United Nations Day

THE UNITED NATIONS, which came into being five years ago tomorrow at its historic inaugural in San Francisco, has vindicated itself on the eve of its fifth anniversary. Events of the past few days in the victorious culmination of the campaign in Korea to put down barefaced aggression have marked the fulfilment of the spirit and hopes of its existence. The United Nations has done what the League of Nations failed to do. It has shown its teeth and it has been effective. For the first time it has become a real symbol of authority as well as an expression of principles.

Korea has shown the world what can be done in a military way. No doubt it will have many further testings not only from the military standpoint but in economic and social crises.

As United Nations Day is observed, the outstanding hope must be that, in spite of the many difficulties that still beset it, it may yet be instrumental in developing the unity and co-operation that will enable it to fulfil its cardinal goal—the prevention of a Third World War and the setting up of an era of lasting peace and security.

IGNORANCE MEANS SUFFERING

THE medical profession is once more being urged to throw off some of its ethical reticence and tell the people more about available treatments and medicines.

Dr. Russell S. Boles of Philadelphia, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, urged physicians to co-operate with newspapers in helping them report medical news within the limits of propriety.

"Today," Dr. Boles assures his colleagues, "the physician may feel safe in the confidence of the reporter and can feel assured that interviews and releases will be reported accurately. Also that care will be taken to include reference to any qualification he has expressed concerning his investigations."

As this newspaper has suggested before, the medical profession must ask itself if it is ignoring a public duty as well as a big job in public relations.

The public stands to benefit most from medical science or suffer most through ignorance of its possibilities.—Vancouver Province.

PROFIT—AND TROUBLE

IT WAS 83 years ago last Wednesday that Russia officially transferred Alaska to the United States. Three American warships, three companies of troops, sailors and marines gathered at Sitka. At 3:30 in the afternoon, colors were exchanged, American and Russian guns alternately saluting, as Captain Pestchouff, Russian commissioner, said to Major General Rousseau: "By the authority of His Majesty, the Emperor of All the Russians, I transfer to you, the agent of the United States, all the territory and dominion now possessed by His Majesty on the continent of America and in the adjacent islands, according to treaty made between these two powers." Washington acquired plenty of profit, along with trouble, in that little deal.

Late Strawberry Crop In Rupert

Another example of Prince Rupert's fertility was found yesterday when Mrs. Eva McVety plucked a strawberry measuring two inches across from the garden to her Herman Street home. Although the berry made no records for size (others have been grown here just as big), October 22 must set some precedent for lateness in picking strawberries in Prince Rupert. Nor was the strawberry the only example of late growth.

After the heavy frosts of last week, Pete Montchal picked some pansies from his garden on Fulton Street. They adorned a desk at The Daily News that day.

Actor Is Unabashed By Wife's Analysis

LONDON — The wife of Canadian actor Robert Beatty says he is lazy, untidy and obstinate. The actor himself, born 39 years ago in Hamilton, agrees that his wife is right about nearly everything. Dorothy Beatty gave her appraisal, tempered by the admission that her husband is "very generous," during a new British television program "As Others See Us." Chronologists, Psychologists and graphologists also took a hand in analyzing the subject's character. Beatty completed his education at the University of Toronto.

Princess Born Girl Reigns Over Prince Rupert Governor's Mansion

Mrs. McGillivray Now at Kingston, Jamaica, Where She is Charming Hostess

An attractive Prince Rupert-born matron, Mrs. McGillivray, has become one of the gracious leaders and hostesses of the West Indian island of Jamaica, where her husband, Hon. D. C. McGillivray, is the acting governor. The social section of the newspaper recently contained an intimate something vital is lacking at once," she added with her intriguing habit of emphasizing certain words. "Of course," she continued, "I've had no time for gardening since I came here, but just the same, I love it."

On the much discussed but still important subject of women's taste in current fashions, Mrs. McGillivray has her own decided ideas.

"I like pastel blues and greens," she disclosed, "especially worn with black accessories. I think a woman should dress to suit herself and not slavishly follow styles that are suitable for other women."

For formal occasions Mrs. McGillivray likes severe black, well-cut and with as little fuss as possible. "Good jewellery is essential with this type of dress," she added: "and for ordinary occasions something light like a figured silk print is definitely chic."

For the interview she was dressed simply in a stone-colored linen with fringed edges—her only jewellery being a pearl necklace and a platinum wrist-watch.

She does not sleep in the afternoon because "it's bad for the figure," and rises as early as six o'clock every morning.

When breakfast with her husband is over soon after eight o'clock she tackles her list of pressing engagements for the day, lunches at 1:15 p.m., and devotes the afternoon and evening to correspondence, social engagements, and formal or informal functions, usually accompanied after dinner by her husband.

"My husband and I do not discuss business much," she confided, explaining that after a day of hard concentration on political and administrative matters, she considered it ill-advised to dwell longer on such topics during their hours of relaxation together. "What did you do today?" is a question to which Mrs. McGillivray seldom, if ever subjects her husband.

Labor Enters Civic Field

To Name Candidates This Week—Donation Made to School Band

Friday night a special meeting of the Trades and Labor Council decided to run two candidates for two aldermanic seats becoming vacant in the civic election in December. Another meeting will be held this Friday to select candidates.

On being informed some employers, including the city, had not yet deducted poll tax from employees pay, the council instructed the secretary to write them pointing out the seriousness of the omission. The letter stated that, as some employers had paid the men for the last time in October, deduction from the next pay check would be too late and the men would be disenfranchised.

The council voted to make a donation of $100 toward the school band. Secretary Jack Smithson said that was the largest donation the council had ever made to such a cause and that it considered the project worthy of all the support it could get.

HOUSEKEEPING

LUNCHEON IS SERVED

What a welcome sound is the announcement "Luncheon is Served." In this area when the tempo of daily life is so fast there is great temptation to lie in bed just a few more minutes in the morning. Delay in getting a good start often means that the breakfast is hurried and is not sufficient to prevent that "low feeling" before noon.

The homemaker who wants to serve nourishing well-balanced meals every day, will see that the luncheon is hot and satisfying to make up for the scanty breakfast.

Sometimes a hearty cream soup or a chowder fills the bill. The casserole dish allows for great variation and pleases both the cook and her family. Many combinations may be cooked in the oven in a casserole and when served, the steaming fragrance is a promised appetizing food. Although hungry people need no coaxing, often pays to dress up the food, particularly if it is a leftover making a return appearance.

These recipes are from the files of home economists. They are all exceedingly good.

Sausage and Corn Casserole
1 lb. sausages or sausage meat
2 tablespoons sausage dripping
5 teaspoons flour
1/2 cup milk
1 20 oz can cream style corn
1 teaspoon minced onion OR
2 tablespoons green pepper
1/2 cup fine bread crumbs

If using sausages, remove casing. Shape sausage meat into 10 or 12 patties. Fry patties until lightly browned. Make a sauce of the 2 tablespoons sausage dripping, flour and milk. Cook, stirring frequently, until sauce thickens slightly. Add corn and onion or green pepper, blending well. Arrange alternate layers of crumbs, corn mixture and sausage patties in a greased baking dish. Top with some of the crumbs which have been mixed with a little sausage dripping and arrange a few sausage patties on top. Bake in a moderate oven, 350° F., for 30 minutes. If desired, apple rings may be browned on one side in sausage dripping and placed browned side up on top layer of crumbs. Yield: five to six servings.

Surprise Mould
2 cups raw rice
4 cups boiling water
2 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup chopped parsley
3 tablespoons fat
2 cups chopped cooked meat
1/2 cup gravy

Wash rice and wash well. Add salt to boiling water. Add rice gradually so that water will not stop boiling. Boil vigorously for 15 minutes. Drain well. Add chopped parsley. Set aside 1 cup of this mixture, then line a well-oiled mould with the remainder of the mixture. Press it in well about 1 1/2 inches thick. Fill centre with chopped meat and gravy. Cover with the 1 cup rice, cover closely. Set mould in hot water and steam 45 minutes. Turn out to serve. Yield: six servings. SUPPER DISHES

Dried Beans

Chili Beans
1 lb. ground raw beef
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 cups cooked white (navy) beans
1 cup chili sauce
1 to 2 tablespoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 small bay leaf
4 whole cloves
1/2 teaspoon paprika

Brown beef and chopped onion in a dry pan, stirring constantly. Add cooked beans and stir for about 5 minutes. Add chili sauce and seasonings and simmer, covered, for 15 to 20 minutes. If mixture thickens too much during cooking, additional vegetable water or tomato juice may be added. Yield: six to eight servings.

Consolidated Beef With Dried Beef
1/2 cup dried beef
1 cup condensed mushroom soup
1 cup drained canned peas
1/2 cup beef in small pieces. Cover with boiling water. Let stand five minutes. Drain. Heat soup and add drained canned peas and meat. Heat thoroughly. Serve on toast, hot shells or over toasted buns. Yield: four servings.

Amazing Story, Pseudo-Doctor

NEW YORK (AP)—The full story of William Renwick MacLeod, the Canadian who successfully practised medicine in the United States for five years without any medical education, is even more amazing than at first appeared.

MacLeod, 37-year-old native of St. Cecile, Que., was arrested last month at the Dobbs Ferry, N.Y. hospital, where he was resident physician. It turned out he had no licence, no medical degree, nor even a high school diploma. He was sentenced Sept. 12 to a year in jail for illegally practising medicine.

His deception had worked for almost five years without harming anybody. It was bizarre because his dollar profits were small compared to the risk, and he worked where the risk of detection was greatest. He not only practised medicine, he married into a medical family. He worked as interne and resident physician at nine hospitals in New Jersey, New York and Connecticut during the last five years. And while a resident usually specializes in one field, MacLeod "specialized" in at least five.

In one hospital he was resident in neuro-psychiatry. In another, surgery. In another, obstetrics and gynaecology. In still another, he specialized in geriatrics, the study of old age.

Called "Good Doctor"
At the Brooklyn Women's Hospital he delivered hundreds of babies and the superintendent, Miss Miriam Watnick, said "he was a very good doctor and a nice person."

There is no indication MacLeod tried to practise medicine outside hospitals, but in every other respect he tried to live the medical life as fully as possible. He bought many medical books. He married a nurse. His father-in-law is a retired physician.

Inevitably the family came together to talk shop and there was MacLeod holding his own with experts. Mrs. MacLeod said neither she nor her father ever suspected that her husband had no legitimate medical training.

The nurses and the doctors with whom MacLeod worked in emergency rooms, in surgery, in wards and delivery rooms, thought well of him and respected him professionally. They found his personality engaging. Patients loved the bogus doctor. One credited MacLeod with saving his life after last rites had been administered during a violent asthmatic attack.

WOULD WELCOME BACK

Dr. Ralph Richardson, chief of staff at the Bristol Hospital at Bristol, Conn., said: "MacLeod was here for a month or so last year. Generally he assisted in surgery and also delivered babies. We all liked him, though he was an excellent man and well trained. As far as I'm concerned, if he gets a legitimate medical degree I'd like to have him back."

MacLeod told prison officials he was born in 1912 in St. Cecile, Que., and had five brothers and two sisters. At an early age he moved with his family to Maine. It was in Maine that he fell in love with medicine and his idea was a country doctor there. He studied the doctor's medical books and all his life acquired more books and read them religiously. In this way and with his experience in the Army Medical Corps he picked up his knowledge of medicine.

He served in the U.S. Army from 1936 to 1939 with the medical detachment at Fort Totten, N.Y., as laboratory technician. He rejoined the army in 1941 and a year later was tripped up while serving as a private in the medical training battalion at Camp Barkley, Texas. A court martial gave him five years for unlawfully practising medicine, but the army took him back in 1944, again in medical work. He was discharged in 1945 and entered civilian hospitals.

FIND CORPSE—These three pipe-smokers—including the two women on the right—found the headless body of a relative, Leamon Potts, in their backwoods cabin near Hamilton, Ont., and later discovered his skull in a box beside the bed. John Horton, left, his wife, Mrs. Jane Horton, and Miss Daisy Potts, said they found the man's decomposed body when they returned to the cabin after a three months' absence. Leamon was Miss Potts' father and Mrs. Horton's brother. (CP PHOTO)

THEY FIGHT DRUNKS—
Seven Foot Indian Chiefs Recall Their Happier Days

By MIKE HOLMAN
 Every fall at this time when pockets are full of money, two of Prince Rupert's most prominent Indian chiefs hold battle. They fight for life against drunkenness. But the chiefs, reaching a height of seven feet standing back to back in moccasins, are the soberest of warriors.

Just when restful Rupert citizens were going to bed one night recently, Chief-Looking-West and his brother Chief-Looking-East prepared for war. As the enemy drew nearer not a feather moved in their headdress; not a muscle twitched in the round face of Chief-Looking-West; the more weathered Chief-Looking-East was still calmly staring into each.

Both chieftans had been trained in endurance. Their straight backs moulded from strong ancestors—some of them known to each fabulous heights. Even now their patient faces reflected the love of their Creator. In those few seconds before blows fell, the warriors looked back into their childhood. They recalled how they had barely escaped being sent to the Chicago World's Fair back in the thirties. They would have gone, but at the last moment their promoter asked funds. Consequently the chieftans were locked in Linday's Storage on Second Avenue. The dust of long years in jail was shaken off by the Indians in 1947 when E. D. (Al) Manson, 721 5th Avenue West, paid their $95 bail and set them to work. "You could have put a zero behind that figure, and it still wouldn't set the value those Indians have been to me in my business. Through them an order of $100 in silverware is just going out; another went for $400. People write to me asking if I'm the man who owns the Indians," said Mr. Manson. For two and a half years the Indian chiefs served Mr. Manson, standing alone against winter and summer, Halloween and Christmas.

GREW TIRED
 But this year the warriors grew tired. They needed support. Mr. Manson, who realizes the value of his chiefs, gives them an annual holiday. During its rest after their harrowing work the chieftans go to hospital for minor repairs. Once Mr. Manson had the war paint out to give a little color to his aging chiefs. But an expert in Indian affairs of that nature from the University of British Columbia advised against such a plan. He said that the Indians would lose their battle-scarred personality and value with too much war paint.

So the only social benefits given to the chiefs are a yearly leather-trim up; shirt repairs to moccasins and a little eye shadow. One summer a visiting Seattle business man, seeing the chieftain working in Prince Rupert, offered their boss $25 cash for one of them. Mr. Manson was horrified. He said he wouldn't accept four times that for one of them. "No, I wouldn't part with them—but everything has a price," added Mr. Manson. Over the years many myths have grown up with Rupert's chieftans. One was they had stood guard at either end of the Galloway bridge, armed with guns to stop speeding. The chiefs themselves well remember one of their closest battles with sailors on shore

Seriously Hurt Logger Is Flown

Nels Nelson, seriously injured in a logging accident at Kelley Logging Company's Aero Camp at Cumshewa Inlet, Queen Charlotte Islands, was flown by Q.C.A. plane, Pilot W. Peters, to Prince Rupert on Saturday. Accompanied by a nurse, he arrived at 8:50 a.m. The accident apparently happened when a tree fell on him while at work. He was hurled 10 feet in the air and was pinned in a windfall. His hips were pinned under the tree. Before leaving the Queen Charlottes, he was given a blood transfusion.

Coastal Ship Is Protected

First of the coastal liners on the northern routes to have full fire protection equipment in compliance with the new federal regulations developing since the Noronic disaster of over a year ago, is the Union steamer Camosun which returned to service with arrival here yesterday afternoon enroute to Alice Arm and Stewart. A system of automatic sprinklers with some 200 heads in all parts of the ship and asbestos door and locker linings and curtains has been installed at a cost of $100,000. All public rooms and staterooms have been equipped with heads which have been so fused as to start sprinkling by a heat of 160 degrees. Signal clocks which are punched at frequent intervals by three patrolmen who maintain round-the-clock marches around the ship, are now connected to the signals to the bridge. The fire protection treatment which the Camosun has received is also to be applied to all the company's other vessels. The steamer Coquitlam, now withdrawn from service and which the Chilcotin is now relieving, is to get it during the next few weeks. Later the Chilcotin will receive it.

Blackwood On Bridge

In the previous column I pointed out that when neither side is vulnerable, you should not bid a slam unless the odds are slightly better than even that you will make it.

Now that I've put that in the record, I must admit that I like to bid slams when the chances are as good as even, as where the contract depends upon a successful finesse. In fact on hands which are that close, you can sometimes find a better play than a finesse.

North dealer.
None vulnerable.

A casual look at today's hand seems to indicate that the contract depends upon whether the finesse for the king of diamonds is right or wrong.

Mr. Abel's opening lead was the ace of clubs, followed by another club which Mr. Dale ruffed. Now Mr. Dale mentally reviewed the bidding—a sound thing to do on any hand.

Mr. Champion had bid hearts and then re-bid them. He is known to have no aces. He is known to be off the ace, the king and then ten of his heart suit—all of which are showing in dummy.

Mr. Dale concluded that Mr. Champion almost surely had the king of diamonds and at least six hearts. If he does, he is going to be on an immortal squeeze after the run of all of Mr. Dale's spades.

So the old boy disdained the diamond finesse. He laid down three rounds of spades, discarding two small diamonds from dummy on the last two rounds. Then he led a small diamond and went right up with the ace. Ruffing dummy's last club put him back in his own hand and he played out the rest of his spades, discarding all of the diamonds from the board.

Mr. Dale's last three cards were the four of hearts and the jack and five spot of diamonds. Dummy was down to the ace, king, ten of hearts. Poor Mr. Champion held the kind of diamonds and the queen, jack, nine of hearts—and it was his play to the tenth trick. If he played the king of diamonds, Mr. Dale would win the jack of that suit and the two top hearts. If he played a heart, all of dummy's hearts would be good. Actually he played the king of diamonds and Mr. Dale spread the hand for six-odd.

The Experts Say...

COOK VEGETABLES WITH MEAT—Next time there's a roast for Sunday dinner mother might try cooking the vegetables with the meat. Not only is this a tasty oven-dish, it also is a labor-saving device which permits the lady of the house to spend more time in the living room with the family than at her usual Sunday post—the kitchen.

Sliced onion cooked with a roast of beef adds to the flavor of this popular food. Carrots and potatoes are the vegetables suggested for oven cooking with beef. They should be put in the same pan with the roast about an hour before dinner is due to be served.

Gingerbread and whipped cream might complete this "oven" meal.

Hot Water Gingerbread—Ingredients: 2 1/4 cups flour; 1/2 cup sugar; 1 1/2 teaspoons ginger; 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon; 3/4 teaspoon soda; 1 teaspoon salt; 2/3 cup molasses; 1 egg; 4 tablespoons softened fat; 1/2 cup boiling water; 1/2 cup seedless raisins (may be omitted).

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add raisins which have been washed and floured. Make a hole in the middle of mixture.

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

A wedding in Rome last week startled Europe and made shouting headlines. The groom declined to say "yes." A few moments of deathly silence followed. Then he quietly withdrew, went home where he changed his clothing and had breakfast. Some wish to hang him. Others praise him. He said he had had an unholy time trying to make up his mind until the supreme moment when the conviction that "he had no wish to be tied to a girl for the rest of his life" triumphed. A woeful coward, perhaps. Yet, he was not without moral courage! Let's say he had nerve and tell the hangman to stay away.

Now and then, details of an old crime go on the air. It was this way Thursday night. Usually, we're interested. Murder attracts. Forty years ago the world followed the Crippen case. Even in Prince Rupert, new and far away, every development aroused deep attention.

In London town, mild-mannered Dr. Crippen, during the summer of 1910, slew his wife, Belle Elmore, burying her in the cellar of his home. He invented her absence and became friendly with an office girl, Ethel LeNeve. They boarded the S.S. Montrose, to live in Canada. The girl appeared as a young man. The skipper, suspicious, advised Scotland Yard. When off the St. Lawrence, a boat met the Montrose, and a detective climbed aboard. Both were arrested. This was the first time radio had been successfully used in tracking down a killer.

Remembrance Day approaches—and among the various matters worth remembering is the fact that veterans of the Second—Great War are becoming older. Each year, even today, twenty thousand are passing the age of 45, which is apt to start one figuring.

They may have been rented already, yet some uncertainty exists as to the future of the Canadian Legion and liquor store blocks on Third Avenue. Both buildings are comparatively new, and substantially erected. The liquor store will soon be moving, leaving a valuable corner. But whatever is done, or not done, it won't remain vacant extra long. Mail order house offices and banks are mentioned.

When General Baden-Powell became interested in the organization of Boy Scouts, he hit on something that could not fail without knowing it. No matter where, is more or less a scout, without knowing it. No matter what race, color or creed, he responds to the great outdoors and, with a bit of adventure thrown in, so much the better. Indeed, there's many a distinguished man who, in his heart of hearts, remains a scout to the end of his days.

Prairie people have worked in Prince Rupert, later returning to what had been their home. Some have even made a second journey to the coast, finally deciding definitely to remain here. For there is a call. It's easier to picture Prince Rupert down by the Pacific as below-zero hardens the wheat belt and frost deepens on the window pane. Prince Rupert! A gray sky, more than likely! Milder air and a softer breeze! Putting on and taking off of rubbers! A murmur of rain, and distant whistle of an approaching ship!

As the gradual approach of winter is being felt, black wolves are reported having been sighted along the railway, between here and Terrace. As many as seven were seen at one time. A wolf has never been known to make a railway worry but, when he sits down near one's door, the situation becomes different.

Back in service after annual overhaul during which an extensive fire protection system was installed in compliance with new federal regulations, Union steamer Camosun, Capt. John Loewen, arrived in port at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Vancouver, taking over the Prince Rupert-Alice Arm-Stewart route in place of the steamer Coquitlam which has now been withdrawn for a similar overhaul. The Camosun will be remaining indefinitely on this route from now on as the Coquitlam, when she comes back into service is expected to go on the Vancouver-Ceas Falls-Bella Coola run as relief for the steamer Catala and may then be transferred to the Queen Charlotte Island run which the Chilcotin is now relieving. The Camosun sailed on schedule at 11 p.m. for the north and is due back here tomorrow morning to sail south at 1:30 p.m.

Union steamer Chilcotin, Capt. H. E. McLean, returned to port at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from south Queen Charlotte Island points and sailed at 10 p.m. for Vancouver and waypoints.

A halibut fisherman, H. K. Norvik of Vancouver, was recently fined $100 in that city, having pleaded guilty to taking an unknown quantity of halibut on July 6 of this year. The prosecutor said Norvik's boat had been observed by an airplane.

Passengers arriving from Vancouver on the steamer Camosun yesterday afternoon included E. Bartolette, H. L. Grey, D. Candow, W. Bachman, Robert Duncan, W. R. Stevens, A. H. Cornish, Mrs. F. Johnson, R. T. Harmon, J. Armstrong, H. Friedman, A. Dickinson, C. Miller, Miss Colinson, Mr. and Mrs. Prince and William Danchuk from Bella Bella. Going through to Alice Arm were Mrs. B. L. Stewart, Norman McDonald, J. G. McLennan and V. Bergie for Alice Arm, and E. G. Funston was headed for Stewart.

Saturday, November 11, is a public holiday. Monday, December 25, is likewise a holiday. So is Tuesday. Anyway, if not legally so, Boxing Day always feels like one. And of course, nobody is supposed to toil on New Year's Day. Some thought must be given to the making of calls and resolutions.

Every day, a name that's becoming tiresome is appearing in the public print. Whatever the story is about, it concerns a Mr. Vishinsky—Mr. Vishinsky this, and Mr. Vishinsky that—where he's going, where he's been, what he likes, or dislikes. What had best be done, or not be done, so long as Mr. Vishinsky had something to say about it. And after months and months and months of this, what do the most of us here in Canada know about this wearisome fellow, Mr. Vishinsky, anyhow?

Seventeen were present at the meeting held here this week to consider the question of a city manager. And Prince Rupert has never been more populous. But for that matter, how many ever attend the regular city council meetings? Plenty goes on there, to invite or encourage the asking of questions. If we, who live, work and pay taxes here are not interested, who are?

LOST HUNTERS—These are three of the party of five hunters who disappeared October 14 while flying to Edmonton in a small plane. They took off from Grande Prairie, 250 miles northwest of Edmonton. R.C.A.F. planes have been searching since without avail and are continuing today. Left to right are: James Mulcahy, 31, and Joseph Dory, 42, both of Edmonton, and Harry Morton, 40, of Vancouver. Not shown are Stewart Reid, 30, of Edmonton and pilot Harry Pennington, 33, of Vancouver. This photo was taken after a hunting trip last year. (CP PHOTO)

Blind Helped—
Sunday Concert
Is Appreciated

Prince Rupert Artists and Large Audience Turn Out For Good Cause

Some of the pick of Prince Rupert's concert talent, including the major musical group organizations of the city, took to the stage while the visiting Calgary Range Riders threw in a fifteen-minute surprise appearance, as a crowd which filled the Capitol Theatre almost to capacity last night gathered to enjoy a pleasant two-hour entertainment and contribute to a good cause. It was the Sunday night variety concert staged by the Prince Rupert Rotary Club in aid of the current drive on behalf of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. T. Norton Youngs and Walter J. Smith arranged and directed the show.

At the opening H. D. Thain, vice-president of the local branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, expressed appreciation to the audience for the support evinced by its attendance. He acknowledged the courtesy of the Famous Players Canadian Corporation and Manager J. Harry Black in making the theatre available, the sponsorship of the Rotary Club and the effort of the Job's Daughters who had realized a record sum of $401.71 at their tag day Saturday. In soliciting voluntary subscriptions for the fund, Mr. Thain briefly referred to its two aims—first, to help the blind to help themselves, and, second, to seek out the blind who required help. The Prince Rupert Symphony Orchestra, constantly growing in size and excellence of achievement, presented the opening offering under the baton of Neville Gerrard—"Silver Wedding" overture and "Student Prince" selections.

Robert Wood was heard in a piano-accompanied solo and was then joined by Mike Colussi for a duet, both numbers being very acceptable.

Rowland Miles delighted the audience with two tenor solos—"The World is Mine Tonight" and the sweet new English song "Dark Haired Marie." Henry Pluym was accompanist.

The Four Dukes Orchestra (actually five) turned the show to lighter vein in modern style with snappy rendition of popular selections. The party consisted of Andy McNaughton, Bobby Woods, Bonnie Sprinkle, Harold Skalmerud and Percy Curle.

Mrs. Patricia Wicks sang sweetly "Kiss Me Again" and "Sibonet," with Andy McNaughton accompanying.

Bill Hilton's Range Riders gave a typical group of numbers in the western mood to lend something distinctly new to the evening's entertainment—and this group of lively instrumentalists in their big hats and range accoutrements.

Wilf Williams modernized a couple of well known popular piano selections.

Pat Bolton and Mel Thompson temporized laughingly in a comedy skit with a lire of patter which amused the audience and led up to the finale number—a group of well executed medley selections by the always popular Prince Rupert Shrine Club City Band under direction of Peter Lien. A. Berner, E. Boulter and Alex McRae presided at the desk.

A local visitor in Vancouver recently met J. H. Pillsbury who has been living in Vancouver since he left here to become a member of the Compensation Board. Mr. Pillsbury said he wished to be remembered to all old friends in the north. He is a well known civil engineer, and arrived in Prince Rupert before the townsie was cleared.

Bug Picture Coming Here

The theatrical version of the film judged by the Biological Photographers Association of America to be the best biological film of the year has been released to Canadian theatres by the National Film Board and will play the Capitol Theatre, Prince Rupert, December 8 and 9.

The film, "Life Under a Leaf," reveals in fascinating color the strange, destructive life that vegetable insects live each spring and summer in the family garden. Magnified many times, the insects appear as giant creatures exploring some prehistoric jungle.

For the first time the gardener will see his enemy at close quarters, battling and devouring one another, gorging on fruits and vegetables. Which insects are harmful and what he can do about it are explained.

The film is in the National Film Board's Canada Carries On series.
