Million Pound Day At Local Halibut Exchange

Prince Rupert halibut exchange had its largest day in years as nearly one million pounds of fish were sold. Three boats not recorded would bring that total to well over the million mark.

Area 3 closed July 5, and the boats in today were part of the final rush to get back with their catches. There should be a few more in tomorrow to close out the season.

Prices remained good on the exchange with American boats receiving 25.5c, 25c, and 21s all down the line and Canadian boats receiving 27.5c, 27c, and 22c for all boats selling to companies.

Killed By Explosion

One man is dead and two are in hospital as a result of their gill-netter exploding while trying to start it near North Pacific cannery Saturday morning.

Moses Woods, 47, native fisherman, died Sunday morning in Prince Rupert General Hospital from burns and injuries received in the explosion. His son, Walter, and Rupert Woods are receiving treatment at the hospital where their condition is reported as fair.

The boat was tied to the dock at North Pacific cannery at the time when the three men were about to leave for town. A spark from the motor set fire to gas-line lying in the bilge and burned the men severely before they were able to escape. The fire was extinguished and the boat salvaged.

The men were rushed to Prince Rupert General Hospital for treatment. Moses Woods died Sunday morning.

It was the fourth French air disaster in less than a month and raised to more than 100 the number of dead in French air crashes in that period.

Well known newspaperman and advertising agency executive, he was formerly with the Vancouver Sun and, at the time of death, manager of McConnell-Eastman advertising agency here.

LONDON —More than 1500 London truck drivers went on strike today in response to a call for unofficial stoppage in support of the strike of meat drivers at Smithfield—the central London meat market—which is now in its sixteenth day. The nationalized road haulage executive announced that eighty percent of its drivers in the London area were working as usual although 1,815 men had not reported for duty today.

About 100 drivers, bringing fish to the central London meat market at Billingsgate, also stopped work at mid-day. Leaders of the strike, condemned by Union officials as Communist inspired, said that the main fruit, vegetable and flower market would be practically without transport by tomorrow.

Canadian Navy To Visit Europe

OTTAWA—Plans are going ahead for a European training course this Fall by a Special Service Squadron of the Royal Canadian Navy. They are subject, however, to alteration or cancellation should circumstances demand, Naval Headquarters announced today.

The destroyers, Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan, formerly scheduled to join the Squadron are now en route to Pearl Harbor.

The Squadron, consisting of H. M.C. Ships Magnificent, Huron and Micmac, is at present scheduled to sail from Halifax in late August for Londonderry, Northern Ireland. Arrangements have been made for the Canadian ships and carrier-borne aircraft to carry out two weeks of intensive anti-submarine training at the Joint Anti-Submarine Training School operated at Londonderry by the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force.

Following the departure from Londonderry the itinerary calls for visits to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, France and Portugal, as well as to ports in the United Kingdom.

Gibraltar is listed as the last European stop before the squadron heads back across the Atlantic.

It was emphasized that the European cruise, as planned, was primarily a training venture which in addition to providing the Canadian ships and naval aircraft with much valuable experience, would afford an opportunity to visit some of the North Atlantic Treaty countries. The Joint Anti-Submarine School at Londonderry is considered to be one of the most advanced of its kind in the world and the training obtained during the two weeks there would be entirely in line with the RCN's specialization in anti-submarine operations.

Americans Get Out Of Trap With Casualties

TOKYO (CP) — Northern Communist troops battled to within twenty air miles of Taejon, South Korea's temporary capital, today after a "lost" United States battalion had fought its way out of a trap and the first victims of Red atrocity had been found bound and shot in the face. The bodies of seven American soldiers were found in the see-saw battle area yesterday. They were members of the "Lost Battalion" which has rejoined its regiment and is ready for action.

General Douglas MacArthur, in a communique, told of new North Korean advances. He said that another stride had been made by the North Korean First Division which had hemmed in the unidentified "Lost Battalion" two days before it slugged its way free.

The communique said that another force, probably the Third North Korean Division, was in contact with United States forces at Chochiwon, fifteen miles southeast of Chonan.

At Chinchon a second Korean Division engaged elements of a South Korean corps on a front just south of the city, the communique reports.

General MacArthur said that enemy pressure gained some ground in the Umsong-Chungju area, some seventy miles northeast of Chonan. Units of the Fifteenth North Korean corps there forced back southern Republican troops to high ground northwest of Umsong, he said.

Just south of Chungju, a major city in the Umsong fighting area, an enemy battalion with other forces opposed South Korean troops, MacArthur's communique said.

MacArthur said there was evidence that the morale of North Korean Communists was slipping under heavy pressure applied by Allied warplanes which yesterday began around the clock attacks on them.

Some 46 enemy tanks, trapped on a highway near Chonan, were knocked out by low-flying planes yesterday.

The general's communique said that a new secret weapon was being used — Napalm, a soapy mixture that splatters flaming gasoline when a bomb bursts.

Problems of Aging

IN recent years more and more thought and research have been devoted to the process and problems of aging. The conclusions reached are often tentative, but they suggest that many accepted ideas about older people have been wrong. It is now widely recognized that a person's functional age is by no means the same as his chronological age. Some are as young biologically at 70 as others at 50. Frequently elderly people prefer to remain in jobs beyond the retirement age and it is often conducive to their health and happiness to do so. The compulsory withdrawal of such people from productive employment is a waste of manpower and to the extent that older people continue to be usefully employed the burden of old-age dependency is reduced.

Even more important than the question of work for persons beyond the usual retirement age is that of using to full advantage a working force that contains an increasing proportion of workers over 45. Here, too, it appears that many popular beliefs require revision. It is often said, for instance, that older workers are less productive than younger that they are less adaptable in learning new techniques, that they lose more time through illness, and that the accident rate for them is higher. Studies have shown that the last of these allegations is quite erroneous: the accident rate is generally higher for young workers than for those 45 to 60. Illnesses are likely to be of longer duration among older people but frequently of absence from all causes is less.

The extent to which the ability to learn is reduced after middle age appears also to have been greatly exaggerated. A number of investigations have disclosed that old dogs can learn new tricks—the ability to learn declines only slowly with age, and the apparent inability to learn is often due to lack of practice, or to discouragement, loss of interest, and other psychological factors.

The question of productivity is more complicated. There appears to be good ground for believing that certain physiological changes take place in the forties which reduce speed, agility and strength, though there are great variations among individuals. But often what is lost in speed of reaction and muscular strength is offset by increased skill, experience, judgment and dependability. The problem is, through rearrangement of duties, retraining programs and other methods, to place older workers in jobs fitted to their capabilities.

It is quite possible, too, that as more is learned about the process of aging, and as progress is made in combatting the diseases particularly characteristic of middle and old age, the productive capacity of the older portion of the population may increase notably.

The readjustments necessitated by the changing age structure of the population are both economic and social. In the older countries the economic problem is extremely serious. In Canada with her growing population, expanding economy and increasing productivity, the economic problem is more manageable. Indeed, the social problem may prove even more difficult than the economic problem—to find a satisfactory place in society for an increasing proportion of older people. The challenge is to provide more security and opportunity for the older portion of the population without seriously limiting the opportunities of the young, and without creating undue rigidity and discouraging the initiative that makes for progress. In the adjustments that are made a pattern will be set not only for the old, but for the young and for society as a whole.

C.C.F. To Meet In National Convention— Cabinet Ministers To Europe

VICTORIA—C.C.F.'ers from all across Canada will gather in Vancouver the last week in this month to see if they can figure out why they were so badly set back in British Columbia and federal general elections last summer.

In the B.C. election the C.C.F. legislative group was cut from 11 to seven members. Less than two weeks later, in the federal election, the C.C.F. House of Commons group was slashed from 28 to 13 members.

National leader M. J. Coldwell and B.C. leader Harold Winch will do their best to explain these humiliating setbacks.

For the first time in the party's history, a national convention will be held west of the Rockies. The last convention was two years ago in Winnipeg.

All the C.C.F. big-wigs will be at the meetings. Chief, of course, will be Mr. Coldwell and the only C.C.F. in the country who has been able to form a government—Tommy Douglas of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Hugh Gillis, professor in political history and government at Nova Scotia's famous St. Francis Xavier University, will attend, as will most of the C.C.F. M.P.'s and M.L.A.'s, including Frank Calder of Atlin, first native Indian ever elected to the B.C. Legislature. "Scotty" Bryce, M.P. for Selkirk, Man., is going to drive a carload of delegates to Vancouver from the Winnipeg area. Dr. Harry Laidler of New York, head of the League for Industrial Democracy—a kind of Fabian Society—and his wife are also expected.

The government is more than delighted with the traffic that's rolling over the Hope-Princeton Highway these mid-summer days. That traffic is bringing in good financial returns to the treasury—the gasoline tax alone this year is going to be up $1,200,000—maybe more—thanks to the new highway. Thousands of Americans who would turn around at Vancouver and head back to Seattle are now taking the loop over the Hope-Penticton and going back to Seattle that way. Because of this they're buying lots of extra gasoline in B.C. and every time a gas tank fills its little bell it's three cents for the Government coffers.

"Our program of roads is what enables us to borrow millions in the east," a finance official said. "The financiers have looked at that program and they know it's the very backbone of our economy."

A Department of Public Works official said: "There's nothing sentimental about our road program—it's hard-boiled business; if we have good roads we'll get more money."

At the way the gas tax is coming in now from the Hope-Princeton Highway, that $10,000,000 road will be paid for in less than 10 years. That's not bad business.

Every cabinet minister, during his term of office, likes to take a trip to Europe. The present cabinet has done pretty well in this regard. Premier Johnson has been twice in less than three years; Attorney-General Gordon Wismer has been twice. Finance Minister Anscomb has been to England and so has Minister of Trade and Industry L. H. Eyles. Education Minister W. T. Straith is on a European

NOTICE TO BRITISH and ALLIED VETERANS who may be eligible under amendments to the WAR VETERANS ALLOWANCE ACT

District offices of the Department of Veterans Affairs are now accepting applications from certain British and Allied veterans made eligible to apply for War Veterans Allowance by amendments to the War Veterans Allowance Act passed at the present session of Parliament.

Complete details as to those eligible may be secured from the nearest district office of the Department of Veterans Affairs. In general, however, to be eligible a veteran who did not serve with the Canadian forces must have 20 years' residence in Canada, and meet the other qualifications of the Act as to service in the armed forces, income, assets and so forth.

IMPORTANT—These amendments have been made effective April 1st, but retroactive payment can only be made if the veteran qualifies under the Act and makes his application to the nearest district office of the Department of Veterans Affairs by July 31st. Payment in cases where applications are received after that date can only be made from the date of receipt of such application in the District Office.

By ELMORE PHILPOTT
AFTER BILL 267?
THIS IS TO SAY

thanks to the readers of this column in various parts of Canada who followed my request to pour in protests against the government's Bill 267.

As we all know, because of such protests (of which those inspired by me were only a small fraction) the government dropped Bill 267 like a hot coal—one tour now and Lands and Forests Minister E. T. Kenney expects to lead a party of B.C. lumbermen to Sweden later in the summer.

That leaves five ministers to election—Public Works Minister get to Europe before the next Carson, Mines Minister MacDonald, Health and Welfare Minister Turnbull, Labor Minister Cates and Agriculture Minister Bowman.

The man who was longest a cabinet minister in B.C. history—George Pearson—somehow in the 17 years he was in government never found the time to make a European tour.

day after the Commons had upheld it by 90 to 39 votes. The purpose of the delay was clear: It was to give the natives, and their friends, more time to make concrete suggestions for inclusion in the new Act.

THE CANADIAN INDIANS and their friends were against Bill 267 for an obvious reason. A statute like the Indian Act is not something that is changed year after year. The old act, in fact, has existed much as it is now since Canada first became a Dominion.

Hence the Indians feared that, if Bill 267 were passed into law, it would set the general pattern for administration of native affairs for a long period to come. They preferred another year's delay in making ANY changes in the Indian Act, other than enactment of a itty-bitty law which scratched only a few outer fringes of the long standing weaknesses in laws governing them.

CONTRARY TO GENERAL misconception, tremendous progress has been made in the past few years in extending health and education facilities to the natives. But this is on a spotty basis. Where the Indian Affairs Department officials are really go-getters the improvements are being made. But that is mostly where the rival churches have no vested monopoly interest in the education of the nearby Indians. Where such churches have vested rights, the government seems afraid to take the bull by the horns.

Yet this is the very core and crux of the trouble. As the Stahlo tribe declared in their admirable brief to the government "this law should be buried so deep that it shall never be resurrected."

ONE OF THE BEST BRIEFS ever submitted to the government on the Indian Act was that by the Vancouver Civil Liberties Union, into which years of study had gone. It made this chief point that the "reservations" should be progressively transformed into ordinary communities, in which the owners who live on them have the same right to administer their own holdings as would any other group of Canadians.

I CHALLENGE THE BASIS of Bill 267 which was that the Indian man or woman who lives on a "reservation" must give up the right to do so—plus his personal share of the joint property—in order to get the vote. What a stupid argument to say that, as Indians are exempt from paying some taxes, the rest of us have to pay they therefore may not vote.

War veterans pay no income taxes on their pensions—M.P.'s and Senators pay no taxes on the extra allowance they recently voted themselves. Yet nobody in his right senses suggests that war veterans or M.P.'s should therefore be disfranchised.

The measly handouts which the Canadian treasury gives Indians on reservations should be recognized for what they are—partial compensation for depriving the original owners of this land of their means of livelihood.

By giving the vote to all Indians British Columbia has rendered ridiculous the claim that "it can't be done" without upsetting the reserve system. It has been done provincially and it can be done federally.

Presence Of God In Life

In introducing his sermon on Sunday morning at the First United Church Rev. Sieber referred to the great increase in expectancy of life recorded in the last few hundred years. In the middle ages the average expectancy of life was about twenty years; nowadays it is sixty. But Mr. Sieber suggested that expectancy of life in years was not the true criterion of the value of life. Rather it was the awareness of each other and of God's presence in all of life's experiences.

The Psalmist and Jacob had found that God was everywhere. His presence was inescapable. The true test of the value of life was the extent to which it was made an adventure in trust-worthy living. Paul was confident of this.

In current times the life of Dr. Stanley Jones was a living example. And Dr. Jones from his own experience pointed out that the most important factor in successful living was one's own attitude to life. Those who looked for the presence of God in life would find it and, in finding it, would get the greatest reward and satisfaction.

The children's story of "The Pearl of Great Price" held the attention of the children and grown-ups alike. These children's stories are a much appreciated part of the morning services.

In the congregation were many visitors including tourists. During the summer the organist is Miss Margaret (Peggy) Large.

The Vacation School will begin at the First United Church on July 17 and at Conrad United Church on August 7.

Clothiers Beat Watson Island

Good pitching, fielding Errors are Feature of Fine Game

Yesterday afternoon's baseball game resulted in a close win for Abel and Odowes over Watson Island but it required a ninth inning rally on the part of the city team to come out on top by a one run margin, the final score being Abel and Odowes 6, Watson Island 5.

It was a fine game all through with good pitching. A relief job was needed on both teams and the verdict depended on a close decision at first, to Prince Rupert's benefit, in their last time at bat and two costly fielding errors in the Watson Island outfield.

Abel and Odowes scored twice in the first inning when Cornwell got on base on an error and came home on a double by Pavlikis. Dunbar and Abel were then out but a double by Arney brought in Pavlikis. Hartwig was out to end the inning. Abel and Odowes were then held scoreless till the top of the ninth only getting a single off Caroli in the fifth.

In the meantime, Ciccone, using a nice change of pace, held the visitors in check till the fifth when Lavigne hit safely, stole second and came home on Hartwig's error. McDonald got on base in the sixth on Sunberg's error. Ludwigen hit safely and Wagner was hit by a pitched ball. McDonald scored and the score was tied.

Ciccone got into trouble in the seventh. Berquist hit a three-bagger. Tiechman got on base on Sunberg's error and went to second on an overthrow with Berquist scoring. Cornwell took over from Ciccone with the bases loaded. Tiechman scored and the inning ended with the Islanders two runs up.

In the top of the ninth Dunbar was safe at first on a very close play with Comadina's "safe" decision hotly disputed. Two successive errors by Robinson in left outfield on high flies by Abel and Arney, spelled disaster. Hartwig singled and then Robinson took over the pitching chores from Caroli. Sunberg singled, Ciccone was safe on a fielder's choice and Wesch and Cornwell were out but Abel and Odowes had scored four runs, with Dunbar, Abel, Arney and Hartwig all scoring, and had a lead of two. Watson Island were not beaten yet. Berquist got a base on balls. Tiechman singled, as did Robinson, and Berquist scored.

However, Cornwell struck out Caroli who was sent in as a pinch hitter for Warren, and McDonald, and the Islanders' rally was stopped.

Caroli struck out ten, walked none and gave up five hits. He later went to left field and then took over catching duties from Magnus when the latter damaged his finger in the last inning. Robinson struck out one and gave up one hit.

Ciccone struck out five, gave up five hits and issued three bases on balls. Cornwell struck out six, gave up four hits and walked one.

Sport Shots

British sports scribes have tossed aside their crying towels to sing the praise of a glamorous and efficient newcomer to the international tennis wars—19-year-old Susan Partridge of Birmingham. In the midst of disappointment and dejected post-mortems following the 7-3 drubbing of Britain by the United States Wightman Cup squad, the unheralded Susan suddenly flashed across the stage to dispel the gloom.

With methodical skill and confidence, the young Birmingham Miss sidelined five seeded players in spectacular upsets to win the Lowther tournament, a pre-Wimbledon tune-up event. This triumph normally would have placed her among the candidates for the British Wightman Cup team, but its personnel had already been selected by the time she reached the limelight.

The experts agree that Susan may require a bit more seasoning. But they are hailing her as a heaven-sent prospect who may restore British tennis to the glories of the middle '30s when Dorothy Round, Bunny Austin and Fred Perry held sway.

Writing in the Daily Telegraph, tennis-specialist John Oliffe has this to say about the young star: "I saw Miss Partridge play for the first time six months ago and was so startled by the perfection of her swing of the racket that I had to be persuaded to tone down my enthusiasm until she produced results. She now has proved herself to have that superb temperament which thrives on encouragement and success. Therefore, I have no fear of spoiling her in suggesting she will be Wimbledon champion within five years."

Meanwhile, the so-called experts are seeking an answer to the query: How long will America's girl tennis stars continue to dominate the Wightman Cup scene? In their post-mortems, British writers suggest that present methods of developing home talent should be changed. Coaching alone, they contend, is not enough. What is required is a regular diet of hard, competitive play.

Among the proposals, the most favored is a plan for the building up of a junior Wightman Cup team from the up-and-coming youngsters. Such a squad, it is suggested, should be entered in every major British tournament and even sent abroad for further experience.

To-night's football game brings the Heavy Battery and the General Motors together in the North Star League competition. This is the last regular fixture of the league leadership. A win for the Motors will give them the leadership and the Legion would then need to defeat the Battery in Friday night's fixture to tie the Motors for the championship. On the other hand a win for the Battery would put them in the running and if they could win Friday night's game all three teams would be tied on points. The league standing is in a very interesting stage.

The General Motors line-up tonight will be selected from: Boulter, Lien, Wellens, Large, Olson, John Wilson, Letourneau, Pat Wilson, Jone Lee, Ford, Owens, Price, Magee, White, Postuk, Ward.

One Hundred In Swimming Class

Friday registration in the Rupert learn to swim classes jumped from fifty to ninety. It is expected that by time registration closes next Tuesday that there will be a total registration of well over one hundred hopeful and enthusiastic youngsters turning out to these classes.

In Friday's classes, at least ten children learned to splash their way across the pool, while many others learned what it feels like to float, and still others learned what it was like to just take a deep breath, open their eyes under water, count their fingers and toes, and blow bubbles.

But learning to swim is not the only planned activity, in the way of water skills; there is diving for those interested.

Registration for the fun club now being organized for those between the ages of ten to fifteen years began this week-end at McClymont Park. The first activity planned is a hike.

How To Spend Happy Holiday

(Instructions From The Health Unit)

With the arrival of warm summer weather, more and more children are wearing less and less clothing. Fresh air and sunshine are excellent for youngsters, but mothers should take care that the very little toddlers get their sunning in easy stages. Sunburn can be serious for anyone, no matter what his age, but for babies and small children, it can be even more dangerous. Once a protective coating of tan is acquired, exposure periods can be lengthened considerably.

In addition, the swimming pool is proving an ever greater attraction to the older children. Swimming and bathing is very good exercise for the growing child provided it is done in moderation. In order to safeguard the children's health, parents should, however, be alive to the dangers. Here are three rules, the observance of which will ensure healthier bathing and prevent against after effects:—

(1) "Don't overdo it" — 20 minutes is ample time to get the maximum good from a bath or swim.

(2) "Don't get chilled"—after the bath, get thoroughly dried and changed. Many a severe chill has resulted from hanging around in a wet bathing costume.

(3) "Don't sit around on damp grass"—this applies any time but more especially after any exercise. Don't swim after a heavy meal. Don't swim longer distances or at greater speeds than you can handle easily.

Finally, increasing numbers of children are using the parks to play in—this should be encouraged more and more and parents should realize how much safer it is than the roads or highways. But even in the parks, accidents can occur—cuts and bruises are inevitable; however, a wise parent is one who ensures treatment as early as possible. Improper care of cut feet or fingers often results in severe cases of blood poisoning.

Korea war talk is in the air. Much more of this, and life will begin to resemble what it was in Prince Rupert back in the early forties. Doughboys are on the move. That is to say, they are moving into Korea. Back in Prince Rupert, we listen to the radio and do a bit of speculating.

Once, Yanks ran Port Edward. Big freighters were loaded with plenty, for Pearl Harbor was still fresh history. Things moved swiftly, smoothly and almost secretly. People became used to sentries and censorship. There were Yanks from Texas to Tennessee and from points east and west. Old glory fluttered from the crest of the Acropolis then covered with the buildings of the main camp. An officer's club had deep easy chairs and an open fireplace and pleasant hospitality.

Sight of a monster warehouse taking shape in the railway yards here seven or eight years ago both pleased and perplexed Prince Rupert. But, it was positively felt there must be a definite purpose. Something surely was afoot, and whatever happened could well be of major consequences. No one could foresee tearing it all down again in 1950.

Once, the United States Ambassador to Canada, Ray Atherton, sailed to this U.S. war camp over the border in Canada, coming north aboard a trim staunch yacht. He was received on a fair, midsummer morning by Mayor Harry Daggett and council and guard of honor. Mr. Atherton, a natural as well as a gifted diplomat, spoke at a dinner in his honor.

There were several thousands of American troops here most of the war. Many were from the Southern States. A lot liked the contrast—towering peaks and deep blue inlets instead of Dixie-land. This sort of region looked like good hunting and they

The service was conducted by Rev. L. G. Sieber, pastor of First United Church. Mrs. W. S. Smith presided at the organ to accompany the hymns which were "Abide With Me" and "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

Following the service interment was made in Fairview Cemetery. Pallbearers were J. Bland, H. McVety, W. Hall, T. Thomas, M. McKenzie and G. McCord, all of whom were friends of deceased.

Numerous beautiful floral tributes adorned the casket.

Deceased leaves to mourn his passing his widow, Mrs. Agnes Gibb, and daughter Jean, as well as sisters Mary Ann, Beth and Ruby of Winnipeg, and brothers Tom of Winnipeg, Sam of Colesia, Alberta, and Archie of Chilliwack.

Small Incidence Infectious Fevers

The report of Prince Rupert Health Unit for June shows a "reassuringly small" number of infectious fevers but warns parents of the importance of isolation and quarantine of contacts where possible. Higher incidence was rubella with 25 cases, 19 of which were in the school age group.

Miss Freda Hilton, senior public health nurse, paid her quarterly visit to the Queen Charlotte Islands, where she spent eight days visiting schools and holding well baby clinics at Masset, Queen Charlotte City and Sandspit. Transport difficulties prevented a visit to Port Clements.

The medical health officer spent a week in the Hazelton and Smithers district examining Grade I and IV children at New Hazelton, South Hazelton, Old Hazelton and Kispiox.

During the month all Grade I and IV children at Port Edward were examined by the medical health officer, and one of the nurses visited the inhabitants of Port Essington.

The staff attended the opening of the new primary school at Terrace June 8.

Mr. Johnston of the dairy department stated while here the quality of milk shipped from Bulkley Valley farms was equal to any in the province.

Miss Marilyn Ross joined the staff June 19 as full time assistant stenographer.

During the month routine visits, immunizations and vaccination programs were followed throughout the district.

The sanitation report says one block containing many apartments has been condemned and will be demolished as soon as present occupants are removed.

The report reminds residents that garbage must be set out in galvanized receptacles. There are some residents who are not following that part of the by-law and are thereby creating a health hazard. The augmented garbage service has helped out the situation in the city a great deal.

Mrs. H. S. Parker left by plane today on a business trip south.

Freighter Nootka Retiring From Coast Service—Prince George Has Many Tourists

For many years a familiar figure along the coast between Vancouver and Skagway, Canadian Pacific freighter Nootka, which was in port over the week-end, will be retired from service at the end of July. The vessel is already reported to have been sold. Another report is that the company is bringing another freight vessel out from the Atlantic coast to replace her. The Nootka, after having been in port for a couple of days discharging general cargo, sailed last night for Watson Island, where she is unloading machinery and supplies today for Columbia Cellulose. This evening she will proceed from Watson Island to Alice Arm and Stewart and thence to Taku. At all these northern points she will load ore from producing mines. Southbound she is expected to call here next Sunday for supplies and orders.

With a near capacity list of 247 passengers, the large majority of them being round trip tourists, C.N.R. steamer Prince George, Capt. E. B. Caldwell, arrived in port at 8 o'clock yesterday morning from Vancouver and Ocean Falls, sailing at 12:30 noon for Skagway and other Alaska points. She is due back here Friday evening southbound. Six persons disembarked from the Prince George here. Twelve took passage from this port for the north.

Union steamer Camosun, Capt. William McCombe, was well laden with passengers when she sailed from here at 9 o'clock last evening for Vancouver. She already had sixteen round trippers on board while a considerable number took passage from Masset Inlet points and Prince Rupert for the south. The vessel arrived at 2 p.m. from a regular voyage to the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Also having on board a good-sized list of passengers was Union steamer Coquitlam, Capt. John Boden, which reached port at 5:15 p.m. Sunday from Vancouver and waypoints, sailing at 11 p.m. for Alice Arm, Stewart and other northern points whence she will return here tomorrow morning to sail south at 1:30 p.m.

C.P.R. steamer Princess Louise, Capt. William Hubenet, arrived in port here Saturday afternoon enroute from Skagway and Alaska ports to Vancouver. Disembarking at Prince Rupert were M. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Carpenter, Skagway; Ostoga Kovacevich, Juneau; Mr.

Statehood Would Boom Pr. Rupert

"Prince Rupert would really go ahead if Alaska got statehood," says Elmer Howe, Los Angeles accountant, who is a visitor in the city. The lower shipping rates to Alaska which would be available through the use of Prince Rupert would work tremendously in favour of the development of shipping through here between Alaska and the United States as against Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe arrived here on the Camosun Friday afternoon from the south. They brought their car with them and are storing it here while they make a trip to Ketchikan, Juneau and possibly Seward. On their return to Prince Rupert they will head for the interior to visit a place they have at Ootsa Lake and to which they make a visit every year.

Mr. Howe was last here in 1942 when he paid a brief visit while coming south after having been employed on the Alcan Highway. He noticed many changes and improvements in the city since that time.

Ross Nicholson, former district cannery manager, was among a number of B. C. Packers officials who were in the city during the week-end in the course of a northern inspection tour.

Bet You Don't Know This About Advertising

Quiz No. 1

How much does it cost to advertise the big-name brands of macaroni? 2¢? 3¢? 5¢ a package?

Answer: It costs less than 1/5¢ a package for macaroni advertising.

That's only half the story. Advertising lowers your cost two ways:

Cuts the selling costs. And by helping make mass production possible, lowers the production costs, too.

So advertising saves you many times the cost of that 1/5¢ per package.
