Saskatchewan, was her previous teaching post. Miss McAlpine instructs in mathematics, physics and biology.

Miss Rodgers was born in Manitoba, but she attended Vancouver Normal and U.B.C. This is her first year of teaching, and we hope that the pleasant surroundings of the cooking lab (she teaches Home Ec.) will give her a good start.

Miss Mills hails from Saskatchewan and was educated there. She taught last year at Cloverdale. Miss Mills teaches Home Ec.

Mr. Oldham—Kamloops is his home town. He attended U.B.C. This is his first teaching year.

Mr. Slade was born in Vancouver and received his education there. This is his second year in the profession. He taught at Fort Fraser last year.

Miss McDougall is also making her teaching debut at Booth. She is from Kelowna, and was educated at Vancouver.

Rental Books Reduce Costs

(By R. N., Grade 13)

This year the B.C. government introduced a book rental system for high schools. All necessary texts are provided for an initial cost of $4 per year for the senior grades, and $3.50 per year for the junior grades. Account of these books is kept by means of a number stamped on the inside cover of the text; thus if a student returns the wrong book, it is credited to the original receiver. When a student abuses the rented text, he is required at the year's end to buy the book at original price.

Provided that the student takes proper care of his books, this scheme cuts down on his school expenses. This plan is especially beneficial to the family in which only one student attends school.

School Given Face Lifting

(By P. T., Grade 12)

We are pleased to note on our return to school this fall that it has had a face-lifting. The outside has been painted and the washrooms have been re-decorated. New desks have been added. Few more rooms have had fluorescent lighting installed, an improvement we hope to see in all the rooms.

On the whole, the old school looks much better, with these, and we hope more improvements are pending. Our hair no longer needs to have fine plaster dust brushed out after sewing or French classes, nor do our clothes get hooked by elusive nails out of reach of our hands but not or, unfortunately, our clothes.

New School Term Offers Students Opportunities

(By M. G., Grade 12)

With the usual confusion of opening week over, the students of Booth have settled down for another year's studies. Time-table difficulties are gradually being ironed out and text books, supplied by the new Rental Plan have been issued.

A capable Students' Council has been set up, with officers from the Senior grades, as well as a Junior and Senior representatives to the Council. Familiar faces, along with many new ones add color and personality to the school. For some it is their first year at high school, for others, the last. In either case, it is hoped that each student will do his infinite best, being a credit at all times to Booth Memorial High School.

We predict great things for B-Me-Hi in 49-50!

New Faces Stir Interest In Booth Classes

by I. H., Gr. 12

New faces around the school always seem to have an air of mystery about them. When a new boy comes into the room some girls wonder if he is the kind who dates a girl. Others only think that another make has come to spoil the peace and quiet of their environment. The thoughts that enter a boy's head usually concern sports—could he strengthen the infield on the baseball team, or would he be a better basketball player?

Relatively few boys ever wonder if he'll be a threat as far as his prestige with the girls is concerned, but a new girl is the most complex creature of all. She is sized up thoroughly by both sexes in all respects. If she gets appreciative glances from the boys, the girls immediately put up a protective front against her. Soon, however, as the air of mystery evaporates and her personality begins to appear, she is accepted by the rest of the class and begins to play her part in school life.

There are, besides three classes of Grade Seven's, 19 new

FIND NEW "FLOWERPOT"—The two "flowerpot" on Flowerpot Island off the tip of Bruce Peninsula in Georgian Bay have long been the source of wonder of geologists. Now a new "flowerpot" has been discovered, this time on the peninsula mainland. Known for several years to a few residents of the district, Dr. Sherwood Fox, president emeritus of University of Western Ontario, "discovered" the peculiar formation this summer and took this photo of it. Cabot Head, near Byer's Bay, is in the background. (C. P. Photo)

READY FOR THRESHING—This aerial photo shows what the western prairie looks like at this time of year. Here stooked wheat is waiting for the threshers. The dark lines are irrigation ditches. These fields are located three miles east of Picture Butte, Alta. (C. P. Photo)

IT WAS A TOUGH STRUGGLE, BUT THEY GOT SNOOPY OUT OF SILO—Seventy-nine hours and 31 minutes—and three acres of corn were used to help release Snoopy, the vivacious, 650-pound heifer of Osceola, Wis., after she dived into a 12-foot deep silo pit. The corn, in the form of silage, was used as an "elevator" on which Snoopy rode from what amounted to a circular dungeon. Here Snoopy is seen in silo before her release.

The Experts Say...

OTTAWA (AP)—Probably neither mother nor Tommy is sorry to hear that old school-bell ringing again.

For Tommy it spells the end of sleeping in of a morning. But, at the same time, it beckons him to new friends, new games, new studies.

For mother it isn't quite the same. Now that her son is out of the house she will have time for some sewing and the fall cleaning. But, if she lives in a rural area, that old lunch-box problem is right back in her lap again.

A thermos of soup or hot cocoa adds variety to the lunch-box routine, particularly in cold weather when children need all the energy-building foods they can get.

Sandwiches can be made more interesting with varied fillings.

Vegetables—Sliced tomatoes and cucumbers; shredded lettuce with chopped peanuts or cheese; grated carrot with orange slices or honey; chopped onion with peanut butter.

Fruit—Mashed banana with peanut butter, jam or marmalade.

Meat, fish—Cooked meat finely chopped or sliced thin, fish flaked, crisp bacon with pickle syrup or salad dressing to moisten and so on.

A sweet in the lunch-box always adds interest. This may take the form of cookies, perhaps white cookies.

Ingredients: four cups flour; one cup butter; 1 1/2 cups sugar; two eggs; five tablespoons milk; one-half teaspoon soda; one-half teaspoon baking-powder; one teaspoon vanilla.

Mix as for pie crust.

Housewives busy canning peaches and pears will appreciate a suggestion from the department of agriculture to do a little combined canning of peaches and pears.

The home economists of the department's consumer section say the combination is tasty in fruit cups or winter-time salads. With such an excellent base an attractive salad can be prepared in no time at all merely by adding some diced apple, a few maraschino cherries, some orange or grapefruit sections and perhaps a few cheese-stuffed prunes as garnish.

In canning apples and pears as a fruit salad base it is wise not to add red or blue plums as they will discolor the other fruits.

If canning the fruit for use in salad, leave in fairly large pieces, but if the mixture is to be used in fruit cup it should be diced.
