Chinese-Soviet Relations

IN THINKING of the Far Eastern situation—or indeed of the world situation—one question forces itself insistently forward. It is—what is the real relationship between the two Communist great powers—the Soviet Union and the Chinese People's Republic?

It is not an easy question because it is a cardinal feature of Communist policy to conceal particularly from the "capitalist world" everything that can be concealed. There is at any moment an official picture for presentation to the outside world which may or may not have any relation to reality.

There are many people who have made up their minds that Mao is simply an obedient satellite of Stalin and that his every action is decided and dictated by Stalin.

Mao Tse Tung is quite definitely a convinced and devout Communist. There can be no question of that. He and the other Chinese Communist leaders have been Marxist Communists for 30 years and can be relied to behave broadly in a certain way.

That is natural enough. For Mao is certainly a Chinese nationalist as well as a Chinese Communist: just as Stalin is a Russian imperialist as well as a Soviet Communist.

Mao probably regards himself as an equal partner with Stalin in a great Communist alliance; and Stalin, it should be noted, always accepts him as such, is very careful never to affront Chinese pride or Chinese dignity.

For Mao, in the present circumstances, the "West," and especially the United States, is China's "Enemy Number One." There is no reason to question the genuineness (even though one denies the justification) of Peking's fear of "American Imperialism."

Stalin and Mao may well suspect each other's ultimate intentions. They probably do. Stalin is congenitally suspicious; and Mao has every reason to be so.

PENSION PITFALLS THE ONE sure thing that emerges out of the recent Dominion-Provincial conference is that a different Old Age Pension scheme is on the way.

I say "different" and not "better."

Here are the main proposals of the new scheme: 1. It will be contributory. Everybody in Canada, with an income above a certain amount, will have to pay a percentage of that income to sustain the fund.

2. Everybody will draw an Old Age Pension at age 70, without any means test.

3. People who desperately need cash will be granted Old Age Pensions, on the present means test basis, probably at age 65.

I CANNOT SEE how any country can have a sound pension scheme partly on the basis of means test and partly on the basis of no means test.

If the principle of "no means test" is right, then why apply it only at age 70?

If the principle of means test is sound then why apply it for the people who are to draw the pensions at age 65, then abandon that principle at age 70?

THE SCHEME now proposed seems to me to fall between two stools. You can make out a good argument either for pensions given on a basis of a means test, or for pensions to be drawn by everybody, rich and poor alike.

But you cannot make out a good case for a scheme involving BOTH principles—for the obvious reason that the application of BOTH principles can-cells out the advantages of either one or the other.

THE ARGUMENTS in favor of a pension, without means test, are simple and convincing. They are that the nation as a whole should systematize its savings for old age of the individual. At a certain age—it might be 70, 65, or even 60—every man and woman in Canada would automatically draw the allowance. There would be no strings attached to it—any more than there are strings attached to the Children's Allowances, which are also granted to rich and poor alike.

THERE ARE many advantages to the "no means test" pension plan, chief being that it does not penalize the thrifty and subsidize the careless or extravagant.

But another great advantage is that the cost of administering a "no means test" scheme is much less than administering one based on proof of the dire need of the applicant.

The hybrid scheme now proposed by Ottawa would make it necessary to keep an even larger civil service to administer it than already exists.

THE OTTAWA government uses the argument that "this is as much as the country can afford."

This seems to me shallow and, indeed, untrue.

It should be remembered that in this Old Age Pension scheme the government does not give the people anything. On the contrary, the people themselves merely use the government as the administering agent for a compulsory, universal old age annuity scheme.

That being so, it seems to me that it would be better to establish the "no means test" principle right now. If the country can't afford that at age 65—then let's start at age 60, or age 67.

But let's not try to ride two horses going in divergent directions.

LETTERBOX CHILDREN'S MANNERS

Editor, Daily News: A conversation was overheard on a local bus the other day by one of the teachers of the Booth Memorial School, as one woman said to another: "I don't know what the teachers do at school. You'd think they could learn the children more manners." I'll mention at this point that on occasions, the teachers have cause to say the same about the parents.

When I went to school I was taught that school was the place for studying and the home the place to learn good manners. The teachers do a wonderful job of work and have approximately 40 children in each class in many schools in B.C. They often have to teach three or four subjects, sometimes more. I therefore feel as the teachers do, that it shouldn't be so very difficult for the parents to devote just a little time to so few children to teach them good manners in their own time and their own home.

CHICAGO (Special)—An amazing new electronic ear which hides deafness and transmits even whispers with startling clarity, has been revealed by a noted Chicago electronic scientist.

He disclosed that this miraculous new discovery has rendered old-style hearing aids obsolete almost overnight, and brings new hope to the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing.

He reported that this electronic ear enables the deaf to hear without any button showing in the ear and without dangling battery wires.

To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with this new miracle electronic ear which hides deafness, full details are described in a fascinating booklet, "New Discoveries to Help the Deaf Hear." It will be sent free in a plain wrapper to anyone who requests it. Address: Electronic Research Director, 1450 West 19th Street, B108 Beltone Building, Chicago 8, Ill. A penny postcard will do.—Adv.

WOODS EXPERIENCES—
Forest Cruising No Picnic But Alberta Men Enjoyed Season

If you hear of the words "timber cruiser" don't get ideas of a holiday trip to Hawaii. District Forester M. W. Gormley's timber cruisers, R. W. Corrigan and H. G. Bancroft, enjoy their outdoor life, although it's no picnic.

After wading through thick stands of prickly devil's club, withstanding flies and mosquitoes caught in storms on land and lake, a forest crew returned to Prince Rupert a few days ago. "The bush is something like the sea—you're sure glad to be back to dry land but there is still the old urge to get out again," says Mr. Bancroft. The principal meaning of a timber cruise is an estimation of how many board feet are contained in a stand of timber. During the seven months a local provincial forestry crew were in the Burns Lake district, a total of 20 cruises were completed by the party under Mr. Corrigan. The two forestry department timber cruisers, both recent graduates in science and forestry from the University of British Columbia, had with them two young compass men, William McFadzean, recently of Scotland, now at Smithers, and Ralph Keefe of Francois Lake. "Those two boys liked the fishing—they had their lines along and did a bit of hunting, too. But I was glad to get home for a visit with my family," said Mr. Bancroft, who settled here last spring. During one day's cruise through the woods, the crew of four were able to estimate an average of 400 trees per day which might be 100 acres per day or 500,000 board feet. They travelled 8000 miles over highway, back roads and trails in the eleven forest ranger districts of the Prince Rupert area.

"This country is booming—there is lots of work and not enough cruisers to keep the lumbering industry satisfied," stated Mr. Bancroft. "There are at least 13 cruises that are to be made by priority in the Burns Lake district, if we are to keep up with the operators' applications for timber stands. "There is opportunity for logging operations in our forest district for big operators cutting around 25 to 30 thousand board feet a day. Well run portable mills could also operate," said Mr. Bancroft, indicating that the stands vary from six to 20 thousand board feet per acre. However, Mr. Bancroft recommends that, to save money, operators should co-operate with the forestry department by "figuring out ahead of time machinery and methods to induce sensible cutting of trees."

"It is also our job to look ahead for possible reforestation and conservation by re-planting or with natural seeding from trees," advised Mr. Bancroft who explained that timber sales depended on such problems.

"This is forestry management; that is now in effect with provincial logging operation," he continued, "especially where the cutting of second growth trees is done. This comes under silviculture, which is a separate branch of the forestry department here under L. B. Boulton." J. Scott is supervisor of scaling with J. C. Payne assistant forester.

PAINT FOR BLAZING
Most modern techniques are used by the local foresters. Because of this perhaps the old-time trail blazers will leave their axes at home. Instead, they will carry paint pots, as the Corrigan-Bancroft crew did this summer.

"This is the first time we have tried this—blazing trees with red house paint," explained Mr. Bancroft, "and it seems to work well. It's just a case of mixing the paint with turpentine in gallon cans before we set out in the morning. Using a squirt gun, we spray a foot-long red strip of paint on either side of the tree. This saves axe work—especially where you have to cut limbs in order to axe a blaze on the side of the tree.

The red paint will only last six years, but that is the usual duration of a timber sale—by then the operator will have bought the timber stand," pointed out Mr. Bancroft. He also explained how they are experimenting with aluminum paint to mark trees for logging in young areas.

Reaching miles into the Prince Rupert forest district on the west shore of Babine Lake, near Topley Landing, the timber cruisers found luxuriant growth of spruce and lodgepole pine. Fifteen per cent of the Babine timber was balsam with an equal percentage of spruce and pine.

Leaving that area, the cruisers found the largest timber sale to be surveyed in the Perow district, which had 1825 acres compared with 1151 acres in the Topley Landing area.

Due to heavy fire losses in the Perow area, in which three mill operators were burnt out, an expansion of that area for new logging districts is being made. In the Perow area the trees are 50 per cent spruce, 25 per cent balsam and 25 per cent lodgepole pine.

MET BRUIN
"It was here that we came across the bear—Bob Corrigan was ahead of me up a hill. Eight or ten inches of snow were already on the ground. Soon I noticed him yelling at me—he came down to tell me there was a bear in a cave at the top of the hill.

"When we peered down past the snow into the mouth of the cave, we could hear him snoring," remarked Mr. Bancroft. But they didn't disturb the bear.

Civic Election
Voting Is Slow

There was no rush of voters this morning at the annual civic election to choose four aldermen out of a field of eleven aspirants and also to approve or reject two bylaws concerning Canadian Legion property.

Up to 11 a.m. 160 ballots had been cast, compared with 172 at the same hour last year and an identical 160 two years ago.

All voters—property owners, licence holders and householders—cast ballots for the aldermen. Only property owners can vote on the bylaws which involve civic revenue.

Eric Faure, one of the aldermanic candidates was like last year, the first voter to cast ballots today although an early bird newspaperman was also around to express his preferences. City Clerk H. D. Thain, in his capacity as returning officer, is in charge of the election and William Lone is deputy returning officer. Poll clerks are Mrs. Basil S. Prockter, Mrs. S. A. Kielback, Mrs. H. D. Thain and C. N. Lucas.

The returning officer expects that the counting of ballots should be completed shortly after 9 o'clock tonight. The polls close at 8 p.m.

Tired Old Furnace Given Last Chance

Trouble with the heating plant has given pupils of King Edward School an unexpected holiday this week. The tired old furnace gave up the ghost late in November but was revived sufficiently to carry on until the first of this week, when it quit again.

At a special meeting of the school board yesterday afternoon with heating experts, it was learned that the furnace had been repaired once more but it was problematical how long it would remain in operation. The old burner is overtaxed in drawing the oil from the tank installed for the new building.

The board was informed that a coal grate could be installed for a fraction of the cost of a new oil burner and the conversion completed in a few days. The board decided that, if there was further trouble with the furnace, the conversion would be made.

The resignation, because of ill health, of Miss Jean McDougall from the teaching staff of Booth Memorial High School was accepted with regret.

Negotiations with teachers on salaries were continued at the meeting but no final agreement reached.

Legion Plans For Christmas

Lonely older veterans will not be forgotten this Christmas. A party is planned for them Christmas Eve at the Canadian Legion. Arrangements for the affair were reported on by Frank J. Hicks, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Prince Rupert branch last night. Arrangements will also be made for the older members to have Christmas dinner with some Legion family.

From now until Christmas will be a busy time for the Legionnaires as their strenuous Christmas program goes into effect. This Friday there will be the pre-Christmas Ball. Saturday night will be spent preparing the hall for the children's party Sunday. About 250 children are expected to attend. Next Wednesday will be "Bring Your Missus" night. It was decided that except for their partners, Legionnaires would be allowed no guests.

Mr. Hicks said the Christmas hampers for ex-servicemen and their families were well in hand. He asked that members communicate with him but warned against suggestions of families who were not in actual need. The number of bonafide distress cases was too great to allow hampers to be sent to those not actually needing them, he said. Prince Rupert veterans in hospital in British Columbia at Christmas will receive cheques of $5 each.

The report of the entertainment committee was accepted and a vote of thanks tendered Chairman Hicks and his committee for the work they had done.

In the absence of the chairman of the sick visiting committee, President J. Nicoll reported

Jarvis McLeod In California

Copies of the Los Angeles Times and Glendale News-Press sent by Jarvis H. McLeod, formerly Collector of Customs at Prince Rupert, have been received here.

There are numerous pictures of timely interest. A wide street in Glendale, spangled with brilliant lights, describes the illumination as a model, when it comes to Christmas decorations for other cities.

On November 25 the temperature at noon was 71 degrees. The weather generally, from the south coast, across the mountains and back east was, on that day, rough and wintry enough, with considerable fog in California ports.

The Los Angeles Times carries a report of remarks by Hon. Brooke Claxton, Canada's Minister of Defence, who spoke in the California city on defence affairs. With him was Air Marshal Wilfrid A. Curtis.

SUN CHANGES MILK FLAVOR

ST. PAUL—Get your milk off the doorstep early and you'll get better milk, advises D. V. Josephson, professor of dairy husbandry at the University of Pennsylvania. He told a farm meeting here that sunshine changes the flavor of fresh milk and destroys some of the vitamins.

ed that all veterans in hospitals were being taken care of. S. A. Cheeseman said he had heard that the condition of William Denning at Shaughnessy Military Hospital was improved. A vote of thanks was tendered President J. Nicoll and Vice-President Alec Haig for letters they had written the Prince Rupert Daily News explaining the issues at stake in the bylaws being put to the people at the civic election. The vote of thanks was also extended to the Daily News for an editorial which had been written explaining the bylaws and the space that had been allowed for the letters of Mr. Nicoll and Mr. Haig.

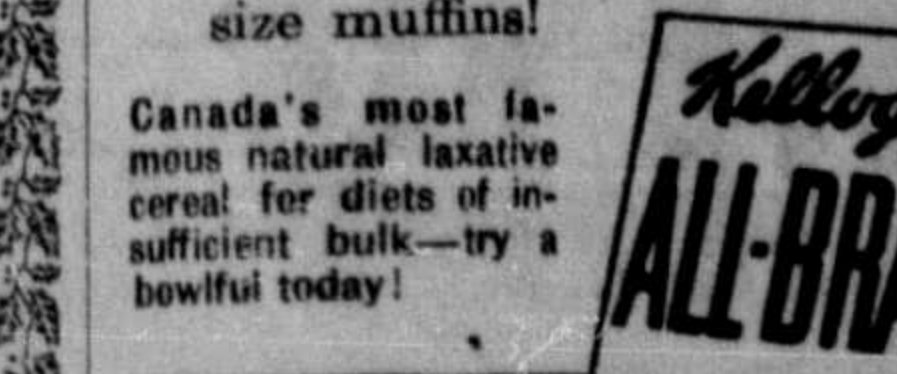

Payment of salary lost by the zone commander while attending the zone meeting was approved by the meeting. Christmas bonuses for employees who had been in the Legion's employ for one year were also approved. The report of the finance committee for October and payment of November accounts were approved.

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

The Princess Patricias leave Tokio for south Korea about the same time a United Nations force in danger of capture, board steamers in North Korea. So now who's going to guess when the war ends?

North Vancouver is to have a park which, according to announcement of a municipal official nature, will be the finest in British Columbia. We are utterly at a loss to suggest what Stanley will think of that.

What is described as a "poor man's snake-pit" is being filmed for release at the end of March. The scenes are taken in Chilliwack and Essondale. The semi-fictional story tells of an unhappy girl in her early twenties living at home with her parents in a typical small city and of the various experiences which drive her to emotional breakdown. There can be no question as to the size of the audiences a screen play like this will find in both Canada and the United States. But, admitting examination of hospitals as sometimes necessary is there ever a time when anything pertaining to mental treatment can, morally, be regarded as entertainment?

Cigars and brandy appear essential to the general comfort of Winston Churchill. Ample confirmation is seen through the use of cameras and interviews, many of which have been granted. Some feel that without whiffs of smoke, the victory sign, and chats with the press he might have found the war even harder to win. Well, to start with, Hitler had no wife. And on top of that he spurned liquor and tobacco and was not chummy with the reporters. Small wonder he failed.

The Oregonian, first of Portland's newspapers, has been sold for five million. If the Oregonian is not a century old, it cannot be far from that age. There are, on the Pacific Coast, a few papers of which it can be truthfully said rank among the west's "great." There's been a lot happen since the days of the covered wagon.

Four men died in Vancouver in a single day from heart disease. The eldest was 69 and the youngest 35. There is no particular reason to doubt it was heart disease, unless it is the effect of wondering why so many are stricken by that illness. Four in a day, even in a good sized city, is something to notice.

Montreal endorses elimination of the word "Progressive" from the Party of that name. Similar suggestions have been heard before even in Prince Rupert. The chief trouble appears to be that had the party more of John A. and less progress, there might be more doing.

Carnation Protects You

When you buy Carnation evaporated milk, you know, before ever you open the can, that you are getting good milk — smooth, uniform, rich, creamy flavored. That is true today as it was 50 years ago — true in British Columbia as it is all over the world.

"from Contented Cows"

Good Milk Improved

Carnation starts with good milk from strictly supervised farms. Only top quality milk is accepted by Carnation plants. And processing is strictly controlled, exact to a degree of temperature, to a second of time. All the knowledge of 50 years of producing the world's largest-selling brand goes into every can of Carnation.

A CANADIAN PRODUCT

Fills Every Milk and Cream Need

When you need milk, use half Carnation, half water. When you need cream, use Carnation undiluted. You'll be pleased in both cases. Your grocer has Carnation.

cruser. In order to conserve the spawning route, the foresters drew their survey lines for the timber sale a good distance from the creek bed, thus protecting the creek with trees.
"We even cruised an island on the Skeena River, near Terrace. There were 600 acres of spruce, hemlock, cedar, balsam and cottonwood on the island—but the problem will be to get the trees off there," observed Mr. Bancroft.
The majority of the other timber cruises were made in the Burns Lake and Houston area. They checked for cedar poles in the Terrace district.
"The largest tree we found during the summer was in the Babine Lake area. It was a spruce tree measuring 40 inches in diameter at breast height," said Mr. Bancroft.

At the last cruise they made south of Houston, 24 inches of snow drove the party home from their long outing, returning to Prince Rupert. When winter conditions have settled, the forestry department will continue cruising in the Burns Lake district, towards the end of January.
"By then," Mr. Bancroft believes, "the snow will have enough crust for snowshoeing."

Blackwood On Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

I wish I could report to you that in bridge, virtue always triumphs. But in bridge, as in life, that is not true. It is an exasperating fact that wonderful results are sometimes obtained from the most terrible bidding and play.

The bidding:
West North East South
1 H Dbl. Pass 2 H
Dbl. Pass Pass 5 C
Pass 6 C All pass

My friend, Miss Lucy Brash, whose bidding is explosively optimistic at all times, held the North cards in today's deal. Surely she should have passed and awaited future developments after Mr. Muzzy opened the bidding in her six-card suit. But her vocabulary does not seem to include the word "Pass." And so she doubled for a take-out.

Her partner Mr. Champion felt slammish on the hand right away. His two-heart bid promised no heart losers and a good hand. Of course, it was absolutely forcing and if Mr. Muzzy had passed Miss Brash would have been in a rather difficult situation. No telling what she might have done.

But good old Muzzy doubled two hearts, thus relieving Miss Brash of the responsibility of bidding at this point.

After Mr. Champion jumped all the way to five clubs, Miss Brash unhesitatingly bid the slam. Mr. Champion won the opening lead of the queen of diamonds in dummy. He started at once to prepare for a possible end-play by leading a small heart and ruffing it in his hand. He led a club to the ace in dummy and Mr. Muzzy's play of the jack confirmed his suspicions that the trump suit might not break.

Another heart was led and ruffed in the closed hand, reducing declarer's trump holding to four. Now Mr. Champion led the six of spades, Mr. Muzzy played the four, and the ten was put in from dummy. When this held, the ace of spades was played and another heart led and ruffed. Mr. Dale discarding a small diamond.

Declarer next laid down the king of spades, the king of clubs, and followed with the king and then his small diamond. Mr. Muzzy won, but that was his last trick. Mr. Champion was sitting there with the queen, nine of clubs over Mr. Dale's ten, five—and so was bound to win the balance.

Miss Brash remarked, "My, I'm glad I didn't bid seven, partner. I was thinking about it." Wow!

Mr. Dale held a hand over his eyes and groaned slightly. He could only lick his wounds and wait for the day when Miss Brash was going to get caught in a trap of her own making.

Masset Shrimp Cannery Active

Queen Charlotte Cannery plant at Masset, which has been having a good season putting up a big pack of shrimps taken from the cool waters of upper Masset Inlet, is closing down December 15 for a month. It will re-open about January 15.

After having previously been engaged on crabs, the plant has been putting up shrimps for the past six weeks and has been making large and regular shipments of the product.

Two boats have been engaged in the shrimp fishing—Sam Simpson's Tow Hill and Alex Wylie's Aronaut Hill. The shrimp are frozen and put up in one-half pound and one-pound packages.

Edmonton Oil Is Flowing East

EDMONTON—Oil, which left this city October 4 through the newly laid pipe line, has arrived in Superior (Wis.) around a week ago. The distance is 1,127 miles across the prairies. The flow was directed to storage tanks awaiting shipment to refineries in Eastern Canada. The oil moved at an average rate of between one and one and a half miles hourly. It took 1,800,000 barrels to fill the line.
