They accused the companies of delaying tactics in the face of union demands made fourteen months ago.

"Long Range" Defence

IT IS surprising that the defence authorities, in spite of the accent that the Korean crisis has been placing on our unpreparedness, should still be basing its defence plans on the traditional supposition that there will be one or two years following formal declaration of war in which to prepare for actual battle.

With the advent of modern weapons as they exist, Canada, it is obvious, could not possibly defend herself for two or more years against a well-armed and determined enemy and it is just as well that she should forget any ideas of being able to build up strength while the nation is under continued attack.

The Korean war may seem bad enough. It is bad too but it is only child's play compared with what would happen in a major war on a large scale between the United States and Russia in which Canada, and this part especially, would be right in the thick of things.

It is no wonder that many people are deeply concerned over how little and how late appear to be the plans for defence in these potentially hot quarters. We cannot even get action on our air strip. There is little being done about our coast defences by navy, army and air force in which Prince Rupert, it would seem, should be figuring so promptly. It is worse than it was just before 1939. At least they were building the forts then—years before actual warfare loomed in the Pacific.

AVOIDING CONTROLS

CONTRIBUTING Canada's share to the United Nations' effort to maintain law and order in the world may create the need for more government controls. War would bring complete control. Controls are necessary war evils. They could be avoided in a perfect democratic society. The self-control of good citizens reduces the need for government control.

Every industry, including agriculture, every self-employed person, and every consumer should be planning to do co-operatively and individually the things that may need to be done to achieve a maximum of production and a minimum of consumption. All should be ready to give immediate effect voluntarily to every need for increased production on the one hand and reasonable consumption on the other.

The best devised controls are costly in administration and in the disruption of normal production and free life. The people pay every cost in their taxes and purchases. By anticipating the need for their co-operation, good citizens can save themselves and their neighbors many of the costs and inconveniences of controls which they can avoid by self-control.

By keeping down the need for controls, the people can keep better control of controllers, the greatest need of a democracy in a national emergency.

Services in the Church

SATURDAY SERMON

(By Rev. Basil S. Prockter, Canon of St. Andrew's Cathedral) "Come unto me all ye that labor."

These are the well known words of Christ and the fact that He added "I will give you rest," should not in any way lessen their significance. There is the rest of heart and mind which is found in a work that is being well done: in a work that takes the best that we have to give. That's a better rest than "time off."

Also there is the rest, the purpose of which is to fit us to go back and work some more.

It is that sort of rest which is appreciated by men that are men. For every true man loves his work. His work is more important to him than home or friends or fun, for he knows that there can be no joy in home or friends or fun without labor well and truly done.

The real problem and tragedy of the unemployed is not the lack of pay envelope but the lack of something to do that is worth doing quite apart from the reward. But have you ever pondered the double meaning of the word "labor"? It means not only work but also suffering.

Man's greatest joy is also his greatest sorrow. Achievement not only takes all we can joyfully give. It also demands not infrequently more than we want to give. A man in a work he loves can and does experience not only his greatest joy but also his greatest bitterness.

And here is a profound lesson from the Crucified for those that labor. Why did He leave His carpenter's bench and later His work of healing and teaching to die a cruel death? Could it not be that He had to teach us that the suffering is just as important as the work? That this thing carries the two meanings however we turn or twist, and the only way is to welcome the one as well as the other and see all work well done and all suffering and difficulty nobly borne in the light of the Cross as "not in vain."

Further to your editorial on mail delivery I would like to know if it is a fact that any time the question of mail delivery has been mooted in this city it has been vigorously opposed by all the leading business men for fear they would not be able to get their mail right off the boats and planes the way they can now.

If this is so, have these same gentlemen ever thought of retaining boxes for themselves in the event of a change over, and giving the rest of us the benefit of mail delivery? BASIL S. PROCKTER. Mrs. M. Williams, teacher at Terrace, arrived yesterday on the Camosun and took the train out last night.

As I See It By ELMORE PHILPOTT ABOUT ALBERTA This piece will be mostly about Alberta, for several reasons. In the first place all this part of Canada has a dual loyalty, so to speak. It is in B.C. geographically and politically but it is more in Alberta commercially than it is in B.C. But the main reason for writing about Alberta today is that my friend, Alderman Morrison of Calgary, presented me with an absorbing book about Alberta. It was published to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the city of Calgary.

MUS MELONS LEND THEMSELVES TO VARIETIZING DISHES

Edible melons are in several classes. The most distinct in color and texture. Other varieties are Cantaloupe, Honey Dew, and Honeydew. These melons are thick flesh with a cavity. Cantaloupe and Honey Dew are used for melon salads but have a pleasant taste. These melons are thick-skinned and are not eaten. The green or salmon-colored melon is similar in flavor to the cantaloupe.

Watermelon grow naturally in Africa and are much enjoyed by the people and animals for refreshing cool juiciness. The cultivated varieties have the appeal of color added to the other qualities. The thick white rind is not edible in the raw state but makes a delicious pickle.

Casaba and Honey Dew melons are grown in mild climates and in Canada are often called Winter melons.

Cantaloupe, Muskmelon and Watermelon are at the peak of perfection now. While these melons may be cooked in various ways, the flavour changes considerably and so the fresh, uncooked fruit should be served often while in season.

Opinions vary greatly on what to serve with melon. The gourmet feels that a sprinkling of salt brings out subtle flavours. Some authorities say that the slight tartness of lemon or lime is required to bring out the real flavour while still others like a little sugar. All agree, however, that melons should always be thoroughly chilled.

Melon balls, combined with other fruits and pointed up with a sprig of mint, make a perfect appetizer to start off a summer meal.

Melon balls or cubes set in a tart lemon jelly, are delicious for the salad course.

If a mound of cottage cheese is served on crisp lettuce beside the moulded jelly, the salad would be substantial enough for a main course at luncheon.

These recipes come from the home economists.

MELON VELVA
2 tablespoons gelatine
½ cup water
Juice of 1 lemon (about 2 tablespoons)
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cups sugar
5 cups melon puree (about 5 lb. of melon, as purchased)

Soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes and then dissolve by heating over boiling water for 10 minutes. Add lemon juice, salt and sugar to puree. Have the puree mixture at room temperature and slowly add the dissolved gelatine, stirring constantly.

Place in trays and freeze until firm, having temperature control at coldest point. Then turn into a chilled bowl and beat with a wooden spoon or electric mixer until it lightens in color, increases in volume and has a smooth texture. Beating must be rapid to prevent complete melting. Return mixture to trays and leave in the refrigerator a few hours to harden. Yield: about one quart.

FRESH FRUIT CUP
1 cup melon balls
1 cup diced fresh pears
1 cup diced fresh peaches
½ cup diced apples
¾ cup marshmallows (optional)

Prepare the melons, either as balls or cubes. Dice other fruit and combine with melon balls and quartered marshmallows. Chill and garnish with blue grapes and mint sprigs. Yield: six servings.

Annual Trip To Churchill

WINNIPEG—The 14th annual excursion train to Churchill on the shore of Hudson Bay rolled north toward the Atlantic Ocean from Winnipeg yesterday with 230 passengers of whom 31 were Canadians and the rest Americans from points as far separated as Baltimore and Los Angeles.

Minnesota contributed the largest number of excursionists going north of 54. There were 49 from that state. Illinois comes next with 25. The south is represented by a traveller from Memphis, Tenn.

As usual, doctors led the professional classification among the trippers. There are 10 of them on board, accompanied by their wives.

Waterloo, Iowa, contributes 20 folk who looked over the field last winter and picked on Churchill for their vacation this summer. They are a travel interest group.

There are two diners and a recreation car with movie projector and piano on the 15-car train which will become a travelling hotel for the next seven days.

The group was entrained at Dauphin yesterday afternoon where the Chamber of Commerce drove them through this rich wheat growing area, followed by a tea on the station grounds. Subsequently they will go far underground clad in oilskins to visit the workings of a base metal mine, fish for lake trout deep in the bush country.

Mounties Were Here Before

It will not be the first time, next week, when members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were on duty in Prince Rupert. Quite a few years ago Commissioner S. T. Wood, the present Dominion head of the force, was in charge of the detachment here. The Mounties had a small barracks on Third Avenue just across from Second Street. It was originally a bank building and is now owned by Jack Wrathall.

coax Eskimo into being photographed and climb the tumbling masonry that was once Fort Prince of Wales, terminus of an ocean route between Europe and this continent, before most American cities were born. The party returns here August 17.

Ottawa reports higher prices for candy. A chocolate bar, for example, is going up. But let us hope a chocolate drop isn't.

Reveille will be a new sound for at least some few thousands of young Canadians going soldiering. If this is melody it's a music that, though slowly, surely does grow on one. It's apt to be remembered for the rest of a lifetime. It comes deliberately, firmly in the chill gray dawn "O come to the cook house door boys—O come to the cook house d-o-o-r."

This has been a tough enough war from the very beginning. And it may be a longish time before the world approaches the "now it can be told" stage.

Fishermen, like anyone else, can have emergencies. Off the Washington coast this month, contents of the nets of the "Harold A" included a 500 pound horned mine. Risky stuff to touch! It was shown deepest respect. On the way to the nearest port, every minute was hard on the nerves. No need to have felt that way. The charge, long soaked in salt water, was harmless. But now was anyone to know except the naval disposal officer and he was cautious enough with the preliminaries.

Whatever course has been taken by authorities. The Sons of Freedom have evidently heeded it. About the only ones left stripping in public, in British Columbia are the chorus girls.

"Cap." Austin Lathrop, Alaska's richest man, was buried in Seattle last week. He spent most of his long life in Alaska, the land that gave him wealth. It is sometimes thought good form to decry the affluent. It did not look that way at the funeral, which thronged the church. Monia men were there—as well as hundreds of others who hardly knew the meaning. Little men mourned. They had lost a friend and knew it.

Complaints about the growing lack of seating, in the parks and public places cannot but be noted. Everyone is not 35 and brimming with energy, but there are thousands along in years who tire easily, and would be better out of doors, than in. Yet they do not fancy standing up permanently, or almost. Neither do they welcome walking miles, and all do not possess a car. There are a few if any seats in Prince Rupert, chiefly for the reason that they are damaged or smashed or thrown away.

We congratulate

Sockeye Fishing Over—Odd Fish Seen on Waterfront

Sockeye fishing in the Skeena and Naas is finished for another year. The season closed at 6 p.m. yesterday. Although catches have been comparatively small this year, those who fished consistently did reasonably well. There were good runs at the very start of the season in the Naas, but quickly dropped off to very modest numbers. Both gillnetters and seiners have had small catches resulting in fact seiners have been having discouraging results.

Union steamer Camosun, Capt. W. McCombe, arrived in port yesterday at 4 p.m. with 25 passengers from Vancouver for Prince Rupert. Disembarking here were Mrs. Mark Hill, Mrs. T. Jolly, Mrs. B. F. Tilley, Mr. and Mrs. Barwick, Mr. and Mrs. Antonic and child, Miss Horton, Mrs. C. Schaeffer, Mrs. J. Murty, Mrs. M. Williams, J. Morrison, E. Wahl, Peter Barron, J. Coulter, Mrs. C. A. Young and two children, George Crozier. The Camosun sailed at 10 p.m. for South Queen Charlotte Island points whence she will return here tomorrow afternoon southbound.

It was a spiny lumpsucker about one and a half inches each way and was caught in a seine by the crew of the Invercan v. Capt. George White. Walter Hansen had it on display in a bucket. It has the appearance of a tropical fish. Nearly spherical, it has a short tail and fastens itself onto objects with its mouth which has powerful suckers. Uncommon in these waters, it though the fish is extremely has been caught in Naas harbor. It was there that the Invercan V caught it. They are found frequently in shrimp trawls in Burrard Inlet and English Bay. There are a few around the Queen Charlottes.

C.P.S.S. Princess Norah, Capt. Fred McGraw, arrived in port this morning at 11:30 from Vancouver and sailed at 1:30 p.m. for Skagway and other Alaska ports. She will be here on her return next Wednesday.

The catch of tuna landed at this port so far this season has a value of $74,000. Fifty-one boats are employed. The catches have been worth $400 a ton.

Centre of interest on the waterfront yesterday afternoon was a tiny fish in Hunt's store.

Information Appreciated

P. H. Linzey, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, has received a letter of congratulations from the McKim Advertising Ltd., Montreal advertising agency, on the excellent material it has available for publicity purposes. The agency recently asked the Chamber for certain information and what Mr. Linzey sent was described as a "gold mine."
