Former members are also indicating sustained interest and appreciation of the institution which it is conceded that every citizen of the city should have.

Last night 1022 members were enrolled for the coming year compared with 704 for the corresponding date last year for all of 1947. Of the total membership 345 are new.

United Nations Halts Debates As United States Election Nears; Nervous Respite

Bulletins

REDS TAKE MUKDEN
NANKING—Communist troops swarmed on Mukden today and either wrested the greatest Manchurian city from the Chinese government or were prepared to do so at will. Reliable sources said that the Reds won complete control of the city. Equally reliable sources said they had closely ringed the city but had not fully completed occupation. They said the entire city is in the "greatest confusion."

EASING AUSTERITY
OTTAWA—Informed sources said today that the government is examining all remaining "austerity" regulations with a view to removing or modifying some "nuisance" bans toward the end of the year. They said the government might ease restrictions on the bringing in of goods purchased in the United States. A boost may also be allowed in the amount allowed to take over the border.

Odría will arrive in Lima soon, appoint a junta and start a provisional government.

An Assize Court jury after deliberating for two hours, acquitted the 65-year old retired telegrapher of the June 2 slaying "on account of insanity at a relevant time." Mr. Justice A. M. Manson ordered that Kissell be held in "strict custody" at Okalla Prison Farm pending pleasure of the Lieutenant Governor.

Bright sunshine broke through on Prince Rupert this afternoon after a turbulent week which was climaxed with a 32 mile an hour wind early this morning. Rainfall during the 24 hour period ending at noon totalled 1.33 inches, most of which fell yesterday. Prince Rupert's sunshine emerged from the shadow of clouds which today are pouring moisture on Vancouver. High winds are accompanying the rain in the southern city.

Candidates Winding Up Campaigns

PARIS (CP)—Tumult of the United States elections reverberated in nearly empty United Nations halls today as members prepared for a long week-end. Discussion of nearly all major issues came to a halt as delegates waited to see who will be the next president of the United States and what kind of a congress will emerge.

The security council shunted the touchy Palestine issue on to a sub-committee until some time after next Tuesday. All Saints Day in France and the American election coincide with a time when the United Nations sorely needs a respite and some questions appear about to flare into crisis.

Meantime in the United States President Harry Truman headed for Missouri his home state, today after telling New Yorkers that he was confident of a democratic victory in Tuesday's election and that he would work for peace with Russia through "honorable" channels. His Republican opponent, Thomas Dewey, remained here where he will make a final appeal to the voters tonight.

Progressive party leader Henry Wallace wound up a 25,000-mile campaign with a 33-speech program in this vicinity. The perennial Socialist candidate Norman Thomas and Edward A. Teichert, Socialist-Labor, went comparatively unnoticed.

Ethics and Economics

THOSE WHO WOULD inject ethics or morality into economics, which, after all, are nothing more or less than mechanics of human relationships in the materialistic field, are often laughed at as idealists principally by those who have lost their ideals or never had any because they were never taught them. Yet the gospel of Christ, which is the real basis of ethics for Christians and the code which we profess to accept for the keeping of man within bounds with man, seems to be forsaken by many of the people who would appear to be falling into idolatry.

Such golden calves are being set up as the "law of supply and demand" which seldom sees or feels or hears the needs of humanity. Its worshippers speak in glowing terms of their god and preach it from the housetops. How often is the human act, the responsible act, the human touch forgotten while the laws of economics are allowed to take their course without regard to consequences?

Major fluctuations in economics can wreck homes and nations. Surely then the economic problem is also a moral one. Responsibility of human acts should not be dodged by blaming economic laws for economic laws are in reality but the effects of human acts.

ATOMIC SITUATION

WINSTON CHURCHILL has told parliament that only the atom bomb can save Europe from Communist enslavement. Britain's wartime Prime Minister might go further and declare that in the bomb itself lies the seed of permanent peace.

The summer of 1945 saw a development the importance of which was almost beyond imagination as the most ghastly and destructive of struggles drew to its close. From the mighty forces of Nature, mankind fashioned a weapon—or instrument—believed to possess a power so immeasurably superior to anything yet used that the Allies, toughened though they were, hesitated to apply it. But the bombs were dropped on two cities of Japan. The results more than confirmed the sternest of expectations. Since then, the atomic bomb has been a football of international politics.

How will it all end? To say the major nations are not armed with this frightful agent is to deny facts. It broods over all creation. It is the one, overshadowing, dominant consideration—the phantom-like menace in the thoughts of United Nations delegates as they meet, again and again, to find a way out.

There can be no "next war" without its utilization. But even the most rampant militarist, the most fanatical of Communists, the most vengeful of nations would pause before taking the step that would mean the physical destruction of the world's chief cities and, therefore, the very core of civilization.

It may be regrettable but one cannot but detect in Churchill's solemn words the hypothesis that, if everlasting peace does come, it will not be through Christianity, or love of fellowman, or conscience or mass reformation. There will be little of that. There will be peace, based on fear, and the conviction that human beings, irrespective of frontiers and races, dare not go beyond a certain point.

Ten Million Dollars Worth of Fish Landed in 1948 — Alaska Vessels Visit Port

Reliable estimates set the value of fish landings at Prince Rupert this season at between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000, no slight income for a city of less than 10,000 people. This is one of the reasons that, no matter how much Prince Rupert grows, much of its income will always carry figurative fish scales.

The above figures are the amount paid to the primary producers by the fish companies, and the Co-operative and are from the economic standpoint, only the primary return from the north coast's major industry.

On top of this come the share of company profits which ordinarily go into wages of fish plant workers and others connected with the industry and which amount to considerable sums. Sale of the fish and fish products to the ultimate markets, therefore, bring substantial additional money to the city which joins the fishermen's money in creating a fabric of prosperity that is the backbone of the community.

Modern fishing methods, coupled with conservation measures imposed by the government, have progressively shortened the portion of the year in which fish are taken from the sea. At the same time, values for the product have maintained a high level, which results generally in the fishermen being forced to secure his income in a few months rather than from year-long labors as was the practice a quarter of a century ago.

To those who have successful seasons, and in the last few years this has included the bulk of the fishermen, it means relatively short periods of hard work followed by periods of leisure in which boat owners can concentrate on the maintenance of their vessels and, generally, live normal lives at home.

Many of Prince Rupert's fishermen can recall the old days when halibut was not only the main, but practically the only, type of fishery on the north coast. Few of them regret the passing of the times when the big schooners with their dories fished practically the whole year, battling the Gulf of Alaska for winter weeks on end.

Modernization of fishing techniques resulted in the ability of single boats to make far larger catches in short periods of time and the formation of a controlling authority, the International Fisheries Commission ushered in a period of conservation which has been forced to exercise more authority as the years went by.

A parallel situation occurred on the Skeena River in the salmon fishing. In the early years, gillnetting was carried out from small sail boats which were on the river most of the summer. Comparative year's salmon packs took longer to put up a generation ago than they do today because of increased efficiency both of modern fishing boats and of canning methods.

Now, to guard the annual runs of salmon so that reproduction will be constant, careful control is imposed by the Dominion government. Investigations are carried on constantly to learn of the habits of the fish so that their future abundance will be assured. To some fishermen with short vision, this work is notable only for its nuisance value, but to the majority, who consider fishing a long-term industry, its value is recognized.

Smuggling Ring On Berlin Planes

LONDON. — The Daily Mail said today that British customs officers believe they have found a smuggling ring working on planes in the Berlin air lift. They found valuable cameras secreted in radio sets of the planes which were being serviced.

VERSATILE PRODUCT
The best sailcloth is now made from nylon.

The government snag boat Essington, which is now at the dry dock for repairs to a shattered piston which occurred on the Skeena about a month ago, will not return to river work this fall. By the time the repairs are completed, Capt. W. F. Robertson expects the season to be too far advanced to do any work on the river. Instead, he will concentrate on harbor work for the Department of Public Works, repairing floats and wharves along the waterfront.

MADE IN CANADA Silverware

THIS lovely silverware comes from Canadian ore, mined, smelted and refined in British Columbia.

Every year hundreds of thousands of ounces of "made-by-Cominco" silver go into silver articles manufactured in Canada. Hard-rock miners at the famous Sullivan Mine produce 6300 tons of ore daily—ore containing lead, zinc, silver, cadmium, bismuth and other metals.

At Cominco's refinery in Trail, an average of 16,000 ounces of silver are produced every day—six million ounces in a year. Much of this silver is wrought by skillful Canadian craftsmen into beautifully designed flatware, trophies, jewelry and hollow-ware.

Wherever you see silverware marked "Made in Canada," it's a 50-50 chance that the silver was mined, smelted and refined at Cominco.

MADE IN CANADA SILVER

The load-zinc-silver ore from the Sullivan Mine is treated in Cominco's huge concentrator at Chapman Camp near Kimberley, B.C. A lead concentrate and a zinc concentrate are produced and shipped to Trail.

Silver, gold and other metals are recovered during the final stage in refining of lead. Silver is separated electrolytically from gold, is collected as crystals which are melted and poured into bars.

Cominco's average production is 16 1,000-oz. silver bars every day, 365 days a year. Each bar is 999.2 fine (99.92% silver), or better, and is thus ready for immediate use by the jewellers, electrical manufacturers and others.

YOUTH TAKES OVER PARTY

Gyro Hoedown Colorful and Happy Affair—Half a Thousand There

Youth and 'teen age predominated in a turn-out of half a thousand which jostled in the big Civic Centre auditorium last night at Gyro Club's traditional fall hoedown dance. Main lobby and 'teen-age recreation room were also given over to the event. Decorations in black and gold, with witches, goblins, skeletons and pumpkins, were in keeping with the Halloween season. The most of the boys came in overalls and hill-billy garb. The girls wore their cottons and prints with here and there an ingenious creation in the rustic air.

From 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. Andy McNaughton and the Four Dukes dispensed a lively program of music with enough of the old time dances to keep the mountain harmony theme.

In the lobby Gyrettes assisted in the sale of hot dogs and coffee. At another table Halloween favors were vended. A games room was also kept busy.

Interest attended the judging of the costumes and the choices fell to Miss Kae Keith, as "Wolf Girl" in her abbreviated fur wrap; Tommy Boulter, as a pan-talon girl, and Ruth Edwards as a Hill-Billy girl. Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell and Mrs. M. O. Kullander judged the costumes and the winners were applauded on being called to the stage to receive the awards.

During the evening judging also took place in the poster contest for High School pupils and the winners were declared to be Ray Hunter, Diana Kennedy and Magnus Knutsen who displayed talent and ingenuity.

Bewhiskered Bill Stone was an energetic master of ceremonies. Gyros and Gyrettes assisted generally.

Proceeds will be applied against the cost of Gyro's big 1948 undertaking — the new swimming pool at McClymont Park.

William B. Tobey, member of a well known pioneer family here and now identified with the Polaris-Taku Mining Co. as a mining engineer at Tulsequah, is spending a few days in the city on private business. He arrived yesterday by air from Vancouver, where he has been for the past couple of months, and will be proceeding to Tulsequah on the Princess Louise Monday morning. His father, W. H. Tobey, for many years identified with the railway here and recently retired as general manager of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, recently became secretary of the Vancouver Gyro Club.

Sport Shots

The Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire, run at Newmarket, in October, are both traditional classics of the English turf. Both started in 1893. Fields of about 40 contest these races; weights vary by 30 or so pounds. It's a gambling man's sport from flag to finish-post.

Strangest sight racegoers ever saw in connection with the Cambridgeshire came one stormy afternoon in 1882 when rain forced the race to be called off. A near riot followed. In 1920 the race was abandoned owing to a coal strike—and one of Britain's most noted gamblers probably lost a fortune.

Biggest Autumn Double payoff came in 1926 when Myra Grey won the Cesarewitch and Insight II the Cambridgeshire, both at 50-1. One of the difficulties in picking the winner of the Lincolnshire—run at Lincoln over a straight mile in the first week of the season—is that March weather is unpredictable in England.

It appears that the 1948 edition of the Bo Me Hi Rainmakers feel that they are no longer interested in winning 99 per cent of their games in a rather dull intermediate league and at the same time gain little or no experience so they are going to tackle the big fellows.

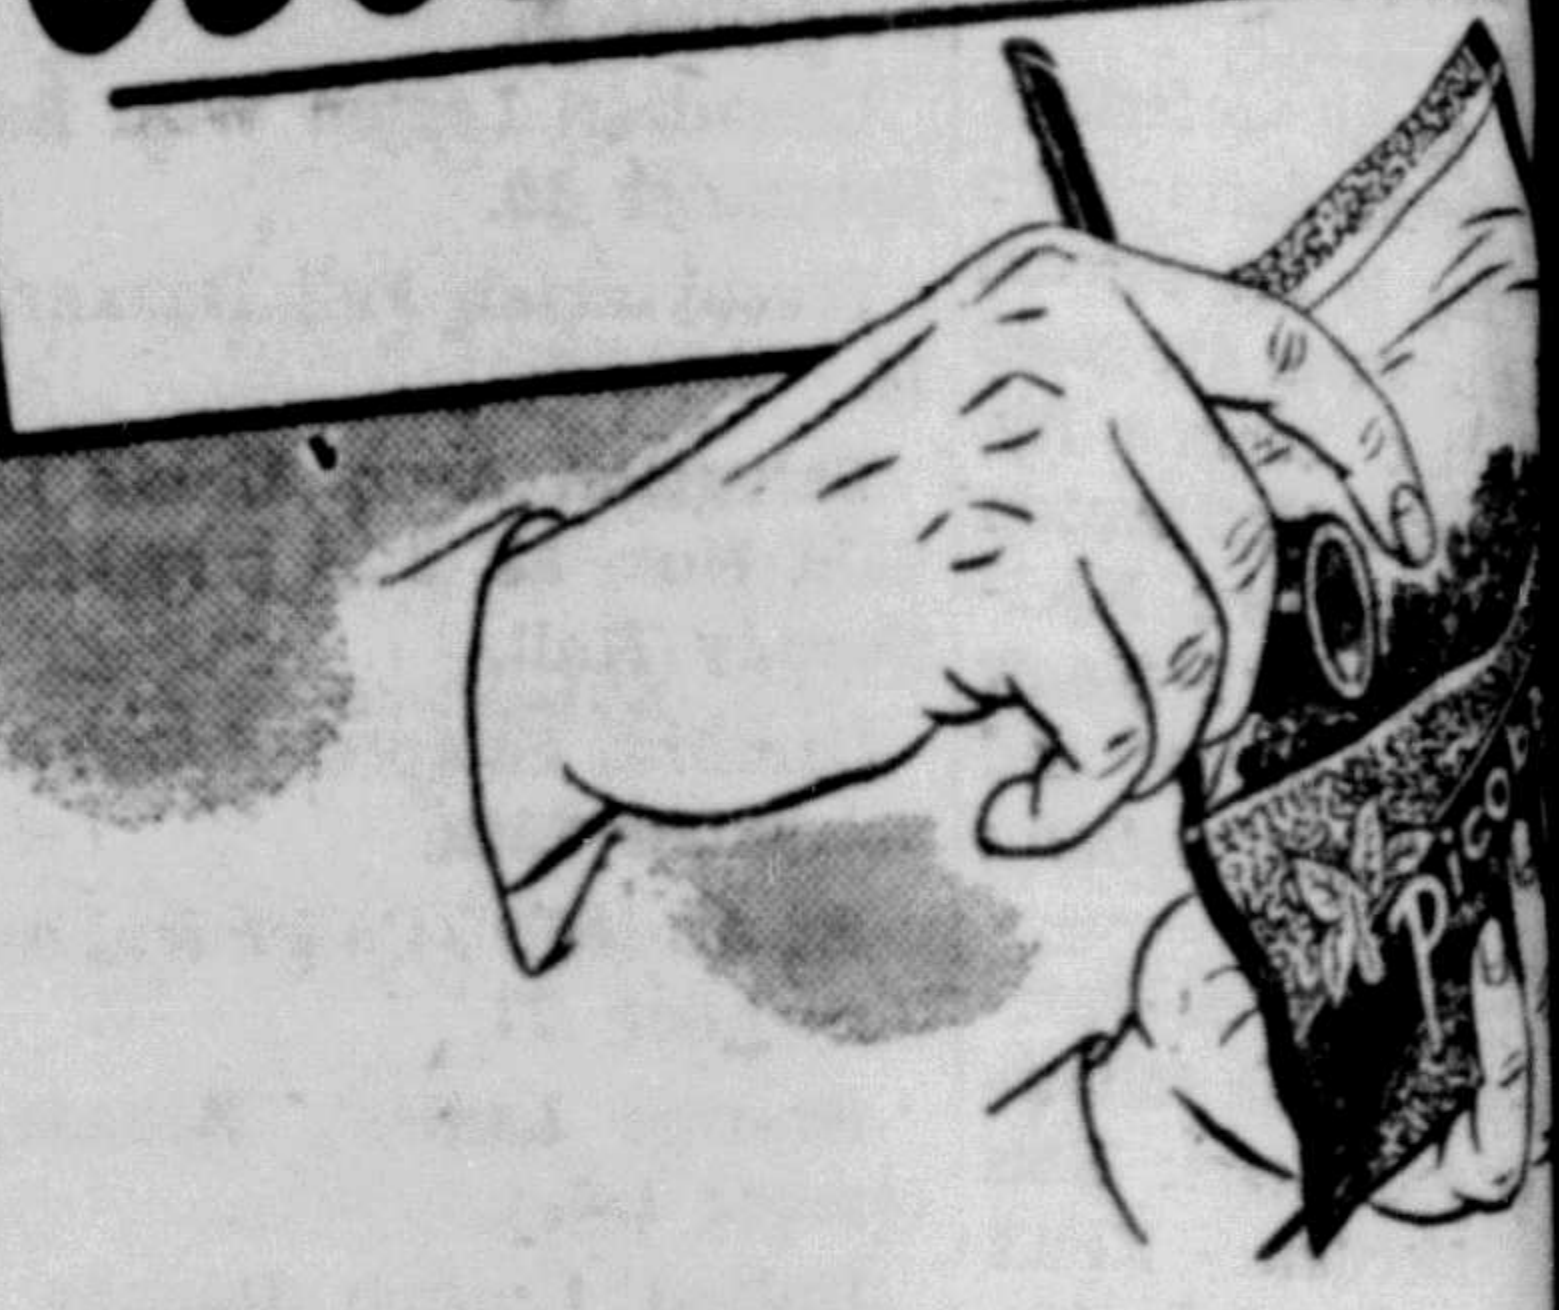

This year however, when Allan Hurst and Coach Alex Bill decided that they had something and wanted to enter the senior ranks, troubles, great troubles, arose. It seems the Co-op boys, comprising most of last year's provincial champion-

SATURDAY SERMON

Rev. E. Solland, Pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church
"Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law; for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." Galatians 2:16.

Reformation Day

The thought that is called to our attention by the above portion of God's Word is the difference between God's way of salvation and the plan that men most readily try. It means the difference between spiritual freedom and spiritual bondage. The early Christians delighted in the freedom that was found in the message that salvation is a matter of faith and not of works. As the years passed the message of this freedom was dimmed and at times almost became lost. Much confusion of thought developed as to the right way of becoming righteous before God.

In the midst of this confusion of thought, there appeared a man of God by the name of Martin Luther who restored liberty to the Christian man by once again giving to men a true statement of God's Word. Luther had tried to get peace with God by the method of works. The more he tried, the more he realized that he was a failure. After many years of the kind of life that was made up of fastings, self-inflicted punishment, rigid observance of religious exercises and the vigil of prayer, he learned that he could not purchase his own redemption. The words from Paul's letter to the Galatians told him of a better way. When he accepted in faith the message of these words he experienced a peace in his soul that he had sought for many years. He learned that righteousness was of God and not from the effort of man.

The world was hungering for this message. It released a tremendous new energy and spread with lightning speed. From the date it was restored to mankind, history records the greatest forward strides in social advancement, learning, industrial progress as well as spiritual freedom. It is rather difficult to find any of the blessings we enjoy under civil government that pertain to our dignity as individuals and freedom to think and act that did not have their origin in the freedom that Luther pointed out in this message to the Galatians. Though the great Protestant Reformation is now 431 years old, it is still the single greatest event in the liberty of mankind.

Today spiritual liberty is still man's most precious possession. It is available to anyone who will accept the message that is given to us by the Apostle Paul and restores to us by Martin Luther. That message is stated simply in the words: "the just shall live by faith." It is essential that the spirit of a man be set at liberty before he can fully enjoy the other forms of liberty that life affords him. As long as a person tries to set himself at liberty, he will be a slave

The Ketchikan fish packer Dagny, well known in this port as a result of its constant runs here with Alaskan fish, arrived back in Ketchikan on Thursday after making a trip to Seattle to bring much needed food supplies to the Alaska port. Capt. Joe Burdette took the Dagny out of here on October 5, headed for Ketchikan, then to Seattle for "certain cargo."

The Dagny's companion ship, the Sydney under command of Osmund Hendrickson, docked here this morning with four carloads of frozen fish for trans-shipment east to the United States.

While on the subject of Ketchikan boats, another of that port's vessels, well known to sportsmen at Prince Rupert is changing its career. It is the motor vessel Catalyst, which on more than one occasion has carried Prince Rupert baseball and basketball players from here to there and back again. The Catalyst has reportedly been sold to a wealthy Seattle man named Scott and is to be converted into an 80-ton coastal freighter.

Governor Dewey of New York Will Make Second Bid for United States Presidency

NEW YORK (CP)—When Franklin Roosevelt was re-elected President of the United States for a fourth term in 1944 he ran up an electoral-college vote of 432 against 99 for Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Roosevelt received a popular vote of 25,602,505 compared with 22,006,278 for his Republican opponent. The 1944 popular vote total, including minor parties, was 48,025,684.

This year's candidates are President Harry S. Truman for the Democrats and Dewey again for the Republicans. Truman, elected vice-president in 1944, succeeded to the presidency on Roosevelt's death in 1945.

filled by Doug Shier, from last year's Bo Me Hi squad. Shier and Reg Lavigne, who also got most of his coaching from Alex Bill, will be a godsend to Brownwoods and their coach, Art Murray. They should be very handy on the scoring end of things and give the young star of last year's all-star team, Jim Forman, time to sit back and look at things from the back court.

Savoys this year will be without Sev Dominato who was "stolen" from them by Macphee and Co. Yet they seem to have little to worry about. They have no less than ten men eager and willing and most of them with considerable experience.

League opening dates will likely see Bo Me Hi and Co-op at it for the first time and Co-op as already stated, aren't any too happy about the actions of the student brain trust, or the basketball association for that matter and are going to give "till it hurts" to try to prove that their senior league isn't a playground for youngsters. According to Jack Lindsay, there will be no mercy but then when did anyone ever accuse Lindsay of being merciful with the opposition?

DERBY, England — Processed grass may soon be a popular food with humans, said Alderman Mrs. H. M. Nicholls. She described how she had seen grass washed, dried and ground into powder resembling green flour for cattle feed. "I could have eaten it myself, provided it was flavored," she said.

There's nothing small or petty about air line rivalry in Alaska. A rate-cutting war is turning on all the heat. Fifteen passengers have already flown from Fairbanks to Seattle free—because they succeeded in reaching the Fairbanks office

Modern Etiquette

Q. After the knife has been used to cut a bite of food, what should be done with it while conveying the food to the mouth?

A. Place the knife across the edge of the plate, but never with the handle resting on the tablecloth. Sometimes the knife is held closely to the plate with the right hand.

Q. Is it all right to close a social letter with the phrase, "With best wishes, I am sincerely?"

A. Omit the "I am" (which is understood), and add the word "yours." "With best wishes, (then on the line below) "Sincerely yours."

Q. Is it obligatory to send a gift upon receiving an announcement of a birth?

A. No; but it is a nice gesture on your part if you do so.

Speaking of the economic situation, one's offhand idea of a permanent situation would be to be charged with the responsibility of keeping regular count of the number of empty beer bottles shipped south from Prince Rupert.
