Encouraging Parenthood

A GOVERNMENT statistician points out that, while baby bonuses or family allowances have now been payable in Canada for four years, there has been no increase in the number of babies. The position in Britain, where great inducements have been made to increase the birth rate, seems to be much the same in this regard.

A few statistics in regard to the development of Britain's population in a period of 150 years are of significant interest. In the early 1800's Britain's population was some nine million people, by 1891 it had increased to 29 million and today has reached the 49 million mark. However, present trends have caused some experts to estimate that the population may fall back to some 29 millions by the end of this century.

Nowadays British couples limit their families to two children or less whereas ninety years ago couples produced from five to ten children or more. The will to smaller families has been motivated, it is suggested, by the growing burden of parenthood in Western society, the lessened security for large families in the midst of intense competition and the unwillingness of women to assume the ties of motherhood in an era of increased social status and activity.

The British answer today, at least, appears to be in the direction of even greater social assistance to those raising families.

ATLIN REVERSES

FRIENDS OF W. D. SMITH, who was Member of the last Legislative Assembly for Atlin, will regret his now apparent defeat which will be subjected likely to confirmation by a judicial recount in view of the close majority and unusual aspects in regard to rejected and irregularly handled ballots. Mr. Smith was a hard-working and popular member of the last House and represented his riding well. It is ironic enough for him that he should have won in the 1945 election when the Socialists defeated the most of the Coalitionists in this part of the country, only to be knocked out in this latest election when the Coalitionists were being so generally favored, particularly in this area. Such are the fortunes of political war.

Obviously, it was the Indian vote which reversed what appeared to be Mr. Smith's victory on the first preliminary count. The government, already possessing a preponderant majority of seats, can, of course, get along with one less member. The Indians, as newly enfranchised citizens, are fairly entitled to some representation in the House and Mr. Calder was the only candidate of the race in the province. As a member, he will be in a position to give an especial type of service and his career will be followed with particular interest.

William Murdock Revisits Prince Rupert After 35 Years — Recalls Old Days

Not having been here since 1914, William Murdock of Minneapolis who arrived in town last week-end was hardly prepared for the changes noted in Prince Rupert.

"I was hardly able to recognize any place," he remarked. "Prince Rupert is commencing to look like a city."

Mr. Murdock, who is an electrician, first came here a soldier, serving in the Irish Fusiliers under Colonel McSpadden of Vancouver. This was not long after the outbreak of the First Great War in August 1914. At that early stage in Prince Rupert's development, accommodation for a war-time regiment was difficult, if not almost impossible to find, so the guests in the Premier Hotel were turned out and the hotel premises converted into a temporary barracks, which provided adequate shelter for more than a year.

It was a good sized, red-painted frame building on the railway reserve, situated on an elevated site overlooking the railway yards. It stood on ground on the far side of the present cinder pathway extending down to the railway station, and almost opposite the bowling green. The hotel building was sold and dismantled years ago.

Mr. Murdock recalled the interesting days spent here 35 years ago, and had many inquiries to make, as well as speaking of experiences he was able to remember.

Now and then, he mentioned, there was opportunity, apart from military duties, to go fishing, and it was not long before the Fusiliers became well aware of the abundance and fine quality of fish to be caught in and around the harbor of Prince

BAND DELIGHTS HOSPITAL FOLK

One of the delightful but all too few diversions for patients and staff at Miller Bay Hospital came on Wednesday night when the Prince Rupert Shrine Club City Band, twenty-two strong, visited the nearby institution and rendered an open air program which proved delightful to all within listening range.

It was a varied one-hour-and-a-quarter rendition, part being presented in the front of the hospital and part in the rear so that all could have the opportunity of hearing and enjoying.

Bandmaster Peter Lien, as usual, wielded the baton.

On behalf of 154 patients and staff of ninety, Dr. J. D. Galbraith, at the close of the program and while refreshments were being served to the bandsmen, expressed appreciation of the visit. Jack Mussallem, replying for the band, said that it had been a pleasure to give pleasure.

Rupert. There was one particularly fine haul made near the western end of the townsite.

Mr. Murdock sailed by the S.S. Prince Rupert last evening en route to Los Angeles, in the course of a vacation tour of the northwest and coast.

The fact of having been here, even so long ago as in 1914, gave added interest to the realization that Prince Rupert's growth today, is along highly substantial lines.

Ray Reflects . . . and Reminisces

There were two morning and one evening paper—Telegraph, Sun and Globe—publishing in St. John (New Brunswick) back in 1900. The first named had been rescued from the cold shades of opposition in '96 when Laurier succeeded in persuading the electorate to think it was time for a change. The increase in dollars and subscribers was reflected in the appearance of the three-storey building in Canterbury Street and satisfaction was felt by the staff in making fullest use of advantages and conveniences not enjoyed before.

Linotype machines operated on the top floor. News copy was written and edited in a spacious office downstairs having large windows and no blinds. Typewriters had but recently been installed for lead-pencil composition was becoming too great a strain on the forbearance of typesetters. Boss in the news room was Frank McCafferty—lanky, discerning and possessing an X-ray knowledge of city and population. The editor was E. W. McCree, who came from Prince Edward Island where his father had been a publisher and Ottawa correspondent. McCree, junior, had been in the employ of the New York Herald and helped report the Spanish American War. The business manager was C. J. Milligan. In later years a member of his family joined the Vancouver Province.

The Sun, spokesman for the Conservative way of life, fell on evil days in the decades following the death of Macdonald. The office was close neighbor of the Telegraph and less pretentious in appearance and general equipment. Its editor was Snowden D. Scott who, beginning life as a blacksmith, lived to become one of Canada's distinguished political writers. He resigned a good many years ago to move to British Columbia and become one of the valued members of the Vancouver Province organization. Another figure of note in the Sun was Charley Crandell from Kentville, Nova Scotia who eventually, after moving to Montreal, became president of the British United Press. The Sun's business manager was Colonel Markham, an Englishman who spent a day or so in Prince Rupert years ago, during a tour of the west following retirement.

Police court reporting was never neglected in the Telegraph's daily routine. A seaport city, St. John had no lack of "characters" who, soon or late, would find themselves before the lawful authorities. One day, an unwashed bedraggled looking stranger, charged with having been drunk, as well as disorderly, appeared. In some way he had learned the name of the magistrate was Robert Ritchie—and that he was a stickler for decorum and dignity. The moment the accused entered the dock, he smiled broadly at Magistrate Ritchie and bellowed: "Good morning Robert—my old college friend."

Mr. Ritchie stiffened, constables gasped, and the reporters chuckled.

ISLAND DOCTOR IS COMING HERE

Dr. George Burgess, for the past three years superintendent of the United Church Hospital at Queen Charlotte City, will arrive in Prince Rupert by plane next Monday from the Islands to assume the post of assistant superintendent of Miller Bay Hospital. His wife will arrive a few days later.

Dr. Burgess is a 1945 graduate of the medical college of the University of Toronto and saw service for a time in the Canadian Army.

Dr. Macdonald, at one time located at Hazelton, is coming north from Vancouver to relieve Dr. Burgess at Queen Charlotte City.

Teacher at Port Edward Resigns

The resignation of Miss Evelyn Moret, teacher at the Port Edward school, was accepted with regret by the Prince Rupert School Board at its monthly meeting. Next term, the white and Indian schools at Port Edward, will be consolidated, with two teachers in charge of the classes.

BASEBALL— Savoys Beat Commercials

Come Up From Behind—
Bruce Simundson Breaks Nose

League-leading Savoys came from behind in an eighth inning outburst to score five runs and win over the Commercials 9 to 7 in the City Baseball league last night. It was Pavlikis' three bagger that scored Arney and Miner Simundson and broke up the game.

Dunbar, Bill and Bruce Simundson had scored previously in the eighth to tie the score after trailing the Commercials since the opening frame. The fireworks started when Howdick at third was blinded by the late sun and threw wild to first on two occasions, allowing three runs to score.

The Commercials looked like winners up to then, in spite of a double run-down in the third inning when no less than six Savoy players got in on the act. Pavlikis came in from the outfield to make one put-out and assist in the other. Windle and Cornwall were put out between home and second after their team had scored twice in the inning.

The First Avenue Hotelmen again showed life in the fifth when, with two out, young Ray Spring drove a triple to left field to unload the bases of three runs. Spring also did nice work handling a long fly ball in the sun from Pavlikis in the third inning.

It was bitter medicine for the Commercials to take after building up a comfortable 6-2 lead at one stage.

Savoys had their misfortune too when Bruce Simundson was hit in the face on a bad hop of a hard hit ball. He was taken to hospital and a late report stated that his nose is broken. He will likely be out of the line-up for some time. He had scored three runs in the game.

RINGSIDE SEAT—Members of the Canadian Medical Association at their annual convention in Saskatoon got a close-range view of the first operation ever televised in Canada. The doctors said television brought them closer to an operation than they had ever been except when actually performing one. The new medium will be of particular value to medical students in hospitals with limited amphitheatre facilities. (C. P. Photo)

Bruce had a finger broken fielding a ball in a game at Smithers last year.

Ken Guthrie had a good night at the plate when he "hit them where they ain't" for four clean singles in five times up.

Alex Bill struck out nine, allowed three bases on balls and hit three batters with pitched balls. Letourneau struck out five and gave up three free passes. Savoys collected 11 hits, Commercials 9.

Mike Montesano called the balls and strikes capably while Letourneau and Karasowsky handled the base umpiring.

message from R. C. Vaughan, chairman and president, Canadian National Railways, to the mayor of Halifax and the president of the Board of Trade. "To our good friends the citizens of Halifax," said Mr. Vaughan, "we would like to say how much we have appreciated the opportunity of joining hands with you in the celebrations marking the two-hundredth birthday of your city. The rail lines of this vast railway system have a history of public service dating back over a century and this applies also to the great network of telegraph facilities stretching over a distance of 4000 miles through seven time zones from St. John's, Newfoundland, to the west coast of Vancouver Island and into the Yukon. The Twentieth Century is indeed Canada's century and the 100,000 men and women who serve under the Canadian National banner are resolved to do their part in assisting in every way possible our national development and prosperity."

It was a colorful ceremony. Mr. Howlett, in the dress and stove-pipe style hat of his century-old counterpart, worked at the original tape receiver and sender flanked by Miss Jeannine Quesnel and Miss Joyce Gilmour in the hooped skirts, crinoline and bonnets of which their great grandmothers wore proudly.

TELLS ABOUT MEAT PACKING

Martin Stuart Speaker at Gyro Club Luncheon

The vast meat packing industry of the North American continent, now a multi-billion dollar business with plants in sixty great cities, had its beginnings when Ferdinand de Soto landed hogs on the Florida coast in 1539 and when the Pilgrim Fathers brought hogs and cattle to the New England coast in 1620, Martin F. Stuart, local manager of the Swift-Canadian Co., told the Prince Rupert Gyro Club in a luncheon talk on the history of the packing industry.

First trading in cured meats had been between New England and the West Indies when barrelled salt pork and beef had been exchanged for molasses. With the growth of the American nation, the industry had moved westward, first being centred in the Ohio Valley. It grew rapidly after the United States government had put a tax on liquor, which ruined that market, and the corn raisers started to feed their corn to hogs and cattle. Prior to the Civil War, Cincinnati had been the centre of the packing industry. Eventually in 1865 on Christmas Day the union stock yard had opened in Chicago which since that time had come to be the greatest meat packing city.

ST. LAURENTS VOTE—Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent had only a few feet to walk from their Quebec City home when they went out to vote. Their local polling station was next door. Here Mr. and Mrs. St. Laurent are shown as they left the poll. (C. P. Photo)

Today the packing industry, with its important functions of preparing and disposing of fresh meats, the curing and preserving of meats by salting and smoking, the preservation of meat food products and the development of many bi-products for numerous purposes, by hermetically sealing processes, had become a vital service to modern civilization.

Personalities in the development of the meat processing industry such as Hammond, Swift, Daggett, the Wilsons, Libby and Armour were mentioned by the speaker.

The Gyro program yesterday was arranged by Norman Baker, President, Maurice Brydges was in the chair and guests were Neil Rasmussen of Temiskaming, Ontario; William Joy of Los Angeles and W. S. Noble of Prince Rupert.

MRS. BLACK IS HONORED

Members of the Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary gathered in large numbers Wednesday night at their regular meeting and one of the pleasant features of the evening was the wishing of bon voyage and the presentation of a lovely gift to the president, Mrs. J. S. Black, on the eve of her departure for a trip to England and Scotland. The gift was in acknowledgement for Mrs. Black's long and effective work for the Auxiliary. The presentation was made by Mrs. William Rothwell and Mrs. Black responded feelingly.

Three new members were initiated at the meeting and two more new members accepted. Delicious refreshments were served, featuring a large decorated bon voyage cake made by one of the members and duly cut by Mrs. Black.

JAM and JELLY MAKERS!

For SURE Results... Greater Yield take your choice of CERTO or CERTO Crystals

No fuss... no worry... no guesswork in making jam or jelly with Certo Fruit Pectin or "Certo" Crystals. You'll save time and work... get up to 50% MORE jam or jelly from your fruit!

Please yourself which you use. Both Certo and "Certo" crystals are fruit pectin, the natural substance in fruit that makes jams "jam" and jellies "jelly" — extracted and concentrated for better, easier jam and jelly making. The word "Certo" is a trade-mark.

Boil ONE MINUTE only for both Jams and Jellies

That's all you need when you use Certo or "Certo" Crystals... one minute's full, rolling boil! What a saving of time and energy. This short boil gives you other advantages, too:

- Since very little juice has time to boil away, you get an average yield of 10 glasses where old-fashioned, long-boil recipes would give you about 5.
- Cooking time is so short it cannot spoil the fresh fruit taste or dull the lovely natural colour. They stay in your jam or jelly.

JAMS or JELLIES ALWAYS TURN OUT RIGHT

That's providing you follow exactly the kitchen-tested recipes you get under the label of every bottle of Certo or in every package of "Certo" Crystals. Different fruits need different handling so there's a separate one for each fruit. Don't change a thing and you'll get delicious, sparkling jam or jelly every time.

Get CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals at your grocer's today.
