PASSING OF CDR. BORRIE Dies Suddenly at Duncan, Vancouver Island

Many local friends will learn with deep regret of the sudden death of Commander Geoffrey Borrie R. D., R.C.N.R., which took place at Duncan, Vancouver Island, on Monday. Commander Borrie, who had made his home at Uplands in Victoria for several years, died in his sleep at the Commercial Hotel, Duncan, while on a visit to the up-island city where he had many friends. He had been in poor health for the past five years.

A master mariner by profession, Commander Borrie served for many years in the British Merchant Service and prior to the outbreak of hostilities was in command of a large combined refrigeration and passenger ship operating between the West Indies and the United Kingdom.

As an officer in the Royal Naval Reserve, Commander Borrie saw considerable service while undergoing training with the Royal Navy, and in World War I was in command of one of His Majesty's ships at the Gallipoli landing.

In World War II Commander Borrie served as naval officer-in-charge at Prince Rupert 1940-41, and in a similar capacity at Vancouver 1942-43. After repeated requests to again serve afloat, he was in 1944 appointed in command of H.M.C.S. Pre-server, which was based at St. John's, Newfoundland, and was employed as a supply ship for Fairmiles in the submarine warfare in the Straits of Belle Isle, mouth of the St. Lawrence and other waters adjacent to the newest province.

In 1945 ill-health forced Commander Borrie to relinquish his command and he was transferred back to the Pacific coast (H.M.C.S. Burrard) where he served until the end of the war. He is survived by a wife in Vancouver and near relatives in England where he was born.

Defence Secretary Johnson and Army, Navy and High Command led the parade before the House foreign affairs committee.

The bag limit of big game provided under the regulations allows that "no person shall at any time during the open season, kill or have in his possession more than one caribou, one mountain sheep and not over two mountain goats. PRAIRIE CROPS HELPED BY RAIN

Hot to Cool During Week Temperature Ranges From WINNIPEG—Temperatures ranged from hot to cool in the three prairie provinces during the past week, with widespread rains improving the crop outlook considerably, according to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways. Early sown crops in western Saskatchewan and central Alberta have already deteriorated too much to benefit greatly from the added precipitation.

Barley cutting has commenced at a few points in Manitoba, but will not be general for another ten days or two weeks. Grasshoppers appear to have been fairly well controlled throughout infested areas and aphids have practically disappeared in Manitoba where, in southwestern sections, considerable coarse grains were ploughed down—as much as 15 per cent at one or two points.

After a record movement of cherries from the Okanagan, apricots are now moving freely and peaches and pears are starting to move from the south end of the Valley. No damage to the fruit crop is reported from any source.

WASHINGTON D.C.—"Extremely disturbing" increases in the smuggling of the drug cocaine into the United States was reported yesterday by the narcotics bureau. Up to now, the bureau said, there had not been any considerable traffic in cocaine as the use of it in the United States. However, it is said of 1948: "Quite reliable information at hand indicates that cocaine is available in large quantities in Peru, Chile and Bolivia and American seamen are smuggling it regularly to the United States."

TO ARRANGE ATOM TALKS

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A series of "exploratory" talks are being arranged on the controversial problem of what atomic information the United States should share with Great Britain and Canada.

President Truman announced yesterday that discussion would be aimed at setting up long-range co-operation among three Second War atomic partners in a couple of highly important fields, exchange of scientific and technical information and supplying of raw materials.

Radio Reception

PRINCE RUPERT radio fans seem to be bearing their sufferings in silence. Years ago, with their Association strong in numbers and meeting regularly, they were very vocal with their protests and complaints.

Today there are the odd murmurings of discontent over the inability of local receivers to bring in programs from abroad, either short or long wave, over what appear to be a variety of local disturbances.

In the downtown area, for instance, receivers are able to bring in little other than local CFPR for which, of course, we should be truly thankful.

Notwithstanding this, there is, doubtless, much to be desired in the way of local reception. It is a long time since we have seen anything in the way of testing equipment here.

Of course, if we are only going to tell each other our troubles and do nothing more about it, we will continue to get the same amount of service as we are getting now.

Even the authorities cannot be blamed for assuming that silence signifies satisfaction. They cannot be blamed for not looking for trouble.

ANTI-CATHOLICISM

LEANOR ROOSEVELT would appear to have some justification in defending the charge of anti-Catholicism which has been made against her by Cardinal Spellman because she had voiced opposition to federal grants for Catholic schools.

Mrs. Roosevelt is, of course, not Catholic but she has never made herself known as an enemy of Catholicism.

The issue of public aid to church schools is no new one in Canada and, at times, considerable rancor has developed over it. But in the most of this country it has long since come to be accepted that, to be opposed to the policy of public aid to any denominational schools, does not necessarily imply antagonism or opposition to such denominations as may be concerned.

MR. LAKIE LEAVES

WE WISH GOOD FORTUNE to Peter Lakie, for fifteen years a railway official here, who goes from the frontier and wide open spaces of the north to the settled and comparative ease of Victoria in a new switch of officers of the freight department of the Canadian National Railways. Mr. Lakie, during his years here, we have found to be a businesslike and conscientious official. We know that he has given a lot of attention to the development of Alaska business through this port on to the company's transcontinental line through here and, during his tenure, that traffic has been greatly increased.

With the trend of industrial and business development to this area, Mr. Lakie's successor may find the going just a little easier from this time on. However, there will be plenty of opportunity for reward of effort and promotion and, with that thought in mind, we wish R. S. Collinson, the new man, good luck and plenty of business.

SHIPWRECKED ESTONIAN REFUGEES ARRIVE ON BRITANNIC—Captain Ivan Thompson, of the liner Britannic, bids farewell to two of his passengers when the ship arrived in New York. They are Halmuth Russow, 28, of Courmal, Estonia (left) and Volker Harpe, 20, (right) of Tartu, Estonia, who were shipwrecked when they fled from a Russian labor camp in a home-made sailboat. The two were suffering from fatigue after being a month at sea. They were picked up by the Britannic 750 miles west of Ireland.

LETTERBOX

THEO COLLART

Editor, Daily News:

Kindly allow me to assure your readers that it was with deep sorrow that I read of the passing of Theo Collart in the News just received.

My experience of many years with Theo Collart showed he had a great vision of our Northland and he possessed the nerve to back up his dream.

My friendship with Theo Collart came to a reality in a somewhat roundabout way in which the readers of the News might be interested. Many years ago I wrote a letter to the News on our railway situation and in the letter I mentioned things which hit the railways pretty hard. The letter appeared in the News just as Sir Henry Thornton's train was leaving Prince Rupert. But when the late Mr. Pullen sent a copy of the paper over to Sir Henry's car, orders were issued to hold the train for one hour. Then Sir Henry—with the News in his hand—started out to find the News office and rushed in and asked to meet this man "Rideout." According to Mr. Pullen's story, it required some time to satisfy Sir Henry that it was quite impossible for him to contact his man. Some years later (I think it was in 1929) the Chamber of Commerce toured Canada in three trains. In the Prince Rupert party on the train were Mr. Pullen of the News, J. C. Brady (then M.P. for the Prince Rupert country), Theo Collart, and a number of others. The trains were not in Peace River very long before I received word that a party was looking for me and when I contacted the party it proved to be the group from Prince Rupert—and it was then I got the story of the holding-up of Mr. Henry's train for one hour in your city.

I now recall how Theo Collart and J. C. Brady took to me as if they found a college chum of our boyhood days. While the Peace River Board of Trade had arranged a mass meeting in the theatre, I arranged for our businessmen to meet the Prince Rupert bunch in the Town Hall after the mass meeting. It was at that meeting of Prince Rupert and Peace River businessmen in our old Town Hall (demolished years ago), that I saw your Mr. Brady and Theo Collart possessed a very broad vision of our great Northland and they had the nerve to back their dreams, if they only could put their hand on the lever that would turn on the power.

While I never met Mr. Brady

EXPEDITION SEEKS NOAH'S ARK REMAINS—Remains of the ark in which Noah and the animals survived the deluge will be sought by these members of a U.S. expedition, shown as they arrived at Istanbul, Turkey. The expedition, headed by Dr. A. J. Smith, of the Oriental Archaeological Research Foundation of Greensboro, N.C., has obtained permission of the Turkish government to conduct their search on Mount Ararat, where, the Bible tells us, the ark grounded after the deluge. There have been reports that remnants of it have been seen there in modern times. Left to right above are E. J. Newton, photographer; Wendall Off, medical officer; Dr. Smith and Walter I Wood, mechanical engineer.

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

One day last week, three persons started to drive across the floating bridge, spanning Lake Washington, near Seattle. By the time the opposite side was reached there were four present. Of course they named her Bridget!

A flagon of salt water from St. John's, Newfoundland, is being poured into the briny at Seal Cove this afternoon by Boy Scouts just home from the jamboree at Ottawa. It will be about as close as Newfoundland will ever get to Prince Rupert.

Beverly Baxter, Canadian-born member of the British House of Commons, says he considers it possible the United States may return to the British Empire in view of the general world outlook today. While he's about it, Beverly might keep on and inquire where we'd all be now had H.M. King George been a likeable old boy, Bunker Hill used as a recreation ground, no one ever dreamed of a Boston tea party, and taxation without representation, a jolly lot of bally nonsense. Wot?

From the Greenville (Texas) Evening Banner: For Rent—Downstairs bedroom with bath adjoining. George, if desirable?

Diplomacy does not necessarily mean leisure nor does it imply that overtime suggests enhanced income. The American Ambassador to Canada who left Prince Rupert Wednesday evening for Jasper Park is taking a holiday—the first real one in ten years.

July weaps along toward the last gasp and it's just as well. We always expect perfection of course and when weather, reasonably good comes along, the crowd fret and fume and want sympathy for the ghastly hardships they are obliged to endure. O Canada, wide land and fair, hard is out lot!

Fitzmaurice, the cartoonist, was a member of the Montreal Herald staff. Later, after serving for years in Vancouver, he passed away in that city. His brother, George, was a highly regarded old-timer of Prince Rupert and a veteran of the First Great War. There were congenial souls in the Herald office and one cannot but wonder why more were not fired. One noon hour, a convent started burning in an adjoining city with heavy loss of life. Because he was the only one in sight, an elderly office man caught the first train with instructions to rush bulletins. He was not seen, nor heard of, until the next evening. While away, he had taken a drink, followed by others. All he had to show for his out-of-town exertions was a picture of the hotel he had patronized.

SPOKANE SEEKS GOLF GREATS

SPOKANE ☉—Spokane's free-spending Athletic Round Table says it has put up a $6,500 purse in an effort to lure Bobby Locke, Sammy Snead and Carney Middleoff here for a "world championship" golf match next month.

There have been no replies yet.

Locke, British open champion, has been banned from tournaments sponsored by the United States Professional Golfers Association for allegedly failing to keep tournament commitments.

The Round Table says, however, that it hoped Locke might make a special trip to the United States for its three-man tourney which is not under P.G.A. jurisdiction.

Aug. 29—Stuart Shield Competition—First Round.

SAINT JOH ☉—Laurie Roland, aged 16, Vancouver, having become the first junior ever to enter semi-finals of the Canadian amateur golf championship, was two down to Dick Chapman, Massachusetts, at the thirtieth hole here today. He had led in the early stages of play and at one point was five strokes up.

The Vancouver High School boy, getting into the semi-final joined a select band of two other Canadians and the outstanding American, Chapman, for today's thirty-six hole semi-finals.

Roland entered by defeating Eddie Crowell of Halifax two up. Tommy Riddell of Montreal defeated Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver yesterday two up after having beaten the glamorous Frank Stranahan of Toledo on Wednesday.

Dick Farley was three up on Riddell at the latest report today in the other semi-final.

FISH CURING IS DYING ART

Modern technical devices are threatening the ancient and appetizing craft of smoked-fish curing, Prince Rupert Rotarians were told Thursday afternoon by B. J. Bacon, city fish curer, whose products have been marketed throughout Canada for the last 40 years.

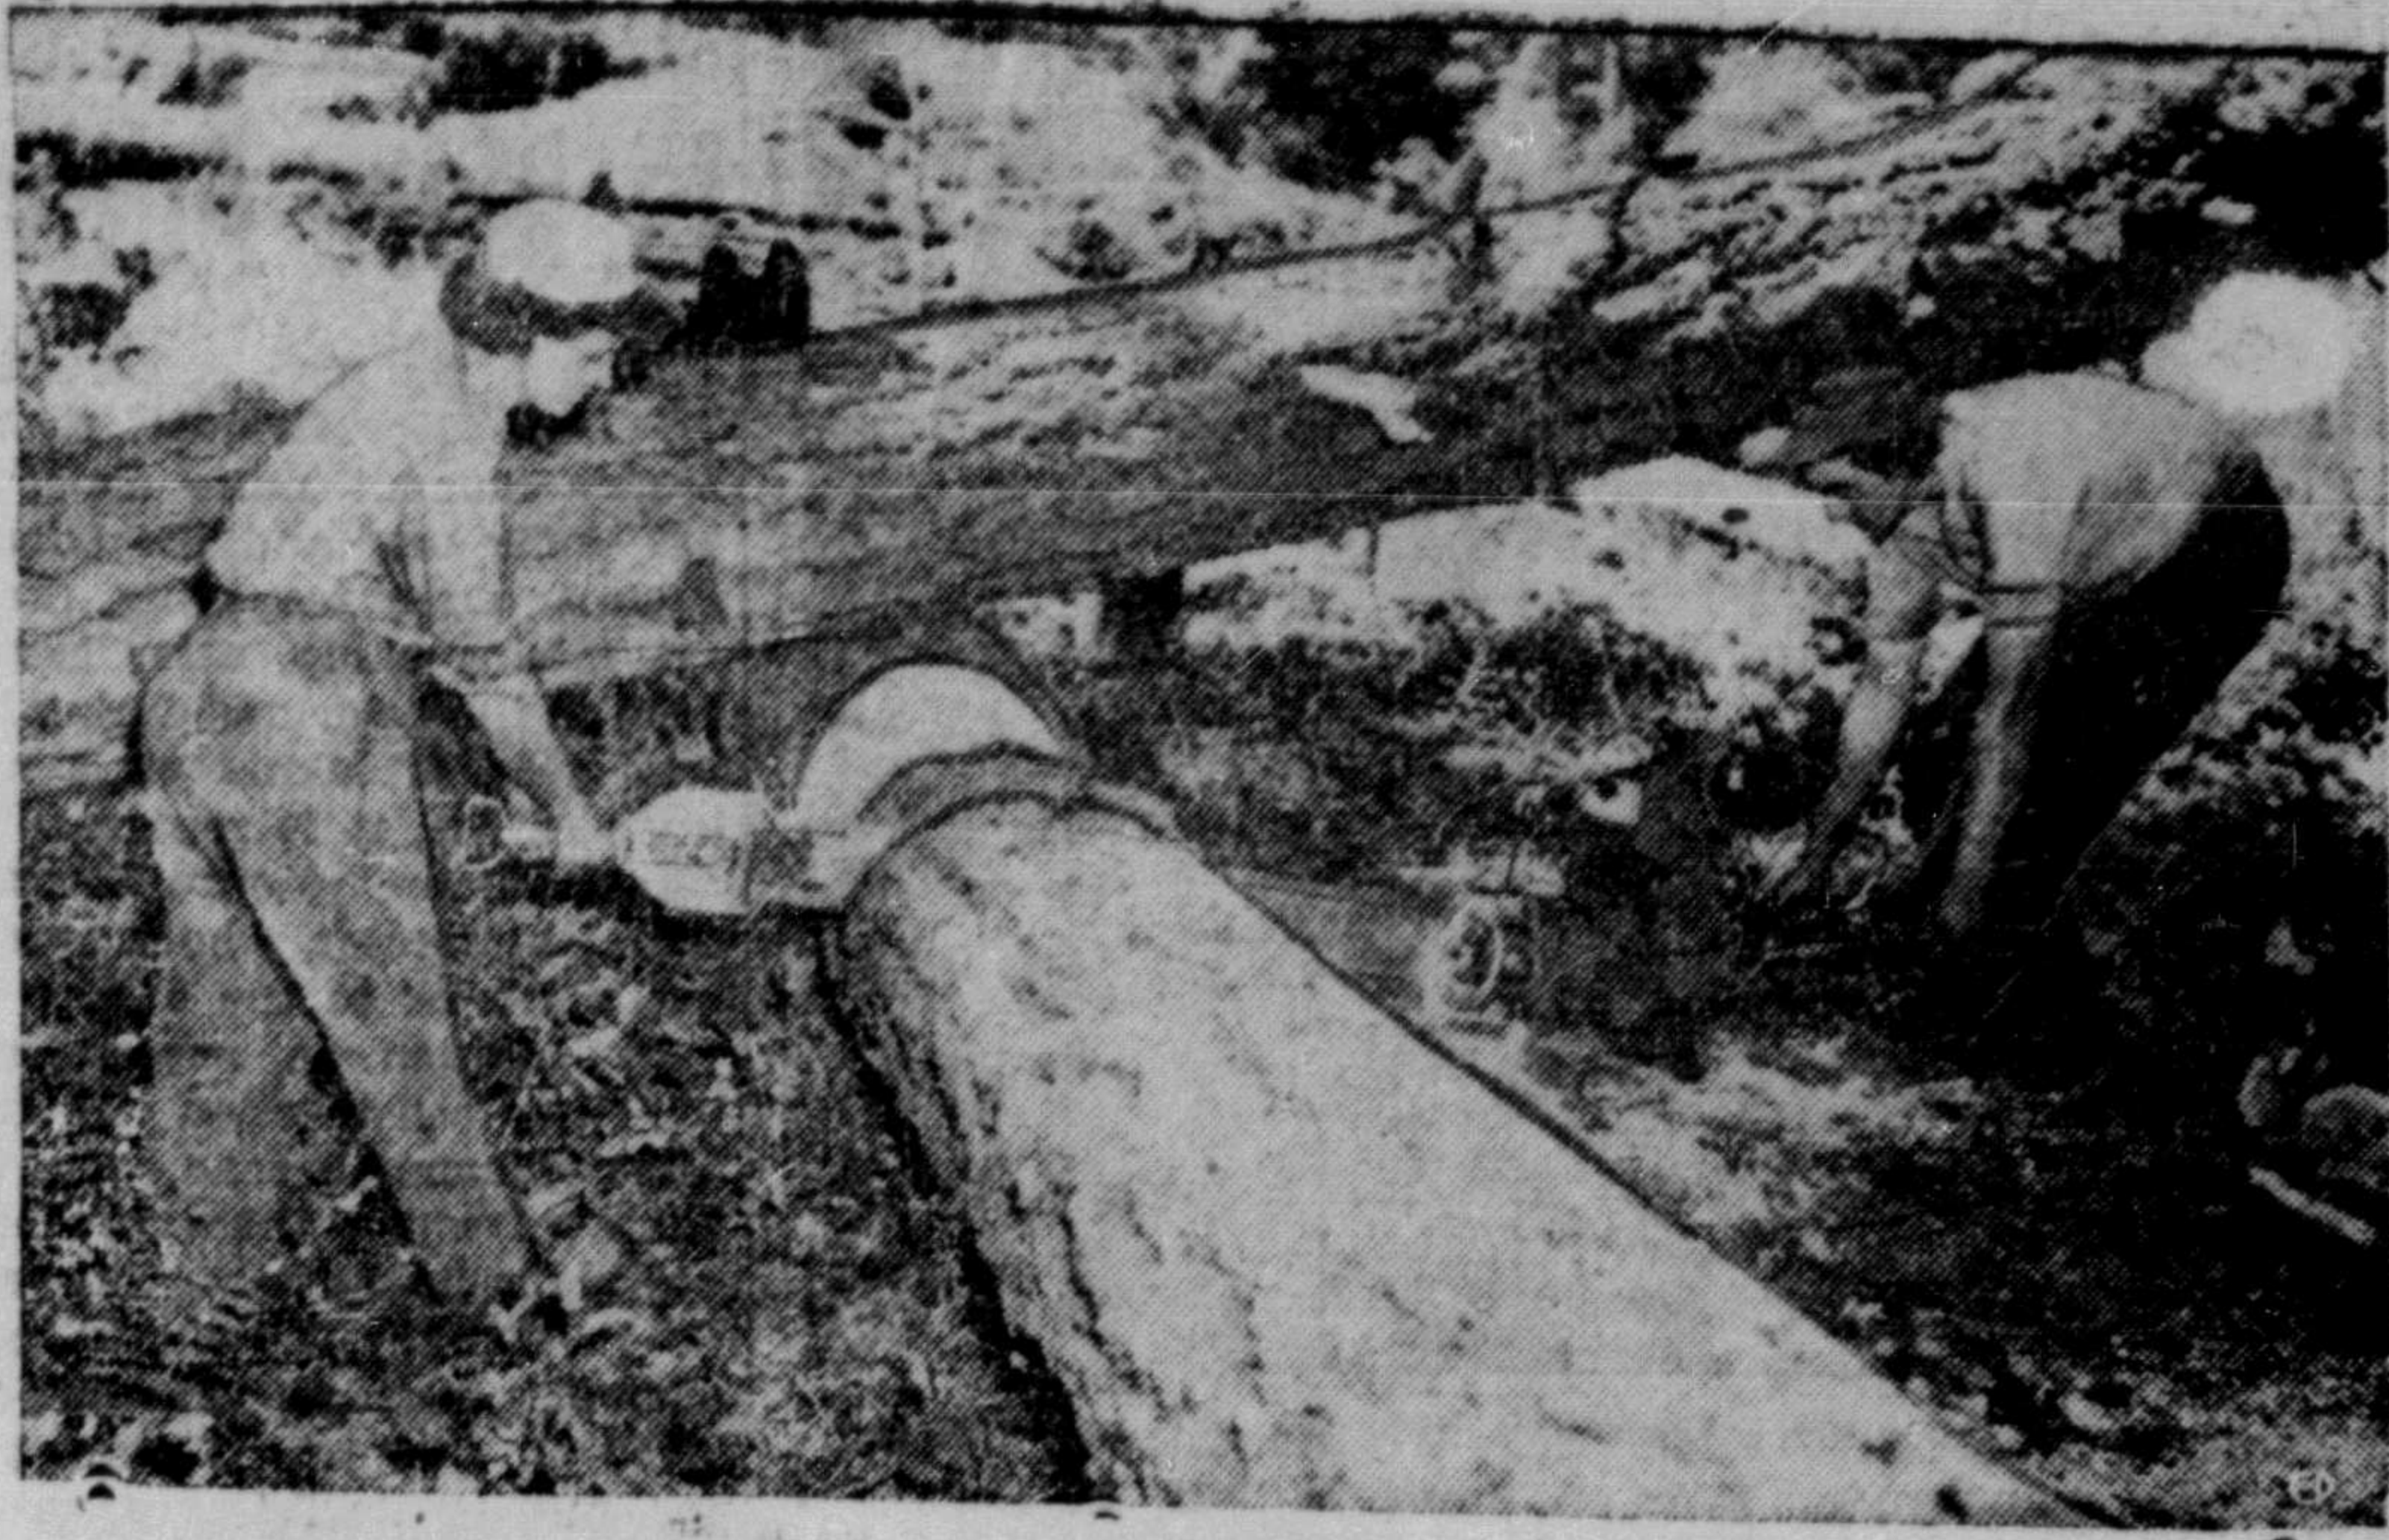

Describing the time-honored methods used in the business, Mr. Bacon said that new technically-controlled processes are posing a challenge to operators who have relied on experience and craftsmanship to give the public products of good keeping quality and gastronomic appeal.

"Times are changing. The days of the old-fashioned smoke house are numbered," he told the Rotarians as they relaxed after a luncheon of steak and kidney pie. "These operators who have developed their skills only after years of experience, find that they cannot compete with mechanical processes now in operation."

Mr. Bacon, who went into the fish business here while the city was still composed of tents, took a philosophic view of these advances, expressing the craftsman's hope that "mass production will not lead to the turning out of an inferior product."

Curing of fish by smoking has been carried on for untold centuries, he said. Just when and where the processes were discovered is unknown.

"Perhaps now that the Russians are claiming credit for every invention, they will take a bow for being the first to smoke-cure fish," he chuckled. "However, the fact that early man did use wood smoke as a means of preserving and curing fish is known. Their methods have come down to the present time only slightly altered."

RUGGED LOGGERS—Guiding a noisy, bucking eight h.p. saw through a three-foot fir log, Margaret Lowery, 28, left, and Eileen Lowe, 24, cut stove lengths for the local market. Their earlier venture of snaking the logs out of the bush on Vancouver Island, loading and hauling them to a mill on their own three-ton truck, went sour when the price of logs dropped. They turned to the firewood business and now are making good. Daughters of loggers, both girls were transport drivers in the C.W.A.C. during the war. Eileen is an expert mechanic while Margaret is a former upholsterer. (C. P. Photo) life and an interest in his changing surroundings. And, as life goes, it's not bad.

Included in the Pez Espada's crew of five is a chef, who formerly held sway in the kitchen of New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

North coast dampness, however, was found to be aggravating to Mr. Schwartzbacker's arthritic condition so they are heading for a sunnier climate. The Pez Espada is the fourth of a line of yachts of the same name owned by Mr. Schwartzbacker. The name is Spanish for "Swordfish."

Skipper of the luxury craft is Capt. Hans Rondrup of San Francisco.

Mr. Schwartzbacker is interested in such companies as Powell River and Celanese Corporation of America.

grandfathers did it."

Control of the brines now used as a preservative and the smoke which imparts flavor are the keys to the smoke-curing craft, Mr. Bacon said. Smoke from oak sawdust — which, incidentally must be imported into Prince Rupert — is being replaced with smoked salt, coloring compound and liquid smoke under mechanical process.

"A lot of products are being put on the market as smoked fish which have never been near a smoke-house. Individual skill and knowledge is not needed any more. Anyone who can handle a knife, read a book of directions and raise the money to install one of these mechanical smokers can get into the business."

However, the ancient craft itself has profited by technological progress, he admitted. Time was when a curer depended on his tongue, and later, on a potato to determine the constituency of his brine.

"In the early days, an operator would test his brine by tasting it with his tongue, but that method was not satisfactory. Then someone discovered that a potato would float in a brine that was palatable. That was used for a mild product. For a stronger brine, a four-inch spike was stuck in the potato. When that floated, the brine was about 25 percent stronger. But after the salometer was invented, the guesswork was eliminated."

But, whatever changes are made in the industry, there will always be one stable requirement. That is "fresh, well-prepared fish."

"You cannot make a good product out of stale fish."

Mr. Bacon was thanked for his address by Club President R. G. Van der Sluys. Guests at the meeting were Norman Morrow, Vancouver, Ed. Williams, Prince Rupert, Dr. A. Vandenheuvel, Halifax, Dr. Swain, Nanaimo, R. M. MacLeod, H. D. Thain, and Alderman W. F. Stone, Prince Rupert.

A short circuit in an electric motor in the furnace at the home of Dr. L. M. Greene, Borden Street, was responsible for a fire call at 2:45 Thursday afternoon. Damage to the motor may be in the neighborhood of $50.

FINAL COUNT MADE TODAY

Official count of ballots cast in the June 27 federal election in Skeena riding showed only a slight difference from the unofficial count which followed the voting a month ago.

The official count began at 10 o'clock yesterday morning when Returning Officer Rod MacLeod started checking the sworn figures submitted by deputy returning officers in the riding's 135 polling stations.

Following the official count, which ended at noon, the ballots will be held in sealed boxes for a week, until the legal appeal period expires, then shipped in sacks to the Chief Election officer at Ottawa.

Complete unofficial count which followed the elections, gave E. T. Applewhite, Liberal candidate 5873 votes, a majority of 1669 over C.C.F. candidate Harry Archibald, who received 4204.

The last poll to be heard from was Pendleton Bay on Babine Lake which gave Applewhite 13 votes and Archibald, eleven.

Official figures are:
Applewhite	5847
Archibald	4183
Rejected	76
Total	10,106

Present at the official count were Returning Officer Rod MacLeod, Election Clerk H. D. Thain, E. T. Applewhite, winning candidate; J. S. Black, agent for Mr. Archibald and T. W. Brown.

Stewart Mining Is More Active

With a big road construction job from Big Missouri to the Morris Summit mine about to get under way and the Silbak-Premier mine reopening, Stewart mining camp, after having been in the doldrums during the past year, is taking on a new lease of life, it is reported by Charles Bunn, veteran Portland Canal prospector, who is spending the week in the city.

In addition to superintending the construction of the Morris-Summit road, on the route of which there has been unusually heavy snow this year, B. T. O'Grady, provincial government engineer, who has arrived in Stewart, is arranging for mining trail improvements in various parts of that district including those on Marmot River.

Mr. Bunn tells of smaller mining work going on at Stewart this year including the Silver Tip on the way to the Salmon Gold (Morris Summit) where W. R. Tooth has three men employed.

On American Creek high grade ore is being taken off two properties by Owey McFadden and Art Cameron from the Terminus and by John Haahti and G. Kimball from the Kansas group.

Mr. Bunn has been prospecting and working on mines in the Stewart district continuously since 1919. A real sourdough, he went into the Klondyke in 1897 and helped to build the first horse trail from Skagway through White Pass. He remained in the Yukon until 1913 when he joined in the Shushanna stampede. In 1917 he came south to Ketchikan to take up fishing and bought a trolling boat. However, the love of the hills was with him and prospecting was in his veins so in 1919 he took his boat around to Stewart and there he has since been located.

Mr. Bunn is the owner of the Engineer silver-lead group on Magee Creek near its confluence with Marmot River. He was the first staker on Magee Creek. He arrived in the city from the north on the Camosun Tuesday and will be returning to Stewart Sunday night.

PIONEER HOUSE CHANGES HANDS

Sale is announced of one of Prince Rupert's earliest residential properties, one of the very first houses to be erected in the city. It is a residence on Eleventh Street just south of Second Avenue which has been sold by Mrs. H. B. Rochester to W. A. Simons, local manager of Canadian National Telegraphs. Standing originally at the foot of old Centre Street before Prince Rupert townsite was put on the market back in 1909, it was in those early days used as the Government Telegraph Office when the late H. B. Rochester was the first operator here. When Centre Street disappeared and it was necessary to remove the buildings, this house was taken to its present location. The deal was handled by Armstrong Agencies.

Timely Topics from Terrace

Mrs. C. R. De Kergommeaux, Terrace Reporter

Marjorie Thomas arrived home on Thursday morning's train from Vancouver where she spent the past ten weeks in hospital following a traffic accident in which she was badly injured while on her way to school. Though using crutches, she can get around quite well and fully expects to be able to go back to school in September. As Terrace's 1949 May Queen, Marjorie spent Victoria Day in hospital, her proxy, Pearl Haugland accepting the crown for her.

Construction is under way at the town ball park of a children's wading pool, concrete, and 25 feet in diameter. There will be one foot of water which will be changed weekly. This pool is a Kinsmen's project and will be on the southeast corner of the park near to the children's playground.

Frank Putnam, former minister of agriculture, and William McGillivray, arrived in town on Sunday night and, with Hon. E. T. Kenney went out to Lakelse Lake on Monday. They left for the interior later in the evening.

There was a collision between two cars west of the Skeena Bridge on Tuesday last. Robert Boddie of Prince Rupert, who was driving in to town from Lakelse Lake, and Philip Ryan, who was driving inland from the coast, were unhurt in the accident but both cars were badly damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Bain and family returned by car on Saturday from Victoria where they have been on holiday since early in the month.

Mrs. A. Gillanders, Joan, Neil and Grant, are spending a few days in Prince Rupert.

Stephen Howlett travelled to Hazelton this week on business in connection with the British Columbia Power Commission.

The local police force is issuing no further warnings to traffic offenders. The traffic by-law is being enforced in town and quite a number of speedy drivers have been checked in no uncertain manner, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Peeke Vout spent Wednesday in Prince Rupert on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert West returned on Wednesday from a holiday trip south and into southern Alberta. They shipped their car to Prince Rupert from Vancouver and completed the journey by road. Merle West, accompanied by Jean and Onolee Kirkaldy, went to Prince Rupert on Tuesday to meet her parents.

BOY SCOUTS HOME TODAY

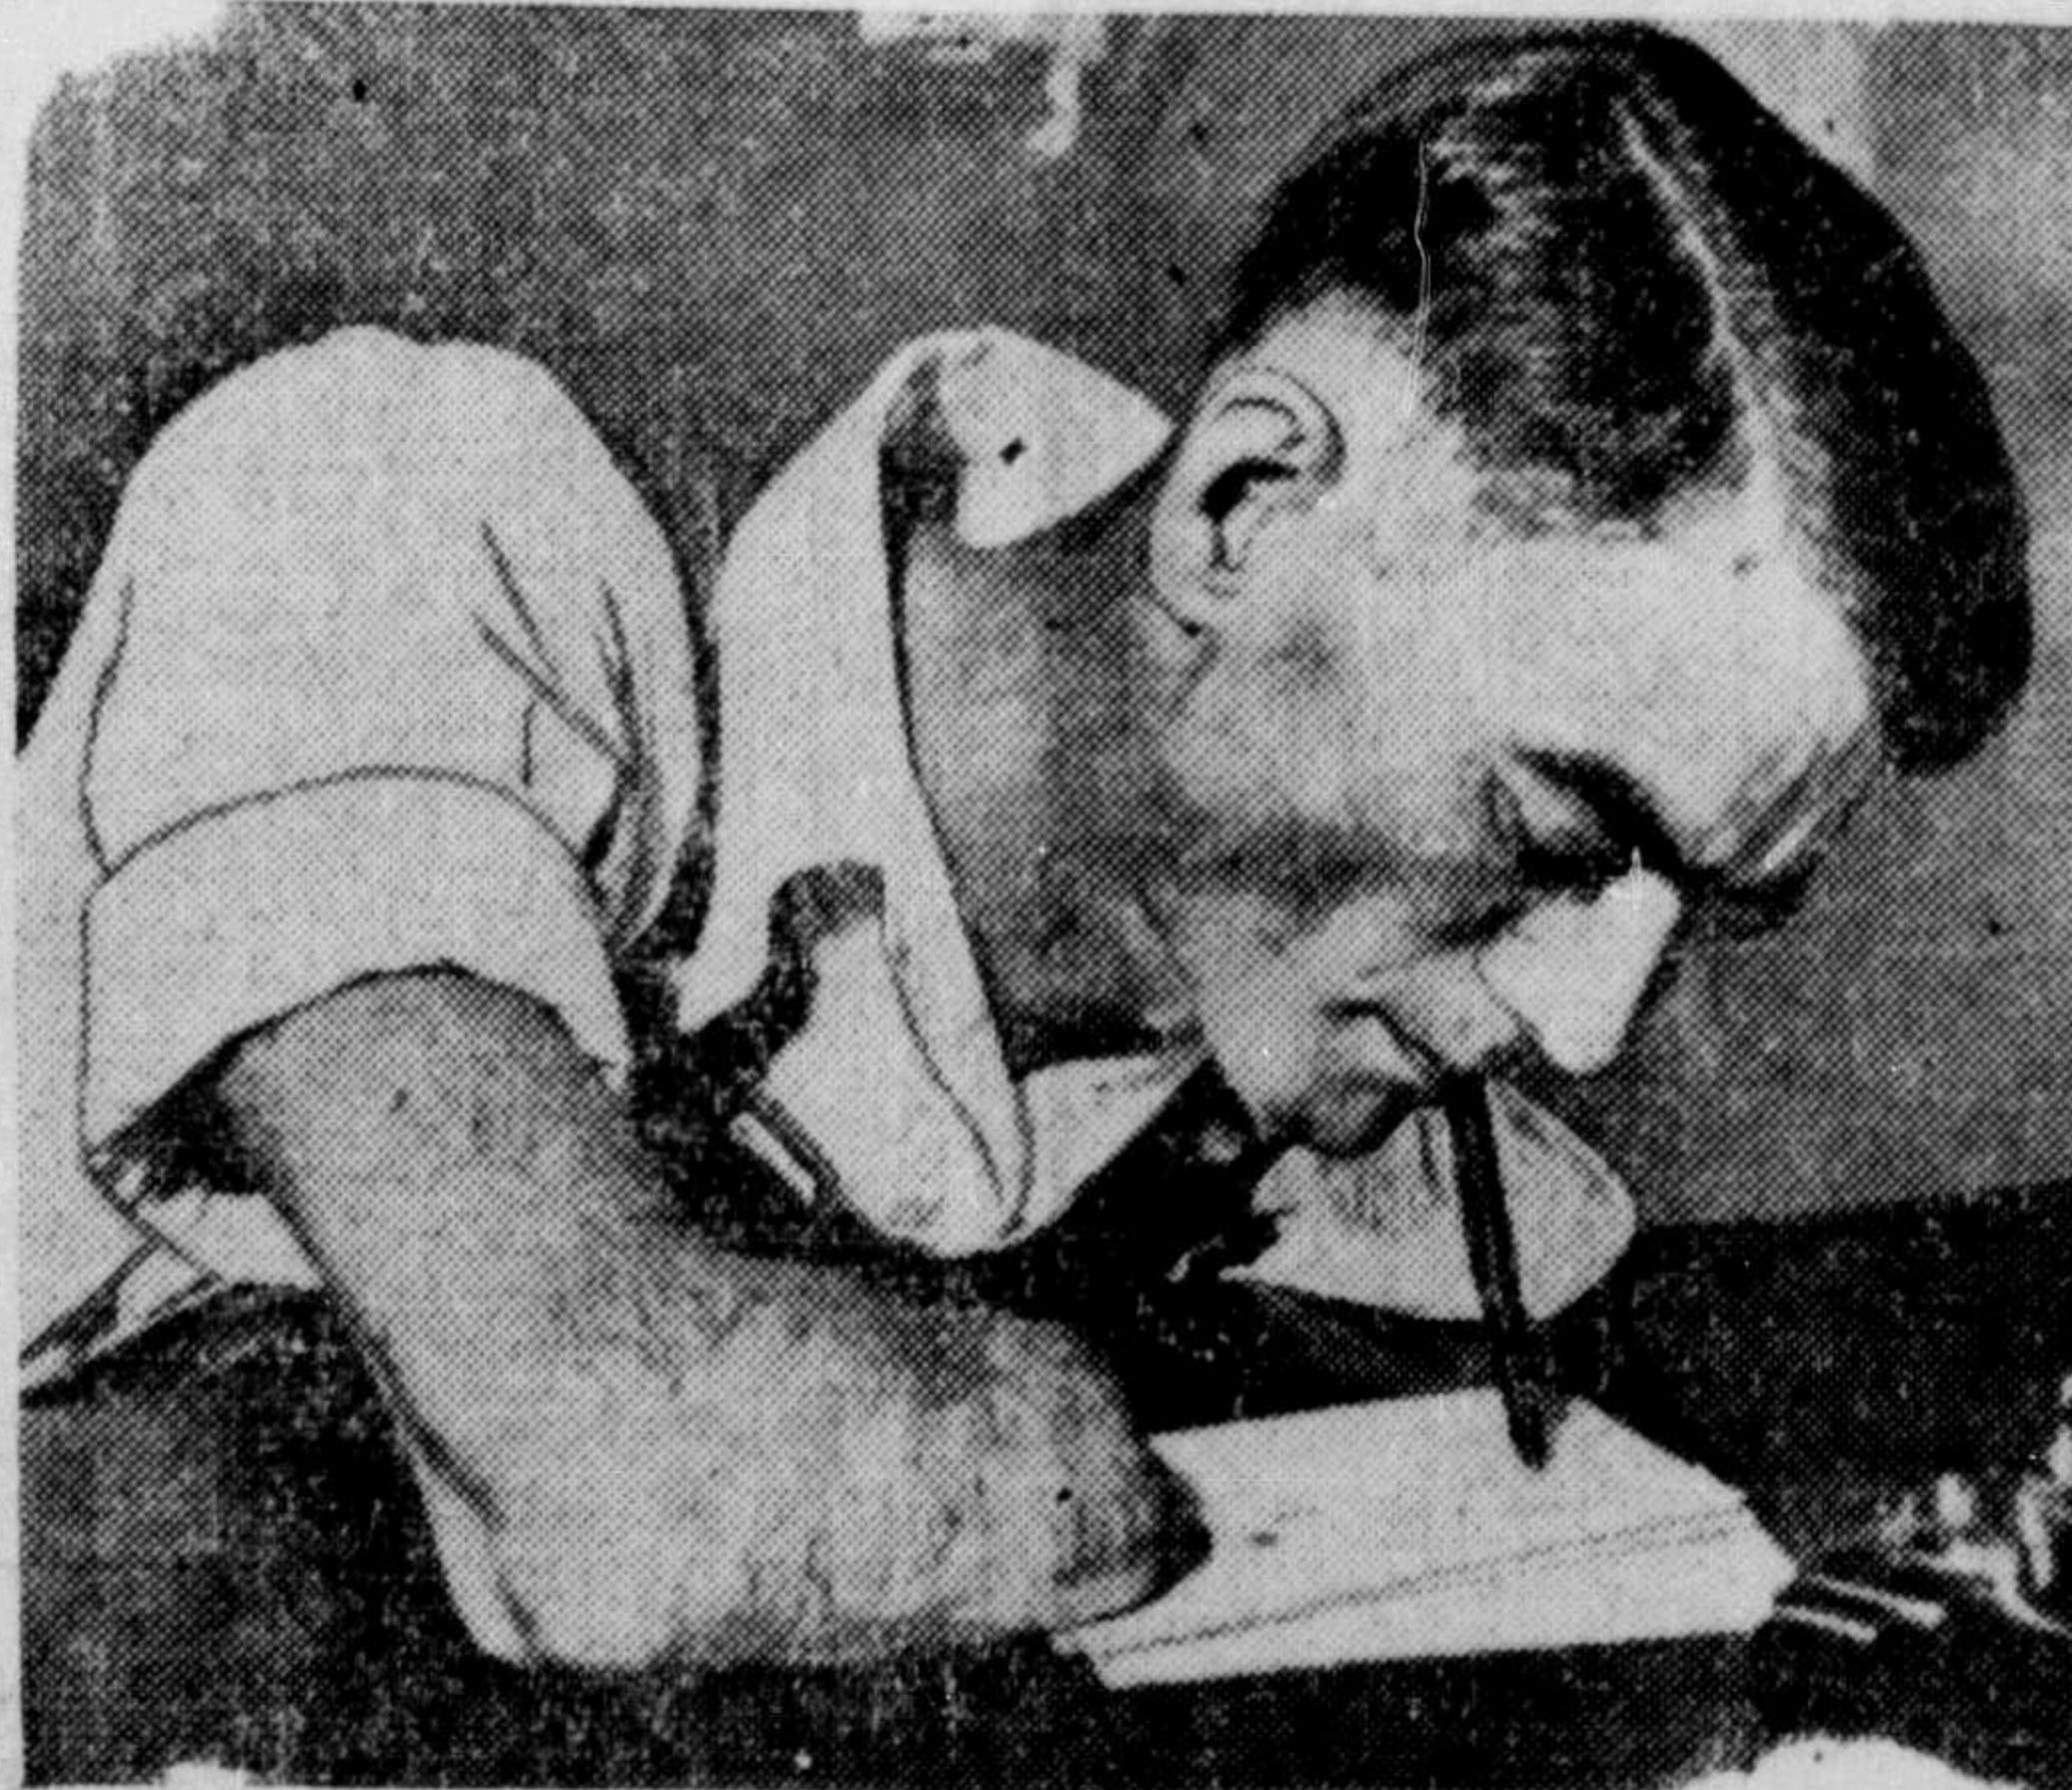

Provincial Life Reflected at Big Ottawa Gathering

Prince Rupert Boy Scouts who attended the Jamboree Camp at Ottawa return home this afternoon when the ceremony at Seal Cove of the transfer of North Atlantic water to the Pacific, is to be made.

The Jamboree was a great and memorable occasion. There were 3,000 scouts from all over the country. The first day or so, they went sight-seeing through the city. It was the first time that hundreds had ever been there.

The boys themselves showed in a most ingenious and interesting way, the history, industries, and outstanding features of their provinces. The Scouts from British Columbia revealed many of the highlights of the province's glamorous story from the early days.

Alberta Scouts played up prairie Indian life, the oil boom, and many other timely activities. Saskatchewan was well to the fore, also Manitoba and Ontario in a wide variety of striking scenes. The Ottawa Sea Scouts entertained the Newfoundland contingent of fifty Scouts in fine style. Incidentally, the Ottawa Sea Scouts were kept extra busy escorting visitors around the city. The story of Quebec was told in a realistic way, and the Scouts from Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick emphasized the importance of the fisheries, and the early

OIL IS WHERE YOU FIND IT—These Boy Scouts from Alberta can find oil almost anywhere. At least that is what they claim. And in this case they found it on Connaught Rifle Range west of Ottawa during the Canadian Boy Scout Jamboree which concluded last week-end. Of course they had already buried the oil in a drum before starting drilling operations. It was part of a display to tell 3,000 Scouts from Canada, the United States and about Alberta and its growing oil industry. The Indian in the foreground was part of the Alberta exhibit, too, one of the group that staged authentic Indian dances in costume.
