Thanksgiving Day

THANKSGIVING DAY, to be observed for the 70th consecutive time as a Canadian holiday, is a modern version of an immemorial custom.

Most agricultural peoples of the ancient world set aside at least one day during the autumn equinox to give thanks for the fruitfulness of the earth.

In Rome, the period was marked by feasts and parades in which cornucopias—"horns of plenty"—symbolized man's thankfulness for the year's harvests. Druids, Greeks, and Israelites also selected similar festivals.

In the New World, the modern holiday was first observed as a day of religious thanksgiving by the New England Pilgrims, who set apart a day for thanksgiving at Plymouth immediately after their first harvest in 1621.

Later, George Washington and succeeding presidents of the newly-formed republic named various thanksgiving days for war victories and good crops. In 1864, while the Civil War still ravaged the United States, Abraham Lincoln appointed the fourth Thursday in November as an annual day of national thanksgiving.

In Canada, Thanksgiving Day has been observed annually since the Marquess of Lorne, then governor-general, fixed November 6, 1879, as a day "to attend church and give thanks for the blessings with which Canada has been favored during the year."

Nowadays, a day of rest, recreation and family reunion, Thanksgiving has lost much of the religious or patriotic fervor that inspired it in former years. Early chroniclers tell of victorious British troops celebrating the storming of Quebec and defeat of French forces on the Plains of Abraham with a thanksgiving service in the Ursuline Chapel at Quebec.

During the First World War the religious aspect of Thanksgiving Day became deeply rooted and from 1918 to 1930 it generally fell on Armistice Day, November 11. But representations by veterans' groups led to the Dominion establishing November 11 as Remembrance Day, which became a statutory holiday in 1946, and Thanksgiving was moved forward to an early Monday in October.

CANADIAN POLITICS

THE SUMMER, politically speaking, has been active. The by-elections and conventions to choose national party leaders have been singularly free from extremes of language or over-emphasized zeal.

In fact, comparing public life in Canada now, with what it was a few generations ago, reveals an impressive difference. There was plain speaking in the eighties, the nineties, as well as later. Numerous scoundrels were at large. So platform speakers declared although no one was under compulsion to believe such remarks. Campaigns were as hot as prejudice, old scores, race, religion and hard times could make them. The Northwest Rebellion, the Manitoba school question and North Pacific sealing were only a few of the higher lights. Many other matters bristled with unsolved points.

Today Canada has her problems but differing in character and on a wider basis. Unity continues to be urgent but there is less necessity and reason. Canada is gradually moving further away from purely domestic disputes and drawing closer to nationhood and the broader outlook.

NEWFOUNDLAND TO BENEFIT

EARNING ONE'S LIVING in Canada, while not exactly easy, or entirely free from the anxieties and responsibilities involved in gaining a livelihood, should nevertheless appear in a highly favorable light to the people of Newfoundland once they find themselves part of Canada's population. Newfoundland is an austere land. Plenty of effort is necessary for even moderate returns. The general run of toilers are, on the whole, accustomed to the hard way. It might be said they expect to live their lives in that manner and perhaps feel a more or less dour happiness. This is one saying that Newfoundlanders lack luxuries but not all are on the same social and economic level.

The colony is centuries old and, with the passage of time, distinctions cannot but slowly, and perhaps imperceptibly develop.

To become a province of Canada will go far toward changing conditions. There will be a far wider outlook, a greater sense of power and privilege; the taking advantage of opportunities unknown before, the throwing aside of narrowing restrictions and in closer, more intimate association with the sister provinces, a broader and more satisfying way of life will ensue.

BADLY DISABLED DO GOOD WORK

25 Special Factories In Britain Now Employ 1,200

LONDON—Seriously disabled men are turning out work that stacks up in quantity and quality with work done by normal workers, a report issued in Britain indicates.

Subject of the report is a successful experiment in social medicine—employment in a specially equipped factory in Glasgow of severely handicapped men.

The factory, which opened two years ago, has proved that seriously handicapped men can work under carefully selected conditions. Output of the factory stand comparison with the output of one employing normal workers, the report said.

The men are engaged in production of electrically heated blankets and work with tools and machinery which has been specially adapted to their disabilities. In some cases special ambulance transport is provided to bring workers to the factory.

STARTED IN 1946

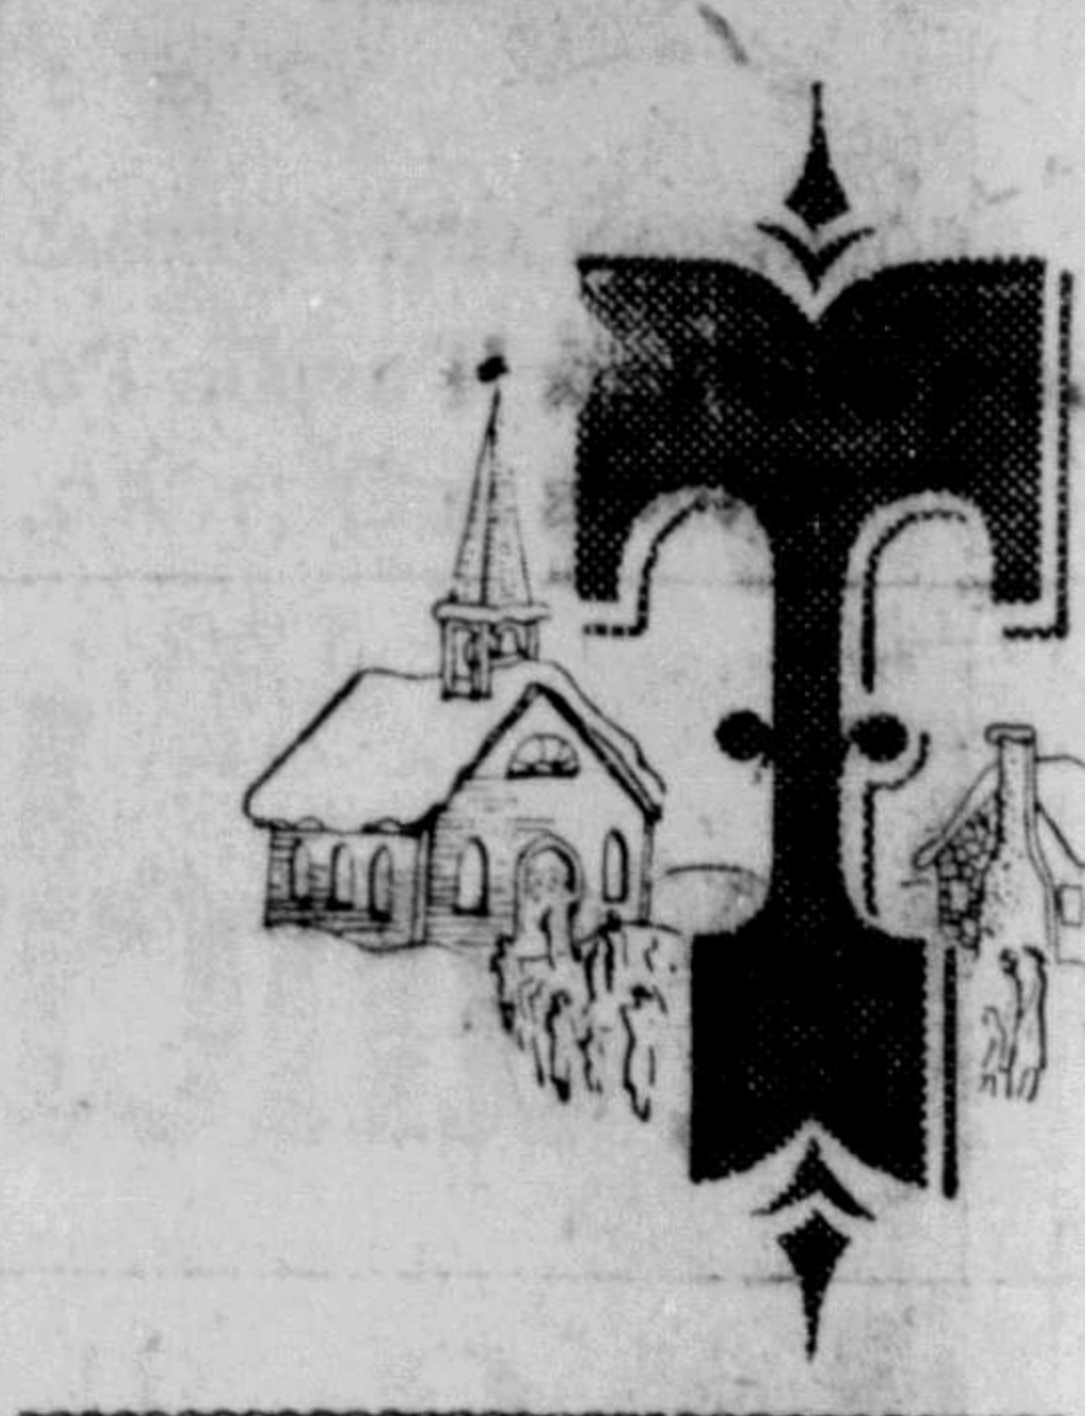

The report states that since the venture was launched in 1946 output per man has more than doubled. The men work a 40-hour week and both during training and afterwards are paid standard wages. The success of the experiment is judged by the regularity of attendance, the steadily rising output and above all by the effect on the men themselves.

This enterprise was started by a private non-profit company. Another experiment of much wider scope is at present being undertaken by the ministry of labor.

Under the Disabled Persons (Employment) Act of 1944 a special corporation was set up to provide work for those whose disability prevented them from obtaining industrial employment. Already 25 special factories have been opened and jobs found for 1,200 workers. It is the intention of the corporation eventually to have over 100 of these factories, 50 of which will be in operation by the end of this year.

Reminiscences By W.J. and Reflections

Sixty years ago, Seattle was merely another coast town with high hopes, a high mountain over yonder and always out to try and lick another community known as Tacoma.

Front Street was the chief Avenue of traffic and the centre of things was down around Pioneer Square and Yesler Way. It was near there the pride of Seattle stood, this being the Occidental Hotel. It was quite a hostelry at that. Streets were steep but living costs were not. Buildings were of modest size. Jobs were not plentiful. No one had ever heard of the Klondyke. The word would have been meaningless as well as sounding odd. There were dozens of reasonably priced, plainly appointed restaurants, with pork or ham among the favorite dishes.

Seattle was a town—nothing more and nothing less. There were only two cities on the Pacific Slope—San Francisco and Portland.

Seattle was little more than 30 years old in '88. It took a longish trudge to go out to Lake Union or Lake Washington. Mud was sticky and the croaking of frogs seemed to increase as twilight came on.

One family of five lived in a cottage with picket fence and garden, and convenient to Lake Washington. Fuel could be had for the taking if one had no objection to bestirring himself. There would be the sound of sawing and chopping as trees that had been felled and burned over, were cut into handy length and loaded on rigs to be hauled home.

Without having luxury, as understood today, people were comfortable. There was no housing problem. All had elbow room. Neighbors were friendly. Practically everybody had a garden. Winter, as recalled from long ago, was like a mild, prolonged autumn. Many homes were ivy covered, and settlers enjoyed coming around for a chat.

It was a pleasant suburb and countryside—spacious and well served with roads, with the glittering Olympics an endless picture.

The Denny school kept abreast of the times and it was not the fault of the teachers if pupils failed to absorb knowledge. A small kettle drum held in the orderly assembly and dismissal of classes and Old Glory fluttered from its staff, daily. At one time, the Denny family, among the original pioneers to locate in Seattle (named after an Indian chief) owned a good sized proportion of the townsite. Land could be bought by the acre, instead of the foot.

Every now and then it appears necessary to hold an inquiry, with an official flavor, to delve and deliberate about another increase in prices! The why and the when and the wherefore, etc., etc. But no assistance from Ottawa is needed by the average family in getting the lowdown. They discover all about it from their grocers and meat dealers without the least delay.

Block of National Film Board Here Being Increased In View of Popularity of Service

Service of the National Film Board in Prince Rupert is proving so popular that A. M. Wilson, field representative of the Board with headquarters in Prince George, has decided to recommend that the block of films to be made available here monthly be increased from ten to forty. Mr. Wilson is leaving Monday on his return to Prince George after spending the past few days here on official business.

Distribution of films here is handled by the local Film Council of which Sgt. L. A. N. Potterton, provincial police, is president and the public library is the distribution centre. Here the films are available for the use of some sixty local organizations which are members of the Film Council. The stock of films is completely changed every three months.

The picture season is on again and there is every indication that coming months will exceed the previous high month, May of this year, when there were thirty showings of film to a total of 1500 persons.

A new development here is the co-operation of the Indian Department in the distribution of film to such places as Port Simpson, Stewart, Alice Arm, Butedale, Port Edward and Miller Bay. For these outlying coastal points a projector has been made available.

WHEN YOU BUY A WATCH

Keep this in mind—you musn't expect to get something "high grade" unless you pay a decent price.

By a "decent price" we don't mean that you really must pay a lot of money.

Watches haven't advanced as much as lots of other things.

At least ours haven't—we bought the bulk of our stock quite a while ago.

Railroad watches have actually been selling as low as before the war.

But for a reliable watch it isn't safe to go below $30.00 to $40.00.

If you come here that much will get you a watch good for 15 to 20 years.

If you've been thinking of watches even a little bit, it's time you called on us.

SAYS MAN AT 40 STILL IN PRIME

U. K. Labor Ministry Worried by Employers' Prejudice

LONDON—Prejudice against men over 40 is disturbing Ministry of Labor officials in many areas.

In the ministry's eastern region, plans are being made for an all-out drive to counter the view that men over 40 are inferior to men in their 30's.

The Ministry has difficulty placing trained executives at salaries of $4,000 a year and more and has noted that 50 percent of advertisements for administrative posts specify "Only men under 40 need apply."

"Many of the over 40's applying for executive jobs have had years of experience at salaries ranging from $4,000 to $16,000 a year," and official said.

"These men are in the prime of life and as vigorous in mind as most men in the 30's. They have reasoned and balanced judgment and a sense of responsibility often lacking in their juniors."

"We are appealing to business heads to judge these men on their merits."

NO HOLLYWOOD FOR MARGARET

Although Talent Scout Suggests She Follow Up

Hollywood still pursues Miss Margaret Brain but the 17-year-old Prince Rupert brunette who charmed Vancouver last summer refuses to yield to the blandishments of the film capital which she visited after winning the title "Miss P.M.E."

Margaret, who now works at the finance office in the city hall, forthrightly denied that she had any screen ambitions while she was in Hollywood and she affirmed her attitude Friday when questioned about a report that she had received a Hollywood offer.

It wasn't an official offer from a film company at all, she explained, but a suggestion from a talent scout that she go to Hollywood to take a course in dramatic studies which might or might not result in film success.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talent scout was one whom Miss Brain had met during her brief Hollywood visit in August. She suggested, in a personal letter, that Margaret attend a Hollywood dramatic school. The suggestion was based, Margaret believes, on the result of a screen test she took while there.

Margaret was positive that she had no intention of taking up the offer and was extremely hesitant about allowing it to receive any publicity. "After all," she said, it wasn't official. It was merely a suggestion from a person I met down there."

As for Hollywood, Margaret's brief acquaintance with the city and the industry which gives it life convinced her there is little chance for happiness in a place where artificiality is normal rather than exceptional and life seems to be spent in the courtship of false glamour rather than basic verities.

"Down there they like Canadian girls because they are natural and unaffected. There is very little of that among Hollywood people themselves. They are all overly sophisticated."

Meteors are usually so small they are burned up long before they reach the ground.

Idea For Yacht Mooring In Interesting Spots—Salmon Fishing Is Now Ended—Fast Dry Dock Work . . .

Over on Digby Island near the old marine station are a large number of cement blocks which were used for anchoring purposes at one time. At Seal Cove are a number of buoys and chains which were used by the Royal Canadian Air Force during the war. Suggestion was conveyed to the Prince Rupert Chamber at its meeting this week by President Dr. R. G. Large that these cement blocks and buoys might be combined to provide moorage facilities in inlets and bays in this area for the convenience of visiting yachts in tying up at likely points for such recreations as fishing and hunting. Dr. Large pointed to facilities of this kind which were to be found around Revilla Gigedo, the island on which the Alaskan town of Ketchikan is located. The idea is to be considered by the port and marine committee of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

Salmon fishing on the north coast will be virtually closed for the season within the next week as Department of Fisheries conservation measures go into effect on the few remaining net and trolling areas left open. However, this is not particularly drastic as the weather itself is acting as a conservationist forcing practically all boats off the grounds.

Probably the busiest place on the north coast as far as salmon fishing is concerned, has been the Queen Charlotte Islands, where fair catches both by net and troll line have been reported. However, that too, will end.

The salmon purse seine area off the north Queen Charlotte Islands will terminate as of midnight, Sunday, to all types of net fishing. This week, some 16 seiners, operating out of Naden Harbor, caught 40,000 chums averaging 2,500 each for a fair week.

In the southern part of the district, the salmon purse seine area near Rivers Inlet, as well as the Rivers Inlet gillnet area, will close to all net fishing at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The waters of the Queen Charlotte Islands will close to salmon trolling as from midnight, Friday, October 15, terminating a season that has been successful for many fishermen. The industry is also advised that, in the interests of conservation, the salmon purse seine area at Bella Bella and the Namu gillnet area will not be re-opened to salmon net fishing during the current season.

Trollers operating out of Cumshewa Inlet on the south Queen Charlotte Islands this week reported good catches. However, if the current rough weather continues, it is unlikely that any will try to fish again before the area closes next Friday midnight.

Chum and pink salmon fishermen also have done fairly well in the matter of prices, having received increases over the price schedule set with the buyers earlier in the season. Demand has forced the price of chums from the agreed price of 6 1/4 cents a pound to as high as 12 rail shipment to the eastern United States. The Palisana, a frequent visitor here, tied up at the C.N.R. dock and the ice-packed boxes were transferred immediately to refrigerator cars. She unloaded 47 carloads and is due to proceed back to Alaska for similar cargo.

Crew of the Union Steamships vessel Camosun had only a short visit in Vancouver this week when they returned from the north after their final voyage on the Coquitlam on the Queen Charlotte Islands run. When the company instituted its new service to the Islands via the inside passage with the Camosun, the Coquitlam's crew were placed on the Camosun and sailed north again within a matter of hours after their arrival.

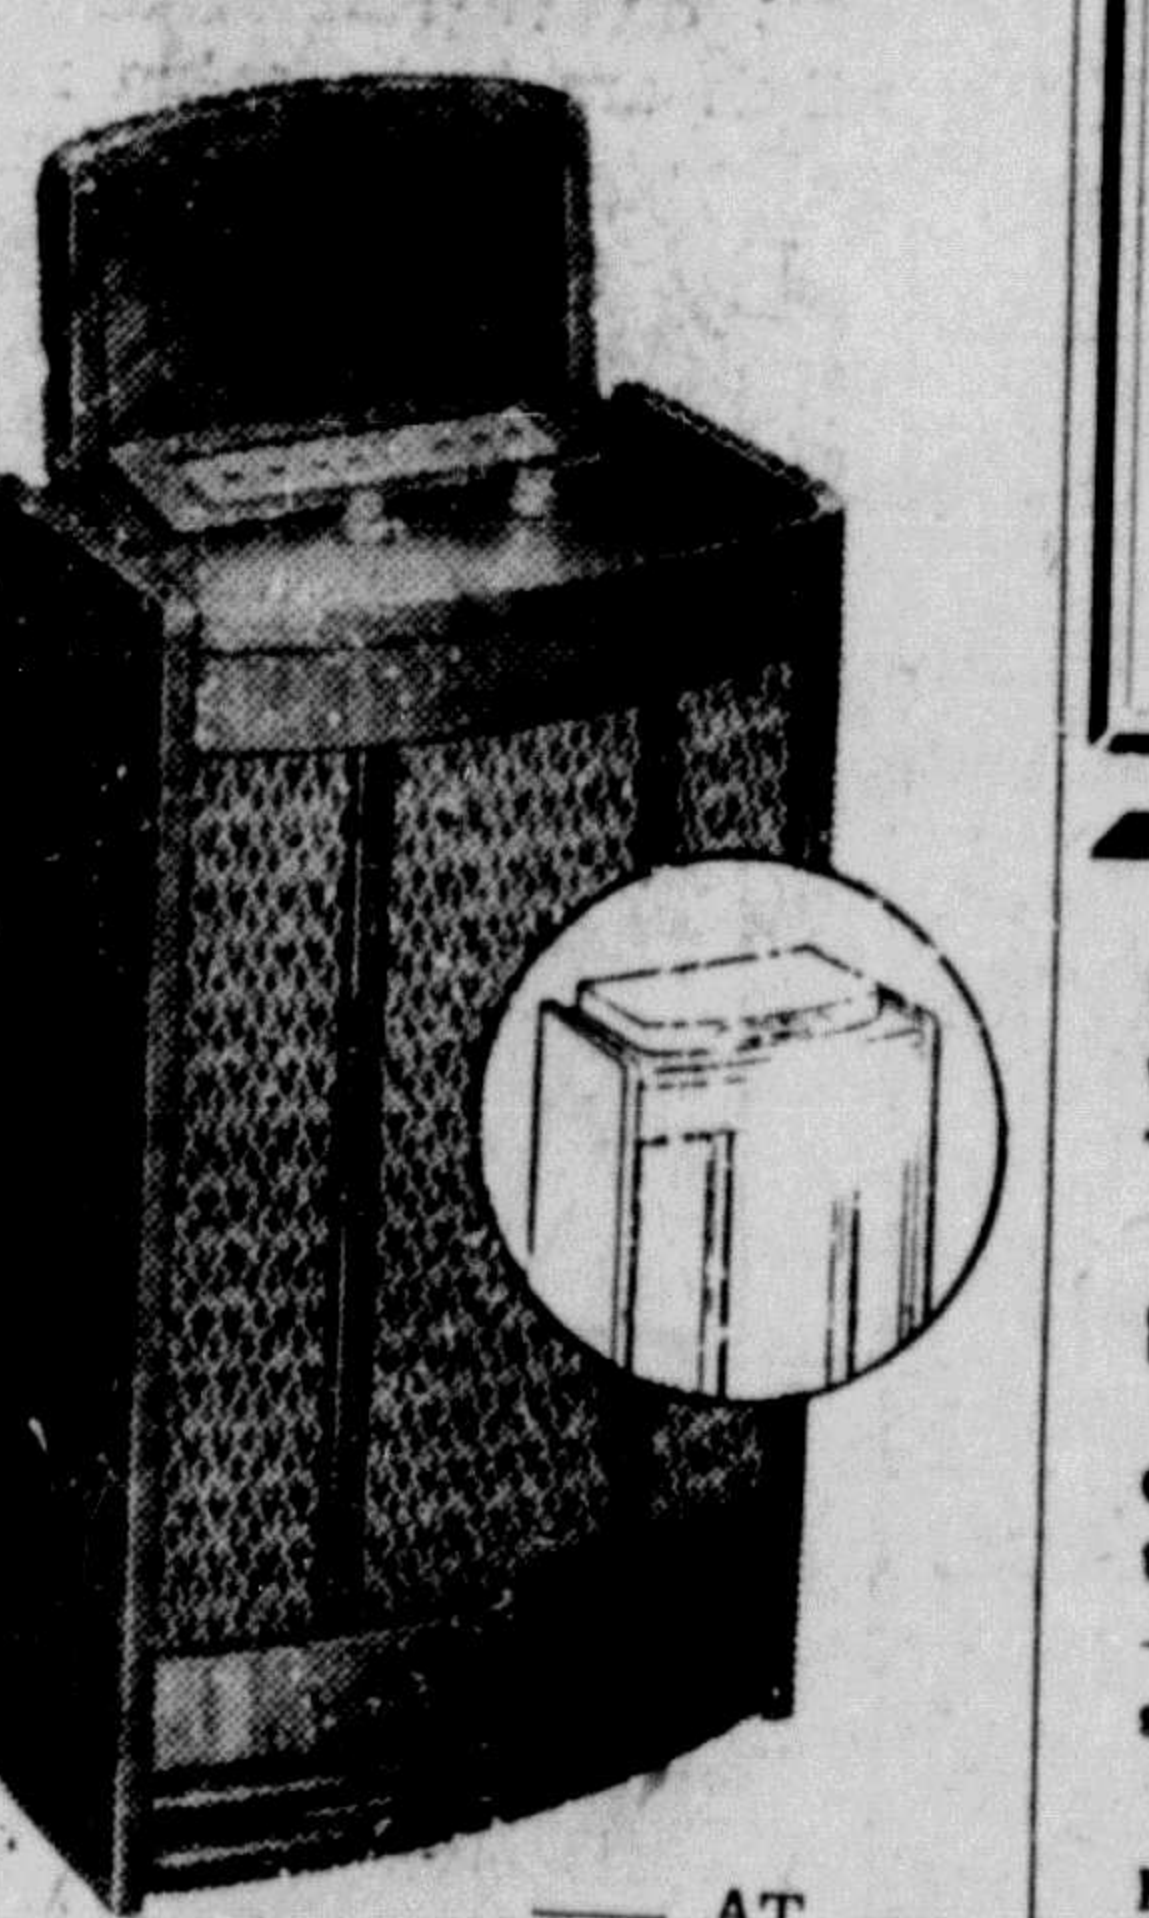

The Camosun, Capt. Alfred Aspinall, arrived here at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from Vancouver after stops at Namu and Butedale. She sailed at 10 o'clock Friday evening for Aero Camp, Morgan Camp and Beatty Anchorage in Cumshewa Inlet and Sandpit, Skidegate and Queen Charlotte City in Skidegate Inlet. She will return Sunday and sail for Vancouver. Next week, she will visit the Graham Island ports of Massett and Port Clements.
