Dominion Day

"Thou land of hope for all who toil Thou true North strong and free! - O Canada." .

ANADA tomorrow is 83 years of age for it was on July 1, 1867, that Confederation became an accomplished fact. This is still youthful in the career of nations but we have in Canada come far and achieved mighty stature in those comparatively few years.

Canada is a rich nation—in resources, in industry, in people, in institutions—but most precious of our possessions today might still be rated the freedom without which all would be naught in our democratic way of living. Therefore, on this Dominion Day, it might be well to reflect that, while freedom is being threatened and destroyed in many parts of the world, here in Canada we stand almost as a final bastion of liberty. Great are the responsibilities, thereby, implied. That they may not involve us once again in the horrors of war, in another of which we would inevitably be a vortex, is devoutly to be prayed in these tense days as Dominion Day is once again renewed.

It is well that there should be developing in this country a truly national Canadian feeling, differing happily from the malevolent nationalisms of some of the other countries of the world today.

Nurtured in an atmosphere where the will and energy of people are allowed full expression within the limits of public welfare, may we well feel grateful today at our status as citizens of a great and growing nation in one of its greatest sections.

IN PRINCE RUPERT

T IS satisfactory that an adequate celebration of Dominion Day should be observed again in Prince Rupert.

After the lapse of a year, Port Day will be on once more and, fittingly enough, it will feature an exposition of the practical functioning of the primary industry of the port—its fishing. An intensive three-hour program has been arranged for the occasion. Prince Rupert people may be counted upon to turn out on the waterfront to see the men and boats of the halibut and salmon fleets in action and in contest.

The traditional Ketchikan-Prince Rupert baseball game will feature the afternoon's sport program to be followed by another local sports institution—the final for the Dominion Day football cup.

Once again, after having been rather indifferent about it for a time, we observe Dominion Day in good style and that is as it should be.

1939 Port Day Gift Unearthed

Most unique of the financial contributions to the 1950 Port Day in Prince Rupert has come to light.

Back in 1939 Prince Rupert had its initial Port Day. Collections were taken among local business houses and one of these—a $10 Royal Bank bill came in late and was pigeonholed in a local business house. There was a bit of housecleaning in this office a few days ago and the old bank not: came to light.

It was immediately turned over to the 1950 Port Day committee and has been deposited to the fund for this year's

Port such as, boat races, running races and surf board riding. In the second place there should be more people come out to see Port Day and enjoy the fun.

Excitement is what we really need. For example if there are boats in a race, two may draw ahead. The people on the wnarf then get excited and we see them yelling for either one of the boats that are in the lead. Also there may be a boat close behind and as that boat catches up there wil! be much more excitement ..

Then we should take hints from other years too. Boats

TWO ITEMS OF 'PARAMOUNT' IMPORTANCE

PRINCE RUPERTIS

PORT DAY

Salmon Canning is a Year 'round Job

While a visitor would be impressed with the feverish activity around a cannery during the run . . . it might not occur to him that a tremendous amount of work is going on ashore and afloat during the rest of the year.

As any boat owner knows, the mere care and maintenance of any sea-going craft is going to keep both the owner and the boat builders busy every time the boat is not actually at work. The fishing fleet out of Vancouver and other B.C. ports supports hundreds of marine operatives. Fishing is not just a fine weather occupation, and rough weather demands sturdy craft and perfectly operating engines and equipment.

Nets must be readied for service, mended, treated and replaced.

The canneries, cold storage plants, reduction plants, hydro-electric or other power supply plants employ hundreds of trained personnel who never catch a fish.

The sale of the fine canned fish produced in B.C. again employs hundreds of experts in their field both at home and abroad. The days when the B.C. salmon pack was completed when it stood in a wharf warehouse in bright tin are long past.

Today the successful canner takes responsibility for his distribution along two lines.

First, he arranges his allocation in a geographical sense . . . then he looks at the calendar. If the ultimate consumer is going to be taught to ask for a brand by name, the canner has to make sure that it will be available in June as well as December, in August as well as March.

As soon as he thinks of a brand, his need for labels and cartons brings other great Canadian industries into the picture . . . also on a year-round basis.

Yes . . . the business of successfully marketing a fine product like B.C. Salmon brings into the picture many thousands who draw good wages for being credited with an "assist" in the game of harvesting the crop of the sea.

The list of allied industries reads like a trade directory and includes boat builders, suppliers, can makers, wooden box makers, labellers, machinists, marine engine builders, net makers, lithographers, fibrebox makers, warehouses, every type of transportation company, wholesalers and retailers . . . and . . . every type of advertising medium.

They will all continue to profit from the salmon canning industry just so long as the quality of the product will continue to impel the housewife to say, "Another can of Paramount (for instance) please!"

Day is going to be held on Dominion Day and this double holi-G. Brown and family, Lt. Cdr. day should attract people from Crowther, Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. the whole district and make the

> We school children would suggest a children's parade, a parade of decroated floats, running races for the children and on the water, boat races, surf board races and exhibitions of fishermen at their work on the fishing boats.

Of course we need bands, our own with its gay uniforms and jolly tunes and also the fine native bands from out of town. We hope that everyone will come eut to make it a big success. May the 1950 Port Day be a day we ■ shall never forget
