An inquest was begun this afternoon into the death in the city jail Tuesday of Mrs. Hazel Stacey, who died in her sleep, apparently from natural causes. Her death was noted by other women prisoners in the women's section of the jail.

Mrs. Stacey, whose age was 30, was serving a sentence after pleading guilty to two charges of supplying liquor to Indians. She had been sentenced to pay a $50 fine on each charge or serve a month in jail.

Apparently the woman died during the night but it was not noted until late Tuesday morning when another prisoner attempted to waken her. Previously, it had been thought that she was asleep.

Dr. R. E. Coleman held an autopsy last night and an inquest was set for this afternoon by Coroner M. M. Stephens.

The Chamber Speaks Out

ME LIKE THAT memorandum about highway I maintenance which the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce so enthusiastically endorsed on Monday night, even going out of its way to thank the highway committee for its work on the matter. We agree with every word of it and only hope that the powers that be will do something about it.

In very few places in British Columbia is fully adequate development and maintenance of our "highways being carried out and, of course, there never will be until there is a new set-up whereby the federal government changes its short-sided policy, regards highways as national asset and potentially paying investment and gives some real assistance thereto.

Getting back to the Skeena River Highway, however, the Prince Rupert Chamber is certainly justified in insisting that something be done by way of more efficient methods in keeping the road open and in good shape.

We will be told by the rest of the province, which even hates to admit there is such a road, that there is not enough traffic on the highway to justify the expenditure involved in adequate summer and winter maintenance. That is an old line of argument which we in Prince Rupert and this part of the country have been listening to for many a long year from the populous south which in its own day had money spent on various forms of development not at the time justified by the traffic.

Certainly there is not an over abundance of traffic on the Prince Rupert Highway now and there will be less too unless there is a change in policy regarding maintaining and keeping it open such as the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce advocates.

THE WORLD SERIES

N THESE troublous times when there is so much to worry about if one wants to worry or fails to prevent one's self from doing so, it is good that a substantial number of our citizens should be able to relax and take a keen interest in such things as the annual World Series baseball classic which is on for the next few days. It is too bad that even more of us do not do so. It would be good for us. The trouble with a lot of us seems to be that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." That is not saying, of course, that there are also those who would have all play and little work and that is equally as bad and unfair too.

As for the World Series it is such things as that which are morale builders in this world which may be so dreary and workaday, and alarming too, if we would let it be that way.

So let the Jeremiahs not be too scornful and disparaging of the folks who are getting worked up and a bit excited about the World Series. There is still lots of time to think about the Berlin crisis, the Palestine question, high cost of living, industrial disputes and such unpleasant things.

USING PRINCE RUPERT

LASKA SHIPPERS who have done business with the Canadian National Railways have been telling officials that the service gives complete satisfaction. They are well pleased.

For the past few weeks, canned salmon from Alaska, by the shipload, has been discharging here for rail transfer to the American markets. Monday, a train of 21 cars of salmon-24,000 cases in 'all-left this city. Yesterday, in the ocean dock warehouse, 281,000 more cases had accumulated awaiting transportation east. More consignments from Alaska are now on the way here. This greatly increased flow of traffic at last practically exemplifies the strategic advantage of Prince Rupert's location as the rail shipment port for southeastern Alaska.

At the very threshold of Alaska stands this Canadian city, with a magnificent harbor, equipped with facilities to take care of almost everything that is needed in the way of maritime services, and terminus of a railway system with the lowest mountain grade on the continent.

It should not be left to mischance or the hazards of economic rivalries that a city such as this is made use of in order to forward freight that cannot be delayed. If the G.T.P. had been built especially to handle goods originating in Alaska, the convenience now being provided, could not have been any great-

We're not saying that with an electric range an inexperienced cook will turn out pies and cakes like "mother used to bake", but even the most unsuccessful can learn faster, while the expert will find an improvement in her cooking. Cooking electrically eliminates guess-work and constant watching, for temperatures are automatically controlled. Truly an electric range is "a thing of beauty and a joy forever"!
