Warnings of Danger

IN BRITAIN, Ernest Bevin, the Labor government's foreign secretary, sounds a rallying cry to western Europe to organize itself against Soviet Russia's aggressive encroachments which, if persisted in, he declares, must lead to war because Russia's co-operation is essential to peace. Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden instantly agree.

In United States President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall fight to put into effect the plan of economic aid which they hold is essential if sixteen nations are to withstand being swallowed up in Russia's communistic totalitarian expansion.

In Canada, Prime Minister Mackenzie King sounds a grave warning against the spread of communism and Mr. Coldwell, the national leader of Canada's Socialistic party, hopes that the Prime Minister's warning will "contribute to a better understanding by the people of the seriousness of the situation."

Even here in British Columbia, C.C.F. Leader Harold Winch, parries the attempt of the communistic L.P.P. to attach itself to his party.

So no longer can it be said that those who express alarm over the rise of communism are merely war-mongers or red-baiters.

It is quite obvious that a tenseness as to the international scene is developing comparable to that of the days of Munich when, while Chamberlain and the others appeased, Adolf Hitler continued in his campaign of ruthless expansion as far as he could without fighting but planning, with Joseph Stalin even then cognizant, for a war of aggression.

The peril of the situation can hardly be disregarded or temporized with in view of the warnings on every hand we hear these days.

It was not so long ago that some of the things that are being so frankly talked about today would have been considered in the realm of fantastic prejudice. Now it is significant that there is such general agreement on the acceptance of the factually realistic menace—a menace which appears looming from without and creeping out from within.

RHEUMATISM

SPEAKING of stop-press-news, here it is. There is an announcement that Federal and provincial governments will co-operate to set up a National Institute to fight and if possible conquer rheumatism. It will promote research and treatment similar to what is being done in trying to solve cancer. Rheumatism does not kill—but for all-round misery of body and mind, and economic losses, it is a disease that takes a lot of beating.

TOC H PADRE IS ROTARY SPEAKER

Compares Life In England, Australia, New Zealand and Canada

Impressions of the attitude towards life in England, Australia, New Zealand and Canada were the basis of a witty discourse by Rev. Gilbert Williams, of London, England, administrative padre for the Toc H organization who was guest speaker at the Prince Rupert Rotary Club weekly luncheon Thursday.

While superficial differences exist, the fundamental attitudes of the people fall into three main classifications, he indicated—those who show little inclination to either think or act, those who think but decline to act, preferring to complain of the activities of others, and those whose mental functions are translated into action.

From the second classification, he said, come the types of people who long for the return of the "good old days" resisting changes because it disturbs the early pattern of their lives.

He advocated an adventurous outlook which would strive to adapt the changing ways of life to the benefit of the people, urging that whatever political and social structures result draw their strength from God.

Rev. Mr. Williams was thanked for his address by club president Lee Gordon, who also welcomed as guests Dr. R. G. Large, G. P. Tinker, C. P. Balagno, Rev. Basil S. Prockter and R. G. A. Hannon, of Prince George.

SIGN OF SPRING— DAINTY GERTIE, THE GULL, SPURNS COURTSHIP OF RAVE, THE RAVEN

A sure sign that spring is just behind the next curtain of rain, is the action of the birds that belong to Prince Rupert's airborne colony. They have commenced to act in a manner usually attributed to young men when their fancy has been stimulated by the spell of spring days.

In his normal state the Raven appears to be the rugged, ponderous type, not given to "flighty" action or easily stirred by the beauties of the opposite sex but at this time of the year he apparently throws dignity aside and enters wholeheartedly into the spirit of courtship. The other day one of these large black birds was having himself a time down on the mud flats of Hays Creek. The tide was out and there was "Rave." The Raven, right in among a whole flock of bathing seagulls.

Observations indicated that the Raven's advances weren't altogether acceptable to the gulls but he didn't appear to discourage easily. Time after time he edged up to a pretty little gull drying herself on a mud bank. Time after time he commenced his routine of ruffling his chest feathers and making bubbling sounds like wine pouring from a jug but each time the gull preferred another dip in the fresh water to the Raven's attentions.

waterfront two Ravens were perched on a warehouse roof. One of the birds sat calmly aloof apparently intent on the passing parade of clouds. The other one evidenced no interest in the weather. Its bright eyes were fixed on the aloof one. Every few minutes he would shuffle sideways a few inches closer to the object of its affection. Between shuffles he would relax his feathers which may be a Raven's way of flexing his muscles and exhibiting manliness. The ruffled one also had a little gurgling piece he spoke from time to time. Perhaps the aloof one thought the other was rushing things a bit or maybe he suddenly remembered the tide was low enough to go mussel gathering, for before the ruffling Raven got within chummy distance, "Gertie" had taken off. Seemingly too dejected to follow, the black suitor remained upon the warehouse roof, his head bowed, looking like a silhouette of black misery.

At another section of the waterfront two Ravens were perched on a warehouse roof. One of the birds sat calmly aloof apparently intent on the passing parade of clouds. ## Statistical Report Shows Civic Centre Is Real Community Hub

Do Prince Rupert people use their Civic Centre? It would seem so from figures contained in the statistical report submitted by Program Director Neil Ross to the annual meeting of the Civic Centre Association last night.

The story was revealed undramatically in long lists of figures showing the number of events held and the number of people attending and participating.

It added up to 144,715 participants and an additional 30,000 spectators. It added up to 174,656 people.

That means, theoretically, that every man, woman and child in the city visited the Civic Centre more than 19 times in 1947.

That is theoretical, of course. Actually it was not distributed that evenly. Some visited the building for one purpose or another, literally hundreds of times while others, and they were few, did not enter its doors at all.

The main gymnasium and the auditorium accounted for the greatest number of admissions. The gym had the slight edge, with a listed total of 38,788, while the auditorium was visited by 38,250.

The new small gymnasium, which did not open until November 1, ran up an imposing record in two short months. It was used by 5,210 people on 314 separate occasions—mainly Rur-Rex and school gymnasium classes.

Probably the most impressive thing about the report—exclusive of the grandeur of its numbers—is the fact that such a large part of the people who entered the building did so as participants in some event, rather than just as spectators.

Another point to ponder is that, while practically every able-bodied man, woman and child in the community made some use of the Civic Centre during the last year, there were only slightly more than 1,000 memberships taken out.

A glance at what went on in the building is also revealing. Athletics and gymnastics, of course, dominated, but not by much. In the athletic field, basketball was the greatest drawing card.

The two gymnasiums had a total attendance of 44,462 at 1,185 events. At these events, 22,961 people were participants while 21,491 were spectators. Do Prince Rupert people use the Civic Centre?

In the auditorium, the percentage of participants over spectators was even greater, due to the large number of dances held there. Out of 38,250 admissions to the auditorium, at 204 events, 29,800 were participants and 8,450 were spectators.

The auditorium, incidentally, was the scene of recitals, dances, conventions, theatricals and rehearsals, public meetings, teas, fashion shows, school assemblies, amateur contests and children's parties. Do Prince Rupert people use their Civic Centre?

Since anybody in Prince Rupert who does not belong to at least one organization is considered practically a hermit, it is to be expected that the lounges and meeting rooms were well patronized. They were.

Any attempt to list the variety of meetings held in the Civic Centre would add up to a lot of words, so the totals will have to suffice. There were 772 meetings held in the building, with an attendance of 23,989. Do Prince Rupert people use their Civic Centre?

Without going too deeply into mathematics, it would seem they do.

GIRLS HAPPY AGAIN— Principal Hurst Lifts Long Dress Ban - Gloves, High Neckline

(By Daily News Staff Writer)

The girls of the class of '48 are wearing a "new look" these days as they go about their scholastic duties. Although the look has to do with dresses it is on the young faces the change has taken place. For a time this winter the girls wore very long faces at the thought of wearing short-skirted dresses at the June exercises. But spirits and faces went up when Principal Allan Hurst changed his mind to aye on the question of floor-length formals.

When the young ladies parade their charms during the graduation ceremonies, the affair should be a sweeping success for they will be attired in formal, floor-length gowns featuring the "New Look." But if the skirts are to be low, the same thing won't apply to the gown tops. Off-the-shoulder styles will be barred and if the gown has a low neck line it will be up to the wearer to make some changes by adding a lace collar or some such attachment depending on the girl's imagination or creative ability. Long gloves will also be worn for the big event.

One of the arguments against long dresses was the expense. Some of last year's grads paid $30 or $40 and more for a formal gown and haven't had occasion to wear it since. On the other hand the girls think that, while a short white dress may not cost as much as a long one, it is just about as impractical. Now that they have the green light many of the girls are planning to buy the materials and tailor their own gowns. Another point against the long formals was unless the boys of the class wore tuxedos, they would be improperly dressed, conventionally speaking. In the opinion of one of the girls, if they waited until all the boys acquired tuxedos, they would be passed worrying about graduation gowns, at least their own.

LETTERBOX

NORWAY STILL RATIONED

Editor, Daily News:

Allow me to correct an account in your paper of January 22 regarding statements made by me at the Gyro luncheon last Wednesday.

There still is rationing in Norway. I stated, however, that during my visit to Norway last summer, there was no rationing on fish and vegetables and for this reason there was always plenty of food. Likewise clothing is still strictly rationed but the situation is much improved and everybody seems to be well dressed.

Regarding the devastation and scorched earth policy in the northern part of Norway, this was done by the Germans as they withdrew before the Norwegian and Russian forces.

Thank you, Mr. Editor.

Playful Gull Halts Downtown Power Service
A playful seagull put Prince Rupert's downtown light and power service out of commission today, and payed for its folly with its life.
Pursued by another gull, the bird swooped low over McBride Street at 11:30, striking the power line near Gordon's Hardware. There was a blinding flash and the scorched gull fell to the ground—electrocuted.
Lights and power wavered for a moment, then blacked out. The service was restored shortly after mid-day.

JIM WEST SAYS

... ABOUT EXPERIMENTING
Funny thing about Socialist experiments is that the Socialists aren't satisfied to experiment in just a few places at a time. They want to turn the whole world into an experimental setup and take a chance on the results.

So far, only one country in the world has really tried all-out Socialism. That's Russia. Socialists everywhere else (who don't happen to be Communists) say they don't altogether like the look of the Russian experiment. Something went wrong and it worked out to be a dictatorship, they say. But does that make them embarrassed about asking for a chance to try out the plan of government-run-everything in some of the best-run countries of the world?

What I can't understand is why these Socialists don't lean back quietly and try to figure out the Russian deal. Karl Marx said it would be wonderful. How come it went sour? How did it happen the police turned out to be the most important people? Was it because the government had to plan everything and therefore couldn't allow Sergei and Worstedski and Flanneloff to run their own lives and mess up the plan? Could it be, maybe, that where a government has to plan the economy, it just naturally has to take away most of the freedom of the people so that its plans will work?

And wouldn't it be a smart idea, perhaps, to look around at the other Socialist laboratories and see how they make out before we stop being the most productive, well-fed, well-dressed, well-housed people in the world and start getting our fun from monster rallies, folk dancing, peasant-worker festivals and figuring out how to crawl across the border without being shot by our paternal government?

RESPONSIBILITIES OF CITIZENSHIP

Borden Street School P.T.A. Hears Impressive Address

Highlights of the program at the monthly meeting of Borden Street School Parent-Teachers' Association on Wednesday evening were a talk on "Citizenship" by G. R. S. Blackaby and the showing of two films, "Klee Wyck," and the "Voice of the Prairies," National Film Board releases, with R. G. Moore, principal of King Edward School operating the projector.

In his thoughtful address, Mr. Blackaby dealt with the value and obligations of citizenship. The Statute of Westminster had clearly recognized the status of Canada as a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the Canadian Citizenship Act of 1947 was actually putting on the statute books of Canada the implications of the 1931 Statute of Westminster. But legislation does not and cannot make good citizens. It may state the conditions necessary for qualifications, but true citizenship goes much deeper. Canada is nominally a Christian country and the high standards demanded by Christianity should be the objectives of all citizens. The various freedoms of maintaining them. Freedom of religion, of speech, from want, from fear, can only be guaranteed by the measure of the effort made to safeguard them. The speaker emphasized that these freedoms are being constantly challenged. The challenge must be met. This could be done by being loyal to country, by living it and by unsalutary service to and for it. There must be an adequate knowledge of the principles of citizenship, and Canadians must be prepared to live for them so that they may be worthy of the sacrifice of those who died to establish them.

The showing of "Klee Wyck," the story of the life of Emily Carr, British Columbia's noted author and painter, is very vividly told in the moving picture of that name which was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by all.

The second picture, the portrayal of a Manitoba Music Festival at Winnipeg, with its impressive singing numbers, had a particularly timely appeal in view of the Music and Drama Festival that the Prince Rupert Parent Teacher Council, with the support of the associations, is planning.

Ronnie Black, accompanied by Mrs. T. B. Black sang pleasingly.

BUSINESS SESSION PRECEDES ENTERTAINMENT

In the business session preceding the entertainment the members heard reports of the P.T.A. Council from President C. Hansen, and Mrs. Blackaby, the latter giving a full account of the preliminary meeting held for crystallizing interest in the local Drama and Music Festival. The Borden Street P.T.A. will support it and a committee headed by Mrs. J. Garrett and Mrs. Blackaby will explore the possibility of entering a group in the adult play section.

The resignation of Mrs. T. A. MacKeown as secretary, owing to change of residence, was accepted with regret and Mrs. T. B. Black was unanimously chosen to fill the position.

Mrs. Flood is chairman of the program committee and also reported on the next meeting. Mrs. H. E. Amos, literature convenor, reported new subscribers to the magazine, S. A. Chessman's report on membership showed

RUPERT LOOKS GOOD TO HIM

Representative of Big Merchandizing Concern Visiting City

"I think prospects for Prince Rupert are definitely on the upgrade," says Norman Carter, supervisor of mail order offices for T. Eaton Co. Ltd., who is spending a few days in the city on company business. Here on an official inspection and "sizing up" trip, he said he had received some "most encouraging information" in usually reliable and conservative quarters. It was only a year-and-a-half ago that Mr. Carter, formerly local representative of his company here, left the city but he observed that, in that short time, he had seen many changes for the better. He was particularly impressed with the brightness of Third Avenue's electrical illumination by night. "I don't think there is another city of comparable size in the province that can compare with it in attractiveness," he declared.

Mr. Carter would not be drawn out when asked about the possibilities of his company opening up a full-fledged retail outlet here. "It's something I don't know a thing about," he told the Daily News.
